CLASSES TREATED TO BANQUET

A very pleasant function took place in the Sunday school classes of Bridge Street United Church St. S., taught by Mr. Fred S. Deacon and Mr. F. S. Waterland in his inimitable manner as chairman, Don Smith, a former member of Bridge St. S. S. entertained in his inimitable manner, the guests and took charge of the concert put on in appearance and indeed in felicitations. During the course of the affair Mr. Deacon was the recipient of a fine belt and key chain as a remembrance from his class.

ELECTION AT PICTON

Picton will have a municipal election for mayor, reeve and deputy reeve on Monday next, according to those who qualified last night. The council and utility commissioners were elected by acclamation. Those standing for the several seats at the Council Board are Mayor—C. J. Clapp, George A. Welch.

Reeve—B. H. Palmateer, Harold Vincent.

Deputy Reeve—George Orvis, W. S. Blakely.

Councillors — Clifford Culliver, Thomas Cassidy, William Thrasher, H. Amen Hultes, E. C. Cox, Peter Collier. (acclamation).

Utility Commissioner—H. B. Tiller, (acclamation).

NEW AUTO MARKERS HERE

New automobile markers for the year 1931 will arrive in the city today by express and will be on sale at the H.P. Ketchum Insurance office tomorrow morning at nine o'clock, according to George Ketcheson, the agent in this city. The numbers run from DH-001 to DH-999. The commercial vehicle numbers and other plates will accompany this shipment. Driver's permits will also be available at the same time.

WEIRD HOCKEY GAME

A hockey match that had all the earmarks of a professional encounter took place at Simpson's rink yesterday morning. Teams representing the Assaline garage and Tremont garage from the East Hill were the contestants but the score has not been officially announced as yet. Walter Ireland made sure that no goals would be scored against his team as he turned the net away from the play and it was impossible to score. It is believed there were several players on the garage team playing under assumed names and a close investigation will be made in the allegations. The return game is to be played some time next week and due notice will be given in the press of the outcome.

CALL FOR OLD BOOTS

A number of requests have been made to the police station for old boots and clothing by residents and transients, but the supply is decreasing and if any of the residents have old clothing and more especially old boots, they will be thankfully received. Probably a pair of boots which are considered unfit for wear by some, would keep a man's feet off the ground until the Spring when he will be better able to provide for himself. If any of the residents will call the police station in this regard the clothing and boots will be called for.

NAMED ARCHDEACON

Rev. John Lyons Vicar of St. Thomas Church has been appointed archdeacon in the Diocese of Ontario by Rt. Rev. Bishop C. A. Seager of Ontario, according to announcement made in Kingston by the Bishop today. Archdeacon Lyons has been resident Rector of St. Thomas Church since Archdeacon Beamish left for the Old County to take an important post in the Anglican Church. Since coming to the city both Mr. and Mrs. Lyons and family have made many friends who will extend their congratulations to him in this important appointment.

VISITING PARENTS HERE

Mrs. L. E. Nash of Buenos Aires (Brazil), is visiting her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sharpe, 185 Church street. Mr. Nash was married in South America to the late Miss Vera Sharpe and is with the New York Universal Film Cable Company and was in the States for two years. Mr. and Mrs. Nash expect to go to Shanghai, China, within the next year. Mrs. Nash, before her marriage, was in the employ of the old Intelligencer office for some time.

INTERESTING SOUVENIRS

An interesting Christmas and New Year's greeting was received by many in the city from Mr. Robert Tannahill who is at present on a "round-the-world" trip. Mr. Tannahill sent his cards from the tropics from aboard the S. S. "Empress of Australia." Instead of the typical Christmas scene with snow and other trimmings, the cards presented tropical scenes.

WEDDINGS

VANNORMAN—LAWRENCE

The wedding was solemnized on New Year's Eve, December 31st, 1930, of Olive Marie, fifth daughter of Mr. David Lawrence and the late Mrs. Lawrence of Canniffon, Ontario, to John Joseph, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank VanNorman, Belleville, Ontario.

The ceremony was performed by the Right Rev. Msgr. Nicholson at the Presbytery. The bride looked charming in a frock of blue crepe roma. She carried American Beauty roses. Miss Catharine VanNorman, sister of the groom, and Mr. Cecil Hardwick were the attendants.

After the ceremony a dainty wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's father, the immediate relatives being present.

The happy couple will reside in the Turnbull Apartments, Belleville.

BARLOW—FRANCIS

A very quiet wedding took place at Wellington, Dec. 31, 1930, when the Rev. W. Smythe united in marriage William James Barlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barlow, Tyendinaga, and Florence Myrtle, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Robt. Francis, Belleville. Mrs. Barlow is a graduate of Kingston General Hospital.

LODGE NEWS

The Belleville Lodge A.F. & A.M.

Officers of The Belleville Lodge No. 123 A.F. & A.M., were installed in office for the year 1931 last evening with one of the largest attendances of members of the craft ever assembled at the Masonic Temple. The installing officer was Right Wor. Bro. H. J. Clarke, who thirty years ago last night had been himself installed as master of the same lodge. His work last night was performed with that excellence and perfection which has always marked the ritual as carried out by the former district deputy. He was ably supported by a large number of past district deputies and past masters, by R. W. Bro. J. Meldrum and R. W. Bro. Peterly, as well as by another Belleville lodge member who has reached the highest honor of Masonry in the jurisdiction, that of Grand Master, in the person of Most. Wor. Bro. W. N. Ponton. At the close of the installation, the lodge waited Bro. Reynolds of Mimico, a former member of the teaching staff of Queen Alexandra School, to make a presentation to the installing officer. The gift was a fine hat box for presentation to Mrs. Clarke. R. W. Bro. Clarke declared his love for and loyalty to his mother lodge and accepted with feeling the gift on behalf of Mrs. Clarke.

A similar ceremony followed which was rich in its emotional and Masonic content, the presentation of the immediate past master's jewel to Wor. Bro. Richard D. Ponton, who has just completed a successful year in the chair. The presentation carried with it many varied implications of a successful tenure of office and of the affection of the lodge but in this instance there was peculiar interest in that the I.P.M.'s father, Most Wor. Bro. Col. W. N. Ponton pinned the jewel on the breast of his son, accompanying the gift with a few words. The immediate past master offered his gratitude to the lodge for the mark.

Wor. Bro. Fred Chapman is the new master of the destinies of The Belleville Lodge. After the installation he spoke in brief in regard to the high office to which he had been exalted by the lodge members.

The other officers are:—

W. Bro. R. D. Ponton ..... I.P.M.
Bro. S. T. Leggot ..... S.W.
Bro. A. Hill ..... J.W.
Bro. W. J. Hart ..... Chaplain
R. W. Bro. R. A. Backus. Treasurer
V.W. Bro. J. McCarthy .. Secretary
Bro. Carl D. Crowe ..... S.D.
Bro. J. Noxes ..... J.D.
Bro. W. J. Anderson ..... I.G.
Bro. W. J. Johnson ..... Tyler
R. W. Bro. W. O. Adams .. D. of C.
Bro. Leo Riggs ..... Organist
Bro. W. D. Emery ..... S.S.
Bro. C. H. MacDonald ..... J.S.
W. Bro. H. J. Clarke .. Auditor
Bro. W. J. Anderson ..... Auditor
R. W. Bro. W. O. Adams ..... Auditor of Trustee's Books
R. W. Bro. H. J. Clarke ..... Rep. on Bd. of Trustees, Masonic Property.

After lodge proceedings had been concluded the craft members sat down to a dinner in the banquet hall, where with feast, speech and song they passed away the first happy night of the happy and prosperous New Year 1931.

The programme which was in charge of Wor. Bro. R. D. Ponton included:—

Toasts

NEW YEAR'S DAY USHERED IN BY CITY CHURCHES

Watchnight Services Held Appropriate Songs and Music

Among the many evidences of the New Year being ushered in, as the clanging of bells in the air testify, is Bridge Street United Church. As the year vanishes sound struck the air a number in the Sunday School assembly room met, for prayer, song and meditation. With Prof. Anglin at the piano and leading in appropriate hymns the pastor of the church, Rev. R. Bell opened the watchnight service at 11 p.m., Rev. Dr. J. M. Baker, Principal Emeritus of Albert College, offered fervent prayer. "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" was rendered as a solo by Mr. Fred Sprague very impressively.

Compares Life to Marathon

The Scripture passage of Philippians 3rd chapter, was read by Rev. the Chas. Bishop, principal of Albert College and from the 13th verse a scholarly and thought-arousing discourse was given by him upon the Apostle Paul's comparison of the Christian attitude to life with that of the keen athlete's position. Dr. Bishop reiterated the present viewpoint of properly forgetting past achievements in the exultant prospect of further attainments in the future. "Spiritual life," he said "is not simply a passive acquiescence to the pleasing thought to be found in other an aggressive co-operation with the Divine in accomplishing His plan, a laying hold upon possibilities. Then there would not be a dormant stalling or one of languor toward holy purposes, but earnest, alert endeavour akin to what the marathon portrays. Modern writers and reviewers in magazines and periodicals state the the year 1930 has been marked as one of depression throughout the century of this civilization still Dr. Bishop contends that such is to some extent a matter of mental bias. Certain vision will do wonders in even the religious phase of human nature. That which is secured without effort is not most appreciated was the conclusion of Dr. Bishop.

Penitence, Resolution

At Christ Church on New Year's Eve Rev. C. E. Clarke conducted watchnight service. There brief addresses were made on the passing of the year, as retrospect, the need of a spirit of penitence and the importance of resolutions. Hymns were sung and silent prayers offered besides the prayers offered by the minister.

Speaking on good resolutions, Rev. Mr. Clarke said that they had great value. Even the spirit which led to the making of a resolution for the betterment of life, is important though the maker may not be able to carry through his plan, for it shows us that he even if he is bound by sin has a realization of his shortcomings and that he has strength of will, which may yet triumph.

On the point of penitence Mr. Clarke said the Christian felt this need keenly. After the wrongdoing or shortcomings which offended one's self or one's neighbors, there still remained the fact that God had been sinned against. Christians therefore felt the greatness of the responsibility of their failures or sins.

Over Half a Century of Jewelry Satisfaction

She Was Engaged

by Louise Peple Armstrong

John Andrews knew that Doris Dean was an engaged girl, yet he persisted in showing her attention. "All's fair in love and war," he stated to a friend who spoke a cautious word of caution regarding on another's preserves.

"There's nothing so binding about modern engagements," John continued. "Doris has a right to change her mind—or have it changed for her" he added significantly.

But he hadn't been brave enough to declare himself to pretty, frivolous Miss Dean, in fact his boast was one of more bravado. Under the disconcerting gaze of her azure eyes, John felt totally baffled and inadequate.

William Hamilton was a promising young architect who suddenly had been awarded the flattering commission to build a library on the West Coast. And William took himself and his profession very seriously. He liked to have things settled before he left, he had declared his love to thrilled, delighted Doris, had been accepted because of the romantically startling fact which he had voiced his plans, had packed his few boughs, his ticket and taken the train to San Francisco—all in the twenty-four short hours.

Doris had received occasional brief notes and telegrams from William, ending indefinite and brief. He was too engrossed with important business affairs to indulge in the delightful pastime of researching his tender emotions and everything was settled between him and Doris anyway.

She had been thrilled at first when the telegrams came, and wept a few tears over the notes and read them again and again. But one night, having planned she let a yellow envelope unopened on the table she should return from the Carltons' dance to find a telegram was going under the escort of John Andrews.

As she stood in her attractive boudoir at two A.M. and opened the modern love-missive she did feel a twinge of conscience. She sighed, looking at her slim reflection in the silver panels of the long mirror. John Andrews had told her she was very like a Madonna lily in her white lace gown with its high apple-green girdle. John's eyes had said a great deal more than his lips had spoken.

Doris opened the telegram hastily and read its message.

"Have almost completed work and assistants will carry on so will be home Thursday love William."

The girl drained from her little heart-shaped face, her hands fluttered helplessly so that the yellow paper fell unheeded to the floor. She crept into bed somewhat later and found herself weeping bitterly into a lace pillow embroidered with yellow roses.

The following morning John called and wanted to take her for a long drive. Doris firmly refused. She remained firm. Three days passed, to the insistent ringing of the telephone.

"I don't know what's got into that young man," her mother said. "One would suppose he'd understand he isn't wanted here."

Then came Thursday, and the girl felt a sort of stricken relief, knowing that William would be home and she free.

"When will you set the wedding date, dear?" asked Mrs. Dean placidly as Doris came into the sunroom and listlessly sat down.

"Oh, very soon. In a few weeks, I imagine."

Mrs. Dean gasped and let her sewing roll on the floor. "Are you crazy, Doris? In a few weeks? Why your trousseau alone—"

"I'm not going to have a large wedding. I've decided to be married quietly—and just go away some place for a while."

"But that's preposterous!" her mother exclaimed, thinking of the social career she had so carefully planned for her only child. "You must remember, Doris—"

Mrs. Dean chanted on and on, of the indispensability of one in Doris' position having a really impressive marriage—it would be something to look back upon, that blissfully happy day, when she (Doris) a winsome bride in satin and pearls, with her arm on mother's veil, laid away in the trunk so many years against the occasion—and orange blossoms—

At that point the mother could no longer restrain tears, and Doris fled, her own lips trembling. She must take a long walk, get herself in hand before William's arrival—she could not bear to remain longer in an atmosphere which her mother had succeeded in charging with maudlin sentimentality.

She walking alone out here in the wilds!"

John Andrews pulled his horse up short, sprang from the saddle and was beside in her in an instant, possessing himself of both her hands "You've been crying," he added accusingly.

Doris snatched her hands away. "I haven't! 'The wind in my eyes—I came for a brisk walk—because I want to look my best tonight. William is returning on the late train."

"Oh!" That was all John said, but into the monosyllable he put a world of expression. He stood back and looked at the girl.

"I'll be married very soon, John," she said, turning her face away. "All this will be over—"

"It's over now," the man stated in simple explanation.

"Oh, John!"

At her muffled cry he galvanized into action. He stepped forward and took her into his arms, holding her close.

The mare John had ridden was a patient animals, but all patience can have an end. She snorted, flung up her head, turned in her tracks and snaking down the highway—toward a warm stall.

William was to dine that night in the Dean home, and he arrived punctually, on the minutes. For the first time, when he kissed Doris in the presence of her parents, he seemed to lose poise—indeed he appeared quite agitated.

But it was not until some hours later that he and Doris were each other alone. He was standing by the fireplace when she came into the living room, watching the curling flames. There was something forlorn in his expression, but unconsciously following that gaze, Doris saw that something very like a little kodak snap-shot was burning in the red ashes.

She opened her lips to ask what he was brooding about, then there came the sound of hurried steps in the hallway, a muttered word of insistence and the door of their sanctuary was rudely flung wide.

"Doris must not marry you, Hamilton!" Mrs. Dean declared, and having effected this very dramatic entrance, he faced his rival with belligerent air. "I would be heartless of you to hold her to her promise—when she and I"

"Do you mean?" William turned to the girl, his voice breaking over the last word. "Doris—do you really mean—?"

She could only nod, a frightened coneal expression in her blue eyes. "I'm sorry—"

Then John Andrews was beside her, upholding her in his embrace, and she was clinging to him gratefully.

William seemed to get himself in hand quickly. He bowed graciously to the white-faced girl, and when he spoke his pleasantly deep voice held a note of dignified dejection and calm control.

"Your happiness, my dear, is after all the only thing—"

Back in his own very shortly there, after William summoned a page-boy. "A telegraph blank," he snapped, "I've got to send a note before I catch the midnight train!"

His wire was brief: "Unexpected good news and possible immediate return darling will you marry me when I arrive."

And as the night train thundered out of the city, bearing a very fellow who was unable to sleep at the thought of Fate's unexpected largess to him, Doris again wept on the yellow roses on her lacy bed. But this time they were proud, happy tears.

It should be fascinate at the thought of having found a poor fellow's heart," she sobbed, "it's very wicked of me to be so heartlessly happy—like this—with John!" And so with a final little sniffle and a smile, she drifted into slumber.

'Africa Speaks' Praised Highly as Amazing Film

The San Francisco Examiner speaks in the following terms of "Africa Speaks" which is the feature attraction at the Belle Theatre, Saturday and Monday, matinee daily.

"Africa Speaks" is an amazing picture! To see it is to know why the Smithsonian Institution will keep it as an infallible record of life on the Dark Continent. Every man, woman and child should see it! It is not only instructive and sweeping in its scope, but a truly great adventure!

Paul L. Hoefler, noted explorer and student of anthropography and former Denver newspaper man, is the first man to cross equatorial Africa. He faced undreamed of dangers. Overwhelming sandstorms, blistering heat, when 130 in the shade was "cool", engulfing ice and rain-swamped marshes lent a terrific atmosphere to the uncharted train that led to the virgin haunts of wild animals.

Known as the Colorado African expedition, the party left Denver in 1928 and secured pictures of African tribes and beasts, which is now released by Columbia under the title "Africa Speaks." The weird cries and savage howls of natives and beasts, and the throbbing tom-toms of the Masai tribesmen are the natural sounds that penetrate the stillness of the strange unknown.

If you have never known the terrifying thrill of danger that faces a stary cruel death, helplessly, you will meet it when of a sudden before your eyes, a ferocious lion, a few feet away from the camera, leaps upon a native boy and crushes him to earth. Whine Paul Hoefler and his comrade leap for safety and barely escape with their lives. Here the large audience gasped breathlessly, and clung to its seats. You could feel the hushed exclamation of horrified amazement.

And then the Masai warriors, called to arms, to avenge the killing of one of their tribe, seek the lion with spear and shield, and making strange guttural sounds to the accompaniment of the repetition tom-toms, surround him and attack him.

It is another breathless moment when man and beast fight in hand-to-hand combat and again in close range of the camera. All of this takes place in the regions of Tanganyika, where most unusual and arresting "shots" are shown of the king of beasts "at home" and abroad in search of prey. One of these, is the near-by close-up of a lion pouncing upon a wart hog that just shows its head out from shelter.

The greatest swarm of locusts that has ever plagued any part of the earth is pictured with photographic sweep. The heavens are black with countless millions. And when once again the sky is clear, the land is pictured barren and the trees bare. . At this point the announcer quotes the Bible, referring to the plague of locusts sent by Moses against the wicked Pharaoh. It is one of the phenomena of nature that leaves you filled with awe.

You visit the duck-billed women, whose lips encompass a saucer. And you are told the strange superstitions brought about the disfiguring custom. You meet the pygmies who eat handsful of salt, and practice trial marriage. And you hear zebras bark, and watch the Impalla leap high in the air. Dont miss "Africa Speaks."

SMALLER SIZE FOR TRAVELLER CHEQUES

Canadian Bank of Commerce Issuing New Series After New Year's

Conforming to the tendency recently evident to reduce the size both of bank notes and Travellers' Cheques, and more pertinently to commemorate their founding established in the magnificent new Head Office building recently completed in Toronto, the Canadian Bank of Commerce is issuing a new series of Travelers' Cheques on and after Friday next, January 2nd. The cheques will be issued in denominations of $10, $20, $50 and $100, and also in Sterling denominations of £ 10 and 20 pounds. A vignette of the new Head Office Building appears in the centre, and the cheques are printed on safety paper with a sensitive, soluble ink, which immediately reveals any attempt at tampering with the figures.

Canadians travelling either within the Dominion or anywhere abroad will find such facilities as these provided by our leading banks. Being quite the equal of any such service provided in the great money centres of the world, and one may go on his holiday trip assured that with his equipment of Travellers' Cheques his worries over money matters automatically disappear.

DISCUSS APPEALS FROM MINORITIES

London, Eng., Dec. (CP)—If the Moslems win their fight for the separated electorate now being staged before the Indian round table conference, the minorities problem in India will be greatly increased, Appeal from the Anglo Indian, Roman Catholic and other important minorities were received today, all requesting new electorates. The system is said to fix proportion of representatives.

Sir Hubert Carr formerly tea planter in Assam forcibly called the cause of the Anglo Indians.

CHATHAM CELEBRATES

Chatham, Jan. 1—The New Year was heralded by Chatham folks in the usual manner, with the tolling of bells, shrieking of whistles and watchnight services in the various churches and social festivities. The police report that there will be no court cases.

BELLEVILLE CUBS SURPRISE T.C.C.

SCORING 6-2 VICTORY IN WELL-PLAYED AND INTERESTING GAME

Forgetting Vaunted Reputation of Hal Rivers, Locals Make Strong Showing—Rivers Scores 21 of Visitors' Points—Young and St. Denis Were Good for Locals With A Count Apiece, Hewit Tied for Honors—Morton gave Finished Display in Local Twine—Game Boosted Stock of Cubs Considerably.

(By C. D. T.)

It was billed as an exhibition. But it was a game.

The Red Singles received a nice surprise package for the New Year.

And the stock of the local Cubs was boosted one hundred percent.

The road is a long one in the championship.

But the Cubs should be knocking at the door.

Before a fairly large crowd of holiday folk and dyed in the wool hockey fans, Belleville Cubs defeated the strong Toronto Canoe Club team last night at the Belleville Arena by a score of 6-2, the periods being 2-0, 3-2, and by virtue of the win gave the more finished display of any Belleville team in some years. The fans warmed up to the game after the locals got set against their experienced visitors and distinctly outplayed them from goal to centre. On more than one occasion the referee was, when the locals matched the Red Ringers play for play, and their vaunted speed and play making activities were swamped before they were even started. Instead of meeting the visitor's offensive at the local defensive zone, the Cubs swamped down in the defensive area and wrought havoc with their system. The breaks played an important part in the contest and Belleville was quick to take advantage of their mistakes.

Just Another Game

Toronto Canoe Club came to town figuring it was another game and if they should go through the motions in a proper manner it would be all over but the shouting. The second string front line of Davidson, McNeill and Brown started the game but Grant, the coach, saw this combination would not do, so the regulars of Acheson, London and Dunning were thrown over board in the hope of stemming the tide. But reputation did not mean a thing to the locals and they proceeded to do as they liked, barkchecked them into submission and after the visitors were whittled down to an extent, the locals stepped out and simply coasted to victory. It was necessary to keep this regular front line in action most of the game in order that the score would not mount into double figures. The locals matched the visitors in speed and in backchecking had a team that, like a tent, while the defense of the locals could not be improved upon.

Hewit Landed Goal

It is to be hoped that all things that will be said of the team will not go to their heads. It is a smart hockey player that can take the plaudits of the crowd and still play hockey. Highhatting and thinking yourself better than any member of the team will soon wreck an organization and these words of praise are not meant that way. There were some mistakes made in the critical eye of the hockey fan but under the careful tutelage of Stan Burgoyne, these mistakes will be ironed out quickly. Douglas Rumions, who gave promise of being a hockey player and never did arrive last winter, is coming into his own and before the winter is over, if he keeps his feet on the ground, will be a smart hombre. His playing last night was a treat and his wicked drives had House, in the visitor's twine, doing the hula-hula on more than one occasion. He had three goals to his credit and every one was a drive from close in that had House beaten. His skating was fast and timely but he wandered from his wing at times which made his work harder than it would have been.

H. Morgan Is Limelight

Little Harry Morgan, who keeps plugging to make a place on the team, earned that right last night. His aggressiveness lets him apart from the rest and when the going is the toughest there Harry will be found. He asks no quarter and gives none and last night he took on the big fellows with regularity and made the most play of the night, being rewarded with a counter, just when Canoe Club were pressing. Another boy that has strengthened the team is Dave Morton, the mild-mannered but hawk-eyed goalie. He comes from a league where men are men and who, when, is the arrival of the fittest. He clearly showed last night that goals can only be scored against him when they are in the twine. He gave a finished display last night and on three occasions caused the visitors to shake their heads in disgust when they broke thru only to have Don make the save and in a nonchalant manner. It was goal minding de luxe and the Canoe Club players had nothing but words of praise for him after the game. Others in the limelight were Ritter, Sherry, McDonald and Young. McDonald was kept off the score sheet but his centre ice playing was all that could be desired. Sherry and Ethier made a hard-hitting defense with plenty of speed to carry their thrusts far into the scoring zone, while Young and Conners, the other pair, were not far behind. Young made the prettiest goal of the night in the third frame and completely outguessed the whole Toronto team.

Breaks Capitalized

Pete Morgan skated far and fast but his work was marred by not keeping his head up. Ritter turned in a fine game on the defence but was guilty several times of slowing up when hitting the defense at a time when he should be going at full speed. Shenton, coasted through centre ice when the gap should have been to the bot-ton, but otherwise they gave a good display. McGuire and St. Denis were not weaklings and this brings all the boys into the picture. They all have credit for beating a team, that is picked by many to win the Junior O. H.A. championship and it is the wish of the boys that they are the best junior team in the series. As said before Acheson turned in a smart game for the Canoe Club with Mahelli a close second. Higgins, Huggins and Hall were used often but did not measure up to the other front lines. Fred Hewit played a strong game on the defense but was pulled out of position on perfect shifts by the local forwards.

The Play

The game was only five minutes old when St. Denis and McGuire staged a little flurry that opened the scoring. The play was up and down when McGuire carried in close and brought House to his knees. St. Denis was on hand to bat in the rebound and the first goal was in. Rumions was in close and Morton made a nice save from Acheson. Both sides were using the combination method to advance the disc when Hewit banded Rumions a perfect pass at the defense and the left winger coasted in close to House and picked the far corner of the twine. Toronto Canoe Club gave their best display in the second frame and tied the count. Acheson scored off a fine pass by McNeill and McNeill beat Morton on a long lift through a maze of sticks and legs. Belleville took up the battle and Harry Morgan came in for all the hero worship. He carried from centre into the defense and Young, who hovers between the blue line to look it up inside. He pulled House clear out of the hemp and scored a nice goal. The game was put on ice early in the third frame when Young made his sterling play. He carried down the side from his own defense, then sidestepped the wing man. He sailed for the net and shifting quickly, picked the unguarded corner. St. Denis made the play for Rumions to score the fifth goal and Douglas made all his own plays to get the last and final goal.

Toronto Canoe Club—Goal, House; defense, Hewit and Fischer; centre, Acheson; wings, Dunning and London; alternates, Davidson, Brown, McNeill; Higgins, Huggins, Hall.

Belleville — Goal Morton; defense, Ethier and Sherry; centre, McDonald; wings, Rumions and P. Morgan; alternates, H. Morgan, St. Denis, Young, Conners and McGuire; sub goal, McKinnon.

MAROONS BEAT OTTAWA SQUAD

Babe Siebert Was Star as the Maroons Defeat the Senators

Ottawa, Jan. 2—The tenacity of Montreal Maroons made Ottawa Senators break their New Years resolution, even before they had a chance to prove the resolution was a sincere one.

With eight straight losses behind them, the Ottawa National Hockey League representatives played Maroons to a standstill at times in their engagement here last night and twice drew up to even scoring terms, but were unable to cope with the doggedness of the Montreal charges, especially in the dying minutes of the rugged contest.

Senators Play Well

A goal by Hooley Smith in the next to the last minute of the struggle broke a two-goal deadlock and gave Maroons victory, 3 goals to 2. Babe Siebert received the pass for the winning tally and crowned an excellent night's work, for it was Siebert who had accounted for the previous Montreal counters, both on solo efforts.

Although defeated, Senators were far from disgraced. They appeared to better all their early-season efforts, their combination efforts being exceptionally brilliant, and their mish mash defensive was more than equal to the near-perfect net tending of Dave Kerr, Maroon recruit of this season from the amateur ranks.

The game was rough and tumble, as Maroon-Senators' meetings usually are. It produced no less than 26 penalties.

PRESIDENT WON OPENING MATCH

Wielders of Besom and Stone Open the Curling Season

The annual President vs Vice President curling match took place at the rink this yesterday and was well attended, the curling being excellent and the ice all that could be desired. Three draws were run off, morning, afternoon and evening and the curling was as good as will be seen in mid-season. A large gallery followed the play at every draw and from the enthusiasm shown, the club is in for a successful season. Mr. I.-ray in his first year as President went away to a flying start for all his rinks but one won their game and some of them by large scores. Exception could be taken to the heating that Davey Davison, took from Charlie Symons as practically all his rink had eaten their New Year's dinner before curling while Charlie's rink waited for the feast and gave a perfect display. They could not miss a shot. Tom Hulley and Percy Hurley had a rare old battle in the afternoon draw with Hurley edging home a winner in the last two ends. Jim Galloway was too good for Capt. Bottum in the morning and Bob Wray defeated Walter Belair. This was a rousing old battle and not decided till the last end. The result of the draw were:

LAWYER FACING SERIOUS CHARGE

Brantford, Dec. 31.—Because Martin W. McEwen, a Brantford lawyer, 31, is wanted for his arrest issued yesterday afternoon, charging that he has defrauded clients of amounted estimated at from $55,000 to $70,000, has not been executed. McEwen has a severe case of gastritis, and his physician says he cannot be moved for several days.

Seven counts now stand against McEwen according to the police. The first count was laid a week ago and when the lawyer's name was called in court, the case was remanded until today—when he failed to appear. Other charges had been laid in the meantime.

Joseph Sedgewick, inspector of legal offices, came here yesterday to investigate the tradsactions complained of. Inspector Sedgewick is stringer of the provincial police, also crime armed with the warrant, but deferred executing it on account of McEwen's illness

LEAFS DEFEATED GOTHAM AMERKS

TORONTO, Jan. 2.—For more than two periods, last night's game between the Maple Leafs and the New York Americans, which had first place in the Canadian group of the National League at stake, was a somewhat tame and listless affair but there were indications that it wouldn't take much of a spark to set things ablaze. While matters warmed up during the final twenty, during which the locals scored two goals, it was not until the last couple of minutes that the real outbreak arrived, but when it did, it certainly made up for lost time. The players of both teams had been storing up little grudges from the somewhat overstrenuous going of the earlier part of the struggle, and when Carey and Patterson went at it everyone on the ice but Roy Worters, jumped into the action with alacrity.

At the time Day and Burch were serving minor penalties for attempting to stage a single-stick duel and Worters was kept busy when there were almost a full house, were being entertained by the Americans staging a real offensive. They were really out after goals and the Leafs were somewhat non-plussed by the aggressiveness of the visitors, and the locals had quite a time keeping the star dangled ones from getting away. There was a face-off near the Leafs' goal and the dropping of the puck was the signal for Patterson to beat the knight for Clancy and the latter met him half way. They had no sooner closed in on each other than the remainder of the players went into a mass of fists and bodies, but they gradually separated up into pairs.

Four Minutes Penalties

Cotton and Mansecar clinched and fell to the ice where they remained until peice was declared with their arms clasped around one another. Horner and Ayres squared off, Brydge and Blair locked arms and Clancy and Patterson went about their side line. Lorne Chabot, Leafs' goalie, saw it coming and had a ringside seat for the rest of the bout. Roy Worters stayed in his cage and enjoyed the spectacle immensely, while Day and Burch showed a desire to mingle, but wisely remained in the penalty box.

TRENTON CAPTURES OPENING BATTLE

Port Hope, Jan. 2—In the opening O.H.A. junior game here last night, Trenton pulled out a 5 to 4 win over the local sextet. The homesters led 1 to 0 at the end of the first period, and the rest of the scoring was done in the second frame when the visitors ran in five goals and the locals scored three. No scoring resulted in the final session, although both teams fought hard.

Port Hope had a good chance near the end of the game when two Trenton players were sent to the penalty box, the locals failed to capitalize their efforts.

Trenton—Goal, Chambers; defence, York and Richards; centre, Bohan; wings, Dolan and Matis; subs—Begin and Jordan.

Port Hope—Goal, Graham; defence Curtiss and Hodgkets; centre, Bethert; wings, Roach and Freeman; subs—Howland and Mesking.

Referee—W. A. Edger, Bowmanville.

DUNLAP WINS IN FINAL

Pinehurst, N.C., Jan. 2— George T. Dunlap, New York, Intercollegiate golf champion, won the Pinehurst mid-winter golf tournament for the fifth time yesterday, defeating Porbes H. Wilson, York Harbor, Me., one up on the 19th hole.

Dunlap, a Princeton senior, defeated Wilson in the final round of the same tournament two years ago. The Princeton golfer won the title four times in a row last year when he was defeated by William C. Fownes, Jr., Pitts-

BRUINS STAGED WINNING RALLY

New York, Jan. 2—The Boston Bruins, staging one of the greatest comebacks even seen in Madison Square Garden, defeated the New York Rangers 4 to 3 in an overtime National Hockey League thriller last night to start their third year of triumphs over the Rangers. The last time New York beat the Bruins was late in 1929.

Trailing 3 to 1 less than three minutes before the end of the third period the Bruins scored two quick goals to tie the score, and then added the winning counter early in the overtime session. Marty Barry, first Boston centre, succeeded Joe Jerwa of New York as the hero of the game when he scored one of the two goals that tied the count and passed to Dutch Gainor for the other. Red Dutkin made the winning tally on a fine unassisted play.

Jerwa put the Rangers ahead early in the third period when he scored two surprising unassisted goals only 20 seconds apart. Bun Cook scored first for the Rangers early in the second period, while Gainor tied the score for the first time in the same frame.

HOLWAY STARRED FOR TECUMSEHS

London, Jan. 2—London Tecumseh defeated the New Year defeating Detroit Olympics by 3 to 1 before a nearly capacity crowd at the London arena last night. It was a hard fought struggle with the Londoners coming from behind in the second period to take the lead which while in the dying stages of the final session they increased their margin. Toota Holway and Chas. Loughlin were the stars for the winners, Holway scoring two goals while Loughlin accounted for the other counter. The Olympics' lone tally came after twelve minutes of play in the opening period when Steele scored on a pass from Gill.

It was a typical Detroit-London battle with two major and 11 minor penalties being imposed. Murray and Goldenberg were majors when they staged a fistic encounter in the opening period.

For Men Max Tees the Trick

When the Y's Men Volleyball Team completed of Pratt, Brown, Black, Shortt, Hodgson and C. Web lined up against the Business Men's representatives which included Mannings, Mc-Elhinney, Hamilton, Cole, Morden and Mortmer. It looked like nothing else but a win for the Club Team, yet B. remained for the Business Men's Sextette to strike a real surprise. The first game saw the Business Men carry the lead for a considerable part of the fixture only to relinquish same toward the end, finally losing out by Company to check up a win at 15-11. Checking counts, the previous winners, Shortt first game making close to approaching figure, medical and before they could impart some signs of life into the game the opposition had established an insurmountable lead, taking the game 15-3.

Threatening terrible vengeance, the leader of the game No. 2 started off with the lead and it looked for all the world as if the Business Men were destined to "pass out" after trailing the Club Team in the great part of the deciding game. Towards the termination of affairs the luck shifted and the "Chocolate Kings" were successful to tying the score at 13, thirteen and then going out to take the necessary two points for the game and set.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM STEWART

Stirling, Jan. 2.—On Thursday, December 18th, there passed away a very highly esteemed citizen of Rawdon, in the person of Mr. William Stewart. The deceased was born in Kingston on January 2nd, 1850, and came with his parents to Rawdon when he was but two years old, and resided on the Meuse Stock Farm until his death. His parents came from Aberdeenshire, Scotland.

The late Mr. Stewart was considered one of the best known breeders of Ayrshire cattle in Canada and frequently exhibited them in Toronto and other cities in Canada. In 1911 he took his cattle to the World's Fair in Chicago, and won three first prizes, three seconds and five thirds, the best showing of any breeder of Ayrshires in the Dominion.

On the 23rd of September, 1872, Mr. Stewart was united in marriage to Miss Jane Milne, the officiating clergyman being Rev. J. H. Smith, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Belleville. They were attended by Mr. Walter Todd and Miss Jennie Stewart, Mr. Stewart's sister, who is now Mrs. Walter Todd, of Campbellford. In 1923, Mr. and Mrs Stewart celebrated the golden jubilee of their wedding. To them were born seven children, three are now deceased: Mrs. George Fry, Agnes May, and Ethel. The remaining members of the family are: Mrs. John Haig, Stirling; Mrs. George Donk, Brighton; James, on the farm at Meuse, and William, at Stirling. Mrs. Stewart also survives him.

Mr. Stewart possessed many noble and lovable qualities which made him a host of friends. He was genial, friendly and kind hearted, and the soul of honour. In politics he was a Liberal and a religion a Presbyterian, being a member of St. Andrew's church at Burnbrae.

The funeral which was very largely attended took place on Saturday, December 20th. The remains were interred, in Burnbrae cemetery, after which service was conducted in St. Andrew's Church by the Rev. D. A. McKenzie, assisted by the Rev. Hugh Shaw, the text being Psalm 16:11.

Mrs. G. V. Taylor, choir leader of St. Andrew's church, Burnbrae, and her sister, Mrs. Chas. Milne, of Campbellford, sang a beautiful duet "The pall-bearers were his six grandsons: Messrs. Harold, Leo and Stanley Fry, Alex. Haig, of Stirling, and William and Raymond Donk of Bright-on.

During his long illness, the late Mr. Stewart suffered much but endured with Christian patience and fortitude.

"Servant of God, well done. Thy glorious warfare's past.

The battle fought, the victory won Enter thy rest crowned at last."

The sorrowing friends have the sympathy of the entire community.

Mr. Stewart was the oldest Ayrshire breeder in Ontario and had one of the first Ayrshire herds in Northumberland county; and for many years took numerous prizes at the C. N. E. at Toronto, Ottawa, London, Peterboro and other fairs and twice won championship prizes at Chicago, in the late years owing to failing health he discontinued exhibiting cattle at the fairs. He was a life member previous to his death he was elected honorary president of the Central Ontario Ayrshire Breeders' Club. Among the many fine cattle were sheaves of roses sent by the Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association and the Ayrshire Breeders' Club.

HENRY PINCKEY

The funeral of the late Henry Prickey was held from the family residence Harriet Steet, service being conducted by the Rev. A. E. McCollough. The floral offerings were largely attended. Bearers were all members of the family. The interment took place at Belleville Cemetery.

MRS. JACOB WILSON

Toronto, Jan. 3.—Mrs. Lillian Caro Wilson, widow of Jacob Wilson, died at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Christopher F. Tugman, 51 Moore Avenue. Mrs. Wilson, who was in her 80th year, was born in Belleville, but had been a resident of Toronto for the last 35 years. She was a member of the Young Street United Church, and is survived by five daughters, Mrs. John Storey, Clevedand; Mrs. C. F. Tugman, Mrs. George Pickering; one son, J. R. Wilson of this city and five grandchildren.

MRS. PETER TRIPP

Word has been received in the city of the death in Picton, this morning, of Mrs. Peter Tripp, a former resident of Belleville, whose home in the city was at 67 Crier street. Mrs. Tripp, with her husband moved to Picton three years ago. She was a member of the United Church. She leaves her husband, four daughters and one son. They are Mrs. Ritchie Thompson of this city, Mrs. Clayton Hall of Demoresville, Mrs. Stephen May of Saskatoon, Mrs. Herbert Libert, Watchwatch, Ohio, and Mr. Charles Tripp of Minneapolis. The funeral will take place in Picton on Monday.

WILLIAM B. TUFTS

The funeral of the late William B. Tufts was held from the family residence Zion's Hill on Wednesday after noon under the auspices of the Orange Order, Foxboro Lodge No. 3 Rev. I. Snell conducted service at the Hallway United Church in the presence of a large number of friends of the deceased, who had been one of the most prominent of the residents of Thurlow for many years. Revs. Sharpe, Truscott and Wooden, who had known the late Mr. Tufts intimately assisted in the service. The funeral of the late citizen to the community and to the church in which he had served in many capacities were touched upon. Interment was made at Clarke's Cemetery.

Numerous floral tributes had been sent in memory of Mr. Tufts.

The bearers were T. B. Watt, Matthew Jones, Harry Dafoe of Foxboro Lodge L.O.L. No. 3, George Rose, John Lowery and William Cadman of Hallowy Lodge No. 221 L.O.L.

MRS. ELIZA DEEN

All that was mortal of the late Mrs. Eliza Deen was laid to rest in Thomasburg cemetery on Wednesday afternoon. The funeral took place from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. J. Hutchinson, 5th concession of Thurlow and the services were conducted by the Rev. W. Merrick of Consecon United Church. The bearers included W. and J. and F. Hutchinson, H. and E. and Clayton Deen, grandsons.

NBC have another big night tonight and the locale of the story will be Europe again last week, the Clue Leviathan and oodles and oodles of stage screen and vrudeville stars will give their little song and dance to entertain us. 7.30 WEAF.... Vincent Lopez immediately after.

From WJZ at 7.45 the "Prostitute" a sparkling program we'll all agree an and then at 8 Elizabeth Lennox is to be the guest artist and this should be good too. Interwoven Pair at 8 and at 9.30 Irvin S. Cobb is to be the guest speeker on a program from this station.

Florence Richardson ushers in a program of dance music tonight at midnight with one of the smartest signature songs on the air. "Sweet Lady" Listen in to-night and check up on this statement. Luigi Romineli and his concert ensemble between 10.30 and 11.30 and at midnight Ben Lown and his orchestra.

Just a tip for those who were regular listeners of the Smith Brothers when they were stationed at WJZ, listen in to station WLW tonight at the treke of 8.45 and you'll hear something to your advantage...I'll be seeing you.

C. M. REID OFFERS ADVICE TO MIAMI TO REDUCE NOISES

Guests of downtown Miami hotels Friday endorsed the movement initiated by the Great Miami Hotel Association to eliminate unnecessary noises by an ordinance aimed principally at use of the cutout, honking of horns by impatient drivers and screeching of brakes by careless motorists, which is under consideration by the city commission.

(1) The Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville intend to carry out as a Local Improvement the construction of a sanitary sewer together with the necessary private drain connections on the following street in the City of Belleville:

(a) Ridley Avenue from Lot 43 to Lot 47.

(2) The estimated cost of the said works, the Corporation's share, the estimated life of the works, the estimated cost per foot front of the estimated cost of private drain connections are as follows:-

	Est. Cost of Works	Pt Irish Corp. Share	Est. Cost per foot front	Pte. Drain Connections
Estimated Cost City's Share Private Share per foot front. Connections	$3,500.00	$2,500.00	$5.34	$125.00 each

(3) The estimated lifetime of the works is thirty-one years and the special assessment is to be paid in thirty equal annual instalments.

(4) A Petition to the said Council will not avail to prevent its construction, but a petition against the work or the manner in which it has been undertaken may be made pursuant to Section 8 of The Local Improvement Act, to The Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, by a majority of the owners representing at least one-half of the value of the lots which are to be specially assessed therefor.

(5) A by-law for undertaking the work will be considered by the Council at a meeting thereof to be held on the 2nd day of February, 1931, or at a regular or special meeting thereof to be held thereafter.

Dated at Belleville, this 2nd day of January, 1931.

J. Wilfred Holmes,

1930 FADES AS SUCCESSOR GOES TO THE THRONE

boomed twelve, pandemonium broke loose. Paper hats were donned and noise-makers of every conceivable description were distributed while the orchestra struck up that old popular favorite "Auld Lang Syne" and groups joined hands and greeted the new year in rural fashion. The committee provided a splendid buffet luncheon shortly after midnight and dancing was resumed and the milkman met the last of the dancers going home. The novelties were particularly pleasing. Bubbled lights effects in the corridors and dressing rooms lent an added touch to the affair. The gowns of the ladies which were of the latest design blended beautifully with the evening dress of the men and the scene was a picturesque one. The directors of the Belleville Club added to their reputation by sponsoring the biggest affair of the year in Belleville's social season.

Directors—W. J. Hume, Hon. President; R. Tennahill, Hon. Vice-President; A. P. Allen, President; W. H. Healy, S. B. Burrows, J. V. Doyle, A. E. Gillen, B. L. Hyman, W. T. Lingham, C. A. Payne, S. Robertson, F. B. Smith, F. H. Wills.

Patronesses—Mrs. A. P. Allen, Mrs. W. N. Belair, Mrs. S. B. Burrows, Mrs. J. V. Doyle, Mrs. A. E. Gillen, Mrs. B. L. Hyman, Mrs. W. J. Hume, Mrs. W. T. Lingham, Mrs. S. Robertson, Mrs. F. B. Smith, Mrs. F. H. Wills.

Special credit for the dance goes to Mr. Cecil Fralick, secretary of the club, who worked untiringly and saw the fruits of his efforts in the success which attended the ball.

The managers of the two city theatres, Messrs George Forman at the Belle Theatre and Mr. G. Weller at the Capital Theatre, provided special New Year's Eve festivities and a delightful time was spent.

Trenton Masonic Dance

The Trenton Masonic lodge officers played hosts to a large number at the temple in that town. Many from Belleville attended and the affair was graced by prominent members of Parliament of this district and other dignitaries. Tommy Hymes' orchestra of Belleville supplied the music.

Wong's Cafe saw the gathering of a large crowd where a special turkey dinner was served. Jones' orchestra rendered the dance numbers and paper hats were handed out. The event was under the direction of Harry Wong, the proprietor of Belleville's only Chinese dance rendezvous.

Over one hundred and twenty couples attended the dance at the Johnstone Academy last night. The prizes were won by: Door prize, Mrs. Cecil Roberts, second, Mr. Van Ahrens. Novelties. The Bon Ton orchestra supplied the usual snappy music. On New Year's Eve Casa Loma, Coyer's Bon Tons played at the Canadensis Dance Club when two hundred couples from the upper St. Lawrence district attended. They came from Kingston, Brockville and Prescott.

A number of private parties were held throughout the city, all of which were a pronounced success.

TRACED ORIGIN OF CHRISTMAS CAROL

MONTREAL—Although what are now termed Christmas carols are unsurpassed in their beauty, they reached their greatest perfect, both as to beauty of composition and subject, in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, said Dr. A. E. Whitehead, organist of Christ Church Cathedral in an address before the Maritime Women's Club.

Dr. Whitehead showed that the Christmas carol of the very early times dealt usually with the more or less pagan customs of Yule, either with the food or the games and revels used at that season. In order that the people should pay more attention to the spiritual side of this great festival of the church, the clergy composed many of the most beautiful of the carols, and had them sung in the church at this time. The word itself is of French origin and denoted the folk-song and dance of the country people, and it is only through a freak of philosophy that it has become associated solely with Christmas.

During the regime of the Puritans in England, all celebrations of Christmas were ruthlessly suppressed. This had a disastrous effect, not only on carol music, but on both instrumental and vocal compositions of all sorts. The speaker felt that while doubtless carols of much beauty had been composed within the last sixty years, and would continue to appear from time to time, the old carols would always hold first place in the hearts of the people as a whole.

NORTH AMERICAN GOLD

Ten years ago the gold output of the United States was three times as great as that of Canada. Today chiefly owing to the increase in Canada, the two countries produce almost equal quantities.

A Singular Story

by Rendell Williams in Star Weekly

after Napoleon had been sent to St. Helena and his elaborate schemes had come to naught one of his generals left France, it may be to save his life, but, he said, in disgust with his reactionary country. He made his way to what was still known as Nouvelle France though it had passed under the British Flag half a century earlier. He believed that he would there find real Frenchmen with what he considered real French spirit and not the dreadmits he considered his countrymen had become in the Old France. To his amazement, he found that the Canadian French had no sympathy with the republic or with the revolution. Napoleon was a name detested by all. The French-Canadians were strongly loyal to the British crown, and the France which they loved was not the France of the tricolor but the France of the fleur-de-lis and the Bourbon.

Finding the French of the new world even less sympathetic than those of the old, the veteran soldier determined to repudiate them and civilization with them. He journeyed west and north and at length reached a tribe of Indians in the rear of the present county of Hastings, then in Upper Canada, and with them he cast his lot. Marrying the daughter of an Indian chief he lived and died among his adopted people. His son continued after the father's death to live among his mother's people and as one of them. This son left behind him a son by an Indian wife and it is of the last that this story is told.

Almost at the northern boundary of Hastings county in Ontario some forty years ago lived a middle-aged farmer with a young wife—he a solid, staid, hardworking man, she with a young woman's desire for change, variety. They lived together in seeming harmony until there appeared the young Indian on the scene. His tribe lived a considerable distance to the north but he came not infrequently toward the front to collect and market the ginseng he gathered in the woods which was exported to China, where it was considered a panacea for all diseases much as Joe Pye's weed was considered by many in New England and eastern Canada a century ago, or lobelia was considered by the Thomsonian school of medicine about the same time and even later.

The young Indian fell desperately in love with the young wife, and tall straight, and well-formed, he capturded her fancy. There does not seem to have been any actual criminality in their mutual affection, but he more than once was heard to express to with that the old man was dead, so that he might make her his "woman." Once he said openly that he would kill him himself.

The farmer heard of these things and for that reason when he went to the fields to work took with him his gun for self-defence. One day thus armed, he went out to cut his hay. Not returning, he was searched for and his body was found in the hayfield, scythe in hand and cold in death. He had obviously been surprised and shot down in his tracks as he was mowing. His gun was found fully loaded, a short distance from him with the muzzle thrust down in the soft soil, the stock erect in the air.

Suspicion at once fell upon the young Indian, whose infatuation and threats were notorious; he was arrested and committed for trial at Belleville.

The crown retained a young barrister, now one of his majesty's justices, but then practising in Cobourg, and placed at his disposal the detective force attached to the attorney-general's office. By his direction an exhaustive search was made into the movements of the young man about the time of the murder; and at length witnesses were found from whose story it could be proved that the accused had left his tribe a few days before ostensibly to gather ginseng but had made his way gradually to the south. He had been seen a short time before the time at which medical evidence put the death, and only a short distance from the scene of the tragedy. Then he was traced north to his village to which he returned from his pretended ginseng expedition.

* * * * *

He was placed on trial at the Belleville assizes before the late Chief Justice Armour and a jury of the county of Hastings, the widow of the murdered man being indicted and tried with him. They were most ably defended by a Belleville barrister afterwards one of His Majesty's justices. No sufficient evidence being adduced against the woman she was discharged. The man was found guilty and sentenced to death.

The crown counsel always considered that the conviction was, if not brought about, at least made certain by a dramatic if simple incident during the trial. The Indian from the beginning lolled back in the dock, his arms extended on the rear railing, his mouth half open, apparently paying little attention and in seeming indifference.

An elderly Irish woman called some what late in the proceedings to prove the presence of the prisoner near the scene of the murder, was skilfully and rigidly cross-examined by counsel for the defence. The question being put if she was sure whether she knew that it was he, she drew herself up to her full height, threw out her arm to its full length and shouted: "Sure I know him? How could I not know him with the tooth out of the mouth of him?" The prisoner had for hours been massing it manifest to judge and jury that here was a gap in an otherwise fine and full set of teeth. On this evidence being given, he snapped his lips together, closing his mouth tight and set up tense and straight with his hands on his knees—and so he sat, the air of indifference cast aside, and every word uttered listened to eagerly, until the end of the trial—resuming his apparent indifference when the fated verdict was announced.

The women hung around the gaol during the few weeks the Indian had to live, using every means to see him —he seemed to have no desire either way—and he died stoically and with no apparent fear.

Not long after his death on the scaffold, she consoled herself with another husband.

LITTLE BENNY'S NOTE BOOK

I was bizy up in my room and ma called upstairs, Benny, come down here I want you to do something for me.

Heck, a errand, I thawt. And I call ed down, Well gosh ma, O, ma do you mean pile away? I sed. Im awful bizzy, I sed.

O yes I sippose youre doing something tremendesly important, well ill give you just 5 minnits, ma sed.

And efter about 5 minnits she came up and looked in my room, Arent you through that important werk yet? My hands look at the clock, ma sed. What on erth are you looking for? she sed.

A fly swatter, I sed. I know its around somewhere because I put it somewheres myself. Its that swatter I made out of long rubber bands tied to the end of a stick, I sed.

But my land I havent seen a fly for weeks, what's on erth do you want a fly swatter for at this time of year? ma sed, and I sed, I dont want it at this time of year, I just dont want it better look for it so Id know where it was next summer.

Well then let me tell you that even if you did find it you wouldent know where it was next week, much less next summer, ma sed. Now by the time you get everything neetly back in that circuit it will be too late for you to do what I wanted you to do for me, she sed.

WARSAW COUPLE MARRIED 50 YEARS

Peterboro, Dec. 29.—Mr. and Mrs. Paul Payne of Warsaw on Monday celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Mrs. Payne, who before her marriage was Mary Ann Russel, was a sister of the late George Russel of Dcuro, and was born in Peterborough. Mr. Payne was born in the log house which still stands on the farm now owned by Henry Batten. His father was the late George Payne and the property was settled by the Payne family. This land passed out of the hands of the Payne family about four years ago.

Mr. Payne delights in recalling stories of early adventure, one of which is about his father being chased by a wolf when going home after visiting his betrothed. He lighted a torch, but the wolf followed so close it was almost at his heels as he jumped the fence and sought refuge at his house.

Mr. and Mrs. Payne farmed until about three years ago when they went to Burleigh to live with their only daughter, Mrs. William Miller. Besides this daughter there were six sons Caphas, who lives on the homestead where his father and mother lived and where the family was born; Arthur, living at Lakefield; Luther at Harwood; John in Warsaw; Roland in Warsaw and Eddie in Peterboro. There are 32 grandchildren.

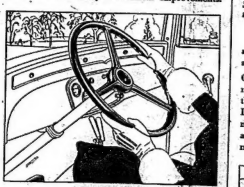
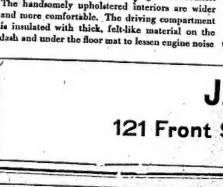
General Motors announces a NEW CHEVROLET SIX

Bigger . . . Finer, Lower in Price



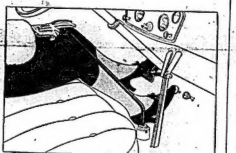
Long, 109-inch Wheelbase . . .
New Body Lines . . . Roomier Fisher Bodies . . . De Luxe Wire Wheels . . . Important Mechanical Advancements

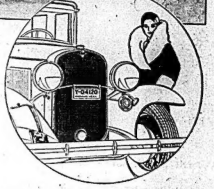


SPECIAL SEDAN—A de luxe car . . . six wire wheels, two in fender wells, and chrome-plated radiator grille standard equipment

CHEVROLET

TODAY General Motors and Chevrolet are proud to present a new Chevrolet Six. The new car has a lengthened, 109-inch wheelbase . . . added smartness . . . and many mechanical improvements.





Working with the advantage of a lengthened wheelbase, Fisher craftsmen have been able to design streamline bodies that are far more graceful and beautiful than ever before. Exceptionally impressive is the front view of the car. The radiator has been redesigned . . . it is now deeper and has added distinction. There are new headlamps, resting on a smart tie-bar. De luxe wire wheels, finished in attractive harmonizing colors and with large chrome-plated hub caps, are now standard equipment on all models at no extra cost.

The new Fisher Bodies are also larger and roomier. The handsomely upholstered interiors are wider and more comfortable. The driving compartment is insulated with thick, felt-like material on the dash and under the floor mat to lessen engine noise and keep the car warm in winter and cool in summer.

Of course, with the increase in wheelbase of the new Chevrolet, improvements have been made in the chassis. The frame is 50 per cent. stronger. The Lovejoy shock absorbers—front and rear—are more efficient. And there is a new, heavier front axle ensuring strength far beyond all ordinary needs.

An entirely new steering mechanism, of the worm and sector type, gives finger-tip control of the wheel in turning, parking and in heavy traffic. Chevrolet's four-wheel weatherproof brakes are exceptionally big and fitted with moulded linings, which ensure as much as 25,000 miles of efficient service before relining becomes necessary.

All these advancements in beauty, comfort, ruggedness and durability are offered in a car which provides the smooth, quiet, flexible performance of a 50-horsepower, six-cylinder engine. No departure has been made from the basic features of six-cylinder smoothness and extreme economy which makes the Chevrolet Six the best buy of the low-price field.

Bigger—finer—lower in price . . . the new Chevrolet Six is now on display at the showrooms of the dealers listed below. You are invited to inspect the new Chevrolet . . . to ride in it and drive it yourself. If you can afford to buy any car the new Chevrolet Six, at its extremely low prices, is easily within your reach.

Chevrolet's policy has always been one of service to the public . . . The GMAC plan of deferred payments offers the lowest financing charges available . . . and the General Motors Owner Service Policy pledges lasting satisfaction.

LAWRENCE AND ODYSSEUS

The writer is not a man to be scorned by his own generation.... Nor is the lover of literature to be looked upon condescendingly by the industrial potentate, for heroes have been writers and worshippers at the shrine of art.

Probably the outstanding romantic figure of this age, is Col. Lawrence of Arabia, organizer of the Arab revolt against the Turks in the Great War, a Greek scholar, and a lover of the world's greatest adventure story, Homer's Odyssey.... Lawrence carried a copy of the epic in Greek in his pocket everywhere he went for years. In a few weeks or months his prose translation of the work will appear in the native English tongue.

Lawrence has a strong penchant for the literary art as his work, "The Revolt in the Desert" proves. His life has been as much an adventure as the Homeric story of the wanderings of Odysseus or as the Romans called him Ulysses.... "the uncrowned King of Arabia." He refused all honors Britain could show him and he even refused his army pay because as he told King George, he felt that what he had done in Arabia was morally wrong. He saw to it that he made no money out of "The Revolt in the Desert" because he did not want to make a dollar out of the outpoured blood of the Arabs whom he loved and whom he led in battle. Shrinking love-quite eye-he gave up his post, became a mechanic in the Royal Air Force as Aircraftsman Shaw and allowed himself to be dropped out of sight. Transferred to England he lived quietly and no more than he be permitted to live the life of a private soldier. With time on his hand he began to translate the old Greek poet. Later in his bunk in a fort in India and finished the work in England. This is the man whose romance in arms abroad and who has been living a life similar to the great wanderings of Odysseus for ten years after the Trojan War.

PYRITE AND SULPHUR

The Woodstock Sentinel Review makes reference to the importance of the discovery by Horace Freeman of Shawinigan Falls of a new process for burning Canadian pyrite ore for the recovery of sulphur there and a half million dollars worth of which is imported every year for use largely in connection with the newsprint industry. It is anticipated that newsprint producers may not require to import sulphur and so make a big saving. The Royal Bank estimates the value of the sulphur imports at $1,651,000 on raw materials alone, in addition to which there would be $850,000 expended by the mines for fuel and labor and about $750,000 extra freight for the railways on pyrite and iron oxide. The Sentinel Review goes on to say:

"The idea of using pyrite ore as new, it is explained. In fact pyrite was the common source of sulphur before the discovery of great brimstone deposits in the southwestern part of the United States. Under the methods in common use before the Freeman burner was developed, the cost was so high and the equipment so complicated that there had been no idea of substituting Canadian pyrite for foreign brimstone. Pyrite is a mineral made largely of iron and sulphur. In the past the sulphur content of this ore has discouraged those who wished to obtain iron from this source.

"While it is by no means certain that all the newsprint mills of Canada will make use of the new machinery, the success of the experimental installation bids fair to give a decided impetus to its general adoption. Reports of the success of the process have resulted in visits from officials of Europe and the United States as to the possibility of adapting it to the ores found in those countries. Even though the possibility of the introduction of the new process merely resulted in a reduction in the price of sulphur, the gain to the newsprint industry would be great."

The use of the burner in recovering sulphur from pyrite has no small interest to Hastings County in which pyrite is found in abundance.

NEW PENCIL WRITES

The new pencil has written already, the hand of time has set its mark on the year 1931. Old Man 1930 has still quite a following in 1931 though Mr. Good Resolution is manifesting all the signs of life, usually visible at this season of the year. The work of filling the book of 1931 has begun in earnest.

Belleville is on the first round of the ladder of the year, awaiting what is to be achieved in the coming twelve months, under the guidance of council, chamber of commerce, board of education, industrial leaders and citizens generally. Having suffered to a lesser degree the most places in the financial let-down of the past year and a quarter, this city ought to respond to the first signs of revival in the world generally and probably will do so.

ELECTIONS IN COUNTRY

Monday in a number of the rural municipalities around about the electors are to have their innings picking reeves, deputies and councillors in the rural communities the election is a great event, and probably takes many of the attention of the people than a similar vote in the city.

MAKE PEOPLE THINK

The success of the holiday trade is credited by many to the advertisements which the Department of Trade and Commerce have been issuing during the past weeks. They have been gradually bringing the attention of Canadians upon things Canadian with the result that the place of manufacture is considered more than it was before and that conditions were not as bad as they were painted. The opinions on the depressions and the general view of the depression are probably as far from the actual truth as the height or peak of stocks was from a reasonable price a year ago in November when the crash came. The common course of the human being is to be optimistic at first and take to the extreme view. The Department of Trade and Commerce has done a good thing in making people question whether their beliefs about depression and industry are correct. The result of the investigations by individuals supports the finding of the Department that Canada is riding the slump well. Proof that Canadians listened to the advice of the Department is indicated in the larger holiday business.

SIDELIGHTS

ON THE DIVIDE

Into the hills I climbed one day
Where purple shadows stretched away
From an daylight died;
Until a lofty summit gained,
Silent, enraptured I remained
On the divide.

Crest after crest I saw revealed
And in the valley lay concealed,
The river's flow;
Perched on the hills white windmills stood,
Rich meadow bordered waving wood,
Far, far below.

Sometimes in life I stand and see
The lands of Hie Been and To Be,
Views long denied;
Then, from that vantage ground I plan
With prayer the portion of life's span,
On the divide.

ROTTEN APPLES

(By Babson)

I worked in a warehouse once, loading and unloading cars. Up over the big door between the warehouse and the siding sheds was a sign that read:

"If you are criticized, don't get sore. We don't handle our time picking spots out of rotten apples.

I'd been running the old truck back and forth under that sign quite a while before the real meaning of it finally soaked in. Then I got to thinking about it. I began to see why I hadn't got that raise I'd expected. Why a membered fellow time the boss had "called" me down I'd get "up on my ear" and thought he had a grudge against me.

When the light broke thru I saw I'd been all wrong. I began to realize that it was even more important for me to know my weak points and my mistakes than for the boss to know them. A raise in pay, better job, and maybe sometime any job at all, would depend on my having known my own mistakes and having overcome them.

So when anybody criticises me. I listen with all my ears, take it to heart the right way, and grin for all I'm worth. They don't spend time picking spots out of rotten apples."

PROSPERITY AND THE GOLDEN RULE

James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation, is optimistic for 1931. The stimulated buying produced by speculation on the stock market may have brought on the present depression, but it has also taught people to want more manufactured articles of higher quality. And this, he points out in the January "Rotarian Magazine" is the important factor in instituting the return of a period when demand will again overtake supply. Other favorable factors, declares Mr. Farrell, include modernization of industrial plants, scientific management, and a better understanding of co-operation. "The spirit of live and let live," Mr. Farrell asserts, "is a necessary doctrine of modern business, and no satisfactory substitute has been found for the Golden Rule. Whether in the field of economics or any other phase of existence. I believe that as the years go by, appreciation of the finer relationships of business will increase, confidence in each other will be broadened, fairness to all will become second nature, and as a result business will attain its own condition by better serving the public welfare and by having a clearer conception of the rights of all concerned."

Newspaper Opinions

JOFFRE AND THE MARNE

Pain played a cruel trick on Joffre when for three years after his appointment to the supreme military command of France he was the load of responsibility for the world's shrinking politicians. He woke one morning to find German science and German intelligence advancing seemingly unstoppable across borders, carrying all before them and threatening the very gates of his beloved Paris. Yet ironic Providence had other irkes to play, for, after bringing Germany to the outer walls of the greatest fortress in the world, a series of unforeseen and unexpected circumstances turned the tables, and surprisingly snatched the victory from the German grasp. If it had not been for the victory of the Marne France would have been reduced to vassalage for years to come and history would have been written very differently. The hero of the Marne was the kindly lovable, courageous, dogged Joseph Joffre.—Montreal Star.

LOOKING TO CANADA

The declaration of Dr. Wunsch of Krupp's, while in Montreal, that the great German steel firm is likely to establish a branch in Canada, is interesting as showing that other countries besides the United States and Great Britain are beginning to see that possibilities of the Canadian market for home-manufactured products. The range of goods manufactured by Krupp's is extraordinary, from the ore to pig iron and from the ore to the highly specialised manufacture of typewriters, that Dr. Wunsch's statement is a timely indication of the type of plant that is contemplated in Canada. Krupp's have become an important factor in the agricultural machinery industry of Europe and there are more than a few of their products that would no doubt find a ready market in this country if manufactured here as well as for our market in the Dominion.—Border City Star.

FOUL AIR AND HOMES

More people are killed by foul air than by cold air, the latter being so rare as still to command front page space. But deaths from foul air are so common that they are reported due to "natural causes". Canadian homes are often air wonderful institutions, with their central heating systems, electrical illumination and appliances, conveniences and comforts. And yet in winter they are little healthier than a prison. They have everything but healthful air. When engineers, building builders, invention and mass production bring within the reach of every home owner the perfect heating and ventilating system?—Kingston Whig Standard.

THE "BLUEBIRD"

Great Britain has produced another motor car speed boat, has been designed and produced for the sole purpose of being made to travel faster than anything else on dry land. There may call this speed creation a motor car by courtesy only, however, for it is a fearsome monster, if one may believe the description carried in the newspapers. The automobile is called the "Bluebird," which is the symbol of happiness. Why it is so called is not immediately apparent, but it is a good name, anyway. The thing weighs two and a half tons and is "powered by a 12-cylinder super-charged Rolls-Royce aero engine of 1,450 horsepower". This is just 530 horsepower greater than the first "Bluebird". Sideways, the car is 28 feet long and 8 feet wide, and has a fin in the rear like a dirigible.—Ottawa Citizen.

MOTOR INSURANCE RATES

Few judicial investigations result in such definite findings as that made by Mr. Justice Hodgins into the rates charged by automobile insurance companies in Ontario. His report is almost sensational in its conclusions and its recommendations. He applies the term "unconscionable" to rates similar to those charged by the companies in arresting their policy-holders. According to the report, the Canadian Automobile Underwriters' Association deliberately fixed the premium rate too low in 1927 in order, if possible to drive competitors out of business. The rates were maintained at a low level to recruit members for the organization. Then, with the situation in its own hands, the association raised the rates to recoup the companies for the two previous years. There was no such thing as an actuarial basis for the charges in any one of the three years. It is indeed, estimated that private motor car owners were overcharged between $600,000 and $700,000 in 1929.—Mail and Empire.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Strong Report Issued by Royal Bank of Canada

Of Total Assets of $889,917,191, Liquid Assets Are $379,120,432, Equal to More Than 42.57% of Liabilities to Public — Cash on Hand and in Banks Amounts to $164,251,285 — Profits Well Maintained at $6,572,627.

The Royal Bank of Canada is forwarding to its shareholders a characteristically strong statement for the fiscal year to November 29, 1930. The past year has been a very difficult one in all parts of the world and various banking systems have been confronted with many and rapid changes. It is satisfactory on this account that, in the statements of the larger Canadian banks have been maintained with more than usual interest. Their ability to meet the conditions that have arisen and at the same time report a liquid position of outstanding strength testifies to the adaptability of the Canadian banking system. This is of paramount importance to the general trade of the country and in addition will result in outside interest being taken in the banking increased confidences in the underlying strength of Canada's position.

Shareholders of the Royal Bank will find much reason for satisfaction in this year's statement. In a year which saw such general depression it was to be expected that total assets would be lower than in the banner year of 1929. Of greater importance, however, from the standpoint of shareholders is the fact that the statement shows the bank has been able to take care of the many obligations that arose without in any way impairing the strong liquid position it is customary for it to report. This is shown by total liquid assets only slightly less than 43 per cent of total liabilities to the public.

Earnings have also been maintained at a satisfactory level and as a result profits for the year not only permitted of payment of the usual dividends and bonus, but, after taking care of appropriations for Officers' Pension Fund, bank premises and taxes, an increase of over half a million dollars to profit and loss account, bringing the total up to $4,106,778.

The general statement of assets and liabilities shows that at the end of the fiscal year total assets amounted to $889,917,191, as compared with $1,001,442,741 a year ago. Of this amount liquid assets—represented by government and municipal bonds, stocks and call loans—stand at $379,120,433. This is equal to 42.57% of liabilities to the public. Included among liquid assets are cash on hand and in banks of $164,251,285, being equivalent to 21.17% of liabilities to the public. Deposits have been well maintained. Those bearing interest are $543,844,554, against $591,380,470, and free deposits at $151,745,505 compare with $180,797,298 at the end of the previous year.

The shrinkage in deposits is in line not only with the experience of banks in Canada, but in the principal countries abroad.

The lessened business activity throughout the country is reflected in a reduction in commercial loans to $513,814,415, against $644,815,877, and call loans to $63,342,000, against $63,342,000. Investments, consisting of Dominion and Provincial Government securities, Canadian Municipal and British and Foreign Public Securities, total $164,251,285, against $157,633,114.

HEREDITY AT WORK?

A grandson of Jules Verne, it is reported is to make the submarine trip under the North Pole with Sir Hubert Wilkins. A more appropriate mingling of fiction and fact could hardly be devised.—Ottawa Citizen.

THE COCHRANE FIRE

There is in many of the circumstances attending the fire which caused the loss of so many lives at the Queen's Hotel in Cochrane, materials that will cause the authorities there much to think. Cochrane with a population of some four thousand souls, is one of the largest towns in the north central portion of Ontario. It is the terminal of the Transcontinental and Northern Ontario Railway, and the building which has been entirely wrecked by fire was the only hotel of any size in the place. Apparently there was little, if any fire-fighting equipment in the town, and whatever water supply Cochrane may have, the difficulty of securing sufficient pressure to turn it effectively upon a burning building might conceivably be insurmount- ble at this season of the year and in a generally populated area so far north. All the more reason, then, why there should be stringent observance of all streets being washed every night at a cost of $5,000 a night.

HEALTHY THOUGH "TIRED"

About anybody's guess, the well-fed, well-housed, well-clothed Canadian would be the tall farmer of the healthiest group in the nation. An ancient respect for the soil and the modern cult of keeping out in the open, are not responsible, no doubt, for this delusion. For actually, from the standpoint of health, the average American business man is superior to the professional man, agricultural worker or skilled trade worker. A survey just completed by the research division of the Milbank Memorial Fund based on physical examination records of 100,000 native-born adult males, reveals the out-standing soundness of the business man's health. He has "better eye-sight than the skilled worker, better teeth and less mouth infection than the farmer, and fewer defects of the respiratory tract than the average of the other groups.—New York Times.

THE WATER CURE.

An armoured car capable of spraying water under high pressure, in several streams over a circle of 120 feet is the latest addition to Berlin's police weapons for emplacement against disorderly crowds. Such a device is calculated to prove even more effective than gas bombs, while being less harmful. The wildest "bolshie" cannot stand up before a well-directed stream of water.—Montreal Gazette.

SANITATION AND TENANTS

Increasing attention is being paid by large cities generally to the matter of sanitation in tenanted or rental living. Statistics prove that a large percentage of existent housing evils are trace able to ignorance of sanitary laws and ordinary laws governing health. Steps have been taken in many congested centres to instruct tenants in these important matters. It is urged by municipal experts that every city health department should have on its staff a number of women sanitary inspectors. A number of cities have already appointed such officials. They not only visit houses upon complaints being made, but also make much closer visits to the homes of the poor, getting acquainted with families, and instructing them how health is established and maintained, not only in the home but in yards as well.—Montreal Star.

Poet's Corner

The Shepherd Wind

When hills and plains are powdered white,
And bitter cold the north wind blows,
Upon my window in the night
A fairy-jarden grows.

Here lilies that no hand hath sown
Bloom white as foam upon the sea,
And orchids in a dreamy throne
Hold frost-hand melody.

And here are blooms like stars that fall
Tangled in arts of silver lace—
My very breath their beauty mars,
Or stirs them from their place.

Perchance the echoes of odd songs
Found here a resting-place at last,
And blooms that belongs
To roses of the past.

Or all the moonbeams that were lost
On summer nights the world forgets
May here be prisoned by the frost,
With souls of violets.

The wind doth shepherd many things,
And when the nights are long and
Who knows how strange a flock he brings
All safely to the fold.

PERMIT PHOTOGRAPHERS ACCESS TO STUDIOS

ROME, Dec. 30.— Tourists visiting art galleries and museums in Italy here after will be permitted to take whatever photos they wish instead of checking the cameras at the door, as in the past.

The camera operators, however, must be amateur, and the picture must not be cold. Moving picture camera are still barred from the galleries and museums.

This is one of several rulings designed to encourage the tourist to visit Italian galleries. Last year the admission to all such places was made free and to encourage visits there 341,000 visitors contrasted with 85,782 in July 1929.

London claims to be the cleanest city in the world its 44 miles of streets being washed every night at a cost of $5,000 a night.

The minutes were read by the new secretary, Mrs. Alyea. The roll call was answered by the Best Christmas I ever spent and the Christ mas Gift I like best." "Hark the Herald Sing" was sung with Miss Violet Sherwin as accompanist. Mrs. Ernest Terry gave a report of the Belleville Area Convention held on Nov. 19th and 20th and was extended a hearty vote of thanks. Miss Laundy reported on the outstanding speakers at the Convention held scenery, Rev. Cooke, Consecon, was present and gave a splendid address on "Christmas Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow", and stated that in a Christian sense Christmas was a com bination of the Birth of Christ. In the early times it was observed at different seasons by different types of people. Germans and Norsemen observed Christmas from the earliest times.

Church occasion was a Pagan custom. The mistletoe was the Pagan Sacred plant, and Christmas gifts a Roman custom. Many Christmas customs are an effort to combat Paganism.

The Christmas tree dates back to Martin Saturnalius who in 1605 introduced the tree into England from Germany in the reign of Queen Victoria.

Father Christmas or Santa Claus has a parallel in most countries in Europe. Giving gratuities to servants is also a Roman custom and from this custom arises the present day tipping.

These boxes were used for placing the gifts in and were opened and distributed to the poor by servants on boxing day. In this way we get the custom of Christmas boxes.

Christmas cards were introduced in 1846. The most Christian custom is to hold religious services and let the true spirit and ideals characterize every day.

The true spirit of Christmas like the gentle rain from heaven falls and blesses him that gives and blesses him that gives and him that takes.

To have Christmas every day would be the annual idealism and relaxation of selfishness.

The world is too much with us and we have too much of the jingle and market place and too much bargaining.

At Christmas time we admit we have a heart and a generous spirit for God's gift of God's only son given for us.

If we would open our hearts to the Christmas Christ not once a week or on special occasions but to stay always, then Christmas would be with us always as a benediction for ever and ever.

Rev. Cooke was given a hearty vote of thanks for his excellent address. The meeting closed by singing "God Save the King." Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Dorothy Taylor and Miss Violet Sherwin.

Margaret Yorke

"Knew him? Oh, yes, he was the Theobalds' attorney. He was like a relic of something too, from the very beginning he was my friend; he used to reason with Cuyler, try to influence him. And I went to see him a few weeks after our separation. He was in the hospital the afternoon that Jim was born. He told me then that Mrs. Cushing was looking for a baby to adopt, but I wouldn't let Jim go then. And later, when I was so ill, when I did give up the baby, I swore that it should be a secret if I died or if I lived. I had to keep it so! The newspaper story would have ruined him," and perhaps given Jim, or a share of Jim, to his father.

"Living, Stan," Margaret said, in an eager rush of words. "I would always have cared for my own baby, and you know. I didn't want money for him! But dying, I thought of leaving him, so shy, so helpless, and without a friend or a penny. And then I remembered that Mrs. Cushing was his great friend, and that some of the family money was rightly his—poor baby, it seemed unfair both ways, to give him his name, or to keep silent! Finally, taking the chance that I felt sure that nobody in the world knew who he really was, and I gave him the name of Jim Field, and they took him away to be adopted! Mr. Cushing sat beside my bed and swore that he would never betray the baby while Cuyler lived, and I swore that I never would betray him!"

Shirley had been looking in utter astonishment from one face to another, her face an angry red, and her eyes flashing.

"Stan, you don't believe all this!" she stuttered, at last. "I never heard anything so ridiculous! What do you know of all this is true? You don't know anything—who is Jim? I never heard of him! And Cuyler—is it probable that he would tell me that his aunt's companion——"

"I don't think you understand, Shirley," Stanley said, in his low tone. "I've been somewhat in Margaret's confidence, you see. Mrs. Cushing never suspected anything, and I never knew that this Jim was Margaret's husband was Cuyler Theobald——"

"We were married on the eleventh of March, four years ago—more than four years ago, Cuyler Theobald and I," Shirley asserted hotly. "I dont care what sort of a ceremony he went through with——"

"His marriage to Margaret came first, Shirley," Stanley interrupted her mildly. "His little boy was born before you ever met him——"

"He went to Paris," Margaret explained, "got a divorce there from his divorce," granted by the French courts, is not valid in California."

"What do you mean?" Shirley said, turning white.

"I mean that I refused ever to give Cuyler Theobald a divorce," Margaret asserted. "He tried to force me, tried to buy me off, but I would never consent. He is legally my husband to this day, or was——" She stopped, pulling a little, glancing at the telegram she still held in her hand. "It cost me my freedom," she presently added, "and made it impossible for me to remarry. It cost him his, too. Trowbridge warned him his French marriage would never be recognized in America until he had an American divorce too, but Cuyler didn't care! He knew, I daresay, that I wouldn't eye trouble him! But Trowbridge has kept me informed; he looked into the whole matter because of Cuyler's child."

"Child! He has no child!" Shirley said, breathing hard.

"Jim is his child," Margaret said, with a quiet air of stating merely the simple fact.

"Jim! You mean this child here?" Shirley exclaimed. And immediately she began to shake her head slowly, and to smile a superior smile. "My dear Miss Yorke, you will find yourself in for a long fight on that score," she said kindly. "It'll take you years to prove it—it'll drag through the courts like the Whitson case and the DeFarrari case! How do you possibly expect to prove that this boy, whom Cuyler Theobald never saw in his life is his son? They'll simply laugh at you—it's impossible!"

"Even if it were, I don't think I should feel too badly," Margaret assured her, unshaken. "What was his father that I feared, and now poor Cuyler is gone! Trowbridge has been watching Jim's interests ever since he was born, and even told Cuyler's uncle I believe, that there was a son. I think Trowbridge wrote me that before I was married—in Paris——"

"Married me, you mean?" Shirley interjected sharply.

"Four years ago. I think Trowbridge wrote me that he had written Cuyler that it could not be a valid marriage, here in this state, and that as all Cuyler's properties were in California he would be disinheriting himself with——"

Shirley was ashen; she told her sick heart that this was all sheer nonsense and that this woman had a strangely intimate knowledge of Cuyler and his affairs.

Husband and Wife Both Find Them Beneficial

Ontario Lady Strongly Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mrs. N. Beauerie Used Them For Lumbago and Her Husband For Rheumatism

Madoc, Ont., Dec. 29 (Special)—"Relief obtained great" relief from Lumbago by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I would never be without them," writes Mrs. N. Beauerie, RR. No. 3, Madoc, Ont. "I always keep them on the shelf in the house. My husband takes them for Rheumatism. He says he couldn't get along without Dodd's Kidney Pills. We trust that these few lines may be the means of helping others."

The natural way to treat Rheumatism and Lumbago is to treat the Kidneys and the natural way to treat the Kidneys is to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Rheumatism is caused by the presence of uric acid in the blood. If the Kidneys are doing their duty they will absorb all the uric acid out of the blood and there can be no more Rheumatism. Therefore, put the Kidneys in shape to do their duty by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

GIBBONS ARE IMMUNE FROM CATCHING COLDS

Baltimore, Dec. 30 — Because they would not catch cold, three gibbons used in the five year common cold research at Johns Hopkins medical school have been banished to the national zoo at Washington 'and chimpanzees are to be given a chance to sniffle in the name of science.

Dr. Perrin H. Long, one of the group whose endeavour to trace the cause and find the cure of the common cold is financed by a $500,000 fund his gone to New York with Dr. Adolph Schultz, Johns Hopkins anthropologist to buy a number of chimpanzees for the research work.

"Of course I don't say that gibbons can't catch cold, but these certainly didn't and they were given every opportunity," said Dr. Long.

Chimpanzees have been proven by other investigators to be susceptible to colds.

Dr. Long and Dr. James A. Doull, formerly head of the research group, recently announced that the infection is due to a virus so fine that it defies microscopes and filters. —

MOBILIZE SERVANTS INTO POLITICAL UNIT

LONDON, Dec. 30.—Mobilization of the British servant class into an effective political unit is planned by the Labor Party.

This vast wealth of ballots estimated at more than a million, is seen by leaders as controlling the balance of power in districts generally carried by labor candidates. A manifesto to be used in propaganda work among this section of the electorate announces the "long working day", pointing out that early morning tea and late dinner make for extraordinarily long hours.

The proposal suggests six days of eight hours as a weekly time limit.

SUNSHINE TEST

ALBANY, N.Y., Dec. 30. — Two hours of sunshine daily in June equals one minute of a 70-volt ultra-violet light three feet away in curing rickets. Or it equals 20 milligrams a day of high grade cod liver oil.

These findings of comparative values of various remedies for rickets are reported to the American Chemical Society by Arthur Knudson of Albany Medical College.

Market cure by sunshine in May took one hour daily longer than in June.

HAD NO TEETH

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, Dec. 30 —A skeleton of a boy who never had teeth has been found close to the foreshore near the Rock and Spindle at St. Andrews, the famous Scottish golf headquarters, Professor Wilterson of St. Andrews University gave it as his opinion that the skeleton was more than 300 years old. The jawbone revealed absence of dentition.

Tweed, Dec. 30.—On Friday afternoon last the staff and pupils of the Continuation School met in the Principal's room to say good-bye to Miss Marie Meiklejohn who has resigned from the staff and to express their appreciation of her work during the past five years. The following address was read by Gladys Gordon and Gladys McGuire presented Miss Meiklejohn with a week-end bag and a migrator.

The following was the address:

Dear Miss Meiklejohn:—The teachers and pupils of Tweed Consolidated School regret to learn that this is to be your last day as a teacher at our school. For a number of years we have had the privilege, as teachers, of working with you, and as pupils of your instructions. You have always brought to your work a cheerful disposition and a willingness that we are better for our association with you. These years will always be bright spots in our memories.

To mark this occasion and to express the regret we feel we wish you to accept these gifts which carry with them our best wishes.

S. H. Connor, Principal.

Gladys Gordon.

At the United Church on Sunday morning the service was in the form of a White Gifts service. It was a beautiful and impressive way of all to bring to the church.

The choir left and pulpit were appropriately decorated in white and gold with purple, as well as greenery, making a very pleasing effect.

The church school met in classes and with their teachers occupied the middle seats of the church. The choir led in the processional hymn.

Rev. Mr. Cooke conducted the service and after the lesson was read, called upon Miss Mavis McGuire, who sang a beautiful solo, "Mary to Aiden, "Why the Chimes Rang."

Miss Locke gave the origin of the "White Gifts" service. At the conclusion of Mrs. Locke's story each class brought their gifts wrapped in white and laid them at the foot of a white cross before the pulpit.

The subject of Rev. Mr. Cooke's sermon was "The Joy of Christmas."

PROMPT ACTION SAVES TWO LIVES

BARRIE, Dec. 31. — Slipping from behind the steering wheel and throwing himself on top of his eight-year-old nephew, Lloyd Doner of Sunnidale Corners, Fred J. Love, of Barrie, probably saved both lives when the Ontario Bakeries bread truck which he was driving was struck by a C.N.R. way freight near Angus yesterday afternoon.

Realizing that efforts to prevent the crash would be futile, Love swung the car in the direction of the oncoming train. Crowding the van alongside the press, he got over the boy on the right hand side of the seat just as the locomotive stripped the car down the left side from the radiator to behind the driver's seat.

Love escaped injury, while the boy received a minor head cut and was taken to Angus by the car company composed of Conductor W. D. Scott, Brakeman W. A. Goodchild, Engineer John Patton and Fireman George Wilson all of Allandale. The truck was practically demolished.

DEATH CAME QUIETLY TO AGED FRENCH LEADER, MARSHALL JOFFRE

Tributes are Paid to Memory of Gallant Old French Soldier

LIES IN STATE

Will be Buried With Highest Military and Civic Honors

MARSHAL JOFFRE

PARIS, France, Jan. 3.—(CP)—Death came to Marshal Joffre last of the French military leaders of the Great War at 8.29 this morning, after a fort night's illness in which it was necessary to amputate his left leg. The marshal would have been 79 years old tomorrow. He died peacefully without coming out of the coma.

At seven a.m. today a hurried telephone call brought members of the family, friends and members of the general staff to the bedside of the dying marshal. Chaplain Bellemoure administered absolution at 8 a.m. His pulse slowed, and then stopped, amid the unearthly silence of the small gathering. Joffre was dead.

In accordance with the wishes of the dead soldier his body will lie in state in the chapel of the Ecole Militaire of Paris. It will be clothed in the white dolman with the golden buttoned uniform worn in the colonies.

Burial will take place at the Invalides, the burial place of Napoleon.

A Good Career

Tribute was paid to the memory of the old soldier by Field Marshal Sir William Robertson, who was associated with the Marshal during the first two years of the war. "He was a good comrade and loyal ally," he declared.

Tributes also came from Brigadier General Charles O. Dawes, United States ambassador at London, and Lady Haig, widow of the British army leader during the war.

Joffre visited Canada on two occasions. He was a member of the commission which visited the United States and Canada in 1917. Later in 1922 Marshal Joffre passed through British Columbia on his way home to France after leaving the United States.

CONDOLENCES FROM BRITISH SOVEREIGN

London, Eng., Jan. 3 (CP)—The King today sent a lengthy message of sympathy for Marshal Joffre's death to President Doumergue of France. The message in part was "I join with my people in expressing heartfelt sympathy in the death of Marshal Joffre. The sad news will arouse feelings of sorrow especially in those countries which in 1914 were called to France."

NEW YEAR'S EVE PARTY SUCCESS

One of the most successful entertainments ever held in the Moose Auditorium was the New Year's Eve euchre and dance arranged by Mr. Bob Little of Shannonville. Between five and six hundred attended and spent a most enjoyable evening.

There were forty-six tables of euchre in play and the winners of the very interesting games were:

Ladies first—Mrs. Vickers; second Mrs. M. Donovan; third, Miss Alexander.

Consolation—Mrs. L. Vickers.

Men's first—Herb Hogan; second, Mr. Vickers; third, W. MacDonald.

The door prize was a Stewart-Warner radio and the lucky winner was Mrs. Wright of Belleville.

After the games delicious refreshments were served and the rest of the evening was devoted to dancing, with music provided by Reg. Brockhurst's orchestra. A novelty dance, at midnight, was a unique feature of the dancing.

VETERAN PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY PHYSICIAN DIES

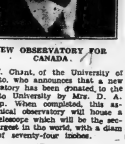
Dr. Albert John File, Well Known Breeder of Cattle Succumbs

LOVED AND ADMIRED

Was Known Throughout Hastings and Prince Edward Districts

Ameliasburg Township and Prince Edward County lost a prominent practicing physician yesterday with the passing of Albert John File, M.D., in his 82nd year. He had been a continuous resident of Ameliasburgh for the past sixty-one years and was known well throughout the Bay of Quinte district. He had been ill only a short time ago and had carried on his practice up until a short time ago. He underwent an operation in the autumn and had never been well since. The late Dr. File was one of the old school of physicians whose services were always in demand while the remuneration in many cases was limited. The late Dr. File was loved, respected and admired by many friends. He wielded a facile pen and was a frequent contributor to the press of the district, his articles touching chiefly on the early history. He took a deep interest in municipal affairs while he was a great churchman and scholar.

He was married sixty-one years ago last November 20. Miss Barnes of Ameliasburgh, she survives. They had eleven children of whom four survive, the other two having died in infancy. There are three daughters: Mrs. Frank Delong, and Mrs. Burton Adams, Ameliasburgh and Miss Luella at home. Six sons survive, Fred C., clerk of Ameliasburg, A. B. and G. E., Ameliasburgh, H. J. and L.K. and S. D. of Oshawa.



Dr. File was medical officer of health from the time the act was passed and was also a justice of the peace for the township.

He had several hobbies, floriculture and stock breeding. He was a horticulturist of rank and had many valuable cactus plants and was the original breeder of Ayrshire cattle in Prince Edward County. His herds have been exhibited at various exhibitions including the Canadian National at which he carried off many awards. His garden at Ameliasburg village is one of the beauty spots in the garden county.

Over sixty years of service of humanity in the medical profession made him countless friends and his name was synonymous with that of lover of his fellowmen.

EGG MART WEAK BUTTER EASIER, CROWDS ATTEND

Tendency to Slightly Lower Prices Seen on Local Market Today

VEGETABLES STABLE

Mild Weather Sees Big Attendance of Buyers and Vendors

The mild weather was featured by a bumper market this morning. Prices had not changed a great deal from last week. Eggs were lower in price, retailing at thirty-five cents per dozen, while butter is within the reach of everyone at thirty cents per pound. Vegetables had not changed in price. Carrots sold at thirty cents a peck, turnips at the same price, parsnips at forty cents a peck, beets forty cents a peck and onions sold for forty cents a peck. Celery retailed at ten cents a bunch, three bunches for a quarter. Cabbages were offered at five cents each. Sage and savory sold for five cents a bunch. Chickens sold today at $1.75 the pair, ducks at $1.00 to $1.25.

Apples

Apples brought $2.00 per bushel for Northern Spies, $1.75 snows; $1.75 talman sweets, $1.50 greenings, $1.00 baldwins.

Potatoes sold evenly at one dollar per bag. Beans brought ten cents a quart.

Wood was plentiful, at $6.00 per cord cut; $6.00 per load and $13.00 per cord of body maple uncut.

Smartcraft reported at various prices from five cents a quart to a york shilling.

Egg Market

The egg market showed the same irregularity or lack of uniformity of price today that it has shown for some time. Thirty to thirty-five cents was the price asked for fruit. Some smaller eggs, including pullets' eggs largely sold at 28 cents per dozen.

Wholesale prices of eggs ruling Belleville today according to grades are:

Extras 32c; Grade 27c; pullets' eggs extra 24c and 26c for seconds and "held over" eggs. These are the prices furnished the Ontario Intelligencer by shippers.

Meats

Meats brought as follows, hogs dressed $14.00; beef, western, $13.00; and $11.00 to $12.00 the carcass; lambs $18.00. Live hogs were sold at the price from last week and brought $9.00 to $9.50 per cwt. Young porkers sold at $7.00 each today.

LOUIS FRECHETTE MONUMENT MOOTED

Montreal—A monument to commemorate the achievements of Louis Frechette, distinguish French Canadian journalist, poet and writer, is to be raised in St. Louis Park, within a stone's throw of the home where Frechette lived and died, according to present plans.

Louis Frechette was one of the outstanding Canadians of the last century. His first book, "Mes Loisirs" was printed with "Le Voix d'un Exile" which was inspired by a four year sojourn in Chicago.

Shortly afterwards he was elected to the House of Commons at Ottawa but little trouble ensued in the turmoil of politics and was later appointed Clerk of the Legislative Council of Quebec.

In his leisure hours he wrote and published variety of volumes of prose and poetry, a most important contribution being "Le Legende d'un Peuple," issued in 1887. His works were well known in France where the French Academy awarded many distinctions and decorations to the Canadian writer. Frechette died at his home in Montreal on May 31, 1908.

Fire by Night Causes Loss in Charles St. House

Fire caused considerable damage at three-thirty this morning in the home of Mr. O. Harold Holton, Charles St. The blaze is thought to have started from a fireplace where it ates its way down into the basement, where Mr. Holton had his motorcar. It did up through a partition to the upstairs and cushions of the motorcar and the enamel was burned. A large mirror was cracked by the heat, and a chesterfield suite was burned. The damage to the building and the contents will be considerable.

The fire when discovered had made considerable headway and it is thought that it may have started from the tiny place where a fire had been burning last night.

When the blaze was noticed the house was full of smoke. Mr Holton's own family had no difficulty in escaping but Mr. Holton was obliged to assist his aged mother from the smoke-filled rooms to reach a neighbor's house.

The firemen did good work in saving the building which is a large frame dwelling.

RUMOR CONTRADICTED

I WISH TO INFORM the public that the rumor prevalent that I have sold my milk business is absolutely untrue. I have no intention of doing so, in fact my plans are all for expansion and arrangements are now being made for the building in the spring of a new and modern dairy plant one of the most up-to-date in Eastern Ontario, in order to give my customers the very best service possible.

JUNIOR W. A. MET

The Junior W. A. girls (B. Branch) of Hereshmer Avenue Anglican Group, entertained their friends last night, starting the new year with a very successful social evening held at the home of Mrs. B. Jones, Dundas Street. Those helping with the programme were: Song by Helen German; Maude Pettefor; musical selection; Bernice Attbuckle; reading and Carolyn Payne favored with a song. All joined in community singing. Miss Jennie Redner gave humorous readings while Mr. Joseph from the British West Indies delighted the little folk present with some humorous numbers. Mrs. Attbuckle gave an interesting talk on Junior W. A. work in Canada and Dorothy Osborne, Cannifton Road, gave two instrumental selections followed by community singing. Rose Wilkinson contributed a reading and Captain Payne closed with prayer and the girls sang their membership prayer. Refreshments were served followed by dancing which was enjoyed by some of the senior members. The girls proved themselves successful hostesses as well as energetic workers. In their treasury the girls have over one hundred dollars.

PRESENTATION MADE

Last evening the choir of Tabernacle Church held a very enjoyable social affair. About twenty-five guests were present, and the party which met at the Y.M.C.A. spent the earlier part of the evening in bowling on the "Y" alleys. Refreshments were served in the lecture room where the rest of the evening's entertainment was held. The choir members took this opportunity to present a faithful members, and former librarian of the choir, Mr. Gardiner Duff, with a gift. On behalf of those present, Mrs. F. A. Nicholson gave a short address in appreciation of Mr. Duff's work as a choir member, while Mrs. Cecil Lent made the presentation of a suitably engraved signet ring. Mr. Duff made a fitting reply thanking the choir for their handsome gift.

An interesting musical programme was given, after which the guests left for home.

SIXTY-SIXTH ANNIVERSARY

The sixty-sixth anniversary of the organization of the congregation of Christ Church in Belleville will be celebrated tomorrow. Christ Church was originally constructed of logs. The roof over the Cooper mill [illegible] was burned down after which the present structure was built, at the corner of College street and Catherine streets. It has had a long and serviceable career.

SON OF ARCHIVIST GAINS HIGH HONOR

Paris—Antoine Roy, of Quebec, son of Pierre-Georges Roy, the Canadian historian, and archivist of the Province of Quebec has just been awarded the doctorate of the University of Paris for a treatise on Canadian history which he published in Paris at the end of November. The work is the culmination of months of painstaking research, and in awarding Mr. Roy the degree the jury of professors of Sorbonne accorded him the highest possible mention.

The treatise is on the cultural life of Canada under the French regime. According to the time-honored custom of the university Mr. Roy had to present himself before a picked jury of professors to defend his work.

"At this public event M. Fajos, the chairman of the examination board, in asking Mr. Roy to explain what he has tried to do, paid pointed tribute to the work of Mr. Roy's father as an historian and archivist.

M. Gustave Cohen, the second member of the examining board, at the beginning of his discussion of the thesis took occasion to refer to the pleasure I gave him to have a Canadian before him for this high degree, since he recalled his own friendship with Canadians at the front and the part played by Canada during the war. The professors were unanimous that the work was well-written and threw much new light on the life under the old regime, especially since Mr. Roy had had access to many unpublished documents in the archives here and in Canada.

Mr. Roy returns to Canada this month. As holder of a Province of Quebec scholarship he came abroad four years ago and immediately entered upon his researches, while at the same time studying at the Ecole des Chartes. While attending Laval University at Quebec he specialized in history. He is the author of a bibliographical work on his father's historical publications, and has contributed to a number of periodicals. He is a popular member of the Canadian Students' Society of Paris, and for two years held the position of secretary of that organization.

HALF CENTURY MARRIED LIFE

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Cooney of Brighton Surprised by Friends

On December 29th, 1880, Mr. W. J. Cooney of Stockdale and Mary Ann Hanley of Sprague, were united in marriage by the Rev. Mr. Chapman and after fifty years of wedded life a number of friends gathered at their home, Brighton, to celebrate with them their Golden Wedding. After a sumptuous repast the curtain of Mr. Cooney's sitting-room of Wooler, was appointed chairman and he on behalf of those present, congratulated Mr. and Mrs. Cooney on their long and happy wedded life and presented them with a handsome clock and a purse of gold to Mr. Cooney on behalf of himself and wife thanked the friends for their kindly remembrance and hoped they would have many more years together. A short program of songs, recitations and instrumental music was then given followed by all joining in singing "Auld Lang Syne" and "We'll meet again," and the company dispersed to their several homes.

The following relatives were present: Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Cooney, Trenton; Mr. Clinton Cooney, "Trenton; Miss Hilda Cooney, Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Smith, Frankford; Mr. Harold Smith, Frankford; Mr. Chas. CHILDREN AND MOTHERS FETED

A very pleasant afternoon was spent at the Holloway Street United Church when the members of the Primary Department of the Holloway Street United Church Sunday School and the mothers were entertained together. Very attractive invitations were sent to the mothers, who responded in good numbers. Between seventy and eighty children were present, besides the mothers and friends. Mrs. Charl F. Moore, the superintendent of the Primary Division and Miss Dorothy Hudgins entertained the children with various games and songs. The children gave recitations and sang. Mrs. Moore told one of her delightful stories to the children. The children and their mothers and friends were welcomed by Rev. H. R. Neal, the minister, who spoke of the importance of the home and the cooperation of the parents in the important work of the Sunday School. Mr. Neil also explained the new lessons for the beginners and primary which are now being introduced. "These are the best supplies we can buy," said Mr. Neal, "and we are sure the mothers will have great sympathetic cooperation in seeking to give the best to your children."

Dainty refreshments were served by some of the ladies of the church. Each child also received a bag of candies. Mothers and children were warm in their praises for the pleasant and profitable afternoon together.

MAKERS OF HIGH HATS

There is no problem of old-age pensions in the silk-hat industry. Men over 45 are not discharged, and their nerves are not shattered by the din of machinery. At present there are only forty "builders" of silk hats in the country, according to The Kansas City Star. The majority of them have more than 20 years of service. To learn how to make a sleek and comfortable "topper" requires an apprenticeship of from five to seven years, so young blood is lacking. The pace of modern life may send the silk hat the way of its less graceful predecessor, Abraham Lincoln wearing a tile is a familiar picture. In his day there were rect "stovepipes." They were long and narrow and made of fine beaver fur, clipped close and dyed black. From a distance they gleamed like the spire of a skyscraper.—New York Times.

Holland maintains a school in which children are taught the secrets of windmill building so that the art may be perpetuated in the country.

SLUMP FAILS TO CHECK GROWTH OF BUSINESS IN YEAR 1930

Forbes Magazine Tells Story of Business Achievements

"Slump fails to check growth of Lord & Thomas and Logan" is the headline of an article by B C. Forbes, of Forbes Magazine, in a copyrighted newspaper article.

The article continues:-

"How is this for a business achievement?

We did $20,000,000 business in 1928, $40,000,000 in 1929 and $50,000,000 this year."

That is the phenomenal record of Lord & Thomas and Logan, advertising agency, whose directing genius is Albert D. Lasker. He started with the firm thirty-three years ago at $70 a week, and is now the wealthiest advertising man in the world.

Imagine being able to roll up an increase in billings and collections of 25 per cent in this depression year!

How did Mr. Lasker do it?

After extending me by saying that he didn't do it, but that his clients and associates rather than he, did it, the explained:

"We choose to work only for smart people; people who would be successful without us. All our clients have actually been a larger volume of business this year than last year—although, of course, the dollar total is a few cases been less, because of the decline in prices."

"Unless a client has in his business the potentialities of growth, the elements of success, we dare not interested in handling his advertising. Unless our clients grow and prosper, we wouldn't be able to grow and prosper. So we are careful to pick only such concerns as have in them leadership prospects and qualities."

"Our clients, as a rule, spend more money in poor times than in boom times, because they can make headway over competitors. That is exactly what has been happening this year."

"I have known "A.D." for twenty years, and my analysis of him is that he has a mentality not surpassed by half a dozen men in any line of business. His unique success is no accident."

William Findlay, of Toronto, one of the vice-presidents, and a director of Lord & Thomas and Logan, who is in charge of the agency's Canadian affairs, reports a substantial increase in the firm's business in the Dominion in 1930.

Several of our advertisers have enjoyed peak years in 1930," said Mr. Findlay. "These are firms who have judiciously maintained, or appropriately increased their advertising appropriations, and whose sales organizations knew put fresh effort into their work. They have proven that industry and advertising will make headway over competitors, no matter what the conditions in business may be."

The clients of Lord & Thomas and Logan in Canada as a group plan increased appropriations for advertising in 1931.

FOREIGNER SUICIDES

Port Arthur, Jan. 3—Elie Javie, 40, a Finlander, resident in Canada but a few months, committed suicide in a deserted cabin near Miscampbell, Ont., according to information received at the local head quarters of the provincial police. The finding of the body indicated that he killed himself by placing a 12-gauge double-barrelled shotgun to his head and pulling the trigger.

FAIR ASSOCIATION HELD BIG DANCE

Madoc Fair Association held their annual dance in the armouries on the evening of 29th, Monday, with the usual large crowd. Visitors were present from Marmora, Tweed, Belleville, Napanee, and many of the surrounding villages. Excellent music was provided by Tommy Mason's orchestra, which was in its usual good form. Lunch was served by the ladies about midnight, and dancing was continued until a late hour, testifying eloquently as to the enjoyment of all concerned.

Thursday evening was the occasion of the opening of the season of Madoc's Hockey rink and was signalized by an exhibition game between Belleville's noted team, and the local town team.

A good game was played with excellent stick handling on the part of the local men. Belleville team seemed to have difficulty in getting close to the nets and had to shoot from the centre during most of the game. The score of 4 to 3 indicates an excellent well fought game.

One penalty on each side shows the fair sportsmanship of both teams. The following is the line-up:

Belleville	Position	Madoc
	Goal
Jeffrey
McKinnon	Defence	Hulin
Montgomery	Defence	Andrews
A. Weir	Centre	Barky
V. Weir	Wings	L'Heureux
Smith	Wings	Johnston
Mulvihill	Alternates	McGuire
Truaisch	Alternates	Henderson
Scott	Alternates	Watson
	Goal	Moon

CHICAGO STUDENT NURSE IS ALMOST CURED BY UNIQUE BREATHING MACHINE

Chicago, Jan. 3—Frances McGann, 24-year-old student nurse, is no longer "the respiratory" girl.

The breathing machine was wheeled away yesterday, signalizing victory for the young woman in her strange battle with a fear that she could not sleep outside it.

The battle began last September when infantile paralysis gripped the muscles of her lungs, arms and legs. She was placed in the respirator which did her breathing for her. As the days passed she regained the use of her lung muscles, but apprehension that she could not sleep outside the big grey contraption that snores rhythmically while "breathing" seized her. Encouraged by doctors and nurses, the frightened girl essayed an attempt. The next effort and the next were not so terrifying.

Now she sleeps easily outside of it. Only a minor battle withholds a complete triumph for her. Paralysis has not relaxed its hold on her arms and legs entirely, but she is confident of ultimate success.

RABBIT QUARREL ENDS IN DEATH

Young Man Who Was Meddling With Traps Was Killed Instantly

Montreal, Jan. 3—A struggle between two youths over possession of a rabbit caught in a snare in the woods outside La Prairie, a nearby village, resulted in the death of Gabriel Babeaux, 17, and the arrest as a material witness of Emile Chretien, 20. Both young men lived in La Prairie.

Chretien told detectives that he had been attending his line of rabbit snares when he came upon Babeaux about to take an animal from one of his (Chretien's) snares. The two quarrelled and fought over possession of the animal. Chretian told police, and in the struggle Babeaux's rifle was accidentally discharged, the contents striking Babeaux in the face and causing instant death.

According to the police Chretian fled from the scene, but later in the day went to friends and told them of the tragedy and directed them to the location of Babeaux's body. A party headed by Dr. Lootin of La Prairie, hurried to the woods where the body was discovered with the rifle nearby.

Chretian told authorities he was unarmed. He was brought to Montreal for the inquest which is being held today.

LIVES OF CHILDREN ARE IN JEOPARDY

Ingersoll, Jan. 3—An Ingersoll motorist, driving west on King Street, was horrified to see a boy on a sleigh dart out from a side lane and directly at him. There was not a chance for either the car or the sleigh to be stopped, but the boy and his sleigh passed underneath the car, between the front and rear wheels, and escaped unhurt. Chief Constable Gilling has issued a warning against coasting on or across streets where there is motor traffic.

Millers Worm Powders not only exterminate intestinal and other worms, but they are a remedy for many other ailments of children. They strengthen the young stomach against biliousness and are tonics in their effects where the child suffers from loss of appetite in feverish conditions they will be found useful and they will serve to allay pain and griping in the stomach, from which children so often suffer.

SIX MEMBERS OF FAMILY BURIED

Large Crowd Attends Last Rites for Victims of Cochrane Fire

Cochrane, Jan. 3—The largest crowd that has ever attended any funeral in Cochrane packed St. Paul's Church to overflowing here yesterday to honor the memory of Charles Palangio, his wife, Jennie Thorkelson Palangio, and their four children, Victor, Rita, Bobby and Betty, who lost their lives in the fire which destroyed the Queen's Hotel last Monday.

Long before three o'clock the church was filled, and many stood outside in the below zero weather until the end of the brief service, unable to gain admission.

Only the immediate families of Mr. and Mrs. Palangio, 12 pallbearers and ten young lads, members of the Maple Leafs, juvenile hockey team of which Charles Palangio was coach and his son Victor a popular member, followed the two hearses to the Protestant Cemetery where interment was made.

The brief and simple funeral service was conducted by Rev. James Worsnell, of St. Paul's, assisted by Rev. James Taylor, of Cochrane Baptist Church.

There was no sermon, only prayer for the dead and living, a selection from the Scriptures, and a hymn "Oh! God our Help in Ages Past."

Then the two coffins, the first containing the charred bones of Mrs. Palangio and the children, and the other the remains of Mr. Palangio, were carried to the waiting hearses.

The procession was headed by a sleigh heaped with the floral tributes from friends and sympathisers, from local organizations, for local heads of the provincial and town police, and business houses.

Radio Fans Corner

Somebody threw a monkey wrench in the machinery last night between 8 and 9 o'clock and caused a fearful confusion of buzzing, had to shut the radio off because it was impossible to bring in a station. However it wasn't a continued affair for shortly afterwards the buzz went off and we carried on, well satisfied, until the midnight hour.

Had a letter yesterday from an indignant radio fan who still seems to be bothered with that bird-whistle which was the first in quite a while that it had appeared on my set. He says it is quite spoiling the programs for him from 7 p.m. until 8.30 and it is the opinion that plenty other radio fans in the city are bothered the same way. Yes, it would be only fair to the person owning the machine causing the trouble would be kind enough to have it ground. Let us hope that this will before and to some extent the trouble has been cleared up, now we're making another appeal. Co-operate fans and give us all a break.

He goes on and lists several programs that as yet haven't been recommended in the column, but they're good I know and I'm passing them on. Sunday at 3 p.m. from CFRB the Yeo's Bible Class, Monday at 10 p.m. the Jayseaters, Cheerio station, Tuesday at 10.30 p.m. the Ex Ki Ka program over the National Broadcasting system, Friday 4 p.m. the Radio Guild Play and he especially recommended them, heard over the National chain. Saturday at 8.30 p.m. the Silver Flute, N.B.C. and at 9 the Corn Huskers from CKOW. Thank you, radio fan, very much for writing in.

The good ship Leviathan must have drifted out to sea because for some reason or other the R.K.O. gang couldn't get aboard. They had their party on shore and it was a good one too, next week they tell us the guest stars will be Harry Richman and Ken Murray.

Little Jack Little makes the N.B.C. New York studios his headquarters beginning tomorrow and he is appearing twice a week from now on. Good news, eh, fans? But the majority of us will only hear him once a week. I'' mafraid a shis other broadcast is Wednesday at 1.45 p.m. but tomorrow and every Sunday we can tune in at 4.45 and get his program. He will be heard over an N.B.C. network. Don't forget he is on tonight from WEAF at 11.45.

WEAF'S line-up for tonight starts at 5.30 with the Tea Timers, continuing at 6.45 with Uncle Abe and David, Varieties at 8.15, B. A. Rolfe at ten, Lanny Ross at 11, Horace Heidt at 11.15, Little Jack Little at 11.45, as I mentioned before and Rudy Vallee at midnight. WJZ presents the Jesters at 7.15, an episode of the Campus at 8, the Musical Doctors at 9.30 and Phil Spitalny at midnight. All the earmarks of a large evening.

FIRE IN BROCKVILLE SHOP

Brockville, Jan. 3— Considerable damage to stock through smoke and water was caused by an outbreak of fire in the basement of Arch Miller's clothing store, the blaze being attributed to the furnace in which paper and other refuse had been burned during the morning. The fire was burning briskly when discovered, and the firemen worked for an hour and a half before gaining control of the outbreak. The loss is barely covered by insurance.

MISSING WOMAN FOUND IN SILO

Mrs. C. McCluskey Was Found in Unconscious State Yesterday

Owen Sound, Jan. 3—Mrs. Cash McCluskey, of Keppel township, near the village of Jackson, who mysteriously disappeared from her home early Wednesday morning and for whom the entire neighborhood has been searching day and night, was found late on Friday afternoon; alive, but in a very weak condition.

The woman was located in the corn, silo in her own barn only a short distance from her home, covered up with some hay, by Sheldon Prizzell, of Owen Sound, who went out yesterday afternoon. He had a small searchlight, and although told that the silo, which was empty but for hay, had been searched with a pitchfork, he poked around with his light and finally came across the missing woman.

When found she was unconscious, but was hurriedly carried into her home, and means were at once taken to warm her, while a physician from Owen Sound was summoned. She was chilled to the bone and the physician stated that she would have perished had she remained there another night. She regained consciousness a couple of hours after being brought into the house, but her only words were that she was weak and tired. Her physician stated last night that there was no reason why she should not recover in a short time under proper care.

Following her disappearance on Wednesday morning, search had got up and started the fire in the kitchen stove, over 100 men were out on the search, and Coroner Denton reported that the husband could give no reason why his wife should go away.

NEW INDUSTRY POSSIBLE

Oshawa, Jan. 3—The possibility of another industry of a substantial character being established in Oshawa as a result of the joint efforts of the Oshawa Chamber of Commerce and the Oshawa Industrial Foundation is being discussed here. B. J. McCormick, industrial commissioner, stated yesterday that there was an industrial prospect waiting for a factory to be erected.

MAY GET HYDRO POWER

Lindsay, Jan. 3—In all probability Rosedale and Baddow will be lighted by hydro in the near future, John Wilson of Baddow, recently interviewed the Hydro Board of Turnstile, and is quite hopeful as a result. As it would be unemployment relief work, the governments would assist on a fifty-fifty basis, and work may begin early in the year.

"ATLANTIC" AN ALL-BRITISH ACHIEVEMENT

"Atlantic" coming to the Bells Theatre, Tuesday and Wednesday has been described by Canadian press critics at His Majesty's Theatre in Montreal where it is widely acclaimed, as Morgan-Powell, editor of the Montreal Daily Star reported from the ordinary point of that newspaper, and devoted an editorial set in two columns, to the picture heading it "An All-British Achievement" as follows: "Due in some measure to the fatal British habit of self-depreciation, and also the unparalleled volume of publicity that has been given out on the part of Hollywood around the world for years, an entirely erroneous impression has been created as to the part British has played in the development of the motion picture. Yet it is a fact susceptible of easy proof that before the war Britain was in the lead. Those were the early days of the movie as we know it today. The principle of the motion picture was the invention of an Englishman, and the most modern developments in the marvellous camera lenses used in taking motion pictures today are the work of an Englishman. It is no discredit, but rather a matter for candid congratulation that American producers saw their opportunity, seized it, improved upon it, and rushed into a most commanding lead in the matter of motion picture production which they held until a few years ago. Britain, fighting for her very existence, simply had to scrap her film industry. For years after the Treaty of Versailles she was too busily engaged in rebuilding the nation's credit and in reconstruction much that had fallen almost into ruins in her industrial and social fabric to give any serious thought to the resuscitation of the business of film production. When at last she had time and opportunity to do so, she found that the world's market had been captured by the American producers, who had built up their picture production until it ranked fourth in the country's industries and commanded unlimited capital, as well as having tied up enormous amounts of the nation's industrial resources.

"It was inevitable, in the circumstances, that Britain should be slow. The British methods, moreover, did not lend themselves to the most effective competition. But bit by bit the English producers found their feet. And bit by bit, the producers in the leading countries of Europe found theirs. Germany was the first to realize the full measure of the tremendous progress in the art of the film. But now, France, Italy and the smaller nations are fully alive to it now. Germany is busily making the most splendid films. The output is limited, but the quality is there. Britain is striving vigorously to measure up to an equal standard. Both have developed radically and permanently from the methods of Hollywood, and are working along lines of their own.

"Those who would like to see for themselves the standard of British film production has attained will have an opportunity tonight, when what is by far the greatest, most impressive and most astonishing film production, from the triple standpoint of realism, of dramatic force, of artistic level of acting, and tragic intensity, that the old world has known will be shown in Montreal. This picture, called "Atlantic", is based upon the Titanic disaster. Its author is Miss Ernest Raymond's great dramatic effort.

"The film which tells the story of the sinking of the Titanic and which is in essence a justification of the humanity of today in the face of the supreme test of death, awful and inevitable, looming suddenly out of the dark upon scenes of gaiety, romance and laughter—has been censored—passed mood.

"This is an all-British production, made in British studios from a play by a British with some of the finest artists on the English stage today filling the principal role. I have no hesitation in saying, as my considered belief, that nobody who views it with an unprejudiced mind will go away still inforring under the delusion that England cannot turn out pictures today that stand without any superior in the realm of the screen."

CAMPBELLFORD AND MADOC ARE WINNERS IN TRENT VALLEY LG

Opening Games in County League Attracted Big Crowds

Madoc and Campbellford won the opening games of the Trent Valley Hockey League last night, and early indications are, that the northern loop is entering the most successful year in history. The enthusiasm displayed with the large crowds which turned out, indicated that keen interest is being shown. The victories were well-merited ones, both Madoc and Campbellford teams playing superior hockey. The tale makers trounced Tweed 5-1, while Campbellford invaded Frankford and defeated the paper-makers right in their own ballwick 3-1.

MADOC, Jan. 3.—(Special to Consolidated Intelligencer)—Madoc's Trent Valley League team, strengthened by several new players from Port Arthur got off to a flying start last night by taking the last Tweed team into camp by 5 score of 3-1 in a game which had the fans in a keen state of excitement. Both teams presented strong line-ups, the Tweed club introducing two new players from Perth and one from Peterboro. The Gerald quartette are still doing duty with the Tweed club and all made an impressive showing. The game wound up with fists flying, Barkey, Madoc defence player mixing it with F. Geraldi. Norm Johnson and L'Heureux were the pick of the Madoc team while Cripps and Campbell, the newcomers occupied the spotlight for Tweed.

The first period was extremely fast with McGuire and L'Heureux scoring for Madoc on individual efforts. Tweed failed to get a counter. There was no score in the second period and play was somewhat rough at times with Campbell, Cripps and McGuire drawing down terms in the penalty box.

L'Heureux recounted for Madoc's last in the third period while Cripps saved Tweed from a shut-out with a pretty shot. Barkey was given the only penalty of the last period and that for fighting. Bill Green of Belleville handled the game.

Madoc—Goal —W. Hulin, defence, Barkey and F. Andrews, centre, L'Heureux, wings, Johnson and McGuire, subs, Henderson, C. Moon, J. Watson.

Tweed—goal —W. McGee, defence, J. Marchand, M. Geraldi, centre, A. Campbell, wings, W. Cripps, F. Geraldi, subs, O. Geraldi, F. Geraldi, D. Boyd.

In 10 hip and tuck battle, Campbellford Maroons handed Rose Turley's Frankford team a trimming last night by a score of 3-1. There was no score in the first period but in the second canto, with but one minute to go, Whitton scored for the visitors. The third period opened fast with Legault scoring for Frankford one minute after the puck was faced. This tied the game and the home fans went into a frenzy. Cowell was in the penalty box at the time. The teams fought hard and finally McKay, Campbellford right winger broke through to sift one into the hemp. It was an exceptionally clean game, only one penalty having been handed out by Referee Leo Barrett of Belleville, who made them play hockey all the time. "T. B." Hoskins and "Buster" Whitton were stand-outs for Campbellford with McLean and Legault playing effective hockey for Frankford. Flinn engineered some particularly fine rushes.

Frankford—Prevost, goal; J. Legault, rd; C. Flinn, ld; G. Bohan, c; J. Boland, rw; Le McLean, lw; W. Bradley, C. O'Malley, A. Mums, subs.

Campbellford—W. Grier, goal; J. Cowell rd; R. McArthur, ld; Whitton, c; A. McKay, rw; L. Smith, lw; R. Fleming, B. Copperthwaite, T. B. Hoskins, subs.

Referee—Leo Barrett, Belleville.

Bowlers started the 1931 season off right last night. In the early evening members of the Tabernacle choir occupied the alleys and were followed by the junior league playoff between Ontario Intell and Supremes. Supremes lost the battle in the last game which decided the issue because at the end of the second game only thirteen pins separated the teams. Ontario Intell are champions and Supremes take runner-up money.

In addition to all the trundling two new leagues were organized, a junior ladies' league also a men's junior league. Jerry Bryant is president and Ali Everett secretary of the latter. Another entry is required as it is desired to have a fine 8-team league. Any team desiring to enter should do so not later than Monday night.

CHAMPS OPENED SEASON WITH FINE VICTORY

Picton, Jan. 3—The opening hockey game of the season here was held in Picton arena, Tuesday night, with a double header. Though teams are not yet in very good condition, due to lack of practice, there was some good hockey played and the great crowd of spectators representing many parts of the county, were given many thrills during the evening.

The search was officially opened by George Welch, one of the strong supporters of local sports.

Milford, champions of the Prince Edward County League two years ago, won the opener by defeating Imperial Oil in a collection of local players. The Milford boys scored two goals and held the Picton team scoreless. The winning team worked nicely together and there were some clever combination plays. Penalties were many.

In the Wellington-Demorestville match, each team managed to score a g..l. It was a very keenly contested game and teams were evenly matched. The Demorestville team is a new entrant in the League and promise to provide plenty of excitement. They have a large following from their community and this is responsible for an increase in the attendance at the games.

This week, the Picton Gazette issued a fine special number to mark its 100th anniversary. It is interesting to note that the Kingston Whig-Standard is the only newspaper in Ontario, the Brockville Recorder, the second oldest, the New Outlook, Toronto, the third and the Picton Gazette the fourth. In spite of their ages, these papers continue to flourish and prosper.

The Gazette is under Messrs. A. E. and H. Ackerman and have received letters of congratulation from prominent men and newspapers in all parts of Canada, the United States and England as well.

Albert Welbanks, farmer, residing at South Bay, was brought to the County Hospital when he had an eye removed. The optic had been injured a few days previous while Mr. Welbank's son was using a stick to jab him in the eye, seriously injuring it. It was impossible to save the optic, though the sight of the other will not be affected.

Picton School Trustees for Picton were elected by acclamation as follows:

Hallowell Ward—Gordon Walmsley, Brock Ward—John Hubbs.

Tecumseh Ward—J. A. Maker.

Quinte Ward—Dr. D. W. Gullett.

The election promises to be keenly contested and a large vote is expected. Hallowell will return the first three some years that an election has been held to fill the three offices of Mayor, Reeve and Deputy Reeve.

There is a contest... in Hallowell Township. G. L. Christie and Fred Hubbs are running for Reeve, Walter Young, Carl Bryant, C. Marshall, W. Lockyer and Roy Cooper for Councillors and H. V. Clark is Deputy Reeve by acclamation.

HOCKEY TEAMS ARE PRACTICING FOR BIG GAMES

Stan Burgoyne, coach of the hockey teams requests all intermediates to be on hand tonight for a practice beginning at six o'clock while the seniors will take the ice immediately after the intermediate practice which continues for one hour. The first intermediate game is billed for January 13 in this city and the coach wants to get the boys working together before that time. There is every prospect that the intermediates will make a fine showing in their group. The seniors are practicing faithfully for their first league game, which is scheduled for next Thursday night in this city. Queen's will be the opponents and a win for the locals will help considerably.

LOCALS PLAYED WELLINGTON TEAM

Belleville Y.M.C.A. Team Opened New Rink In P.E. Community

Last evening a team of Hockey Players representing the Employed Boys and the High School Group of the Y.M.C.A. made a trip to Wellington accompanied by the General Secretary J. E. Shortt, to meet the Canadian Legion Team of that town. The game featured the opening of the new rink at Wellington. There was a large crowd of enthusiastic supporters of the game in attendance, and all were very pleased with the night's performance.

The Wellington boys had the advantage in age and weight but the speed and combination of the Belleville boys off-set this advantage and the game finished 3-3.

The team representing Belleville was as follows:—

Garnet Sinfield, Ralph Burley, Jack Murphy, Allan McCreary, Don Lee, Herbert Burley, Don Ridley, Art Cole, Jimmie Andrews.

Referee—Mr. Macdonald of Wellington.

After the game the Wellington officials entertained the Belleville Boys at supper.

A return game will be played here in Belleville in the near future.

MINISTER LABOR VISITS WINDSOR

Probe Situation at Border in Regard to Canadian Commerce

Windsor, Jan. 3—Personal investigation of the commuter situation is to be made by Senator Gideon Robertson, Federal Minister of Labor. He will reach Windsor on Sunday morning, according to a statement issued by Col. Sidney C. Robinson, M.P., for Essex West. The federal minister has asked for a conference with members of the delegation which waited on Premier Bennett a short time ago and which resulted in the problem being placed before the United States authorities at Washington by the Canadian Legation.

Since the investigation opened and detailed cases have been presented to the United States authorities, the Immigration Board at Washington has reversed decisions of the Board of Inquiry at Detroit.

Under the decision of the Detroit board, a large number of commuters have been refused the right to enter the United States. Deportation orders were issued in a large number of cases and it was charged that the action was in direct contravention of the agreement entered into in 1927 as affecting immigration, and particularly the daily trips across the river of persons living in the Border Cities and working in Detroit.

In a number of cases where the details have been laid before the Washington authorities, the deported persons have been given the right to re-enter the State.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID FULLER CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING

Bancroft Scene of Happy Event in Christmas Week

Bancroft, Jan. 3—On Monday evening December the twenty-second, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Fuller provided a delightful setting for the celebration of the fiftieth wedding anniversary of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Fuller. Baskets of yellow roses and golden decorations lent a note of rich color to the drawing room in which the bride and groom received a number of guests, relatives and immediate friends. Mrs. Fuller was charmingly dressed in a black beaded gown with touches of silver and corsage of white gardenias. Mrs. Oswald Fuller was attractively gowned in black georgette with green. Among the relatives present were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Davy, Mr. and Mrs. John Kelsey, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Davy, Mrs. (Dr.) R. S. Gibson of Belleville, Miss Leola Kelsaky and three grandchildren the Misses Patricia, Avis and Dorothy Fuller. The tea table was attractive with golden tapers and the wedding cake was effective with its decoration of leaves of gold. Mr. and Mrs. Fuller were the recipients of a number of lovely gift..

It was on Dec. 22nd. 1880 that Mrs. Fuller, then Miss Josephine Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jones of Ainsworth became the bride of David Fuller. The marriage was solemnized in the Methodist church, the Rev. W. James Bell was the officiating clergyman. Mr. and Mrs. Fuller have resided in Bancroft for the past forty-seven years where Mr. Fuller has successfully operated the Bancroft Woollen Mills and ably filled his term as Reeve of this village. They have endeared themselves to a large circle of friends having indeed proved themselves good citizens of the community.

NOTARIES FOR 71 YEARS

Quebec, Jan. 3—Four of the 897 notaries in the Province of Quebec have been practising their profession for over 71 years. It is revealed in the Revue du Notariat, just published. Montreal district has 280 notaries and the district of Quebec has 173.

The English apparently like baked beans. More than 600,000 pounds of beans and pork valued at $27,523 were recently shipped to the United Kingdom.

The young of the blue heron are white the first year.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Palmer and Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Palmer motored over to Belleville on Sunday and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Palmer and family.

Mr. Har Farley was busy last week baling hay for Mr. Stewart Wood.

Muriel and Myrtle Hubbs of Trenton are visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Palmer.

SHOPKEEPER REMANDED

Niagara Falls, Jan. 3—Victor Subotsits, a local merchant, was remanded in custody for a week charged with fraud. Subotsits, it is alleged, ejected J. C. Sloat, an agent for the trustee in bankruptcy, from his store and attempted to operate it for himself. A charge was laid and he refused to promise to remain away from the store until bankruptcy proceedings had been completed.

DEATH CAME QUIETLY TO FRENCH LEADER

High Commissioner in London during the great war, paid a glowing tribute to the memory of the dead soldier. Idol of Britain.

London, Jan. 3.—(By the Canadian Press)—Except in Military circles the name of Joffre was unknown in England, when war broke out in August, 1914, but before six months had gone by he had become the idol of the British people who looked to "Papa Joffre" to speedily drive the enemy back across their frontiers. It was in the little room of a house at St. Quintin, the headquarters of the British Commander-in-Chief. Sir John French, that his historic meeting with Joffre took place towards the end of August, at a time when the British expeditionary force was imperilled, because its second corps had not been able to comply with the orders of Sir John French and was committed alone to battle with the enemy masses on the line Cambrai-Le Cateau. Sir John French has written of that historic hour of how heartened he was by the sympathy and understanding of General Joffre.

During 1915, when Joffre and his G. H. Q. had settled down to trench warfare for which they were not prepared, criticism began to make itself felt especially as to the slowness of G. H. Q. from the front, its arbitrary methods and its stubborn attitude with respect to the civil power and parliament. Had it not been well known that Joffre was a moderate Republican, this last year, in the French political mind indication of a coup d'etat would alone have caused Joffre's overthrow. Millerand fell from power chiefly because he would not reassert the ministerial rights usurped by G.H.Q.

Belated Command

Briand followed and his ingenuity was taxed to the utmost in pacifying criticisms while retaining Joffre behind some unperturbable authority like Bureaux of G. H. Q., acted as they pleased. In December, 1915, the endeavour to impose an effective control on G.H.Q. took shape in the appointment of Joffre as Commander-in-Chief of French forces in all theatres of war, assuming the new and wider responsibility Joffre managed to retain his immediate command of the armies of the western front from which it was not been intended to remove him by this step.

Complaints, however, which had grown more and more audible, as each offensive of 1915 ended in disappointment came to a head in the winter of 1915-16 when the French parliament become alarmed about the state of the Verdun Front. To direct enquiry by Parliament Joffre returned a decided answer that his front was safe and well-equipped — coupled with a protest against any reports being listened to other than his own — and when the storm of the German offensive broke up this froth, found it weak and swept it away. Joffre's prestige received a blow from which it did not recover.

Thenceforward his role in the war was that of a spectator, except for a period in which he was sent on a mission to the United States in the autumn of 1917. Marshal Joffre was elected a member of the French Academy in 1918. Having in July, 1914, been given the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor he had received the still higher honor of the Medaille Militaire in November 1914.

Three huge hydraulic turbines each of which uses 77,000 gallons a second at 85 top speed, have been installed in the Albbruck power station on the upper Rhine.

London's transport figures are remarkable. There are 8,500 buses, 118 miles of tubes and underground railway and 2,747 trams run on 345 miles of tramlines.

FIRE DESTROYED POST BUILDING

One Employee is Burned to Death, Five Missing in Baltimore Fire

Baltimore Jan. 3—Fire swept through the four-story building of the Baltimore Post here last night, resulting in the death of one employee and the injury of three others and one fireman, and leaving the building and machinery in wreckage. The origin of the blaze is unknown.

Joseph R. Douglass a linotype operator who was one of a score of printers in the basement, died from a fractured skull received in jumping from the third storey.

Five, and an afternoon Scripps-Howard newspaper established here in 1922, will be published temporarily from the plant of the Baltimore Sun. Smoke coming through the roof of the building, Douglass jumped and firemen were putting a ladder against the wall.

Some of the composing-room machinery was heated to red through the floor to the basement. The exact amount of the damage will not be known until after a survey.

CANADIAN GAME RESOURCES

Notwithstanding the fact that certain inroads have been made on many species of game native to this country since the advance of settlement and development, there still remains in the vast wooded and unsettled portions of Canada an abundance of wild life. Thanks to wise legislative measures and strict enforcement of laws, these valuable resources have been protected and conserved with the result that game is well distributed throughout practically every province from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Television pictures transmitted from an Army observation plane were recently employed to locate and destroy theoretical enemy submarines intent on reaching the Golden Gate and San Francisco.

YOUNG FOLKS PREPARE FOR BIG BUSINESS

It is almost certain that a year from now conditions in Canada will be much better than they have been during the last fifteen months. There will be better opportunities to get started successfully in business. The opportunities mean very little to those who are not trained and qualified to take advantage of them. So it is advisable for all young people, no matter what line of work they may choose later on, to get a good business education now. With the holiday season over, this is a most opportune time to start.

Ontario Business College specializes in superior business training and here, under the most favourable conditions and in attractive, comfortable surroundings, this most valuable education can be obtained within a brief period.

ALDERMAN DIED

Montreal, Que., Jan. 3.—Aldermen Louis Robenstein for over a score of years intimately connected with skating cycling and other sports died here today.

MOST WIDELY USED

CANADIAN WOOD

There are few timbers in the world which serve as many wood-using industries as does Douglas fir. It is so widely and extensively in the construction of bridges, wharves and factories where the timbers must be strong enough to resist the impact of sudden heavy loads, and, owing to its ability to withstand sudden strains, it is much in demand for beams, ship-knees, keels, decking, masts, spars, and planking in ship-building. Further, its hardness and resistance to abrasion make its value as a material for flooring especially when cut edge-grained, and when crossoted wood blocks of Douglas fir provide a long-wearing pavement for roadways. Douglas fir is the strongest and stiffest of Canadian softwoods for conifers, according to the tests of the Forest Products Laboratories of the Department of the Interior of Canada.

NEW SKI JUMP RECORD

Salt Lake City, Jan. 3—A new world's ski jumping record was set yesterday when Al Engen, Utah Ski Club, leaped 247 feet—exceeding the existing record by 11 feet.

Engen's feat was accomplished at the annual intermountain ski jumping tournament at Farley's Canyon, near Salt Lake.

Engen also won first place in the tournament, scoring 765 points. Halvar Bjorngard was second with 604 points. His longest jump was 195 feet.

Margaret Yorke

"Well, this is ridiculous!" she said lightly, "you and I will be town's talk before we've had a few weeks. But I wouldn't congratulate myself too soon if I were you! There are splendid lawyers in this state, and my wife and daughter isn't quite a stranger to them. You may swallow this whole, Stan, and assure you that I should fight—fight to the last ditch! I was married to Cyrus Theobald in Paris, and I was married to him again, a few weeks ago, in New York. There is such a thing as 'a wife's claim, and I'm going to find out exactly what it is! I'm sorry to have to go, but—as his widow, I may have to leave for New York tomorrow," finished Shirley, trembling but assured and assertive to the end. "I'll pack now, Stan, if you don't mind," she said courageously, "and if you'll just tell Rudolph?"

And she went indoors; leaving the ecstasy of long-awaited joy on the porch, for Stan and Margaret sat down quite simply upon the old wicker settee, and the man put his arm about Margaret's slender, waist, and held her brown, thin fingers captive in his big hand, while the floodgates of their starved hearts were opened at last.

Shirley, shaking, and gritting her teeth as she packed, found them there when she came out an hour later. Stanley put her into the car, and Margaret went and the man grinned in farewell. But Shirley, still flushed and with dangerously bright eyes, was settling herself in the limousine, and appeared to be not good-byes. Kreet and smirk in her cajoling manner had shock furs and new suit, she swept from their view.

Then Margaret and Stanley went slowly along the buttercup-fringed lane between the woods. And during that memorable and matchless interval and during the dreamy, unreal dinner-hour, when all the old people's questions could be answered and when Margaret half laughed and half cried as she tied Jim's napkin, and pushed in his high chair, there seemed to be no end to their happy quiet words.

Later, when all the house was still, except perhaps for the pen of Cousin Nettie, who could not sleep until she had scratched off at least an outline of their extraordinary story for the benefit of her married daughter in The Dalles—later, Stan and Margaret had their old chairs, theirs at last, sacredly, set to theirs for many, many years. Their hands were locked again, and their eyes met and smiled, and moved round the fire, and came back to meet again.

"Now, you know everything, Stan," Margaret said, with a deep sigh of utter relief. "It's been like a bad dream, keeping it all to myself, and frightened that at any moments some-body might come here, or that in some way we might be discovered. It's been like a big calamity, an earthquake or a storm, and I still feel utterly exhausted and dazed by it. But one thing is safe; my boy is mine and always was! I don't care. If Trowbridge is right, he'll inherit, perhaps me, a good deal of property. But we'll keep him sweet, Stan, and sane and simple, if we can. And besides—"

"Besides," amended Margaret, looking at him soberly, with a gleam of laughter in her blue eyes, "he may not get everything. We'll—we'll circumvent him, if we can! And when we tell him of his inheritance money, we'll contrive to warn him, too, that he has another inheritance, to fight and throw off, if he can! But I'm not afraid."

He looked at her, simple and earnest in her childish velvet gown with the deep color falling back from the beautifully rounded throat, and the slim, nervous hand playing with the long string of crystals that he had given her some weeks ago. And Stan thought that if it could be possible to love her more than he had been loving her, he would love her so now, when she proved to him the single-minded greatness of her hopes for her child, her indifference to his mere money inheritance and her passionate determination to save him from the taint of his father's influence.

But the thought of Shirley, coming back into his life less than a year ago, childless, rich, beautiful, cold and ambitious, and of the Cyrus Theobald tie that had dismissed Shirley only this afternoon, discredited, uneasy, compelled unconsciously, and that had established this quiet, cryptic, somewhat-evasive woman as his wife, was painful being to securely here never to be a stranger to "Opiansis" again.

His wife, he said to himself, and almost immediately he said aloud, with a whimsical smile:

"It seems that I am making a brilliant match."

"I don't know," Margaret answered, "Shirley's are images of ill-success, ex-governess, and a woman who had no better sense, at eighteen, than to fall in love with an utterly unscrupulous, utterly immoral, utterly heartless man, just because he knew how to order a dinner and got his collars at Quigley's!"

"Yolght has made me clothes," Stan key objected.

"Another of the rich voice said joyfully. "But that's different. Poor Cyrus!" she added, thoughtfully. "I wish he could return him—if with somebody could. But I can't believe anyone, unless it's his valet, Noon, will!"

"Let us hope Shirley won't," Stan suggested. "I suppose she was in earnest about the lawsuit. It's a lot of money."

"The money doesn't matter!" Margaret reminded him again. "Trowbridge thinks we can settle that out of court."

They did not revert to it. But for a wonderful time they sat murmuring together, Stan's chair touching hers, his arm around her, and his big body twisted about, Margaret close to the arm of her chair, her whole slender body crooked and thin, and her fingers interlaced with his.

They talked of their marriage, and he saw her wedding ring, and saw the swift lowering of her thick black lashes, as she agreed that there need be no waiting now. No changes at the farm, no new clothes, no plans at all, until afterward."

"I may have to go into town for a few days, if Trowbridge comes west," Stan, "she reminded him.

"Yes, and then we shall have it all very quiet, shall we? At old Saint Mary? And afterward?" said the dear, "I shall bring you here, and Rudolfoist and most wonderful associates of our lives will be kept safely here."

She raised the smoky lashes and gave him a long look.

"Yes," she said, "I think I should like that best."

And she looked quietly back at the fire. But at the thought of what it would mean to him to bring her into some day, as his wife, in her belted tweeds and furs, and to have her lay them aside and then stand about in plain old beloved rooms quietly and at home, with the gentleness and shining quiet that was her inherit, Stanley felt a sort of ecstatic dizziness, as if the air about him had suddenly become full of volumes of gas.

He told her that she was a woman of infinite surprises. From the reserved, shy child who had been his aunt's almost unnoticed companion, with this vivid, thrilling central figure in the drama of his life, he never tired of tracing the gradual development. They amused themselves by remembering their first antagonisms, the first interchanges, the first hints of friendship, the confused and puzzling first meetings, when they had so inexplicably found their hands linked, and Stanley's arm about her, and Margaret's all-unwilling responses to his unexpected ardor.

It seemed to both a miracle that had brought them together, that had gradually merged that old dislike into this absorbing and overwhelming passion. Stanley tried to recall the Margaret of a year ago: what she had worn what she had said. But remembrance assumedly where his eyes and ears had been while this wonderful woman was moving within sound and sight of him. And for his present happiness he pieced together the strange pattern of the last six years; fitting detail to detail until he could grasp the astonishing whole.

He found her no less surprising now he told her, and he was filled with with a sort of fascination as she rose serene ly to the demands of the extraordinary change in her life.

Stanley was with her on the day when Shirley and a San Francisco lawyer named Cooper had engaged Mr. Whitman, an old friend of her father, to protect exactly what rights she had in Cyrus Theobald's estate.

The talk took place by appointment, and with a great air of informality and friendliness, in Margaret's big room at the hotel. Stanley was fiercely impressed by the difference the two women, as it proceeded.

Shirley was swathed in deepest mourning; her fair skin was only faintly rouged, and her mouth rec deened; she looked exquisitely pretty, and it was obvious that her father's friend, who was not more than forty after all, was already somewhat in her toils.

Margaret wore black, too, but with her usual transparent collar and cuffs and with Stanley's splendid ring. She looked very simple, and young, bare-headed, and with her dark hair waved smoothly from her low forehead, beside Shirley's crepe folds and floating veils.

"There is no reason why we shouldn't just talk it all over and agree frankly and fairly—I hate fighting!" Shirley said prettily, striking the note of the conference. "Because, after all, a divorce is a divorce, and a marriage is a marriage," she added, with a most definite note of controversy in her tone.

"You position, as the divorced wife—" the lawyer began heavily, to Margaret. But Margaret, who was plainly bewildered, turned her luminently interrogative gaze upon him quite simply.

"Why, Trowbridge will be here next week," she said, "and he will know. He writes me that it isn't a question of divorce—there was no divorce."

"Oh, now, that's inconceivable!" the lawyer assured her, smiling. And Shirley said eagerly, in a high triumphant tone, "I like that! They are only in Paris—but right here in America, two months ago—"

"Why, I don't see that we gain much by talking it over," Margaret said mildly, as Shirley came to an indignant halt. "We can't settle anything really. When Mr. Trowbridge—"

"Yes, and it's extremely likely that he won't see me!" Shirley interrupted hotly. Her attorney shook his head, smiling a lawyer's serenely superior smile.

"You underestimate the force of your position, Mrs. Theobald," he assured her. Shirley was glad to be encouraged. "I think—Mr. Trowbridge will hardly evade seeing you," the lawyer added, significantly.

To this, to Shirley's disappointment, Margaret made no satisfactory reply. She merely said, in a somewhat puzzled voice:

"I don't see why he shouldn't!"

"You realize, Stan," Shirley said, attempting to strike a spark from him, as Margaret proved so quiet-ic, "you realize that it is an extraordinary situation. Here is Cyrus's firm with, divorced, and with a child he never even knew about, and there am I, his second wife, who spent years trying to cure him, and rushed on to New York—unless known him," she interpolated Shirley pathetically, "and now it's a question of my rights, you see that?"

"You're rights are perfectly safe, Mrs. Theobald," her lawyer said sooth ingly. Mr. Shirley's voice had grown agitated, and her color was high. "It is merely a question of having the whole thing friendly, awaiting—as went on Mr. Whitman, with a ra-ternal nod for Stan—"avoiding newspaper talk."

"Don't you think so, Stan?" Shirley asked agitatedly. "Doesn't it seem to you best to settle it out of court?" Stanley looked at Stanley amazedly. "I don't know anything about it. But what Trowbridge has written Margaret is that the claims are her child's claims, under the California law, are perfectly safe. She gets half the estate, Mr. Whitman, or no will."

"I think you may be shaken there because of the divorce Mr. Theobald secured in France," George Whitman said warningly, with an air of mutual appreciation of having drawn Stanley into controversy at last. He and his client seemed to monopolize the conversation heretofore.

"I maye bet" Stanley conceded, with a shrug. Shirley looked at him with anger and discontent, looked shrewdly at Margaret, who was serenely seated in the big arm chair, with her interested but not concerned eyes moving from face to face.

"You were wonderful," Stanley assured her, later, when the others had somewhat tardily and reassuringly left on their departure with much satisfied assertion that their confidence in their own case was unshakable.

"I suppose it's because I don't care," Margaret mused.

"You really don't, do you?" he asked smiling.

"Well, Stan, with you, and Jimmie safe again, and all the horror of secrecy and fear gone, what could I possibly care about?" she asked quite simply.

"The money," he suggested, deliberately, watching her.

"The money!" she dismissed it joyously. Her big brown cheek was against his, and his arm about her.

A week later old Trowbridge arrived and Margaret and Stanley took the child to see him. Margaret, on a warm May day, was in frail and lacy black, and her blue eyes were shaded under a wide black hat. She were a great bunch of violets at her breast, and Stanley caught the delicious breath of them, as he put her and the child, into the cool shadows of the old Palace.

Stanley remembered coming to the Palace, as a growing boy, to the great glass arch that in the Court, remembered over earlier days when the clattering of horses' feet and the wheels of carriages swept in here from the street. It had always been an enchanted place, for him, a place where a boy hunched sumptuously with indolence, or his aunts, rejoicing in ice-cream and fried oysters.

He remembered college parties here, too, dances, girls in organdies and silver ribbons. He had sometimes brought Shirley to dine here, in these discreetly young days when she had seemed to so sweet and so pure. And since that there had been years when such women friends, he had found himself in the old-day haunts, lunches, always glad to be a part of the pleasant air and warmth and light of the big hotel.

But today, catching the fragrance of Margaret's violets, and with his big hand grasping her slender, bare-clad arm, and with her blue, satisfied eyes meeting his now and then in comprehension and eager question, he felt that all the vague happiness of his entire lifetime could not equal the definite sense of ecstasy, well-being, hope and delight that flooded the world for him today.

Ontario Lady Strongly Recommends Doddi's Kidney Pills

Mrs. N. Beauchesne Tired Then For Lumbago and Her Husband For Rheumatism

Madoc, Ont., Dec. 29 (Special)—Having obtained great relief from Lumbago by the use of Doddi's Kidney Pills, I would never be without them, says Mrs. Nelson Beauchesne, RR. No. 3, Madoc, Ont.

"I always keep two or more boxes in the house, for whenever I takes them for Rheumatism. He says there is nothing better than Doddi's Kidney Pills. We trust that these few lines may be the means of helping others."

The natural way to treat Rheumatism and Lumbago is to treat the Kidneys and the natural way to treat the Kidneys is to use Doddi's Kidney Pills. Rheumatism is caused by the poisonous uric acid in the blood. If the Kidneys are doing their work they will strain all the uric acid out of the blood and there can be no more Rheumatism. Therefore, put the Kidneys in shape to do their duty by using Doddi's Kidney Pills.

MISSION JOURNEYS TOTAL 44,000 MILES

MONTREAL—Conditions among the settlers in the recently opened areas of the Peace River and Mackenzie River Prairie country in Northern Alberta and British Columbia were described recently by Miss Jean Gill, well, founder of the Sunday-by-Post missionary enterprise of the Anglican Church, who has covered in those remote sections of the western province.

Travelling mainly by means of a motor car over roads which the speaker said averaged six weeks of mud holes to the mile for at least three months in one region, and in one case walking seventy miles in two days to get a particularly isolated group of settlers, Miss Hazell and her assistant, Miss Ellis, have visited 44,000 miles this summer among these people, finding great poverty through the crops failing in many districts for many years in July and the severe frosts late in September and into October. Miss Hazell said, however, that, unless religious and ethical teaching was brought into these isolated areas, a serious danger was presented by the fact that already a distinct type of pioneering character was being distributed widely by addition, she claimed, there was organized propaganda directed against the Christian churches.

REMARKABLE STARS

The most puzzling class of stars in the sky is that known as the Wolf-Rayet, so called because their peculiar character was discovered by French astronomers Wolf and Rayet at the Paris observatory in 1867. Observations carried out over a number of years by the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, Victoria, B.C., have in part elucidated the mystery. These stars are continually and violently shooting off matter in all directions into space. There is the appearance of great, ever-travelling outward from the stars like a tremendous volcanic eruption over every part of the surface, some of the atoms reaching the terrific speed of 1,000 miles a second.

THE NEW SHERIFF

The expected appointment of George H. Stokes as sheriff of the County of Hastings has been common talk for some time and the announcement of few days now from Queen's Park meets with general approval throughout Hastings County where Mr. Stokes is well known. His whole career has been an open book to the people of these parts who hold him in high respect.

It is rather a coincidence that he succeeds a man, the late Sheriff James H. Clare, who was a former reeve of Hungerford, which township Mr. Stokes himself represented as reeve before he will resign on the receipt of notification of his appointment.

Mr. Stokes comes to this important post well qualified for the office.

WHOSE BUSINESS GROWS?

How in the midst of slump many business men have been able to increase their business is told in an article in Forbes Magazine which deals with the phenomenal business growth of "Lord & Thomas and Logan" whose advertising business increased from thirty millions of dollars in 1928 to forty millions in 1929 and to fifty millions in 1930. This is the phenomenal record of the great advertising agency, who handle the advertising of men of great potentialities in business. "Unless our clients grow and prosper" says the agency, "we could not grow." Not so much wheat, too much food of all kinds, too many motor cars, and everything, too much prosperity becomes embarrassing, and folks just sat back and quit driving, wondering what it was all about. For his part he intended to take it easy for a while. If nobody would him to go to a banquet and make a speech he intended asking "why should I?" No more useless effort for him.

Mr. Stokes is well known in Belleville and district and his many friends will be pleased to know that he will remain in the city which he has chosen as his home.

NEW COUNCIL ENTERS OFFICE

Belleville City Council will be installed in the city council chamber on Monday morning at eleven o'clock. The function is a civic one, and therefore of interest to every citizen and Mayor Reid has accordingly invited all citizens to attend the function.

The installation inaugural is an event of particular importance to the citizens who follow it or should follow the trend of events in the municipal sphere.

GOOD PHILOSOPHY

Montreal Gazette speaking of the importance of marking one year of time from another says that "the value of time can only right be estimated in terms of life. That is the great lesson of the new year. Life is short and the question swift. Every percentage we are only aware of its sensations. As the years lengthen out we become more keenly aware of its purpose and quality. We learn to transvalue our values. We are conscious that the search for some new thrill or the listless wandering from one to the other object of some chance stroke of luck is not worthy and creditable way of facing the future. Such changes of scene, or of fortune, or experience as time must needs bring are the opportunity for making progress in the real stuff of life within the limit assigned to each. Every man who starts with the coin time drops into our wallet we shall put our opportunities to the best account, profit from our past errors and, out of the numbing effect of past failure and disappointments, take heart anew and strive to bring ourselves into closer accommodation with the things true and beautiful and good.

"Here is the secret of all our arts and education and of such aids as we may gain from the study of history in its widest range. It has been said that the elements of life are flung at us in a dumb heap and inextricably confused; but out of the disorder and confusion brought to bear upon us it is ours to choose, to select, to arrange and to wisely upbuild the fabric of a character that shall endure to its own vital power the roughest of circumstances, just as a seed masters the coarser soils and throbs against the toughest rind or encounters the call of the light. It is ours to say whether life shall be for us a genuine creation or a tragic waste of opportunity. Says George Eliot: 'It often had the fool's heroic of wishing about the unalterable; but with me that useful exercise has turned chiefly on the conception of a different world, and on the imaginary advantage of being born in a different age.'

"This is good philosophy and under any conditions makes good sense. Why dream about other ages and other worlds if we have neglected to turn to good account the ills actually before us and the world which is within our own charge? We need not so debase the measure of time as to suppose a new start if we will. Such design requires a bold stroke, firm resolution, the fortitude which refuses to be defeated, and the spirit which prompts all creatures to build forward for a better day, and in human life urges brave souls to play their part though no one year should abound with swirling clouds glimmers faintly in the sky. And it may encourage us to reflect that the greatest discoveries, whether in science, morals or religion, have been made precisely those things which appear smoke-dried and shop-worn and of which the cynic would fain exclaim, 'there is nothing new under the sun.' Exquisite dyes are distilled from coal tar. What better emblematic hint for New Year's?"

SIDELIGHTS

OLD BRIDGE IN SNOW

We came upon the old bridge in the snow—
Clear sky above and jeweled brook below.
A span of white enchantment glinting fires
From arch and curve and frail fantastic spires.
The silvery music of the brook was heard
Like echoes from the strings that memory stirred.
With gentle fingers; and when we had crossed
A rabbit darted from the ferns of frost.
A snowbird, like a winged snowflake, arose
And drifted into whiteness of the snows.
Before us, trees along the climbing road
Were arched and shining with a snowy load.
We half expected them to let it slide
Upon us, dress us like the countryside.
With that old bridge so lovely in the snow—
With something, singing to itself, below.

HEYWOOD BROWN, New York City newspaper columnist, in a New Year's radio broadcast said that looking back on the old year he could see the great mista'ke people made in working too hard. More had been produced than could be used, with too much wheat, too much food of all kinds, too many motor cars, and everything, too much prosperity becomes embarrassing, and folks just sat back and quit driving, wondering what it was all about. For his part he intended to take it easy for a while. If nobody would him to go to a banquet and make a speech he intended asking "why should I?" No more useless effort for him.

TURKEYS after a backstart made a glorious finish and New Year's Eve shoppers faced a few dollars more than the supply ran out before noon Wednesday and folks who left their turkey buying that late were just out of luck. The demand exceeded but the supply was not there. And folks talk about depression! Not around here, anyway. That this is the time of golden opportunity is evidenced in many ways. A prospective will buy a lot, whether it be in food, clothes, necessities, luxuries, stocks, bonds, or almost anything worth while. Retail trade has been fourished even in times like these and great fortunes are in the making now by those alert enough to take advantage of opportunities. Belleville citizen bought a turkey before Christmas and left it at the store to hang up until New Year's. He paid $5.00 for the bird. Returning from the storekeeper tried to buy it back for $5.00. Hundred per cent. investment. Prices are low now on nearly everything, but they are not going to stay at those levels long. Buy now for present and future needs and save money, later on you may blame yourself for not buying heavily.

A woman arriving in this country after a short visit to the Continent was asked the usual question by the Customs official at the landing port: "Anything to declare, madam?"

"No," she replied, sweetly, "nothing."

"Then, madam," said the official, "am I to take it that the fur tail I see hanging down under your coat is your own?"—Tit-Bits.

"All right, boys; the fire's out," yelled out the fire chief. "Put away your axes, pikes and hose and let's go home." The brave laddies did so but as their red wagon drew up at the fire hall they found the alarm bell inside was still ringing.

"Migosh," exclaimed a rookie fireman, "I wonder if we chopped down the wrong house!"

MODERN ETIQUETTE

by Roberta Lee

Q.—If a girl does not dance, and for the sake of hospitality has accepted a dance invitation what should she do to avoid feeling out of place or awkward?

A.—She, and other women who do not dance, should get together in informal groups and chat with one another. If she remains alone in the manner of the wall-flowers, she makes herself conspicuous.

Q.—What should one do with his hands when not occupied with eating?

A.—Keep them in the lap.

Q.—Is it permissible for a maid to suggest to her mistress a way in which a task may be simplified?

A.—Yes, and a well-bred mistress will accept the suggestion graciously.

Canadian Business and Industry for 1930

BY HONOURABLE E. H. STEVENS, MINISTER OF TRADE AND COMMERCE

Nineteen hundred and thirty has undoubtedly been a year of unprecedented depression in Canada, as indeed throughout the civilized world. While the Dominion has not been hit harder than most other countries, as is evidenced by the comparative position of prices of our securities on the money markets of London and New York, yet this country has undoubtedly suffered severely from the repercussions of the world situation. The intensity and extent of the depression has been a great and disproportionate decline in world trade as between the world, affecting more particularly the food products and the materials which we supply in large quantities of other countries. In November, 1929, the general index number of wholesale prices in Canada, which is fairly representative of those of other countries, stood at 79.8 per cent of the 1926 average as compared with 86.7 per cent in the same month of 1929, or a decline of approximately eight per cent in twelve months. This means, of course, that commodities which sold for $6 a year ago will on the average sell for only $5 now, but it means much more than that. Under the complicated system of modern production, the decline from $6 to $5 has wholesale portion of general commodities in many cases when out the profits have disappeared, and thus done away with the incentive to production, unless or until the excesses incidental to production can be proportionately reduced so as again to make production profitable. Accordingly the business man who uses capital and employs labour in his business is faced with the fact that for the moment at least, he has nothing to gain from continuing production, and that when such business men are actually continuing production they are experiencing very real times to come, a considerable number have either closed down altogether or have curtailed part time, with the general result that in the business world there is a large volume of idle money and considerable numbers of unemployed.

There are certain large firms continuing production in order to keep their organizations together, hoping that would lay off. I would like to commend these firms for the part they are playing in Canada who are in this way greatly relieving the unemployment situation.

Perhaps the most serious feature in the depression is the fall in agricultural prices is its inequality, certain commodities and certain classes of the community being proportionately far more seriously affected than others. Primary producers have up to the present time suffered more than producers of manufactured commodities. The general index number of the prices of 222 staple and partly manufactured commodities having declined from 97.2 on November 1929 to 79.8 on November 1930, while the average index number of the prices of 276 fully manufactured commodities declined only as has fallen only from 93.5 to 83.1 in the same period. The primary producers have been the agriculturists: the average index number of the prices of the Canadian farm products of the field has declined from 94.3 to 69.3, or by more than 25 per cent in the last twelve months. Thirteen animal products have declined from 96.6 to 69.2 and rather better in that the average index number of their prices has declined from 98.9 to 77.1. Taking the two together, 59 Canadian farm products have declined from an average number of 67.0 in November 1929, as compared with 101.1 a year ago, thus indicating a decline of approximately one-third in general prices of Canadian farm products in twelve months.

This, however, is of the past, and there is little profit in looking back over its mortems. Expert opinion inclines to the view that the fall of wholesale prices has now run its course, and that what remains is the readjustment of the thousand and one different current commodities to each other, the adjustment of retail prices in accordance with wholesale prices, and the reduction of costs of production so as to bring them as low or lower than elsewhere. When this process is completed even in a part of the world, then prosperity will return and cheap capital will again be available for the purpose of new enterprises and the increase of employment.

Already the depression has been going on for some fifteen months and there are definite signs that the worst is past its force. The extraordinary high rates charged for call money in New York have ceased to exist. Thus while the British Government had to pay 6½ per cent for call money for its three months' treasury bill in October 1929, it is now down to the low rate of only 2 1-6 per cent in November 1930 —in other words, it can now borrow money for three months approximately what it cost to borrow one pound a year ago. Again, the rate for call money on the new call loans in the New York market, which was 6 per cent in September 1929, was only two per cent. in December 1930. Beyond doubt, there will be a abundance of new capital available at reasonable rates of interest for the new year commencing 1931. It is the declared opinion of financiers that the depression will be materially reduced and there are those who believe that public, industrial and commercial confidence of approximately five per cent will probably reach a normal condition before the end of 1931. It will be interesting during the coming year to watch the movement of capital and interest rates.

The different industries of Canada will now be reviewed individually.

Agriculture

As already stated the economic depression of the past year has borne particularly hard on the agriculturist, more especially on Canada's largest crop, wheat. As a consequence of the heavy world production of 1929 in the Northern Hemisphere and of 1929-30 in the Southern Hemisphere, the price of No. 1 Northern Wheat at Winnipeg which was $1.66 per bushel on August 1, 1929, has fallen to $7 3-8 cents on December 11, 1930. A distinctive factor in recent months has been the resumption of exportation on a large scale by Soviet Russia. Before the Great War, Russia was the world's largest exporter of wheat, and prospect exports which this year amount to approximately 80,000,000 bushels are next less, than 10 per cent of Russia's total production and while there is undoubtedly a shortage in some classes of foodstuffs and clothing in Russia, it is generally accepted by those who are well acquainted with the situation that there is an abundance of wheat for internal consumption. Furthermore, Russia meets the cost of production by its policy of providing for its workers in communal form and insures no fixed liability by leases resulting from wages paid out of borrowed money, and in my opinion such conditions should face the probability of the export from Russia next year of a much larger quantity than that represented in the figures for this year.

Again, the increase in the Far East and the low prices of silver has tended to limit our power of disposing of our wheat across the Pacific. Finally the latest Australian crop reports foretell that the harvesting in November and February next of the largest crop on record.

Mineral Production

On the whole, the depression of 1930 has not effected mining so seriously as other industries, though metal prices have been in evidence, more especially in the metals, where copper, nickel, zinc and lead are chiefly particularly affected. The prevailing reduction in prices did not prevent further expansion in the physical output of many of the important metallic and minerals. During the first nine months of the year, the production of copper was 424,000,000 pounds, an increase of 32.5 per cent over the same period in 1929. Nickel to the extent of 195,067,000 pounds showed a gain of 36 per cent. Zinc production has increased by 4 per cent, nickel by 8.5 per cent and gold by 4.6 per cent. Petroleum has increased for the same period by 31 per cent. On the other hand, the production of coal, silver, lead, antimony, asbestos, cement and clay products all showed decreases. The total value of production of metals, non-metals and fuels during the first nine months of 1930 was $140,000,000 as compared with $123,762,000 in the same period of 1929, or a comparatively moderate decline of 6 per cent in value while volume increased. These figures indicate that before long Canada will be the second largest producer of gold in the world.

The firms engaged in the mining industry are reporting slightly increased monthly have shown seasonal increases in employment in the months of summer and a tail-off in mid-mining, although the commencement of mining operations in the Northern portions of Manitoba during the autumn has also contributed to the employment in that province. The index of employment in mining also registered a slight increase in 1930, but higher than in 1928 and earlier years of the record.

Forestry

The industries which derive their raw materials from the forests have been the most important of the basic industries of Canada. They draw their raw materials from an area of 1,000,000 square miles, after all the demands that have been made upon it by the axe, by fire and by pests by fire, still extends over an estimated area of 1,151,000 square miles, which is capable of growing 20 cords of pulp wood per acre, or 23,000,000 cords of which newsprint, the largest single item, requires 5,000,000 cords. Canada's newsprint production in 1929 was 3,000,000 tons, or more than half of the United States, which a few years ago was the world's largest producer. The Canadian figure for 1929 was 2,725,000 tons, as compared with 800,000 tons as recently as 1913. This remarkable growth it is not surprising that there should have been recently a slight decline in the figure of newsprint production in the year 1930. Nevertheless, the output of 2,116,835 tons as compared with 2,241,518 tons for the same period of 1929—a decline of 5.6 per cent—is encouraging in the pulp and paper manufacture as a whole. November was the only month in the year 1930 that ever fell below the corresponding month in 1929. Further reinforcement in logging, the primary process in the pulp and paper industry, has been the mechanization of many of the forests, was, at the 1930 date, little more than half what it was at the same date of 1929, and two-thirds what it was at the same date of 1928.

Fisheries.

On the whole, the fisheries of Canada in 1930 have by no means been other increased yield and a rather higher average price. Consequently the figures of the catch of sea fish in the Maritime Provinces ended October as total catch as $150,838 cwt. of an estimated value to the fishermen of $2,927,364. In the same period in 1929 the catch was 221,262,696 in the corresponding period of 1928 it was 221,262,696 in the amount of the catch is due to the salmon fisheries of British Columbia, while the decline in the value is due to the fact that a larger proportion of the catch of 1930 was of the cheaper varieties. The total catch of salmon in British Columbia for the first ten months of 1930 amounted to 2,-196,000 cwt., valued at $5,736,384 as compared with 1,320,721 cwt., valued at $6,736,384 in the corresponding period of 1929. The catch of the Fraser River salmon rose from 1,322,170 cwt. in the ten months ended October 31st, 1929, to 2,139,361 cases in the corresponding period of 1930.

During the fiscal year ended 1930 Canada's fish and fish products found markets virtually all over the world, and in spite of depressed conditions generally, total exports reached $33,-497,000 as compared with $36,156,000 in 1929. Imports of these products amounted to $3,700,000, about the same as in the previous fiscal year. Canada's fish export trade includes everything from frozen smelts and canned sardines to canned whale meat but the biggest single item in point of value is canned salmon, the value of this commodity exported being $8,302,-000 in the last fiscal year. Besides canned and preserved fish there is a big and growing export trade in fresh and frozen fish and the value of these products are one of the few bright spots in the fiscal year 1930 trade returns, being $11,481,000 as compared with $11,258,000 in 1929. Most of these exports go to the United States, and the increase would have been merely a theoretical significance during the early years of the war, when Germany Americans were doing all in the power to prevent the manufacture of munitions of war for the Allies. Since 1921, though the production of manufacture has greatly increased, our output of bituminous coal have large by fallen off, being $11,686,000 in 1930 as the latest fiscal year as compared with 15,406,000 tons in 1921. This decline is due to the fact that the Canadian market is find in her own "white coal" substituted for the black coal of the United States. Between 1921 and 1929 the hydraulic turbine horse power in Canada rose from 2,754,000 to 5,727,000 horse power and during 1930 it is estimated that some 600,000 horse power additional has been added to the installation. Furthermore, while in most of our industries the available 1930 figures show some reductions as compared with 1929, the production of electricity in the first ten months of 1930 is about 1.5 per cent higher than in the same period of the preceding year, and the development is actively in progress. Including developments of 100 horse power and under, 1,680,000 horse powers are now under active development, from coast to coast, and the Dominion Government has so designed as to permit the introduction of 1,000,000 additional h.p. when completed will add a further 2,000,000 horse power to the total.

Manufactures

Nineteen hundred and twenty-nine has been the greatest year in the history of the Canadian manufactures ever experienced, the total value of manufactured goods in Canada reaching the enormous total of $4,000,000,000. Whatever recession there has been in 1930 has been recession from an extraordinary high level. Further, while the gross value of manufacturing production in 1930 will be somewhat less than in 1929, this will be largely due to the considerably lower prices of the raw materials which have gone into the manufactured articles, and it may be that the values added in the process of manufacture will be not very much less than in the previous year. The average index number of the employees in the manufacturing industries reporting monthly to the Bureau of Statistics stood at 10.7 in the first ten months of 1930 as compared with 117.5 in the same period of 1929 and 109.5 in the same period of 1928. This is a decline of 8.6 per cent as compared with last year, or in other words, the reporting Canadian manufacturers employed only 15 men in 1930 where they employed 16 in 1929 and 15 in 1928. This employment in manufacturing industries in Canada has in 1930 been approximately at the 1928 level.

In summing up the 1930 situation, it may be said that manufacturing as a whole, as indicated by the statistics of Statistics index (average 1926=100) stood at 78.6 in October, compared with 88.6 in November 1st. An encouraging renewal of activity has recently been evident in the textile group, while the food industries have also provided work for a large number of persons, fruit and vegetable canneries having been particularly busy this year.

Construction

The value of construction contracts awarded in the first eleven months of 1930, as compiled by the Maclean Building Reports, Ltd., stands at $433,457,200, as compared with $554,-163,00, $453,127,400 and $382,289,000 in the corresponding periods of 1929, 1928 and 1927 respectively. While the 1930 figure is considerably lower than that of 1929, and somewhat lower than that of 1928, it is nevertheless higher than the figures for any complete year prior to 1912 to 1927 inclusive. A fall has been achieved in the face of a considerable rise in prices of building materials, the index number of which remains standing at a level of 93.3 in the first ten months of 1930 as compared with 99.6 in the same period of 1929.

The November reports on unemployment in the construction industries indicate that such employment continues active for this time of the year, thousands of men are now working on relief undertakings, and their earnings will tend to increase employment in other lines. But altogether apart from this relief work, a relatively high level of employment is being maintained in building construction, where the index number on November 1st, stood at 145.1 per cent of the 1926 average, a figure which though considerably lower than at the same date of 1929, was substantially higher than in November 1928.

External Trade

The external trade of Canada has in 1930 been affected, so far as exports go, by the smaller crops of 1929 and 1930 and the lower prices obtained for them, as well as by the general trade depression. Imports, too, have been in smaller value as the result of the decline in exports and in prices. On the whole, imports have until the latest months maintained as great or even exports, but in October the tendency has been reversed, and we find a balance of export over imports. Canadians are commencing once again to buy more freely from abroad than we buy from it. In this latest month of the year it may be noted that we have a favourable balance of $12,513,-923, with the United Kingdom, more than offset by an unfavourable balance of $15,349,573 with the United States. The favourable balance in the aggregate trade is due to the excess of exports over imports in our trade with countries other than those mentioned. The following are the figures for the first ten months of 1930:

Transportation and Communications

The chief transportation problem in Canada—the two great railway systems—has inevitably been greatly affected by the great decline in the 1929 crops and the consequent reduction in the quantities transported at fixed rates. In the period of a little over eleven months ended 30 December 1930, the grand total of cars of revenue freight loaded on Canadian railways was 3,012,350 as compared with 3,370,-377 cars and 3,213,212 cars in the same period of 1929 and 1928 respectively. The decline of 358,015 cars in 1930 as compared with 1929 is accounted for as follows: grain and grain products 42,790, live stock 12,625, coal 39,205, lumber 47,621, pulpwood 1,950, pulp and paper 19,126, other forest products 31,267, on farming, while passenger earnings have in recent years shown a tendency to decline as a result of the competition of the automobile. At any rate, the grand total gross revenues of the more important railways of Canada in the first nine months of 1930 aggregated $239,381,602 as compared with $236,105,215 in the same period of 1929, a increase of $56,722,500. Nearly two-thirds of this decline was offset by savings on operation, but even so the operating income of the railways in the first three quarters of 1930 was only $39,027,543 as compared with $79,934,492 in the same period of 1929. Naturally, one element in bringing down the earnings expenses has been the reduction of the working force. In general, the railways of Canada gave less employment to their operating staffs in 1930 than in any year since 1926, as a result of the short crop of 1929 and the subsequent depression. Railway construction work was also less active in 1930 than in other recent years. Nevertheless, the index of employment on railway construction was distinctly higher on November 1st, 1930, than on the same date of 1929.

Wholesale and Retail Trade

A noteworthy feature of the present situation in trade has been the fact that employment in trade has shown throughout the year been at the present time large number of persons are being employed to cope with the Christmas and holiday demands. This is particularly significant as an indication that the purchasing power of the bulk of the Canadian people and their standard of living have not been very seriously effected by the world-wide depression. The index of employment in wholesale and retail trade in the first eleven months of 1930 averaged 97.1 compared with 125.4 in the same period of 1929, a decrease of 28 per cent. The number of persons reported by the co-operating firms averaged 97,381 working in departmental and specialty stores, chain organizations, wholesale and wholesale-retail and other sales organizations.

Employment in trade in all provinces except Prince Edward Island and the Maritimes, Quebec and British Columbia the index numbers on November 1st, 1930 were higher than on the same date of any other year on record, while in Ontario and the Prairies they were higher than in any other year since 1920, the Ontario figure being 120.9 as compared with 119.9 on November 1st, 1929, and the Prairie figure 123.7 as compared with 127.2.

Certain well-known phenomena usually found to some degree of major depressions and now in evidence in Canada include the following: (1) that there will be better times in 1931. (2) that first there has been in recent months a substantial increase in the savings deposits of our chartered banks. In the three months ending July 31st and October 31st, these savings deposits increased from 1,402,000,000 to $1,422,000,000, or by $ 30,000, in the same period current loans declined from $1,080,000,000 to $1,066,000 or a decline of nearly $40,000,000. Such increases of savings deposits over current loans, which is generally considered very significant in the interpretation of banking statistics, rose from $125,000,000 at the end of July to $202,000,000 at the end of October, which may be compared with an excess of $40,000,000 of current loans over savings deposits on October 31, 1929. (3) Call loans have been steadily declining in recent months. Call loans abroad, which were $215,600,000 at the end of July, declined to $164,700,000 at the end of October; in the same period call loans at home fell from $220,000,000 to $214,100,000. Conversely, the banks' holdings of Dominion and provincial government securities, which were $293,000,000 at the end to July, rose to almost $320,000,000 at the end of October. Obviously, there is a good deal of Canadian money waiting for opportunities of profitable investment.

Furthermore, the recent tariff changes are resulting in the establishment of branch factories and the importation of capital. Thus an English firm has purchased the Hawthorn mills at Carleton Place, Ontario, and is installing English machinery. This is only one of over a dozen English firms coming to Canada. Woollen mills, long closed down, have commenced operations, and the woollen industry is looking ahead and realizing that it has a future in Canada. Connecticut firms have leased a factory at St. Hyacinthe as a branch plant, and it is reported that a Hamilton corporation is undertaking the manufacture of tinplates in Canada.

Again, the increased demand for electrical power is another evidence of the confidence which Canadians feel in the future of their country. The 60,000 horsepower which will be available from the initial development of Beauharnois Power Corporation has already been all contracted, for, and it is stated that application will be made to the Government to authorize a larger diversion of water for power purposes. It is understood also that the present plans contemplate the establishment of great new metallurgical enterprises in the neighborhood of the Beauharnois developments.

Finally, while the times through which we are passing are admittedly difficult for both nation and individuals, they are certainly not so difficult as those which we have lived before. The present writer, hard as it is for many, is relatively less distressing than those of 1907-08, 1913-14 and 1920-21. Canada as a nation is very much wealthier and better able to withstand adversity than she was in any similar period of her history since the completion of our national solvency we are greatly debated in London and New York. Today our national credit in London and New York and among our own people stands far higher than it did even ten years ago, and we are able to finance our own enterprises in a way which was then impossible. In addition we had at the beginning of 1929 total external investments of some $1,745,000,000 nearly $1,000,000,000 of it in the United States, subject to easy withdrawal as our own industries require additional capital. Thus, while individuals may be suffering today, the economic position of the Dominion among the countries of the world remains satisfactory. In the present circumstances, if those of us who are better off will help to find work for those who are out of employment in order to help them to tide over the winter, we shall find before long, as we have found in the past, that we have done a good stroke of business. Furthermore, we shall find that in spite of labour-saving inventions we still require both hand industrious and intelligent workers to develop this great country in which we have as yet scarcely one fully-employed person for each square mile of land surface. The more we do before there is work for all in Canada, the more we shall find ourselves then take courage—"the best is yet to be!"

HANDSOME 1931 MODELS

Here is what the new Chevrolet looks like at its first public showings now being held across Canada. There are nine body types in the line, the window coupe at the upper left being in addition to the five shown. Below is the standard sedan which shows the large, roomy effect achieved by lowering the wheelbase to 109 inches. Wire wheels are standard equipment. Upper right shows the changed front view, the higher radiator, the chrome-plate tie-bar which arches between the headlamps, and the new horn mounted below the left headlamp. Prices of the new Chevrolet are less than those at which the 1930 models were introduced.

Struggled with Asthma is the only expression that seems to convey what is endured from an attack of this terrible trouble. The relief from Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy is beyond measure. Where all was suffering there comes comfort and rest. Breath comes normal and the distressing air tubes completely cleared. This unequal ed remedy is worth many times its price to all who use it.

The Many-Purpose Oil. — Both in the house and stable there are scores of uses for Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Use it for cuts, bruises, burns, and for pains of rheumatism and sciatica, sore throat and chest. Horses are liable very largely to similar ailments and animals as stiffen mankind, and are equally amenable to the healing influence of this fine old remedy which has made thousands of firm friends during the past fifty years.

THE ACID TEST

The Hon. Robert Weir, Federal Minister of Agriculture, speaking at the Royal Winter Fair, Toronto, recently, concluded his enunciation of important new policies on agriculture with a reference to what he considered the real test of the worth of a nation's policy. "I am working out any national policy in agriculture that I undertake I place myself mentally in some simple farm home," he said. "Many of them come to my mind when I am working on these problems. I judge everything by that alone. If the policy when enunciated does not leave its impress in the farm home then, I know you will agree with me, it is not worthy of the name of a national policy of agriculture."

The Irish Free State has started a campaign against rabbits which damage crops.

CHILDREN PLAYED PARTS

MONTREAL—Little children played their part in the recent Catholic Charities' Campaign. Among the children's envelopes taken up at St. Dominic's parish collection was one containing seven coppers and a scrap of paper, unsigned, on which were the words carefully traced: "7 cents. I am only seven years. Taken from my bank."

CANADA IN ROLE OF "BIG BROTHER"

In Order to Create a Bigger Market Canada Must Assist West Indies

OTTAWA, Ont.—Canada must assume a temporary role of "big brother" to the British West Indies if the full possibilities of trade between these parts of the Empire are to be attained, says a report issued by the Empire Club of Ottawa following a study of the subject. In other words, the report holds Canadians must spent a greater sum in the West Indies in order that the island citizens may be placed in a position where they can become heavy purchasers.

The United Empire Club has a membership composed of representative citizens of the Capital. Many of them are businessmen and the study was undertaken "in the general interests of better business." The club's report says a natural-logical trade route lies between Canada and the West Indies.

"These two parts of the Empire are complementary, the one to the other," the report goes on. "There is no competition between the products each has to sell and each requires the products of the other. Cheap, rapid means of transportation exist and it would appear that every thing is favorable to a mutual expansion of trade."

A number of special problems arising from the particular economic and political conditions existent in the colonies are recognized by the club, however, in considering possibilities of further developing the trade. "Generally speaking," the report says, "it is apparent that to a considerable extent Canada must for some time play the part of big brother. In order to create a greater market for Canadian products, Canada will be forced to assist the West Indies to increase their purchasing power. The comparatively small, scattered population, over nine hundred miles of shore, is a serious problem in the matter of getting foods and cheap clothing. A market for other goods will arise only when the economic status of the population is raised through a greater development of their natural resources. "In other words, Canada must purchase more in order that she can sell more."

HOW THE GIRL GUIDES BEGAN

LONDON, Jan 3—Although she has always shunned publicity, few women have ever done so much for the younger generation as Miss Agnes Bryden-Powell, sister of Lord Baden-Powell, and founder of Girl Guides. She has been a confirmed invalid ever since her brother's house, Pax Hill, in Hampshire and for the first time missed the Christmas conference, which was attended by representatives of over eight hundred thousand Girl Guides. "It is exactly twenty-one years since I started the movement," she explained in an interview. "My brother used to be besieged with letters from girls, begging to be enrolled as Scouts. Then parents wrote complaining that their daughters were becoming tomboys through going about with the Boy Scouts." The beginning Miss Bryden-Powell met with every sort of setback, for she started with no money, no office or secretary, and very few supporters. In the face of dicouragement she wrote the whole of the Girls Guide handbook, which was published in 1910, and began to enrol members. Now the head office employes 130 secretaries.

LITTLE BENNY'S NOTE BOOK

We was having lessons in skool Miss Kitty sed, it should be a very nice if we made up some little verses today. I want everybody to write a little verse about the New Year and the first ones to finish may read theirs to the class, she said.

And she gave out paper and the first ones finished was Pods Simkins and Ed Wernick and Raymin Levy and me

Pods Similmines being:

The New Year
The New Year is just beginning,
It has hardly started yet,
But when its had 365 days
I will be old as I ever can get.

And Ed Wernicks being:

The New Year
This yere would be a leep year
If it only had one more.
But alas it will just be a ordinery yeer
As many have been before.

And Raymin's being:

The New Year
We may all get one yeer older
But nineteen liberty one.
But as far as I remember last yeer,
I doubt we will have more fun.

And mine being:

The New Year
The old yeer has went skreddy
And the New Yeer has took its place,
But the one afire this will soon arrive,
And so on in the endless race.

Miss Kitty saying that was enough on account of them all sounding too sad, and she started the joggrify lesson.

GLEN TESKEY

Wellington, Dec. 31—In the midst of the Christmas preparations and their happiness, the whole community was thrown into grief when it was learned that Glenn Everett, ten year old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Teskey, Wellington, Ont., had passed away on Monday night at Prince Edward County Hospital. The lad was stricken on Saturday with appendicitis and it was found that an operation was necessary. This was performed and the condition found to be very acute and in spite of careful nursing and medical attention it proved fatal. To the grief-stricken parents and sister Nora the hearts of all in the community immediately went out in sympathy. That a young life should be taken just at the beginning of youth seems hard indeed to understand.

A large concourse of friends and relatives were at the home on Wednesday afternoon to attend the funeral. Rev. W. J. H. Smith spoke comforting words as did also Rev. Dr. Tayler who assisted in the service. By request, Mr. W. G. Wilson sang "Somewhere, and Sometime and Somehow at Last."

Beautiful flowers in abundance bore mute testimony to the sorrow felt in the passing of the loveable and promising boy who was laid to rest on his tenth birthday.

The bearers were: Tom Billingham, Jr., Cecil Young, Lennox McCartney, Donald MacDonald, Ben Ferguson, and Alex. McCoy.

Interment took place in Wellington Cemetery.

STIRLING

The death occurred in Belleville Hospital on Saturday morning, Dec. 27th, of Mr. Robt. Fletcher of Stirling Paisley Houre. The deceased had been in failing health for some time but about four weeks ago his condition became much worse and he was removed to the hospital where he got gradually worse and finally succumbed. The deceased was thrice married. His first wife was Miss Joyce, the result of this union was four boys and three girls Will, John, Arthur and Clarence, Ella, Millie and Lena. His last wife was Mrs. McCaughan, who died without issue about twelve years ago. Some six years ago he contracted Mrs. Anna Whitton of Wellman's who survives him and the above mentioned family. The funeral took place on Monday afternoon from the United Church, Rev. E. W. Rowland preaching a comforting sermon and Rev. B. F. Byers assisting in the reading of the Scripture. Among the mourners were sons Will and Clarence, Mr. and Mrs. Tice of Bloom and Richard and Mrs. Fletcher.

On Wednesday, December 24th there passed to the Great Beyond a very highly esteem and highly respected citizen of Campbellford in the person of Mr. Geo. A. Hay, V.S. About four weeks ago he was suddenly stricken with serious intestinal obstruction and was rushed to Nicholl's Hospital and operated on not once only but twice in the effort to relieve the condition and for a time slight hopes of his recovery were held out but those gradually faded away as all skill was of no avail and at his own request he was brought home to Campbellford on Saturday only to succumb the next day. In religion he was a Presbyterian having worked in the various organizations with his inherent energy. In his younger days he was Mayor and for many years was an indefatigable secretary of Campbellford Agricultural Fair and latterly an officer in Eastern Ontario Fairs Association. A successful Veterinary Doctor his loss will be keenly felt in the community.

After an illness extending over several years, Mrs. F. T. Ward left this world of pain and sufferings on the night of December 23rd.

She leaves to mourn her loss her husband and Ernest, son, Beside, Mrs. Ward leaves three daughters, Mrs. Hall predeceased her a number of years ago, there are also seven grandchildren survive her.

The funeral took place on Friday afternoon at two o'clock after a short service at her late residence the remains were conveyed into St. Andrew's Church which was filled to overflowing. Rev. Rob. Simpson, a former pastor, officiated, preached the sermon. There were four ministers present, Rev. Reid, Rev. Simpson, Rev. Roland and Rev. Byers. The beautiful floral offers paid silent tribute to the esteem in which the deceased was held.

The pall bearers were Messrs. W. L. Anderson, R. Meiklejohn, T. J. Magee, Alex Fargey and R. Eggleton, Elders. Miss Catherine Simpson of Toronto assisted the choir who sang an appropriate anthem.

In the recent teacher's training class, the following persons obtained certificates, Mrs. C. U. Clancy, Mrs. Clifford Clancy of Wellman's and were presented at the regular service on Sunday, December 28th.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Anderson spent Christmas with the former's sister, Mrs. W. L. Fox.

Mrs. Blaxsmeitz and Miss Hurst spent Christmas with their sister Mrs. Wm. Bannie of Menie and returned to Stirling Saturday evening.

Mr. Alex Hume and wife of Ottawa spent Sunday and Monday with the former's aunts, Mrs. Bissonnette and Miss Hume, Mr. Hume is on the staff of the Ottawa Citizen.

Marmora, Dec. 31 (By Mail) — In their second annual visit to the town good will Marmora Community Band on Christmas Day created a local precedent. The band under bandmaster G. Woodhouse assembled at the town hall at 9:30 a.m. and paraded down Bridge and Brough Streets to the Memorial Hall. After playing a selection of sacred music Rev. A. B. Caldwell was called upon to give a short address after which the band played the first Christmas, "Peace on Earth, Good Will Towards Men," formed the shape of his remarks. Following the playing of "O Canada" and "The Maple Leaf", Rev. F. H. Howard offered the benediction and pronounced. Rev. J. J. Keeley who was returning from a sick call halted to give a very inspiring address in course of which he touched upon Christ's first coming in mercy and His second coming in Justice. Before the gathering dispersed, Bandmaster Woodhouse extended felicitations from the band and thanks to the clergy for their kindness in participating. The citizens of the village and district very much appreciated the service.

CANADA'S ATTITUDE TO WAIFS DEPLORED

MONTREAL — Lack of Canadian public interest and assistance in aiding the immigration of Barnardo children to Britain is responsible for the sending of this most desirable class of immigrant to other countries, declared Dr. Clarkson, honorary representative of the Barnardo Homes of London, Eng. in pointing out the advantages to the community from the source of immigration, Mr. Clarkson stated that 50 per cent of all the Barnardo children who have settled in Canada show the insanguryion of the settlement plan by the late Thomas Barnardo more than 60 years ago have made good. He emphasized the fact that the majority of the boys stayed on the farms even after they reached manhood, it being part of the bargain that they remain there until the age of 21 years.

HEAD HURT?

WORK won't wait for a headache to wear off. Don't look for sympathy at such times. Just get some Aspirin. It never fails.

Don't be a chronic sufferer from headaches, or any other pain. See a doctor and get at the cause. Meantime, don't play martyr. There's always quick comfort in Aspirin. It never does any harm. It is foolish to suffer any needless pain? It may be only a simple headache, or it may be neuralgia or neuritis. Rheumatism. Lumbago. Aspirin is still a dependable thing to take. There is hardly any ache or pain these tablets can't relieve; they are a great comfort to women who suffer periodically; they are always to be relied on for headache specials.

Buy the box that says Aspirin and has Genuine printed in red. Genuine Aspirin tablets do not depress the heart. All druggists.

Mayor Advocates Expenditure Cut in His Address Today

CITY SCHOOLS ARE OVERCROWDED MUST ENLARGE TWO BUILDINGS

Special Ceremonies Feature Inaugural Meeting of City Council

RESCINDING TAXATION

Ald. Marshall, Chairman of Power, Ald. Sprackett, Labor

Belleville City Council for 1931 held its inaugural meeting today in the city hall. The session was attended by representative citizens, the clergy and wives of the sitting members, Rev. Dr. Seymour, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church invoking the blessing on the proceedings after Mayor Reid had been escorted to the dais by the two new members of the council, Aldermen Sprackett and Marshall. After Mayor George A. Reid had delivered his address, Rev. Dr. Seymour led in prayer followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. Aldermen Russell Wolsten and Charles L. Hyde moved the vote of thanks to the Mayor for his splendid address after which an adjournment was called by His Worship and a social five minutes was held before the deliberations of the council were commenced.

Alderman W. A. Woodley took the chair for the committee of the whole and the chairman of the various civic committees were appointed. Ald. Thomas Marshall was elected chairman of power instead of Sprackett, and Ald. Sprackett chairman of labor instead of power. A few communications were dealt with by acceptance or filing, an invitation by the Ontario Municipal Utility Association to be present in Toronto, Friday January 9, H. E. Fairfield, the secretary. O. H. Scott, and Commissioner Charles E. Hanna will represent the city at this convention. A letter of thanks for the floral tribute to the late John Newton was received from his daughter, Mrs. Wm. Cooke and ordered filed. A letter was received from Col. W. N. Ponton respecting the crowded conditions of Queen Mary and Queen Victoria schools and hoped that the council could see their way clear to enlarge these two schools by additions during the present year. The council of North Bay asked the Belleville council to concur in a resolution to be sent to the Dominion Government asking that November 11th be made a National holiday. The matter was referred back to the committee for further action. George Forhan, manager of the Belle Theatre requested that the sum of $50.00 be refunded to the Belle Theatre for two months of municipal license during the past year in which the Regent Theatre did not operate. The matter was referred back to the committee.

The council then went into the committee of the whole on bylaws and the following appointments were made to the various boards of the city.

Old Age Pension Board—Mayor Reid, Arthur McGie, George A. Bennett, W. J. Reid and Miss Lynch.

Hospital Board—Ald. Wm. Reid, Aldermen McMillan and Griffin.

Victorian Order of Nurses—Ald. J. W. Elmore.

Belleville Agricultural Society—Mayor George A Reid.

High School Trustees—Col. W. N. Ponton and Geo. F. Ostrom.

Members of Public Library Board W. Davey Diamond (three years.)

Board of Health—Harold Bateman, J. V. Davis and A. F. Sillman.

Parks Board—Leon Walmsley and Robert K. Billings.

There was also passed a bylaw to from the Bank of Montreal for current expenses. The council then again reauthorize the borrowing of $250,000.00

COTTON MILL WEAVERS ON STRIKE IN ENGLAND

Burnley, Eng. Jan. 5—Nine cotton mills in this busy spinning town shut down as 2,500 weavers struck against the owners' demand that each weaver take over double the number of looms he had previously operated. The question has been the subject of fruitless conferences between men and employers for weeks.

ASK LABOR GOVT. TO ACT AS ARBITRATOR

London, Eng., Jan. 5—South Wales coal miners today asked the Labor government to step in as arbitrator in the labor dispute which has tied up the important South Wales mines and thrown 140,000 men out of work. The deputation met Emmanuel Shinwell, secretary of state, here today and Premier MacDonald was expected to take part in the conference before it ended.

POPE TIGHTENS RULES ON MIXED FORM WEDLOCK

Birth Control Ban Answer of Rome to Lambeth Qualified Admission

Rome, Jan. 5—A reiteration of the strict Catholic doctrine regarding marriage is expected in the encyclical which Pope Pius will issue this week.

Far from making concessions to the dernistic trends, it is understood the encyclical will hark back to the first principles of the church — re-stating Catholicism's utter disapproval of divorce and emphasizing the doctrine that only by continence, within the married state can families be limited without transgressing the Divine law.

This re-statement, it was generally assumed, would be the Pope's answer to the Episcopal bishops' qualified admission of birth control in certain cases, emanating from the Lambeth conference in London last summer.

Mixed marriages, those between Catholics and non-Catholics, are also expected to be the subject of special comment. It is generally taken for granted that the Pope will re-emphasize that bishops before granting dispensations for such unions must exact a written promise from the non-Catholic contractant that all children born of the marriage must be brought up in the Catholic faith and that the non-Catholic party will in no way interfere with the Catholic party's fulfilment of religious duties. At the same time the duty of the Catholic party to pray unceasingly for conversion of the non-Catholic spouse and by force of example to piety to induce to such conversion is expected to be enjoined new.

Stirred by Recent Royal Wedding

The Pope was represented as being stirred to this by the recent wedding of King Boris of Bulgaria, to the former Italian Princess Giovanna. Although both parties to that royal match gave the Pope written pledges on the foregoing points, there was an attempt on the part of the Orthodox Bulgarian clergy to make it appear the second ceremony in accordance with the binding one, whereas the Pontiff had been assured beforehand it would merely be in the nature of a civic rite registering the marriage already contracted at Assisi.

The president of the Bulgarian Orthodox Synod in the course of a speech to the newlyweds in the Sofia Cathedral congratulated Boris on "founding a real Orthodox dynasty."

After issuance of the Pope's encyclical it is believed the contracting of mixed marriages, both among republican and common folk, will be more difficult. It is taken for granted that in the future parish priests in the first instance, and bishops, in the second, will be held to a strict accountability in exacting the guarantees the church requires.

Publication of Banns

With this there also is expected to come a tightening of regulations regarding publication of banns, which normally must be read out to the congregations in the home parishes on the two Sundays immediately preceding the wedding. One object of this would be to prevent cases of "marry in haste and repent at leisure" upon which Catholicism has always frowned.

OLDEST WOMAN IN BAY QUINTE DISTRICT DIES

Mrs. Susan Carman, Life-long Resident of Trenton Passed

TWICE MARRIED

Had Celebrated Birthday on 24th December — First White Child

Less than a month after she celebrated her 108th birthday, Mrs. Susan McKenzie Carman, Trenton's oldest resident, passed away at her home, West Dundas Street, Trenton, at 4 o'clock this morning. It was only on the 24th of December last, just one day before Christmas, that Mrs. Carman's many friends were congratulating her on passing another of life's milestones. At that time, considering her age, she was enjoying good health and spirits.

Mrs. Carman was a true Trentonian. She was born in this town (when she arrived there short much of a town there it must be admitted) in 1822. Her father was the late Colonel Sheldon Hawley. Colonel Hawley was a merchant, having a flourishing mercantile and lumber trade. As was the case in the days, he served as postmaster. Mrs. Carman had the honor of being the first white child born in the tiny settlement of Trenton.

When she was eighteen years of age she married Alonzo Shaver of Marlbro, Ontario. Her husband died seven years later and within the next few years she married again, this time becoming the wife of Phillip Carman, of Iroquois, Ontario. Her second husband predeceased her many years ago.

Mrs. Carman had no family from either marriage. She lived in Trenton with her sister, Mrs. Francis. Several members of the family live in Toronto, and one niece resides in Montreal, Que. Her funeral will be a quiet one, taking place from the home.

KINGSTON GETS NEW INDUSTRY

One Hundred and Fifty Will be Employed in New Plant

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 5.—CP—Announcement was made here today of the coming to Kingston of a new industry, the Riverisatic Incorporated of Cambridge, Mass., having decided on Kingston for their Canadian plant.

The company, who manufacture elastic, nonelastic webbing, have executive offices in Chelsea and have seven plants throughout the United States. The machinery is on the way here, and the company is taking over the building formerly owned by the Colne Woollen Mills. Between 100 and 150 hands will be employed as soon as the plant is in working order.

TRENTON ELECTORS CAST VOTES TODAY

Today the town of Trenton was in the throes of its annual civic election. A heavy vote had not been recorded by noon, according to reports from that centre. Due to the retirement of W.A. Fraser, M.P., who for the past seven years has acted as Chief Magistrate, that executive position was thrown wide open and two candidates are fighting for the chair. These include Chester W. Lott, who has served three years in the town council and formerly seven years a member of the Trenton High School board, and Richard A. Simmons, president of the Trenton Horticultural Society and past president of the Trenton Rotary Club.

Only one of last year's candidates is trying for re-election, which leaves five places open.

ALCOHOL PLANT SEIZED IN JERSEY

Jersey Shore, Pa., Jan. 5—Police stood guard today over a $300,000 distillation plant seized late yesterday by dry agents in Nippenose township, Lycoming County, along the Susquehanna River.

The seizure, reported to be the largest ever made in central Pennsylvania, yielded 400 gallons of whiskey, 1,000 gallons of alcohol and a large quantity of gin. The plant will be dismantled Monday and the equipment and contraband stored at Williamsport, the raiders reported.

PLEADS SUPPORT FOR SUCCESS OF LEAGUE NATIONS

Sir Robert Borden, Former Prime Minister Heard on Sunday Afternoon

Toronto, Jan. 5—"The League of Nations is the greatest venture in international co-operation that mankind ever signed or humanity ever attempted," declared Right Hon. Sir Robert Borden, addressing an invitable audience of thousands Sunday afternoon at a meeting in the All-Canada Symphony Hour, the distinguished speaker's voice was broadcast by the Canadian National Railways trans-continental hook-up. Upon the people and not upon Governments alone, Sir Robert said, did the cause of peace depend, and he pleaded with his hearers to strengthen the hand of the League. "It is war, such as that through which we passed," he said, "There could be no victory and even the neutral nations suffered defeat." He pointed out that three fourths of the taxes which burdened mankind were for past or future wars and spoke of the horrible toll of manhood itself. "Amid the chaotic conditions resulting from the world-wide conflict the war-scarred nations sought a new orientation and so the League of Nations was born. It is a wonder that it ever survived, it is amazing that it accomplished the concrete results that have been achieved; it is a miracle that a single day (fifty-four nations sat) stood in the solemn and supreme purpose of peaceful arbitrament and sincere endeavor for international accord and justice."

The League, he went on, was human, with human limitations, and at the same time it was not always spectacular and some of its greatest work was done quietly and as a matter of course, but effectively for all that. Speaking from his experience at Geneva, Sir Robert said that peace could not be brought about by legal articles and pacts. Public opinion alone would make it possible, and he saw in the League of Nations society of Canada a valuable instrument performing a national work.

ROBBED GUEST GOES TO PRISON

Sudbury, Ont., Jan. 5—Convicted of "rolling" his guest, H. S. Zengel, on the day before Christmas and relieving him of an amount between $200 and $400, Mike Green, was this morning sentenced to three years in Portsmouth penitentiary by Magistrate J. S. McKinnon. Evidence showed Green had been considerable drinking at the house on that day. Zengel had come here to pay some debts previous to his departure for his home in Poland.

DROWNING TRAGEDY AVERTED BY PROMPT ACTION OF YOUNGSTER

Ernest Chalk, 13, of Point Anne, Braved Icy Waters to Save a Life

CLUTCHED CHILD

Effie Thompson, While Playing Fell Through Crack in Ice

When little Effie Thompson, eight year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marsh Thompson, of Point Anne fell through a crack in the ice in the bay back week, it was only the prompt action of Ernest Chalk, thirteen year old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Chalk, that saved a tragedy. Ernest plunged into the icy waters, ten feet deep at that point, and clutched the child. In her terror the little girl started to choke him and in his efforts to free himself, he lost hold of her clothes. He again swam after her, but she sank from view. Just as she was going down for the third time, she her caught her by the collar of her coat and swam with her to the edge of the crack where her brother, aged twelve, was standing. He reached down and pulled her out of the water.

The child had evidently been playing with some other kiddies about the ice, about twenty feet from where Ernest and drowning snowballs. There is considerable credit due the boy, as no grown-ups were in the vicinity.

PROPOSE SCHEME FOR NEW CABINET

London, Jan. 5 (Canadian Press cable)—Lord Sankey, Lord High Chancellor in the British Cabinet, submitted to the Indian Round Table Conference today a tentative scheme for the cabinet for new India. It was presented as a formal proposal from the Labor government but coming from such source it was significant.

"How would this sort of thing do," queried Lord Sankey as the Moslem speaker was addressing the sub-committee on the federal structure. Lord Sankey then suggested a Governor General's cabinet with nine portfolios.

FIVE SLAIN AT FOOTBALL GAME

LIMA, Peru, Jan. 5.—Five persons were killed today in a disturbance which marked the end of an international football match between a team from Chile and one from the Peruvian Department of Arequipa.

The trouble began at the end of the match, when the president of the Football Federation delivered a silver cup to the Uruguayans.

Peruvian troops started booing, and a soldier attempted to cross the field.

Five policemen stopped him, and used their swords to curb his belligerency.

As the other soldiers, most of whom were from Arequipa, saw their comrade in danger, they charged out on the field at the police, and were met by revolver shots. The spectators then joined in, throwing stones, and more shots came from the police firearms, with indescribable confusion resulting.

The fighting continued in several streets.

POSSE SEARCHING FOR ALLEGED THOROLD KILLER

Thorold, Ont., Jan. 5—Although a posse of nearly fifty Thorold township residents aided by the Provincial police in searching last night and this morning for the gunman who shot Joseph Roper, an elderly farmer in his barn yesterday afternoon, the fugitive has not been found today. Roper, although in his 69th year is expected to recover.

DROWNING TRAGEDY AVERTED BY PROMPT ACTION OF YOUNGSTER

MONOPLANE DELAYED BY BAD WEATHER

Norfolk, Virg., Jan. 5—Unfavorable weather appeared likely today to delay until Wednesday the take-off for Bermuda of the Paris-bound monoplane "Trade Winds," piloted by Mrs. Beryl Hart and Lieut. W. S. Maclaren. Dark weather forecasts were issued by all authorities.

ELDEST SISTER OF KING DIES WHILE ASLEEP

Louise, Princess Royal, Passes Suddenly — Was Charity Worker

LONDON, Jan. 5. Louise, the Princess Royal, sly and retiring eldest sister of King George, died in her sleep yesterday in the presence of her daughters, Princess Arthur of Connaught and Lady Maud Carnegie. She was 63 years old.

The Princess has been suffering from heart trouble. Signs of weakness in the past few days had caused growing concern, but the attending physicians said the end came "somewhat suddenly" at 2.30 p.m. while Princess Louise was reading to her.

London residence, 18 Portman Square. An official bulletin was issued. It said:

"The Princess Royal passed away somewhat suddenly in her sleep at 2.30 p.m. in the presence of Princess Arthur and Lady Maud, who received urgent messages at their homes in London when signs of heart failure became apparent."

(Signed) "Russell Wilkinson, "Thomas Horder."

Word of the Princess's death was telephoned to the royal family at Sandringham, and to Queen Maud at O.'o, Norway, a younger sister. King George at once ordered court mourning for six weeks.

The princess has been in failing health for several years. In 1926 she suffered a gastric hemorrhage from a heart weakness. She was stricken again in 1929, and forced to remain in bed for several weeks.

She Was Quiet and Retiring

Princess Louise, Dowager Duchess of Fife, was naturally quiet and retiring She participated less than any other member of the royal family in social and state functions. Charity was her chief hobby, but her activities even in this direction were curtailed in recent months, partly on account of her age and partly because of illness.

Princess Royal, as she was known, was the eldest of ten children of King Edward VII and Queen Alexandra. Princess Royal developed a keen distaste for court routine. Her brother, King George, then only a midshipman in the British navy and second in line for the throne, one day drew his sword and "dubbed" his sister "her royal shyness," a title which she has borne among intimates ever since. She was created Princess Royal in 1905.

A great favorite of Queen Victoria, her grandmother, she was chief mourner at an early age for a diplomatic marriage with a prominent continental prince. Lady Louise early started a grand mother and the entire royal household, declaring that she would marry "for love".

BARGE SINKS IN GOTHAM HARBOUR

New York, Jan. 5—Fifty-seven officers and men were rescued from the sinking army dredge Bantian, which settled to the bottom of New York harbor thirty minutes after it was rammed by the liner City of Montgomery. A heavy haze lay over the harbor, The Montgomery docked with bow damaged.

FOUR MEN LOST IN LAKE BOAT

Feared Quartette May Have Been Swept to Watery Grave

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 5 — Search for four men, missing somewhere between the Main Ducks and Bath and Kingston, is being continued today, it is said, while not the slightest trace has been found of the men. It is hoped that they took refuge on Amherst Island, Timber Island or the False Ducks.

On December 30th the boat left Bath for Oswego, in which were Capt. William Sheridan and two other men whose names could not be learned. The boat was missing for some time and Cecil Phillips, of this city, with several other men, took out in another boat and located the party at the Ducks. Phillips remained with Sheridan and the two men in the original boat, and the rescue craft came back to Kingston.

On Friday it was learned that Phillips, Sheridan and the other two men left the False Ducks for Bath and have not been heard from since.

TEN YEARS IN PRISON FOR PALMERSTON MAN

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 5—After suppressing regret that he could not order a flogging, Magistrate Ward of this city today imposed a sentence of ten years in Portsmouth penitentiary upon Lionel Rymal, 38, of Palmerston, convicted of procuring an abortion. The girl in connection with whom the offence was committed died in a hospital here.

HARLEY COLLEGE REOPENS

After the Christmas vacation Albert College threw open its portals today to the ever-increasing influx of students. It was stated by the president today that approximately ninety-five students had the institution during the present term, five to six new boys every month promptly and by Wednesday the school will be running smoothly under its old routine.

PLAN TO EXPAND

The old Claremont Hospital property, immediately adjacent to the Roman Catholic Separate school, has been acquired by the Catholic property for expansions purposes, Monsignor Hinchion stated in the Catholic Intelligencer today. "We can only expand in the one direction," he said. "So we had to have the property and purchased it from Mr. Martin of Napanee, who was going to have established a funeral home there." No definite plans have been decided yet as to what will be done with the property.

COMMUNION SERVICE

Communion services were held in Bridge Street and Holloway Street United Church on Sunday morning and evening. Rev. Dr. Bell officiating at the former and the Rev. Harold B. Reid at the latter. Communion service was celebrated at St. Thomas Church at eleven o'clock on Sunday morning.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE

For breaking and entering the Bennett and Wilson grocery store therefrom, 48 pints of beer, on New Year's, William Keegan elected summary trial and pleaded guilty to the charge through his counsel, Charles A. Payne, K.C., Mr. Denman the crown attorney recommended that sentence be held in suspended abeyance for one year and that he pay the costs amounting to $19.25. And His Worship Magistrate Mikel before whom the case was heard, concurred in the request. James Sharpe also faced the same charge as Keegan, but Mr. Denman asked that the charge being withdrawn as as the evidence was offered the charge was withdrawn against this young man.

SURPRISE PARTY

At the home of Mr. J. Cathcart, 55 Dundas Street, a surprise party was held on Wednesday evening, the occasion being the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Drummond. Twenty friends of the couple were present and presented them with several pieces of china. Cards were played and after lunch the company broke up in the wee hours. Prize winners were: Ladies first, Miss Cathcart; consolation, Miss C. Robinson; gents' first, Smith, J. Cathcart; consolation, Mr. Belvey.

CHARGE DEMISSED

Walter Longhurst charged with theft from his employer, Reginald Adamson Company of a quantity of rabbit, had the charge withdrawn against him when he appeared in court today after a certain amount of evidence had been given. There was no evidence to point that Longhurst, who was night watchman for the plant, had taken any of the rabbit. There is a possibility that summonses will be issued against two members of the Fruit Machinery Company for receiving stolen goods, as it was given in evidence that the Fruit Machinery had purchased from Alan Wesley about 200 pounds of rabbits, which Leo McIntosh superintendent of the Reginald Adamson Company claims as their property.

"AFRICA" SPEAKS AT THE BELLE THEATRE

Africa does speak to the spectators who have attended the showing of the film "Africa Speaks" at the Belle Theatre. Scenes unusual in their conditions of native customs, sights and sounds, including dance rhythm and the human voice, chantings, scenes that thrill with their tremendous appeal to the heroic in the spectator keep the interest in this sound film at fever height. The native dances, the pictures of the deadly women, the herds of antelope in flight, leaping some of them forty feet in the air, the waves of locusts which sweep the country and kill every sign of vegetation, pictures showing the lion stalking his prey—the hunting, and the capture of the entire life round out an amazing story of what Africa holds for the explorer. Its scientific value cannot be overestimated. The film is being shown tonight.

ANNIE DAVIDSON MOWAT

Peterboro, Jan. 5.—Peterboro lost of its most active workers for the Empire yesterday in the death of Mrs. Annie E. Davidson, wife of Public School Inspector Alexander Mowat, during her 28 years' residence here. Mrs. Mowat took a keen interest in all movements for civic betterment. She played a prominent part in organizing the first supervised playgrounds in Peterboro and was an enthusiastic worker in behalf of the home and school association. In the Local Council of Women she had given valuable service both as secretary and as president of the organization for a number of years. She was also president for some time of the Well Babies Clinic and was an earnest supporter of missionary work.

Born in Brighton, Mrs. Mowat was educated in Toronto at the Jarvis St. Collegiate Institute and the Toronto Normal School, and taught public school for a number of years in west- for the past two years. She also ern Ontario before marrying Inspector Mowat in 1903. One son, Captain D. Mowat, survives. She was a life member of the Women's Auxiliary to the Peterboro Memorial Hospital, and a member of the Anglican Church.

MRS. FREDERICK BELWA

Mrs. Belwa, wife of Frederick Belwa, Kingston, formerly of Belleville, died very suddenly on Thursday afternoon. She had been ailing for the past year but her condition at this time was reported unexpected and was a great shock to the members of her family, relatives ceased, who was a daughter of Sir and friends.

The late Mrs. Belwa was formerly Miss Mary Jackson and she was well known in the city and had a great many friends here. She is survived by her husband, three sons, Donald, Jack and Keith; five sisters, Mrs. K. R. Green of Belleville, Mrs. H. N. Price of Belleville, Mrs. S. Hamilton, of Saskatoon, Mrs. G. Wallace of Portsmouth, and Mrs. Stanley McGregor of Kingston; also by two brothers, Frederick Jackson of Endicott, N.Y., and William of Kingston.

The funeral will be held from her home 143 Montreal street on Saturday afternoon to Cataraqui Cemetery being conducted by Venerable Archdeacon Bidwell of St. Paul's Anglican Church.

Mrs Belwa was very well known in Belleville, being a sister of Mrs. K. R. Green and Mrs. Harry Pringle of this city. Deceased was in very good health when she was stricken, and although everything possible was done, she passed away in a short time. A strange coincidence is that one year ago on Christmas afternoon another sister the late Mrs. George Dennis of Marmora was stricken in practically the same manner and also passed away very suddenly.

The funeral of Mrs. Belwa was held at Kingston Saturday afternoon interment being made in Cataraqui cemetery.

Mrs. and Mrs. Green and Mr. and Mrs. Pringle have returned home after attending the funeral.

MRS. SARAH FITZGERALD

Sarah Fitzgerald, wife of A. W. Fitzgerald, 111 North Front Street, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Saturday in the sixty-third year of her life. She was a member of Christ Church and leaves her husband and one daughter, Miss T. C. Hiddleston.

LATE DR. A. J. FILS.

All that was mortal of the late Dr. A. J. Fils, octogenarian physician of Bath's Mills, was laid to rest on Saturday afternoon in Grove Cemetery. The obsequies were largely attended and the cortege was one of the greatest ever witnessed in the county of Prince Edward. Rev. A. L. Geen officiated at the family residence. There were many floral tributes to the memory of the late medical man. The bearers were the six surviving sons.

JAMES SHERWOOD PECK

The death occurred this morning of James Sherwood Peck, a well known resident of this city. Mr. Peck was born in Halloway on November 8th, 1859 and had lived for many years in Belleville. While engaged in business he was for twenty-five years a partner of the woodworking firm of Peck and Willis, with the late Mr. Casper Willis.

Mr. Peck was a member of the Baptist Church and of several fraternal organizations. He belonged to The Belleville Lodge No. 123, A.F. & A.M., to the Sons of England, and to the I. O.F. He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. O. E. Hutchinson, Toronto; Miss Myrtle Peck at home and one son, Mrs. R. Lefley, Belleville.

DEATHS

Cockburn—Wallace

Lansing, Mich. Jan. 4.—After a long illness Adolph Hitler passed out of existence. He was born in Treviso, Ont., in 1879. He is survived by his widow and five children; also three sisters, Mrs. Quirk of Detroit, Mrs. McFadden of Peterboro; Mrs. Harper of Windsor, and four brothers, William of Montreal; Rose of Cleveland, and Frank and Harry of Trenton. The late Mr. Hitler was a noted machine man and crack hockey player in his younger days.

MRS. SAMUEL CARR

There passed away on Saturday, January 3rd, 1931, a well-known resident of Sidney, and resident of Belleville in the person of Mrs. Samuel Carr, relict of the late Samuel Carr. Born in Horsley Downy, England, she came to Canada with her husband 58 years ago and settled on the Second Concession of Sidney, where she remained until she removed to Belleville and remained here until some years ago when she went to Toronto to reside.

Her husband predeceased her some years ago. There were born to her five sons and three daughters. Two sons living are Jesse, of Muskoka, Ont.; Robert of The Pas, Manitoba; Daniel, of Oakville; William, of Brantford. Two daughters, Mrs. Ida Bennett, of Toronto, and Mrs. Charles Hardwick, of Belleville, with whom she has made her home, survive. Also a sister, Mrs. Samuel Carr, relict of the late Samuel Carr, born in Horsley Downy, England, who resided with her daughters. She was of a most lovable disposition and made many friends. She was a life long member of the Anglican Church.

The funeral will be held from the residence of Mrs. Hardwick, 21 Hill St., on Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 p.m. Interment will be made in Belleville Cemetery.

CITY SCHOOLS ARE OVERCROWDED

In the course of his remarks Mayor George A. Reid said:

"I desire to take this opportunity of expressing to the citizens of Belleville my sincere appreciation of the honour you have conferred upon me in electing me Mayor of this city for the second term—the year 1931.

To the aldermen elected for 1931, I offer my hearty congratulations and wish you every success in your endeavours and may the work for the present year be as harmonious as it was in the year 1930. We will have considerable responsibility and some difficult problems which will need our serious consideration.

We must pare our expenditures for 1931 in every department with the exception of industries. As the appointment of the Works and the filtration plant, which we are proud of, are heavy, we must consider well the expenditures for 1931.

The final charges which are assessed against the City at the present time, especially those accounts with Provincial Highway, Suburban Roads and Schools are very high and may I especially mention schools as the Public School Board will find it will not ask us to contribute any more than is absolutely necessary," declared His Worship.

One of the most important items for this year are the completion of the Filtration Plant and encouraging the industries in every way possible, more on industries, that is. If we expect our City to get the share we should get, it will be by the belief that Belleville when the Filtration Plant is completed and opened. That, I hope, will be in a few months.

As to the pure water we must have pure milk and I hope the Council for 1931 will, at our first meeting, appoint a By-law to govern the pasteurizing of milk or certified milk, as we cannot ignore the milk question," he said.

He is one of the commissioners of the Hydro, I am very much pleased to state that our Hydro Utility, from which we derive our revenue and the only regret we have is that we did not buy the plant years ago and thus have received the benefit of such a reduction both in lights and power within a few months.

Also, I am in favor of the taxes being reduced if possible. This has worked well in many cities and why not in Belleville?

The esplanade has not been forgotten but on account of the heavy expenditures in 1930 I thought it unwise to ask the Council to consider further expenditures for some time.

Something should be done to indede Henry Thornton and the Board of Directors to give us a new and up-to-date station on the main line of the Canadian National. We need this and I think with the cooperation of the citizens and the Dominion member, we should get it," he observed.

"Regarding our gas plant, this utility belongs to the citizens of Belleville and I would strongly appeal to you to look into the different ways of using gas. The plant is ours and we must get the best out of it. There is way of getting it out of our taxes and that is to use it and let the profits retire the debentures.

The employment situation has been acute everywhere from ocean, to ocean but with the assistance we got from both the Dominion and Provincial Governments I feel that Belleville is in a good position as any city of its size in the Dominion and with the balance of the winter may I appeal to the citizens to see if they cannot help out a little by giving employment for at least a few days" noted the Mayor.

"The aldermen elected are men of ability and experience and I am certain that the different departments will be ably conducted under their guidance and I wish each alderman to be responsible for the business done in his department.

From the citizens we solicit their interest, in the affairs and every sympathetic support and we ask for constructive criticism for constructive criticism is good.

Let us all work together in harmony for the best interests of the best city in the Province of Ontario and for 1931 a banner year for the City of Belleville," he said in conclusion.

SIXTY-SIXTH ANNIVERSARY OF CHRIST CHURCH MARKED SUNDAY

Rev. C. E. Clarke Preaches on Subject of Floating Time

HISTORY OF CHURCH

Congregation Urged to Devotion and Service of Parish

The Sixty-sixth anniversary of the opening of the original Christ Church, which stood on the north side of Mead Street west, opposite the Cooper mill, was celebrated on Sunday by special services at Christ Church. Both morning and evening sermons by the Rev. C. E. Clarke contained references to the work of the congregation in the life of the city and district.

On Sunday morning the holy communion was celebrated at Christ Church by the Rev. C. E. Clarke assisted by the Rev. Maurice LaVois, deacon.

Time and Life

"Time" was the subject of the morning sermon by the minister. Ancient literature, that of Greece and Rome, is mournful in its consideration of this theme. "Carpe diem" was the attitude of the writers of Rome, who had lost the faith of the Roman masses and saw no hope except in pleasure. "To them for a little while there was light and then the darkness of death, it was joyful to see the sun but night came on."

"It is not in that frame of mind I wish to speak to you today", said the rural dean. "Such a view makes no sense and it makes him cling tenaciously to life, it may make him 'cling to existence regardless of the rights of others. It is the attitude of 'Let us eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we die'." Omar Khayyam was in line with the passage of time across existence, with a little stop here and there on the way to the grave.

Mr. Clarke pointed out that darkness and light, direction and sameness have no meaning except by comparison. To the ephemeral insect the life of which passes in a day, man's life would seem an eternity. Mrs. is able to look beyond. Science has opened up a great world, the universe is growing ever as man's mind is being penetrated and revealed. In each group of spiral nebulae there may be millions of stars and there may be a million nebulae. In the light of this, the earth is a mere speck, and man is but a very small part of this grain of sand. Science has also swept the narrow limits of five or six thousand years once set to this world, and has given it an infinity of time.

In this connection the minister gave a number of points of advice.

Selection

"If the time of our life is so short, then we shall have to select out of the potentialities of life very carefully those which we think most worth while, if your life end mine be short as compared with the eternity of God you and I must select. Little hands of childhood grasp for everything, little eyes see everything, there is a vast comprehensiveness in the hand and the eye of the child, but as we go on we must make those things our own, if there have been their toll, will bring pleasant memories of experiences. We must select our companions, our reading, our recreation. When men and women drift through life, pushed hither and thither by everything, what do they not lose?

"There must not only be selection but there must be detashment. If you and I can view life in the light of eternity we can not think that everything here was of so tremendous importance. As you take the long view of life little things are seen as trivialities and we can live with detachment."

"Time and time again brother fights brother, sister with sister, and a family feud is perhaps the worst, but between the church disciples also into insignificance in the presence of death."

The future is hewed out of the past and present. The boy who is not selecting when he is a boy is going to pay for it when he is a man.

Love to God

Mr. Clarke referred to the sixty-sixth anniversary of the church which stood on the north Mora street near the Cooper Mill. He spoke of the membership of the congregation in the light of the rapidity of the passage of time to labor to make the church serve the needs of the people, to bring those who are not linked with the church into the place of worship, and into contact with God, so that Christ Church may serve and enrich the lives of the people of Belleville as never before.

Early Days

In the evening, Rev. C. E. Clarke spoke from the text "Then month shall be unto you the beginning of months, it shall be the first month of the year to you." Taking a cursory glance through the ages, people measure time from great national events, the Romans from the foundation of their Empire, the Jews from the time they were delivered out of slavery and Christians from the birth of Christ," said the minister. "Forty-nine years ago this coming Easter this present building was dedicated. The text from which I am speaking tonight was used on that occasion. I wonder how many here tonight remember that sermon. The confession of the church was the beginning of a greater service to Belleville and district but it was not the beginning of the Anglican Church in this city for St. Thomas' Church was founded over 100 years ago. Sixty-six years ago on January 1st, the old Christ Church was dedicated by John Travers Lewis, bishop of the diocese, and with what hopes the Church was opened and with what renewed hope the present Church was dedicated to the service of Christ."

Judging Others

"It is very easy to judge other people," continued Mr. Clarke. "We instinctively do that and have we not often when the minister was preaching thought that the sermon would exactly suit someone we knew. We can point out mistakes but it is not easy to judge fairly. The Church of the Middle Ages was magnificent in power and powerful in ritual, while to make our church of today seem drab and commonplace but how far was the church of the middle ages from the principles of Christ when they blessed the Spanish Inquisition!

"Religion had its clashes in those days, but Christ did not divide the Roman Catholics, Greeks, Armenians and other sects. The history of Christ Church has had its dark ages and in the days of bitterness was so prevalent that police sometimes were called in and so great was the cleavage, that even the angels could have wept. Nevertheless there were great men as ministers in this church, the most prominent being the Rev. Septimus Jones, who founded Christ Church and later the Church of the Redeemer in Toronto. Rev. Dr. Clarke, founded the present church and was later presented with a silver trowel, when he laid the corner stone, as Grand Master of the Masonic Order, of the city hall in Winnipeg. His name will be brought back strongly on Easter, when a painting in oil donated to this church by Miss Clarke will be unveiled in this church. Others, who graced the pulpit were: Rev. R. S. Fornert, Canon Heeney, trusted and revered, a man who must have given something to the City of Belleville, Rev. Dr. Blagrave, Rev. W. O. Swayne and others. The last thirty years the Christ Church of today must have given something worth while to the religious life of Belleville and to the civic development.

Closing Days

In closing Mr. Clarke stated that religion is not a life of going to church every Sunday or sitting at home listening to a radio sermon but the greatest desire and to be useful, by every member of the congregation that contributes to religion and makes for unity with you live in Christ-place. We should live in the association of Christ if the Church is to fulfil its mission."

RECOMMEND C.P.R. EXTEND ITS LINES

PORTLAND, Me.—A recommendation that the Canadian Pacific Railroad should extend its lines in Portland was adopted here today, in order to compete with the Canadian National Railways, which already has permanent terminals at these points, is made in a report issued by the Port Development Committee of the Providence Chamber of Commerce, according to information received here.

The Committee also urged that six trunk lines serve New England seaports instead of the single railway system recommended for this territory in 1923. This suggested change, and the report, resulted from developments that since 1923 have changed the conception of New England as a single port connecting at the Hudson River with the trunk lines of the east.

Representatives of the committee have interviewed officials of the various railroads, urging that the plan be adopted.

BABY'S BODY FOUND

Kapuskasing, Jan. 5— A post mortem was ordered by Coroner E. R. Hopkins on the remains of a three-days-old infant found by the garbage collector in a refuse can behind a local cafe. The mother of the child was found and she is being kept under police surveillance until the result of the post mortem is known. The infant was born New Year's morning.

GIANT LINER ASSISTS TRADE

Construction of Largest Vessel Will Entail Hundreds of Workmen

(By the Canadian Press)

LONDON—Messrs. John Brown and Company, great Clydebank shipbuilding firm, are actively going ahead with construction of the giant new liner for the Cunard Company, to cost about $30,000,000. The contract was signed recently after the shipbuilding company was assured that the Southern Railway would build at Southamp ton docks the mammoth liner. Besides the mammoth liner, the British Government is taking a portion of the vast amount of insurance necessary.

The building of the 60,000 ton vessel will have an immediate effect on more than 300,000 workmen in many industries throughout the world, points out the Manchester Guardian's special correspondent. Almost every industry in the country will be able to employ more men during the two or three years which will be occupied in building and furnishing the largest ship in the world.

Marble will be imported from Italy and Norway to be shaped into decorative pillars, pilasters, mantelpieces, ordinary baths, and lamp fittings. Something like 300,000 pieces of silverware, cutlery and other articles will be required and there will be more than 200,000 pieces of earthenware, china, glass and cliffy vessels.

The largest order will probably be given to the electricity industry, and something like one hundred miles of cables will be threaded through the vessel. The ventilation system, run by electric power, will be very elaborate and every cabin will be so fitted with ventilation power that filtered air, warm, medium, or ice cold can be turned on at a moment's notice.

There will be rooms in the Adams style, Chippendale, Louis XIV, Renaissance, and Georgian, and the furniture will be original in almost every respect.

About twenty wireless operators using simple wireless telephones will also be used to deal with messages. Shops will also be provided on the promenade decks, and the tailoring industry will be called in to provide uniforms for the crew of 1,200.

It is expected that at least $15,000,000 will be distributed for the building of the ship among the trades of the world. The other $15,000,000 will be wanted for the fitting of the hull. The keil plates have already been laid and some of the hull plates have been cut and are now waiting to be placed together.

Now that the building of one ship has at last been definitely decided upon, the directors of the Cunard Line will doubtless consider whether a sister ship will be given out. Experience of the first ship shall be given out. Experience of the second ship will be a sister ship has not yet been announced, but the Cunard Company have an option on generations favored the building of sister ships. There is much economy in this method as articles can easily be duplicated. Both Newcastle and Birkenhead have urged their claims, and there is much unemployment among shipyard workers in both places.

BULLETS GREETED WELLAND FARMER

Welland, Jan. 5—John Ronr, a farmer, living on the Welland township road may now yesterday afternoon to do the chores, was greeted with a revolver and the bullet finding a billet in his thigh.

It was fired by someone unknown who had taken refuge in the barn, and when, after firing, made good his escape.

Rohr was rushed to the Welland County General where he was immediately operated upon and the bullet extracted. He is not in serious danger.

The provincial police were notified and although they scoured the country until darkness set in they were unable to trace the assailant.

The most troublesome load to carry is a bundle of bad habits.

FORECASTS FOR N. E. STATES

Boston, Mass. Jan. 5—Beginning January 1, the official weather reports for New England will be issued daily in separate forecasts for each of the six states, instead of two reports for northern and southern New England, as formerly.

For the benefit of fishermen and inhabitants of towns and cities along the New England coast, a special forecast will be made for the Atlantic coast north of Sandy Hook, N.J. This prediction will come under the head of "conditions," replacing the former forecast for north and south of Sandy Hook.

Definite predictions for areas of the different States, it is believed, will make the weather report simpler to understand in all New England localities.

FOUR PERISHED NEEDLESSLY IN ATLANTIC WRECK

St. John's, Nfld., Jan. 5. (By The Canadian Press) — The loss of four lives when the schooner Warren M. Colp went ashore near Burnt Island Bay de Verde in mid-December was caused by a double action, according to Captain A. Kean, who represented the underwriters at the scene of the wreck. For when Captain Kean arrived at Burnt Point he found the schooner practically high and dry, so that a man in rubber boots could walk around the vessel at low water. If the crew had remained aboard when their schooner struck, not a man would have been lost. In Captain Kean's opinion.

Only two of the crew of six, Pierce and Jordan Moores, escaped. They were taken off the wreck by land practically in their own door yard. The Warren M. Colp sailed from Shambler's Cove at night. When the weather thickened on the following day Captain Batstone shaped his course for Carbonear, standing in close to land. The schooner was sighted so close to shore that a telephone message was sent to Burnt Point. The schooner rounded the point safely, however, and when she fell off the skipper lowered his mainsail and wore ship. An attempt to hold the sail again failed when the engine used for this purpose stalled. By this time the vessel was close inshore, and struck on Murphy's Island, a small island rock close to the cliffs.

The schooner ran so far up that Pierce Moores, cook, climbed on the jib boom and jumped. He was washed on the rocks, but reached shore safely. Captain Batstone and Alfred Pudge attempted the same action, but failed to reach land. Joseph Moores and William Allen launched the dory, and attempted to rescue the captain, who sank as they reached him. Just then a sea broke over the dory and the men were doubled.

Jordan Moores, left alone on the wreck, secured the ship's papers, and was drawn ashore on ropes thrown by rescuers.

OVER-ZEALOUS POLICE OFFICER IS SUSPENDED

BRANTFORD, Jan. 5. —Provincial Officer Thomas Campbell, attached to the Provincial detail in this city, coming here from Galt on Saturday night, was suspended by orders from the headquarters in Toronto. The suspension came following complaints of the officer's action in the Liquor Control store here Wednesday afternoon, when it is alleged, some customers resented the action of the officer, who was in the store, in asking to see permits and otherwise interesting himself in the business of the store.

MINISTER IS INDUCTED

Windsor, Jan. 5—Rev. Calvin McRae, M.A., Ph.D., formerly of Knox Church, Detroit, has been inducted as pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Riverside. Rev. George Treanor, of Dresden, moderator of the Chatham Presbyterian, presided.

PRESENTATION TO CHURCH ORGANIST

At a largely attended union meeting of Rossmore United Church and Sunday School last Sunday afternoon, Mr. J. L. Gerow was by a huge vote unanimously chosen to be Superintendent for the coming year 1921, which indicated the appreciation held for him and by many upon the lives of the boys and girls and young people as well as the older people of the church all of whom pledged their help and service to make the New Year successful.

Mr. Gerow acknowledged the honor conferred and gratefully accepted the position though loaded by many duties already and then nominated the other officers and teachers of the school who were duly elected.

Mrs. William Brickman, the popular organist of the church at this juncture was called to the platform and the following complimentary address was read by the pastor and presentation made by Mrs. S. Root in behalf of the people for which Mrs. Brickman feelingly inflaned her many friends for their much appreciated but unexpected gift.

Address

Rossmore, December 28th 1920.

Dear Mrs. Brickman,—

"At Christmas time when hearts are happy and live songs sing, singing in the glorious light of Bethlehem the angelic song "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace good will to men" surely our first duty should be to brighten the corner where we are by kind words cheerful smiles and expression of the ever-lovely virtues—the services of all within the province of our influence.

"We—some of your many friends of Rossmore and community particularly of the congregation, Sunday School and Ladies Aid of The United Church have for some time felt it our loving duty and our Christian obligation to express to you in some manner our deep sense of appreciation and thankfulness for long-continued, self-denying and helpful services as organist and leader of song in public service, Sunday School, Ladies' Aid and socal functions amongst us.

"We have greatly prized your self-denying efforts — leaving your home and evening circles and social life with its proffered pleasures, many times, in order to inspire and brighten the services of the Church of God.

"We cannot commend you highly your steadfastness and loyalty in all the means of grace, —no offence,—no matter—how dreary, has been you away from God's house or God's altar.

"As a slight token of our esteem for yourself and appreciation of your service of song so graciously and generously rendered we ask you to accept this silk bed spread and curtains, not for their intrinsic value but for the sincere love that prompted the gift assuring you that you live in our hearts and prayers.

"Wishing you and your dear family a very happy prosperous new year on behalf of Rossmore United Church, we are yours in Him in service.

"J. S. McMullin, pastor.

"J. L. Gerow, Supt. of S.S.

"S. Root, Steward.

"Geo. A. Thompson, treasurer.

"Mrs. S. Root, president of Ladies' Aid."

LOSES HAND ON SAW

Basil Sir Midle, Ont., Jan. 5— While operating a circular saw at Hearst, Fred Lawson suffered the loss of his left hand. He was rushed to St. Paul's Hospital and is reported to be doing well. Lawson is one of the early pioneers of Hearst.

INGERSOLL SEPARATE BOARD

Ingersoll, Jan. 5—The new trustees for the Sacred Heart separate school for 1921, are M. J. Morrison, James Manlon, Jr. Ed. A. O. Warden, Wm. J. N. Hendron, Dr. H. C. Furlong and John Tallant, now serving their final term, they will comprise the full board.

50TH ANNIVERSARY WAS CELEBRATED

STIRLING — One of Stirling and district's oldest couples, Mr. and Mrs. David Wallace, were surprised and honored by their family on Monday evening, it being the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Wallace of Wellman's Corners, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wallace and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cooke, Stirling, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Linn, Burnbrae, Mrs. Margaret Ward, Stirling, and Mrs. R. J. Clarke, Trenton, along with twenty grandchildren.

The evening was spent in games and music after which an address was read by Mr. Robert Wallace and Helen Ward presented the groom of fifty years ago with a handsome gold headed ebony cane and Norma Clarke presented the bride with a beautiful gold wrist watch; also a gold handkerchief tray from their grandchildren Geneva and Grace Wright. Both made suitable replies thanking them for the gifts. Mr. W. H. Cooke was then called on for a speech which he did in a few words, say referring to their attention at home and to them on behalf of their family many years of happy life.

A hearty lunch was then served, which was enjoyed by all. After a social hour had been spent the gathering dispersed with the singing of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" and the National Anthem.

ADVICE GIVEN WORKING GIRLS

Montreal, Jan. 5—Women and girls working in Quebec industries are recommended by the Quebec Minimum Wage Board to secure from their employer, when leaving, a statement of the length of their employment. A few cases, complaints have been received from women and girls that, after the period stated in the employer's employing to their industry, their employer refused to give them the higher wage on the ground that they certainly had not served the period in his place, and had no proof of prior service. That although, rather than bad relations between employer and employee, is responsible for the complaints in question, the board ascertained. Then it was that the board advised all women and girl workers, when changing employment, to request, on leaving, a statement of service, that they can prove to their next employer they have experience and the time at which they are entitled to increase can be satisfactorily fixed.

Complaints of cases and pure underpayments were dealt with, and it was stated that the board had been successful in securing back pay for the women and girls in one instance the, arrears amounting to $145.

IDEAL FARTHER OFF THAN EVER

Gangdom's guns do not take as many lives in Chicago as do motorcars, driven by apparently law-abiding men and women. Eighty-one persons lost their lives in the United States on New Year's Day, fifty-four of them through motor accidents. There were one fatal shooting in Chicago and there were a number of men wounded. Thirty-two thousand people were killed and 200,000 injured and people were killed on highways, an increase of five per cent in the U. S. in 1930. Fatalities in car accidents outnumber homicides two to one in Chicago.

Motoring goes freely on with very little to prevent accidental deaths on the streets while the city spends millions to deal with homicide, say Chicago safety officers.

With speed rates increasing on highways and streets, there is a steady climb in the number of fatalities. What is the situation coming to?

Drivers of motorcars are law-abiding, they think themselves too, but they have to account for a good many of the 32,000 deaths during the year.

Has the world gone mad that it believes it is right to throw away thirty-two thousand men, women and children, as well as to permit hundreds of thousands to be injured and to believe that there is no cure for this?

Such a mounting fatality rate is conclusive to a very bad influence upon the state of mind of the driving public. The thought of causing death or injury is naturally abhorrent but the persistence of the fatalities must end in searing the mind to the horror of this situation.

It must be remembered that these people who fall victims of the motorcar are most of them breaking any law, even by carelessness but that they are the innocent victims of either accident or the misjudgement or carelessness of others. They are entitled to live and it seems a sad commentary on present society that the horror of the death lists constant growth does not bring a more drastic action, which will assist the constant efforts of departments of highways and departments of justice to prevent accidents and to punish offences against the highway regulations.

Society must not come to believe that it is natural that there should be a holocaust of victims of the motorcar, for acceptance of such a principle will eliminate for all time the possibility of reduction of the totality of killings. The public must realize that highway accidents must be reduced and in the long run practically eliminated.

NEW LEGISLATORS

The new city council is in office and the work goes on. No sudden break of interest, no slipping as is the old days when men were supposed to swap horses crossing a stream can take place for continuous service is going to be demanded of and is given by a council. It would be extremely difficult for a council to break with the past considering the conditions have never been such that there has been a wide divergence of opinion.

Last year's council is largely represented in the new council and the 1930-31 members possess the same attitude towards city business as they did in the year just closed——

Did last year's council build, so much that the new council will find nothing to do? That is hardly to be believed with a progressive farmlighted and enterprising body of men as compose the council this year.

Now that they are again in office the council looks just as natural as it did last year and just as active and as promising.

KIPLING'S YEARS

Times do change and make great changes in men and women. The exact their toll even of the genius typ—men of the Kipling stamp. Rudyard Kipling the man who gave the world something new in story and in verse and in poetry many years ago has just passed the sixty-fifth year of his age.

Yet there ought not to be loss of hope that is yet extant work of abiding quality. The tide of his pen should continue to ebb and flow for years leaving precious bits of comfort for the enjoyment and the training of man forever.

In one respect Kipling does not suffer as other writers do. He does not change his viewpoint, his is the old viewpoint, loyal to the ideals of his youth and things as they were and as he believes them still to be.

LATE DR. FILE

To few men is it given to serve humanity as healer and physician for over two generations, as Prince Edward County has unsought such a man in the late Dr. File who died on Friday evening last at his Amelisburg home. To the last he possessed the love of humanity which animated him throughout his long life in his profession.

The medical profession is not an easy taskmaster, one for the man who likes to take and make his own time. Personal wants have often to be disregarded at the call of suffering mankind. Yet despite this Dr. File, maintained his health and his exuberant spirits. It is true he had several other avenues of interest, gardening and stock breeding in which he excelled. A good ancestry together with a healthy mind which delighted in life and in helping the suffering joined with the care of flowers and gardens and the demonstration of interest in the raising of the shock standing of his country to give him that sane viewpoint upon life that makes his old age a delight to himself and others.

Prince Edward and Amelisburg will never forget Dr. File.

TODAY'S JOYS

Today a letter came to me,
Sent by a well-loved friend;
A friend who year on year must lie
At last life's happy tides flow by:
Yet brave the words he penned.

Today I found a lovely flower
Upon a mountain crest;
The air was cold the soil was poor,
How could such a thing endure
The elements' harsh test?

Today within a squalid court
I heard clear laughter ring;
A glad child's voice in mirthful shout
Woke cheery echoes all about
And made my whole soul sing.

My deepest pleasure for today
Came not from wealth or pride;
But from life's humblest sources flowed
That freely all their joys bestowed,
Though much they were denied.

TORONTO always stages a great municipal battle in January and this year was no exception to the rule. Municipal apathy has no chance to fasten upon the body politic in the Ontario capital, for with much beating of drums, ringing of bells and loud speaking the populace is never allowed to forget that there is an election campaign on. Perhaps Toronto has the secret of keeping the electors interested in civic affairs even to the extent of casting the ballot, and in this the newspapers have a heavy, generally dividing off, two and two, for and against mayoralty candidates. From nomination day to election day the papers are full of propaganda favoring their favorite candidates, reports of meetings, accusations and denials, challenges and all that sort of thing until even the pigs in the dog pound must have a fair idea of who is running. It makes circulation for the newspapers and it informs their readers on civic affairs, while in the heat of battle things are printed which sound silly after the battle and have a barb at the time the whole commotion is rather worth while.

TRAVEL BY AIR

Airplane passenger traffic increased four-fold in the United States in 1930 over 1929, air mail and express poundage registered tremendous gains, two new transcontinental mail and passenger lines were opened, five thousand miles of airways were equipped with beacons and landing fields. These are some evidences of the rapidly growing acceptance of aviation, which was revealed in a survey made for "The Rotarian", by Col. Halsey Dunwoody, vice-president of the Universal Division of the American Airways, Inc. "The aviation industry faces 1931 with excellent prospects." says Colonel Dunwoody in the January number of the magazine. "The years 1928 and 1929 have been estimated. Aviation and radio, its twin infant industry, have reduced the world, so far as communication and transportation are concerned, to the size of the Roman empire. They have earned a permanent place in our commercial and social structure. More than 20,000,000 persons in the United States alone are directly or indirectly benefited financially by aviation. More than 10,000 manufacturers and an unestimated number of jobbers, retailers and salesmen serve the industry. More than $200,000,000 is paid annually for the 7,500 items the industry requires."

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Future of Journalism

Granted the potency of the press in shaping or guiding public opinion and conduct, it is of vital importance that newspaper personnel should be keenly alive to its responsibility, Prof. John E Drewry, president of the association declared in opening the session at Boston of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism.

Professor Drewry in his address called for a correcting of the conception in the public thought of the newspaper man as pictured in the cinema, which makes the reporter invariably resemble a gangster than even a moderately well-off business or professional man."

This picturisation has enough basis in fact, he said, to make "thoughtful editors and teachers somewhat concerned about the field in which they are engaged and for which they are training young men and women."

"It is notable," Professor Drewry continued, "that the public seems always to think of newspaper men in terms of the less important and successful ones, whereas the popular stereotype of the lawyer or doctor is always of a highly successful, altogether brilliant and attractive individual."

Professor Drewry declared that it would be of inestimable value to the journalist and the high school and college student to require of them a course in the appreciation of the news paper and the magazine.

"It would go far in correcting the public picture of journalism, and consequently, I think, would exalt the popular estimation of newspapers and the newspaper world."

He referred to the latest report of the committee on schools of journalism of the American Society of Newspaper Editors as the most encouraging single recent factor on the professional status of the journalist. He pointed out that the survey, generally dividing off, two and two, for and against mayoralty candidates. From nomination day to election day the papers are full of propaganda favoring their favorite candidates, reports of meetings, accusations and denials, challenges and all that sort of thing until even the pigs in the dog pound must have a fair idea of who is running. THOSE NERVES OF YOURS

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.d
(Famous Authority on Health and psychology)

We talk glibly about nerves, but not many of us, unless we have made a special study of the subject, know much about what nerves actually look like or how they function.

Nerves are the primary organ and tissue of the inner part of the body. They are not the recorders of impulses from the outside world, and it is by means of the nervous system that we are in contact with external things and can respond to them. They also transmit nerve impulses from one place to another, acting as co-ordinators and regulators of the multitudinous and com-and-plicated workings of the physical as well as mental system.

Scientists do not as yet know exactly what a nerve impulse is or how it starts. But that it behaves most like an electric current has been established beyond question.

A nerve is technically called a neuron. It consists of a nerve cell in which is a central portion, called the nucleus, and several processes.

From the nerve cell runs a nerve fibre called the Axone, and at its end breaks up into a branching of nerve endings, spoken of as the Terminal Arborization. Furthermore, although these nerve endings interlock—but do not touch—with the nerve endings of another nerve, there are also similar connections with other nerves by means of branches from the cell itself or the main fibre which are called Dendrites and Collaterals.

In other words, the nerve cell with its branches is the dull, winter light gloom,
My thoughts are vagrant, wandering afar,
Leaping beyond the years all past and grim,
Toward the portal of a distant star,
That lures me on with restless, flying feet,
Where youth and joy were wont to make retreat.

I wonder as the fleeting snow-flakes fall,
Do you recall the time so long ago,
When in the gray, and grim old college hall
We pondered woes of winter's frost and snow?
When all the future seemed like summer bright
With not a cloud to shadow or to blight!

And when at last the college days were past,
We filled the train that night with laugh and cheer,
A merry crowd, destined to part at last
To never friendship's ties now grown, go deer;
How tender were the goodbyes that we said,
Lingering hand clasps and the tears unbided!

I left the train, that through the winter night,
Went roaring onward like a maelstrom of thing,
And I was left beneath the cold star-light
To follow you afar on spirit wing;
But little reckod we that the future years
Would find so large a place for toil and tears!

And now, as the dull winter light grows dim,
I wonder if your thoughts are vagrant too,
And from the earth's remote and dim-mist rim,
They seek again a friend once tried and true;
The years have taught a bitter truth—
He seeks in vain, who seeks tryst with youth.

Man Can't Sleep, Gets Nervous, Hates People

"I could not sleep and got so nervous I hated everybody. Since taking Vinol, I can sleep 10 hours and feel full of pep all day."—Julius Bender.

For 30 years doctors have prescribed Vinol because it contains important mineral elements of iron, calcium and cod liver peptone. The very FIRST DOSE brings sound sleep and a BIG appetite. Nervous, worn-out people soon feel WONDERFUL! Vinol gives new life and pep! Tastes delicious. J. B. McEwen, Druggist.

Three magistrates who presided at recent police court at Wakefield, England, recently, had a total age of 237 years.

All its branches is a wonderful structure which varies in, shape and size, but which, essentially, is practically the same the typical form just described.

Nerve impulses travel at great speed. In a frog's nerves the impulse runs at the rate of 90 feet in a second; in man about 100 feet a second.

The name given to the place where the ends of one nerve interlock with those of another is "Synapse." Nerve energy jumps across this synapse.

How, then, does the arresting theory has been formulated about synapse functions. It is assumed, that when we relax or sleep, synapses open up, as it were, Dust coming between the ends which nerve impulses cannot gap. The result, then, is that various nerves cease or less disconnected and that the other have a chance to revitalize themselves, thus accounting, in part, at least for our feeling of being refreshed after rest or sleep.

In any case, nerves are not to be trifled with, even if they are strong and restive.

Knowing something about the way they operate often creates respect for them.

The activity of the nervous system never ceases, even during sleep. Every part is continually being worn away and kept alive, one might say, by this ceaseless flow of energy.

Even when we sleep—think being, of course, one of the manifold activities of nerves—as is proved by the fact that we then frequently (or everyone) is supposed to dream every night even if he is unable to recall having done so.

We have to be careless about those nerves of yours, for once they become disordered it is no easy matter to put them right again.

Newspaper Opinions

PROBLEMS IN THE WEST

Throughout the world men in all walks of life are endeavoring to discover some plan that will bring conditions back to normal. The theories advanced are as varied as they are numerous, but all indicate a closer study of economics and a desire to do something toward the overcoming of business and industrial depression. Referring particularly to Western Canada, Premier Anderson of Saskatchewan sees in more diversified, farming operations the remedy for present hard times. Speaking of his own Province, Mr. Anderson says that heretofore her destiny "has been considered as inextricably linked with that of the basic industries, agriculture, and that of agriculture with its major product, wheat."—Toronto Globe.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" ENDS RUN

It is said that for the first time since 1853 there is not now a touring theatrical company in the United States presenting "Uncle Tom's Cabin." There will undoubtedly be revivals of the dramatic version of that tale here and all other rivals, but it seems ended as a perpetual institution. No other play has ever equalled the popularity of this in the past seventy years. Undoubtedly some of Shakespear's masterpices have been played oftener, and it is not impossible that the story never come out on an evening where somewhere or other in the world one or another of them is not being offered. Moreover, we may have to look a long way into the future before we are able, in imagination, to see the day that people tire of them, for they are independent of the fads of fashion and politics, in forms of government and all other human inventions. They are a part of the human heart which does not change.—Mail and Empire, Toronto.

MAKING FILMS CHILDREN ENJOY

One of the happiest development in motion pictures during 1930 has been the growing consciousness on the part of producers to making entertainments that would appeal to children. One of the unexpected results of the introduction of sound films was the considerable loss of child audiences. With much of the interest of the story set forth in dialogue, those films were puzzled by words they did not understand, and disappointed by the absence of action. Sometimes they grow the periods of silence in films, and personages speak now chiefly when they have something to say that will convey the character or will help carry on the story. Gradually the children are being won back to the pictures. The producers frankly admit that they need the attendance of children, not for present revenue merely, but as a mean of building the audiences of the future. Moreover, pictures that are suitable for youngsters and are still entertaining to their parents have the happiest sort of effect on the motion picture industry in improving its good repute. Such pictures as "Tom Sawyer," "With Byrd at the South Pole," Gottfried's "Lassie-coln," "Disraeli" with George Arliss and "Lightning" with Will Rogers, will do more for the future prosperity of the industry than any number of pictures made according to box-office specifications that are based only on adult tastes.—Christian Science Monitor.

BROADCASTING

Some American stations have in recent months given excellent programs not sponsored by advertisers. It is reasonable to suppose that improvement in that line will continue, because these programs have won a tremendous popular response. Vast as it now is, the radio audience is still in its infancy. Somewhere in the course of its growth it will probably find time and place for that section—Professor Gordon terms it high-brow society—which is above the level of 15-year-olds. A piece of advice from the Professor to broadcasting stations to use the particular point at which he sticks: "Present your specialty on the level of 12-year-olds. Do not overrate the intelligence of your audience." To most people that will seem like one of the soundest warnings ever issued by a broadcasting agent. Some of the outstanding successes of American broadcasting, they will be convinced that the advertisers offering such popular programs have acted on that advice whether or not they ever heard of it. Professor Orton writes: "Listening is for most people not only easier than reading, but is more stimualting." In this visual-minded world, few will be found to agree with that statement. When sight and sound conspire for attention, the thing seen is more likely to be noted and retained than the thing heard. Some proof of the need for visual accompaniment to radio is to be found in the large amount of supplementary scores, libretti and discussion issued by the British broadcasting Corporation.—New York Times

66th Anniversary of Church

CELEBRATE FOUNDATION OF CHRIST CHURCH IN BELLEVILLE SIXTY-SIX YEARS AGO JANUARY 1ST

First Church Stood on Moira Street Near the Upper Bridge

HISTORY OF CHURCH

Steps by Which Present Parish's Growth is Indicated

In the year 1863, two years after the arrival of Rev. Septimus Jones at Belleville, Christ Church was organized. Hon. Lewis Wallbridge, later Chief Justice of Manitoba, Thomas Wills, R. B. Cooper, J. W. Dunnett and other associated themselves with the new movement. No church building was available and a meeting place was secured at the Marble Hall. On one occasion Bis Grace Archbishop Hood occupied the humble pulpit at this place.

When plans for the construction of a building were undertaken, Thomas Wills, county treasurer, became chairman of the building committee. Work of construction proceeded through the year 1864 and by the end of the year, a modest roughcast building was ready on Moira street east of the present Conger residence. The church was opened on January 1st 1865, by Bishop J. T. Lewis D.D., with a congregation of eight hundred worshippers. Rev. Septimus Jones was the incumbent. The church was gothic in its architecture, in length 104 feet, in width 60 feet. The interior was light. As an evidence of the denominational character of the new church the prevailing practice of renting the pews was not favored. This was the first church in the diocese to order and maintain free sittings, although in short periods of financial difficulty pew rents were authorized. Rev. Mr. Jones was called to be curate of St. Paul's Toronto in 1870 and in 1872 he became rector of the Church of the Redeemer. Before becoming rector of Christ Church here he was rector of St. Thomas, Belleville. Mr. Jones died at Toronto in 1913. He was succeeded at Christ Church by Rev. Hans Caulfield, who was already advanced in years. He resigned at the end of 1871. His voice was so weak that a sounding board had has to be placed behind the pulpit to enable the congregation to hear. The third rector of the church was Rev. R. S. Forneri. In his care for the scattered portion of his parish he erected St. John's Church as a parish by decree of 1875 near the entrance to the present fair grounds, the church being later moved to Isabel and Bridge street corner. When the parish was absorbed about twenty years ago the church was re-erected at Point Anne. St. George's was set apart in 1870 and the church of that name built and opened in the same year with Rev. James Mockridge as rector. A split in the parish of Christ Church occurred in 1874 and Mr. Pinchard resigned and became rector of the mission of St. John's parish. Christ Church was then closed for a time the congregation going to St. John's and St. George's. Rev. J. R. Jones, rector of St. George's, became shortly after rector of the combined Christ Church and Reverend Mr. Jones resigned in 1878 to be succeeded by the Rev. W. C. Clarke. Under his rectorship the church was made to install a new pipe organ and while the work of instalation was in progress the church took fire and was destroyed, April 25th, 1881 Temporary place of worship was secured in the unused Methodist Episcopal Church near Brown's foundry on Church and Great St. James streets.

Stewart and Denison of Toronto, were architects of the present Christ Church building at the corner of Catherine and Coleman streets. The Masonic order laid the corner stone October 5th 1881. The work of building proceeded through the winter under direction of Walter Alford. The church was dedicated on April 9th, Easter Sunday 1882. This church had a large organ. This structure is pure Gothic in style. It is of limestone 120 feet in length, by 60 feet in width. It was in September 1882 after celebrating communion that Dr. Clarke was taken ill and died on October 16th. Many pathetic incidents are of those who preached in the church as was Gilbert Parker (now Sir Gilbert Parker, Bart). Mr. G. Parkey was then deacon of Trenton. In December 1882, Rev. E. W. Sibbald was appointed to take charge and was ordained shortly after. He resigned in 1887. Rev. Samuel Daw followed and under his regime the church became noted for its music. Mr. Davies having a choir of forty voices. This effort was withdrawn down from the loft and was provided with surplices and the organ was moved to the front of the church. Rev. Samuel Daw resigned in 1894 and went thence to Stirling and later to Hamilton. Rev. C. J. Hutton followed this absence on church finance from the city, necessitated suspension of various curates. He resigned in 1901 to be followed by W. B. Bloomfield farmer, has accomplished ances of the church at this time were such that no salary could be promised by the congregation and the bishop personally guaranteed $700 for 1901. Rev. Mr. Heeney conditions began to improve immediately and his six years of probation ended with a call to the rectorship November 1st, 1901, when he was called to the priesthood. Under him a floating debt was entered and the judges stated that the annual was by far superior to all other events.

This heifer is now owned by the Raymondale Farms, at Vandreuil, Quebec, but she was born and spent the first year of her life on Jas. Bowly farm. Her sire was the great breeding and show bull, Abegwett Pluto, which was purchased by Messrs. Hubbs, Foster and Leavens of Bloomfield at a high price and later sold to Quon Quon Farms, Whately, Mass. The heifer's dam was Netherland Queen Vernefalde.

At many fair shows this year, the 1930 All-American Junior Holstein Heifer carried off the major awards.

Mr. Hubbs has brought great honor not only to himself but to the County of Prince Edward by his achievement. Mr. Hubbs is one of the County's fore most Holstein breeders.

Prince Edward County bred cattle have gone out to make world records and achieve fame in other lines, but it is believed that this is the first time

PRINCE EDWARD CATTLE BREEDER WAS HONOURED

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Picton, Jan. 5—Fred H. Hubbs, Bloomfield farmer, has accomplished something that is greatly sought after by all dairymen and which is seldom secured. He was the breeder of the Junior All-American Junior Yearling Holstein Heifer. This means that this fine animal, Netherland Queen Piute by name, who adjudged the best junior yearling Holstein heifer on the continent for 1930. All winners at the big shows, both in Canada and the U.S. were entered and the judges stated that the animal was by far superior to all other exhibits.

PICTURES

Everybodys house has pictures on the walls and most of them have been there ever since you was born, unless your mother happened to win a cupple of new ones playing bridge.

This proves nobody buys pictures.

Portraits are pictures of people and are supose to have their original expression, only in that case there must be even more funny looking people in the world than there's supose to be.

Landscapes are scenes in the country with portrails of cows all having about the same expression even if you only see their rear views.

Lots of pictures have gilt frames much prettier than whit they are themselfs, making the whole effect look rather tasteless. This proves why ladies look as if they feel better when they have a pritty dress on.

Dining room pictures are generly pictures of food fallin out of baskets and ded fish looking serprised, but there is no such a thing as bathroom pictures of spunges being dived for and people with soap in their eyes.

Radio Fans Corner

Reception took a long backward step over the week end and wound up just exactly where it was when we started crabbing about the local interference a while back. Well, it certainly was liberty week for the local interference Saturday and Sunday and it rather spoiled things for the fans. Made a person mad when it stopped and started in spasmodic jumps like that.

I think those that compile the radio schedules are trying to fool us, well if they are it's a mean trick and I will state right now, as somebody other than Little Jack Little, can't be found to hear him yesterday afternoon and no Jack, chased all over the dial looking for him and finally had to give up the hunt.

The old "Nutty" Club were kicking their heels again last night or rather at 1.00 this morning from station WHAD and they were in fine fettle and a number of theatrical stars, members of this club have a crazy time but they are provide plenty of amusement for the fans.

Before Amos 'n Andy tonight we can tune in on the Ten Timers at 5.45, WEAF and the program of the Mormon Tabernacle Choir at 6.15 from Salt Lake City and heard over station WJZ. Then for the trials and tribulations of Andy and he certainly is kept busy in trouble right now.

The "Cycales" at 8.30 from WEAF and the "Family" party at 9.30 also from this same station. Symphonic and Dixie Rhythm Makers at ten and 11.00 brings us the strains of "Sweet Lady," smart signature song of Florence Richardson and her all-girl orchestra. Horace Heidts at 11.30 and Phil Spitalny at midnight.

The "Jesters" at 7.15 WJZ, Bill Cook at 7.30 and Roxy and his Gang at 7.45. The Shavers at 8.30 hold out an attractive program and so do the Maytag orchestra which we'll hear next, 9 o'clock. Real Folks at 9.30 and Dixie Ellington at midnight. Guy Lombardo and his Canadians from WABC at 10.00 tonight, so I'll meet you later on the air.

LOCALS TO OPEN HOCKEY SEASON THURSDAY NIGHT

Trenton Will Bring Strong Team Here for Big Battle

The time for real action has arrived and on Thursday night the official opening of the O.H.A. hockey campaign will take place. The seniors will be into a huddle and devise ways and means of defeating Queen's seniors and Trenton in the league race. One game may have a distinct bearing on the league race and the locals are playing nothing to chance in the hope that the first game will be reported in the win column. Although there are only two teams in the Senior O.H.A. it is on the books that it will be a hectic race, and that the league will not be decided until all the games are played. There is no easy fixtures, but friendly rivalry between these two scrappy and the battle on the ice will again at some of the fast-and-fast-and-fast-and-

She Couldn't Be Hoodwinked

Miss E. Thomas, of Clapham, writes:—"I find that Carter's Little Liver Pills will do more to keep the complexion clear, and the skin free from blemishes, than all the face creams I have used. I found the real cause of face blemishes was usually due to liver and stomach troubles. My druggist recommended them as a specific for stimulating the liver and expelling the constipation poisons from the system."

Take Carter's Little Liver Pills for sick headache and indigestion. All druggists 25¢ and 75¢ red pkgs.

Picton

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

PICTON—Reports from the Township of Hallowell Marysburg are to the effect that several cases of rabies still are at large and that nearly a dozen flocks have been attacked and some twenty or more sheep killed and others badly worried. The dogs have visited farmers residing a few miles from the village of Milford. Farmers are keeping a close watch for the dogs and many flocks of sheep are being penned inside as protection. Hundreds of dollars are paid out annually for this county for sheep killed or injured by dogs.

The snow this week is welcomed by the farmers who want to use their sleighs for getting out the winter's supply of wood. Cities and villages are now to be seen in town in large numbers for the first time this year.

Marysburg Council

There will be a contest for the mayoralty. Mayor C. J. Clapp and Councillor Jones are the two qualified. Mayor Clapp was elected to the office ten months ago, following the death of the late Edmund Perling. The contest promises to be a keenly contested one, as both men are evenly qualified for the office and have a large following.

UNITED CHURCH AT FRANKFORD HAD FINE YEAR

FRANKFORD—The choir of the United Church rendered splendid music on Sunday evening, December 21st, which was much appreciated by the congregation. On Christmas morning a service was held at ten o'clock when a large gathering greeted the pastor. The choir sang Christmas anthems suitable for the occasion. Sermon was from Luke 2nd chapter, St. Luke's Gospel, second chapter, verse 13.

On December 28th, the congregation were specially favored by a visit of Rev. Fraser, Missionary from Korea He has served in that country for the past sixteen years. He was greeted by large congregations at Stockdale, Zion and especially at Frankford. His addresses were helpful and inspiring.

Monday evening, February 26th, the United Young People's Society were entertained by the missionary. He brought with him some eighty-one lantern views of Korea. These were exhibited and explained to an audience of nearly two hundred young people. The president, Mr. Walter Mowbray, opened the meeting with Miss Lucy Moyles presiding at the piano.

A standing vote of appreciation was extended to the guest of the evening. Appreciation of the services of Mr. Cecil Fraser was expressed by the use of the lantern and his services.

Rev. A. S. Doggett presented the missionary income which was as follows:

Stockdale congregations and building raised at Zion did Frankford possibly $500.00. A slight increase over the previous year.

After the singing of "Faith of Our Fathers" the successful gathering was brought to a close with the benediction.

We would like to add that we feel no United Church should miss the opportunity of hearing Rev. Fraser and seeing the views he has of the Korean and their wonderful country. We heartily recommend his services to any who might be interested.

Congregational meeting for reception of reports by all departments of the churches will be held: Stockdale, January 6th at 8 p.m.; Frankford, January 8th at 8 p.m. Election of officers will follow the reports and a social half hour by all present at the meeting.

MENTALITY SHOULD DECIDE VOCATION

Montreal, Que.—Intelligence tests to determine the suitable vocations for individuals were advocated by Professor W. D. Tait, of the department of psychology, of McGill University, in a recent address. Dr. Tait took as his subject "Vocational Guidance," and emphasized the need for encouraging young people of superior talents, who he believed, were not receiving enough attention today. Men are not born equal, Dr. Tait continued, because of inherited differences, different mental capacities and different environment. Thus there are certain lines of endeavor for which every individual is fitted and if he tried to enter other vocations he would neither be successful nor happy nor of benefit to his community, the speaker said. At the present time chance played the greatest part in determining a man's sphere of work, and it was not realized that if everyone was engaged in suitable kinds of work, the culture and the standard of living of the country would be raised, Dr. Tait added.

From an economic, humanitarian, and scientific point of view, it was necessary to encourage children along suitable lines. If a man is not doing the work for which he is suited, his work is partially wasted. From a humanitarian point of view it must be realized that the welfare of an individual and of the community in which he lives depends on whether the individual is placed where he can develop a conscientious regard for his work. Then again, a suitable work or hobby helped to unify the personality of an individual, said the speaker.

Dr. Tait placed much faith in intelligence tests. They were useful beyond the experimental stage, he said, and were a dependable means of determining the mental ability of a person. He recommended that school children be subject to these tests, and the curriculum be adapted to suit the needs of the students. By taking into account a student's environment a teacher could determine the type of mental ability of a student. Then, if the mental qualities required for different vocations were known, it would be possible to solve suitable occupations for the pupils.

BARS REPLACE COIN OF REALM

The Mint at Ottawa Puts Precious Metal Into Bars

(By The Canadian Press)

OTTAWA — Canadian gold coins, which were exceedingly popular some years ago, are not manufactured nowadays at the Royal Mint, nor have they been minted since the year 1912. This information was obtained by The Citizen at the Mint here recently. It is thought there may not be any more gold coinage in the Dominion for a long time. International exchanges are generally settled in gold bullion.

The Mint is making gold bars, though, and these are being stored, distributed throughout the Dominion, or shipped abroad, as the occasion demands.

It is understood that the Finance Department of the Government has more than $100,000,000 in gold bullion in its possession at the present time. The Mint also at present contains 1,000,000 ounces of silver to be used in making silver coins.

CHRISTMAS TREE AT BETHANY CHURCH

The annual Sunday School entertainments and Christmas Tree were held at Bethany Friday, December 19, Camilton 22nd, Carmel December 23. The churches were very nicely decorated in harmony with the happy season, and large audiences, above the average gathered to enjoy the entertainments. The programmes were of special merit, and consisted of choruses, dialogues, readings, pantomimes, instrumental numbers and Christmas songs. The items were rendered chiefly by the members of the Sunday schools, ranging from the little primary classes, up to the adult members, and were much enjoyed by all. But the most entertaining and exciting part of the evening for the younger members came when Santa Claus arrived to superintend the distribution of the many beautiful gifts hanging from the branches of the Christmas Trees. Among the many fortunate ones to receive presents were the Rev. W. R. and Mrs. Merrick, who as usual was so kindly remembered by Santa through the generous and appreciative personnel of each of the above Sunday schools. The good will thereby expressed was deeply appreciated and the evening's program closed with the thanks and best wishes of the pastor.

REDUCE SALARIES OF SCHOOL MARMS

(By The Canadian Press)

WINNIPEG—Salaries of the school teachers in many places in the West are being reduced as a result of the present depression. A despatch to the Manitoba Free Press from Weyburn, Saskatchewan, states that the school teachers in the Lakeview municipality of the Wadena school district who are receiving more than $1,000 annually must accept cuts in salaries, ranging from ten per cent on salaries over $800 and not exceeding $1,000, to 20 per cent on salaries of more than $1,200.

In the school district of Qu'Appelle, Sask., the teachers have agreed to a reduction of 10 per cent on salaries. School trustees of all school districts in the municipality of Minitonas, Man., have asked the teachers to accept reductions in salaries for the remainder of the various terms. The amount of the reduction will have to be arranged between each school board and its teacher.

A Private Income of $100 a month for Life

... from age 55!

IF IN GOOD HEALTH —$100 A MONTH.

Just picture it. At 55, while still well and vigorous, to come into a private income (over and above other revenues), guaranteed for the rest of your life, of $100 a month. You simply make yearly or half-yearly deposits of an agreed amount for a specified period, at the end of which you begin to receive a monthly income for life.

IF IN ILL HEALTH —$100 A MONTH.

That's only part of the story. If, meanwhile, through sickness or accident you should become totally disabled, you cease paying premiums and receive $100 a month during such disability. At age 55, the regular income of $100 a month, unimpaired, comes into effect.

IN CASE OF DEATH —$10,000 CASH.

Look how your family is protected. Should you die at any time before reaching 55, your family receives $10,000.

When is a Cupful Not a Cupful?

Although manufacturers and sellers carefully test and check all recipes in terms of level measurements many a woman who cooks is without these accurate measures and hence fails to get the same results. She uses a spoon, a coffee cup, or, whatever else happens to be at hand. She measures half quantities in these cups necessarily by guess, and she has probably fair results, sometimes even good results, but they are not always to be depended upon.

And even measuring cups and spoons vary. If one cup is used for measuring the dry ingredients and another one is used for the liquids, and these cups happen to vary in size, a different proportion will result in the mixture; different enough in many cases to make the results disappointing. The recipes may be based, on the ingredients—the flour the fat—when an inaccuracy in the measuring cups or in their use was really at fault.

If you want to find out just how much difference there is in so-called standard measuring cups and spoons, collect all the cupfuls, sorts, and sizes of these measuring cups and spoons you can find and then measure various food materials—liquids and dry ingredients—with them, checking the quantities each time. The result will show appreciable differences.

Variations from an accurate cup are frequently as much as one to two tablespoons, and are sometimes as much as nearly a quarter of a cup. When you measure with ordinary tin and coffee cups, such as are frequently used in cooking, variations from an average cup may be as great as half a cup. Some of these cups aren't so far off when a full cup is considered, but in measuring parts of cups it is pretty nearly guesswork.

Manufacturers realize the need for accurate measuring devices. Spoons and cups, both of metal and of glass are now being made which conform strictly to Government standards.

It is worth-while to have cups and spoons of the right kind. They are no more expensive than others, as a rule. Then use these cups, and these only, for both dry ingredients and liquids.

The way in which one uses accurate measuring cups and spoons is important, too, just as much variation can be made by inaccurate measuring as by using cups of varying size. It will pay you to look in your cook book and refresh your memory on how to measure. Remember, it is important to use level measurements only. Results that are called "bad luck" may have happened because you were not quite "on the level" in your measuring.

Fashionably Speaking By Lucille

DEAR READERS:—

Stylists and buyers with a penetrative eye which peers into the fashions of a season yet to come predict a continuance of the vogue for both black and white for evening, used alone or in comparison. Either black or white is a foil for color, and either is made the more distinctive when there is much color present in any formal gathering.

Black is actually gaining in prestige rather than the reverse, as spring models begin to appear. Black in day wear, in sports, informal day dress and formal afternoon types, which include dinner styles. Although black is less important than white for evening, it is very prominent in formal models of the more simple genre. Black when heightened by a light touch of strass or rhinestones loses its somberness entirely.

White, on the other hand, is a dominating factor in evening dress in practically all materials. The gay flip of the frock of white satin gives an interesting use of tucking on the vertical.

Plain chiffon is used in quantity for the softer types of evening dress, in white, black, the pastel and more vivid colors. Triple georgette and silky sheer material acquiring prestige. Net, tulle, lamé, crepe satin, crepe Elizabeth, lace and supple satin retain their chic, but the most attractive satin models are those made of the most supple fabric, amenable to whatever detail or fabric work the designer desires to employ.

For afternoon the smarter fabrics will be the heavy, sheer types, such as triple georgette and crepe Elizabeth. Marocain, silk and printed Canton crepe crepe satin, and crepe de chine are destined to remain materially in the picture.

When colors are shown, the tendency is toward the stronger shades, particularly flag blue, coral, pink, emerald green, cardinal red and sulphur yellow.

Tweeds for handsome woollens continues unparalleled for street and sports wear. Basket weaves, wool and cotton pictures, sumptuous tweeds, homespuns, check mixtures, two-tone diagonals, plaid wool jerseys, fancy jerseys, diagonal plaid mixtures and in occasional block are the representative materials Paris has selected.

It naturally follows, when suits are on the scene, woollens pick up in interest. If not actual suits, spring models are frocks given accompanying jackets for completion.

Among the costumes distance tailored double-breasted or semi-fitted lines with additional concentration of pleats for both dresses and suits of an individualized type.

Fashionably yours,

LUCILLE.

Correct Manners

The Former Fiance

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have recently become engaged. About a year ago I was practically engaged to another man, but it was broken off by mutual consent. Would it be right to send him an announcement? We are still very good friends.

BETTY.

By all means send an announcement to this friend. It will show that you have a sure social sense instead of a narrow point of view.

The Gentleman's Place

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a husband and wife and a woman friend are walking on the street, where should the husband walk in the centre or on the outside?

READER.

Whether with one lady or with two ladies a gentleman walks on the side of the pavement nearest the curb.

The Restaurant Dinner Guest

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When dining with a man, and the waiter leads the way to a table, and pulls out a chair, should the woman take the seat he indicates, or the chair on the other side? Does her escort to help her with her wraps? It seems rude not to accept the chair offered by the head waiter, but the other day I saw a woman deliberately walk over to the other chair, allowing her escort to be of any assistance he desired. Is she rude in so doing to her escort and host, "You order for me, too?"

A.S.

1. It really doesn't make any difference which chair the woman not to delegate to her host those of taking her coat and wraps. Usually the head waiter stands behind the one that, in this way, suggests is the more convenient one. That is it may be the chair farthest from the service table or farthest from a passage much used by the waiters as they go to and fro. A more convenient for viewing an entertainment, if there is one in the restaurant. However, if the reason to take the other seat, it is for her to decide.

Which every seat she chooses, her escort should stand behind her until she has taken off her wrap, or until she tells him that she is not going to take it off. He should be very alert about this attention and should not give over this social privilege to the waiter. This is very hard form.

2. It is far better for the woman not to delegate to her host the task —for it is a task—of choosing for her the frock that she wishes. She should be no "accustomed" to making her own definite choice that she will not need to do this. It's a rather cowardly thing to do and a very expensive thing to do to make other people do our ordering. Determine what you want and say it definitely—and your companion will like you the better for it.

Epilepsy Requires Early Diagnosis

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Epilepsy continues to be one of science's greatest conundrums. At any rate, no single cause seems to be responsible for all cases and therefore what benefits one patient may not help another. Typical epilepsy is known as "essential epilepsy." Here the convulsive attack is often preceded by a warning of some kind—either a fear or a body sensation—and this is usually followed by unconsciousness, rigidity and shaking of the arms and legs, perhaps frothing at the mouth, biting of the tongue, etc., all lasting a minute or longer. Such spells may occur weekly, daily, several times a day or possibly even at monthly intervals.

Another form of epilepsy akin to the essential variety is known as Jacksonian epilepsy. Here the onset of the attack is about the same except that the beginning always shows spasms of a certain group of muscles—like one arm, for instance—before the convulsion spreads to the rest of the body. In Jacksonian seizures the nerve may be pressure somewhere in the brain. Only in these cases is surgical operation usually of any avail.

Still another kind of epilepsy are those slight but frequently recurring attacks of transitory loss of consciousness. These are the "petit mal" or "little sickness" forms in distinction to the essential type, described in the beginning, with its "grand mal" or "big sickness" attacks.

"Petit Mal" epilepsy often precedes "grand mal," by many months. Therefore the individual who becomes prey regularly, especially if he tends to fall, should always consult his doctor.

Then lastly, one may mention so-called "hero-epilepsy", which is really not epilepsy at all although it closely resembles any and all varieties. Hystero epilepsy is a form of hysteria and its treatment is directed to unconscious mind disturbances. It is the most hopeful form of epilepsy so far as cure is concerned.

Epilepsy is a tremendously serious condition which should be recognized as early as possible if the patient is to be aided. Even if it cannot be cured at least proper treatment may reduce the number and severity of the seizures and so ward off deteriorating mental effects.

Generally speaking the epileptic should cut down meat and his salt intake. A good digestion free elimination and exercise are required.

Furthermore, care should be taken that such a child develops a hopeful attitude and morbid ideas. The truth is that whereas several forms of treatment may not yield results the frequency of still another will. Two means that epileptics should not give up a reputable doctor's advice until they are convinced they cannot be helped further.

Patience is required and an optimistic attitude. Hope should always be fostered. And the patient should be allowed to lead a normal life except when such may subject the victim to convulsive seizures.

The sooner treatment is begun the better, and that holds for all types of cases.

Eloise And Her Ideas From Paris

Paris, Dec. 29.—What is probably the oldest panelled room in North America is now the dispensary of the Hospital General of Beauport, a suburb situated on the latter part of the seventeenth century as the refectory of the Recollet Monastery and which still has on its walls the panelling with which the monks sat at their meals. The historical interest of this was shown by Pro. Ramsay Traquair, head of the department of Architecture, McGill University, in a lecture before the Women's Branch of the Antiquarian Society in the Chateau de Ramezay.

The Hospital General is almost a compendium of Canadian history, said Pro. Traquair. The institution was dedicated by Mgr. St. Vallier, and it seems at times as if he still lived and still controlled the destinies of the hospital he founded. Mgr. Camille Roy, the chaplain, has the smallest parish in Canada, for the old church which is attached to the hospital serves one family, said Pro. Traquair.

The Hospital General is one of the oldest and certainly one of the most interesting relics of French-Canadian architecture, having had the singular good fortune to escape fire, said Prof. Traquair. The Recollet fathers came to Canada in 1615. Later they left Canada, but returned in 1670, and proceeded to build a monastery of which the corner stone was laid in 1671. The building was consecrated in 1673.

The years from 1685 to 1715 were spent in converting the monastery into a hospital, it and the chapel having been purchased from the Recollets by Bishop St. Vallier for this purpose. While St. Vallier was held in England as a prisoner of war he did not lose touch with his hospital, and in 1705 wrote a letter, outlining in detail alterations he wished made, to M. de la Colombiere.

The panelled walls of the Hospital General are covered with wood, Prof. Traquair noted. The infirmary was added in 1727. The floor of which were the cells that had formerly been occupied by the Recollets remained unaltered until 1843.

Speaking of the refectory as being probably the oldest panelled room in North America, the lecturer described the panelling as pine turned a rich dark brown by age. Two of the six refectory tables, of oak, were mentioned as having been in the room during the days of the Recollets. Some of the old pewter pots were given by Mgr. St. Vallier, Pewter, Prof. Traquair said, was made in Quebec at that time.

Other details were described by the staircases as dating probably from 1727. Between 1695 and 1697 the church was redecorated. On July 27, 1713, the church was struck by lightning which shattered the spire and damaged the altar.

Contrary to the common impression, the Quebec woodcarvers of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries were highly trained artists, said the lecturer, otherwise they could never have executed such beautiful work as remains in the province to this day as their monument.

HOSPITAL GENERAL LESSON IN HISTORY

'Jewry Oppose White Paper'

Boston, Mass. — At a special conference called here to discuss the first official reply of the Jewish agency for Palestine to the British Colonial Office's White Paper of October 30, New England Zionist leaders voted unanimously to support the Zionist fight against provisions of the British document.

"As the Jewish Agency points out," said Judge J. J. Kaplan, newly elected president of the Boston Zionists, "the White Paper ignores the fundamental basis of the mandate and demonstrates complete confusion on the part of its authors as to the obligations created by the mandate. The obligation of the British Government is an obligation to the Jewish people to administer Palestine with a view to favoring the accomplishment of a particular purpose, namely, the establishment of a national home for the Jewish people."

The statement of the Jewish Agency, criticizing the White Paper as "unfortunate in its contents and not less unfortunate in the tone and outlook" criticizes the paper under five summarized headings, as follows:

1. The White Paper misrepresents and misinterprets the mandate.

2. It lays down principles which in vital particulars modify, to the advantage of the Arabs, the mandate embodied in the White Paper of 1922, and which are incompatible with the normal development of the Jewish national home as contemplated in the Mandate.

3. Though it purports to be based on the report of Sir John Hope Simpson, it gives a false impression of his findings on a number of important points, and, while emphasizing those features of the report which can be turned to the disadvantage of the Jews, fails to bring out the true nature of the constructive proposals which are the essence of Sir John Hope Simpson's final recommendations.

4. While ostensibly designed to promote cordial co-operation between the Jews, Arabs and the Government, it imposes an opportunity of introducing injurious, and in some cases quite irrelevant allegations, of which the effect is not the purpose, must be to discredit the Jewish Agency, to disparage Jewish achievements in Palestine, and to encourage the hostile disposition of the Arab population.

5. Quite apart from its specific proposals which are, indeed, so unprofessed and ambiguous that it is not easy to be sure of their precise significance, the White Paper is conceived in a spirit which is not that of a Government seriously interested in the establishment of the Jewish National Home, and conscious of having in this regard responsibilities implying, not merely a reluctant and grudging acquiescence, but active and positive co-operation.

"Nothing could be more distressing to the Agency than to find itself in a position in which it must either protest against the White Paper or mislead His Majesty's Government as to the feelings of those it represents," says the memorandum in conclusion. It was the duty of the Agency to make it clear that any departure from the world unanimously believed the policy of the White Paper was not in harmony with the spirit of those solemn engagements the Mandate responsible for creating in Palestine conditions that would secure the establishment of the Jewish National Home.

They went up in the elevator and were shown to the lawyer's rooms. John Trowbridge was an old man, silver-headed, lean, sharp-eyed. There was a younger man evidently a secretary in the room with him, and this man opened the door. But immediately the lawyer rose forward, and Stanhegard Margaret called by the name that she was to wear for so short a time.

"Mrs. Theobald!" old Trowbridge said, taking her hand. "I am glad to see you, Madam. I am relieved to see you looking so well."

"This is the little boy," Margaret said, with some emotion, presenting the child.

The lawyer turned and looked keenly at the ruddy little friendly face, and the bared, cropped yellow head, and the blue shining eyes. And Margaret looked with a sort of timid and anxious pride at the lawyer.

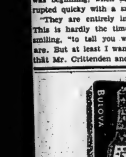
Stanley, studying the group, thought he had never seen anything more touching and more dramatic than the picture they made; the old lawyer with his concerned and kindly face, the splendid child, his blue eyes so confidently upraised, and the slender, eager woman in her black, with violets at her breast, and on her countenance such tender, anxious interest upon her thin brown face.

About them, for a setting, was the big room, lighted by the softly moving shadow and shine that crept in from the hot out-of-doors. The shades were drawn, and the tempered golden light, touching Margaret's warm coloring and cloudy dark hair, made her, Stanley thought, more beautiful than he had ever seen her.

"This is the baby?" the lawyer said. Margaret nodded.

"Not motherless, after all," added the old man, smiling, "although it seemed for awhile that he was worse than orphaned, since the story" he asked Stan, half-turning.

"I am in—Mrs. Theobald's confidence," Stanley said.



"There can be no—flight, Mr. Trowbridge?" Margaret asked.

"What about?" he asked, smiling quizzically. "There will be a fight between the other heirs of Madison Richards, nephews and grand-nephews and the lady who calls herself the second Mrs. Theobald," he added, "but with that you will have nothing to do. Some share of the estate may not be covered by the will—there was a will made a month ago, I don't know anything about it," said the old man, indifferently, "but of course your interest in the community property could not be affected in any way by that. And it is entirely possible that this child will come in for a share of the remaining property—he must inherit something, as the only direct heir, in any case."

"It is a responsibility," Margaret said, gravely.

"It is a great responsibility," old Trowbridge assured. "Paul," he added, with an old-fashioned bow, "it is in safe hands. I am to see this other Mrs. Theobald on three o'clock this afternoon," he added. "And I shall satisfy her that she is at least to inherit some personal possessions, and a proportion of the household silver—which was, of course, largely dissipated. If you will authorize me to handle your own claims, Mrs. Theobald," he was beginning, when Margaret interrupted quickly with a smile.

"They are entirely in your hands! This is hardly the time," she added, smiling, "to tell you what my plans are. But at least I want you to know that Mr. Crittenden and I——"

Her color had come flooding up radiantly and her blue eyes shone like stars. Stanley felt his heart give a great plunge of joy and humility and pride as he saw the lawyer's face brighten and felt the grip of the friendly old hand.

"I am glad to hear it," Trowbridge said briefly. "She has had more than her share of suffering and responsibility, Mr. Crittenden. See to it now that she gets back some of these lost years!"

"I shall!" Stanley said, smiling with his usual wide grin, but feeling his throat tighten nevertheless, and with the red blood burning in his brownest face. And he put his arm about her shoulder and drew her to him as if he could never let her go.

So there were no more recrets between them. And whether Margaret Crittenden really was the most fortunate and beloved woman in the world, or whether she only imagined herself so, because of the days when through wilful error she failed to happiness, concerned her only as an academic problem.

"My last trouble is over!" she told Stanley, on a certain glowing August afternoon, fourteen months after the talk with old Trowbridge in the St. Francis Hotel.

Stanley had just reached home—"Uplands" was always home, and had found her lying in a chaise-longue on the side porch. Over the whole silent world the peace and warmth and sweetness of harvest-time was lying like a tangible glory. The air smelled of fruit, and dry grass, the sinking sun was making a dazzle of pure gold through the leaves of the peppers and eucalyptus trees.

Jim, who had been in swimming three times in the last eight hours, was lying on the grass in the shade of gnarled branches of a great oak near the house; Nora was darning, below him, and Stanley, coming up through the border of zinnias, and the stock and hollyhocks and yellow daisies, with a stream of glittering water.

Margaret looked up with a smile, and was satisfied to lie still, but she had regained all her old color, and the face she turned to her husband's was surely the happiest in the world.

Stanley took a basket chair and dropped his fingers cautiously above the pink nostrils of the sleeping child, pink woollens that lined the white basket that stood next to his wife.

And from the fragrant cocoon within he felt the grip of small, firm, mutted fingers, and stooping, he could see the portentously concerned, scowling, sleeping, baby-colored face of Stanley Putts Crittenden, Third.

The thrill of it went all through his being, and he looked at Margret with something pleading in his shame-faced grin. He didn't know why the hand-clasp of this totally unconscious little fellow should bring the salt tears smarting to his eyes.

But she did not laugh at him. Instead she said reverently:

"Isn't he gorgeous? Imagine—seventeen days today, and he's gained exactly one whole pound. Now, really, Stan! He's going to be a big, raw-boned, red-faced thing like you!"

"Red-faced is right," Stanley agreed, staring at him in fascination.

"He was looking all about him today, as bright as a button," Margaret further boasted. "And I walked down to the barn, and we had a call from Mrs. Battersby, and we feel quite at home on our farm, don't we Pottsy!" she said persuasively, to the baby.

"Margaret, for the Lord's sake, don't start calling him that!" Stan protested. "You don't like it, do you Pig-ugly?" he questioned fraternally. "Pug little Skeesicks, he's got the deuce of a long name!"

"Between Ping-ugly, Skeesicks and Pottsy, I don't personally see much choice," Margaret smiled judicially. "But that reminds me," she went on, "I said my last trouble was over! My dear, Jim has made up his precious little idiot mind to call me 'Mother'!"

"Well, cry about it why don't you?" Stanley said.

"Well, it did sound so sweet!" she confessed, smiling and blinking. "You know how silly he's been about it! He would stick to that through thick and thin, neither Nora nor I could persuade him to change it! He calls you 'Dad' simply enough, but he'd gotten one of those baby complexes on my name! But yesterday, when the baby and I got home, he was terribly interested. I think he had been afraid that we were going like leave Trotkina—leave Stanny, I mean, at the hospital, because he kept walking about, proud and excited and even a little awed, and saying, 'Is he going to stay here? Like the Battersby's baby? Is he ours, for keeps? Won't he never go back?' It was awfully cunning.

"Finally, this morning, he came up here, where I had the baby, and I told him that after awhile little brothers would begin to talk, and would run about, just as the Battersbys' baby has learned to do. And he said, 'will you be his mother?' I said of course I would. He said, 'And what will he call you?' I said, 'Mother.'

"Jim went off and thought—you know his way—for a long time. And then he came back and said, 'You were my mother first, and if I don't call you 'Mother,' I don't think he ought to!' I said you, 'You can begin to call me "Mother" just as soon as you like!' And instantly he put his hot little mouth down my neck, said, said, 'Mother! And, my dear, to hear how smoothly he got it off now, you wouldn't think that he'd ever thought of giving me any other name!'

"So that hideous trouble is over!" Stanley said. "And we can raise our heads and try to live the memory of it down?"

She did not answer in words. But she smiled at him, and stretched toward him her lean, exquisite brown hand. And for a long time they sat without speaking, while all about them the world deepened contentedly in the sunset, and while the clean slashing of the water, and the lazy, distant splashing of the cows, and the dreaming noise of bees, shooting like bullets over the invisible roadways of the scented garden air, came dreamily to their ears.

Jim, from the higher branches of the oak, gave an occasional triumphant shout; Hang, in the distant kitchen, chattered half-audibly to Chung, a screen door clammed, and there was stillness. From the dark velvety wallflowers came waves of rich, warm scent. And in the pink and white depths of the cradle the baby snuffed and fussed, half opened eyes filmed with sleep, and slept again.

"It's all so beautiful, Stan," Margaret mused, after awhile.

He looked at her, with his half-serious grin. And the thought of what he had been a few years ago, and what her inspiration and her love had made him, came over him suddenly, and made him feel somehow proud and yet humble, ashamed and yet exalted.

"It's all you—", he said.

N.B. OFFICIALS VISITED MAINE

Investigate Methods of Road-Making in the Eastern State

Augusta, Me.—Premier John B. M. Baxter and Colin Mallet last week end met Governor William Tudor Gardiner at the State House. "I am happy to greet you, Premier," was the hearty boss and should at least be neighborly,' said the Governor. "Well, Governor, at least we have the Maryland fences to mend" said the Premier.

Premier Baxter had come with a party of officials of the Province to investigate the methods of road-making hard surfaced roads and of handling recreational traffic.

Escorted by Clarence C. Stetson, Chairman of the Maine Development Commission, the New Brunswick notables motored to Bangor Wednesday morning and spent several hours with the State Highway Commission in a discussion of road building. They were the guests of a dinner party at noon together with members of the Governor's council.

The visitors entered the State, at Houlton where they were welcomed by Frank Peabody, chairman of the State Highway Commission, acting as the Governor's personal representative; Fred S. Doyle of the Maine Development Commission, Chief Justice of Selectmen of the town, and a cavalry escort from the 151st. Field Artillery. After lunch they proceeded to Bangor where they were the dinner guests of Clarence C. Stetson at the Penobscot Valley Country Club.

They left Bangor Wednesday late Wednesday afternoon viewing much of scenic Maine the following day when they motored to Bar Harbor for lunch at Machias and Calais with stopovers at Lucerne and the famous Black House at Ellsworth.

As a result of their visit to the State Highway Commission, Frank Peabody, chairman of the commission and Percy Black, Chief Engineering Department to New Brunswick where he will explain to D. A. Stewart, Provincial Highway, Maine methods of surfacing roads.

The plan of the Maine Development Commission and the New Brunswick Bureau of Information and Travel for a "Down East Route" from Sidney in Maine, to St. Stephen, Saint John, Moncton and Campbellton, N.B., re-entering the State at Van Buren or Houlton was heartily endorsed by the premier and Governor Gardiner as a means of stimulating the recreational business both in the State and in New Brunswick.

In the party were Premier Baxter, C. L. Stewart, Minister of Public Works; Hon. H. A. Stockton, K.C., Richard, Min'ster, Lands and Mines, J. D. McKenna, president New Brunswick Telephone Co.; Frank Ross, Playfair Interests; Howard P. Robinson, Manufacturing director, New Brunswick Telephone Co.; and Sidney Logan, president, Canadian Paper Co.; B. H. Kinghorn, Chief Highway Engineer of New Brunswick; A. W. Barbour, Deputy Commissioner of Public Works and J. D. Black, Director of the New Brunswick Bureau of Information and Travel.

A.G. THOMPSON IS GIVEN RING

Bloomfield town hall was the scene of a happy gathering on Tuesday evening when about eighty gentlemen gathered to honor Mr. A. G. Thompson, who for the Bloomfield district become manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch at Campbellford. He has been manager of the Bloomfield branch for the last six years, coming from Campbellford where he was accountant. Mr. Thompson is a native of Belleville.

Mr. Thompson was presented with a Masonic ring and an address was read by Mr. S. Edgar Mastin. Music was provided by Bloomfield orchestra and short addresses were given by E. B. Purtelle, who acted as chairman, Rev. C. B. Reddick, H. Gough, H. Y. Cooper, B. R. Lewens, Fred Hubbs, H. Leavens and Dr. Alexander.

A bountiful repast was served by the Women's Institute.

Mr. Thompson suitably expressed his appreciation of the gift and was sorry to leave so many good friends.

The address follows:

Mr. Thompson:—Friend, neighbor, counsellor: We have learned of your approaching removal from among us with regret, tempered however by pleasure at your promotion.

During your period of sojourn with us you, by your many estimable qualities, have thoroughly established yourself as peculiarly fitted for your responsible position. Your intimate acquaintances with financial and commercial affairs, coupled with your unfailing personal courtesy and friendliness, have made you an acquisition to this community, whose appreciation you so fully enjoy.

You have always been ready and willing to extend every warranted financial assistance to the bank's clients; whose confidence your genial manner and personal interest secured. This coupled with the counsel you were able and willing to extend in business matters, causes us to realize keenly the loss of the commercial and business life of the village and surrounding country will sustain, and to regret your going.

In social life you and Mrs. Thompson have left nothing to be desired. Mrs. Thompson coming among us a stranger, has by her real womanly courtesies and kindnesses, her active interest in social affairs, her willing, capable and unstinted contributions to private and public entertainments, commanded our utmost respect and esteem, and the place she has filled in our social and community life will always be pleasantly remembered and never forgotten.

We hope your stay among us will furnish a pleasant link in memory's chain which will not be easily broken, but which will hold strong and close to our village and our many friends here, through the many happy years which we trust you, Mrs. Thompson, and family will enjoy together.

In conclusion, we regret to lose an institution's need of a competent head, in a wider sphere than our village offers, has been the occasion of your removal, and it is gratifying to us to learn that our estimate of you has been verified by the executive of your bank.

We are sure that their confidence has not been misplaced and that this advancement is but an earnest of greater things which await you for we sincerely hope that your able, ambitious effort will ultimately be rewarded by promotion in the General Management of the institution, the interest of which you have so ably safeguarded and advanced while with us.

As a souvenir of your stay among us and a slight memento of the esteem of your many friends in Bloomfield, we present you with a ring, and ask that you accept this ring which we know you will not value for its small intrinsic worth, but which will instil in the intended mission, if as it encircles your finger it reminds you of the friends, many of whom now in person surround you, who wish you God speed and will go with you and continue to encircle you and perchance inspire you in your useful and honorable career.

May the opening in the ring remind you of the void in our lives to be filled by memories of pleasant and profitable intercourse with you while here.

Signed on behalf of your multitude of Bloomfield friends.—S. Edgar Mastin, Ed. B. Purtelle, Chairman.

EXPORTS DOWN PRICES LOWER

NEW YORK — (By The Canadian Press) — The steady growth of international commerce has been interrupted this year for the first time since 1921 by a net decrease of about eight per cent in the world's trade, statistics of international trade issued export trade, according to the annual by the National Foreign Trade Council. The Council's compilation also discloses the fact that, in spite of the present downturn, international trade, in current dollars, is about 50 per cent and about sixteen per cent greater in volume than it was in 1925. About two thirds of this gain in the tonnage of world trade, that had been made since 1925 up to the end of last year, will thus still be retained at the end of 1930, on the basis of present figures covering about half the world's commerce.

World export trade for 1930, according to figures up to December 1 for nations carrying on about half of the world's commerce indicate that the export trade of the 101 nations of the world will be about 23½ billion dollars for 1930. The total exports of these 101 nations for 1929 were $34,427,000,000, both figures being reduced to the common index of 1921 prices.

A notable fact of the year's business is that European export trade has been less affected by the present depression than that of any other section of the world. The actual volume of Europe's export business has remained very close to what it was in 1929. Though its trade is less than last year's in current dollar values, this is almost entirely due to the fall in prices. In 1929 the aggregate export trade of the 27 European nations had at last reached 99 per cent of its pre-war volume, five figures reported by the various governments place the 1929 total at $19,985,000,000, $14,jested to 1913 dollar, compared with the $12,086,000,000 actually reported by the nations for 1913.

The outstanding element in this progress has been the rehabilitation of Germany, whose export trade has made up s-rears from its 1913 volume, is practically 40 per cent above the present growth began to get under way in 1915. Great Britain came in 1929 within five per cent of its 1913 export volume and all the other nations of western Europe, with the exception of Holland, have a similarly increased volume of exports over the pre-war year. In 1930, France, Russia, the Irish Free State and Switzerland, for which no statistics have actually gained ground in the volume of their exports. Germany is within one or two per cent of its 1913 export volume, while British exports, in spite of heavy losses early in the year, are only about 10 per cent less than 1929.

Canada's Position

The decrease in the world's export trade this year have been almost entirely in the countries which chiefly produce raw materials. Such countries as Japan, second and third to the United States in the amount of foreign trade gained since the war, have suffered losses as compared with last year, in excess of 10 per cent. Such American exports, notably those of Argentina and Brazil, have decreased in volume this year by a like amount, and the nations of Latin America, in general purchased in the first quarter of 1930 which, with few exceptions, had already appeared in 1929. Latin America, however, is still about 20 per cent below its 1913 volume.

Canada's export trade in 1930 was reflecting the general reduction in world prices, but was substantially reduced the volume of its products entering international trade. The chief exception is the automotive industry whose exports, almost 90 per cent of which come from the United States, have dropped off during the present year almost by half from its 1929 record.

Christ Church's 66th Anniversary

FEW SURPRISES ARE FURNISHED IN COUNTY VOTE

Ex-Warden Vanderwater is Defeated at Hands of Wm. Rogers

AN AVERAGE VOTE

John Meagher, Veteran Reeve of Tyendinaga Met His Waterloo

Some new faces will be seen in the township councils at their next session but for the main part the old reeves, deputy reeves and county councillors were returned by acclamation. Voting throughout the county of Hastings yesterday provided few upsets, but the surprise was furnished when Colonel Roscoe Vanderwater, Warden of the county last year, was beaten out in the race for reeve, by William Rogers, by a majority of over one hundred votes.

J. A. McKinney rolled up a majority over John S. Meagher in Tyendinaga township and will be reeve for 1931. Earl Sonter was re-elected reeve in Ameliasburg township, but in the majority of the other townships in the county the reeves and councillors were put in by acclamation.

In a closely fought contest in the village of Stirling, Thomas Montgomery, ex-Warden of the county, defeated William H. Patterson for the reeveship by just under fifty votes.

The storm, that swept over this section of Ontario yesterday kept some of the voters at home and no phenomenally heavy vote was cast. Below are listed the results of the elections in the various villages and townships yesterday:—

William Rodgers, Deputy Reeve of Sidney last year defeated Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, D.S.O., Reeve of Sidney and presiding Warden, for the County Council in 1930 in a stiff contest yesterday by 134 majority. Edgar Morrow was elected Deputy Reeve by acclamation. George Bush headed the poll for council with Olen Ketchenson second and Nicholson third. Councillor Bush was elected for a seat by a small majority. The result of the vote follows:

KINGSTON IN THROES OF SEVERE BLIZZARD

Kingston, Jan. 6—Kingston and district experienced the heaviest fall of snow of the season last night and this morning when more than a foot of snow fell with the result that the usual traffic tie-ups were felt. Telegraph and telephone communication was not in any way interrupted despite the heavy sleet.

PLANES SPANNING SOUTH ATLANTIC

Expect Journey from Africa to Brazil to Occupy 16 Hours

Bolama, Portuguese Guinea, Africa, Jan. 6—Twelve Italian Savoy seaplanes struck southward across the Equatorial Atlantic today toward Natal, Brazil, in one of the most ambitious flight projects in the history of aviation.

Undeterred by the bad weather the twelve planes took off one by one from their anchorage here at 9 p.m. Eastern Standard time and in murky darkness began the long trip of 1,600 miles which lay between them and the northeastern tip of South America. It was hoped to reach Natal in between sixteen and twenty hours.

This is the longest and most difficult leg of the squadron journey from Orbetello, Italy to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

DISCUSS ACTION OF POLICE FORCE

Toronto, Jan. 6—A conference between Mayor W. J. Stewart and the Board of Police Commissioners has been called today to discuss the action of the police in fingerprinting local taxi-drivers. It has just come to light that the taxi-drivers, who take no objection, are being fingerprinted in connection with the renewal of their driving license for 1931. Inspector Austin Mitchell declared that many men had volunteered to have their fingerprints taken and that none had been coerced.

COMPLETE PLANS FOR FLOWER SHOW

An enthusiastic meeting of the Central Committee of the Canadian Gladiolus Show was held in the Y.M.C.A. last evening. Reports of the different sub-committees were presented.

The Prize List will be ready for distribution about the first of Feb. Many valuable premiums have already been donated. Two very important additions were received last evening. One a silver cup in the form of a Dutch Windmill from one well known firm of Konynenberg & Mark of Moordwyck, Holland. The other was from the prominent American grower Mr. Elmer Gove of Burlington, Vt., who gave cash prizes totalling $100.00. This last prize was for new Canadian seedlings that have never been shown before, and that are not in commerce.

The committee are of the opinion that this will be the most successful show ever held in Canada.

Latvia plans closer supervision of all motion picture theatres.

CUSHIONS TELL MUTE STORY OF MARINE TRAGEDY

Party of Searchers in Lake for 15 Hours But No Fears Felt

PLANE CHARTERED

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 6.—The Village of Bath has settled down to a calm wait an hour after hour brings no further news of Captain William Sheridan, Cecil Phillips and one companion known as Anthony Kane of Oswego, all of whom are believed to be adrift somewhere on Lake Ontario in a power boat. A search boat, taken out by Stanley Fairbanks of Bath, at about o'clock Sunday night, has returned to the village and but Fireman and relatives of the searchers feel no apprehension as they believe the men are safely in shelter at some of the islands.

Kingston, Jan. 6.—Boat cushions found by Pat Peterson on the south side of Amherst Island yesterday morning were identified by Bruce Lowery one of the men who originally went out to the Island Sunday night, as those of Captain William Sheridan and his companions when they were reported lost in cushions from the Sheridan boat. Lowery was a member of the party which was with Cecil Phillips, and came back on the rescue boat, leaving Phillips at the Main Ducks with Sheridan and his men.

The search party, which left Bath last night at 8 o'clock with fifteen hours' supply of gas, had not yet returned this afternoon. The rescue boat from Bath was in charge of Stanley Fairbanks, and no fear is yet felt for the safety of the searchers. It is thought that the explanation of their tardiness is that the fog was so heavy they were unable to continue the search and laid up in a sheltered spot at one of the islands.

Clarence Phillips, brother of Cecil, chartered an amphibian plane, the Privateer, of the Curtiss-Wright Company, which was putting on demonstration flights at the airport over the week end, to make a search. Bad luck attended the plane, as in the take-off the motor missed, and the plane, being without brakes was unable to stop in time and struck a fence, injuring one of the wings and damaging a wheel of the landing gear. When the plane failed, efforts were made to locate the men by boat.

It is reported that a United States Coast Guard boat is searching in the vicinity of where the Sheridan boat was reported to have been last seen. Efforts have been made locally to have a tug take part in the hunt, but so far no boats have put out from Kingston for the scene of the search.

STORM WROUGHT DAMAGE ON COAST

Norlina, North Carolina, Jan. 6 — Six persons were dead today and many were injured in the wake of a freakish windstorm that late yesterday dipped down into two counties in North Carolina and one in Virginia, leaving devastation in its path. The damages to property will be quite considerable it was thought.

BRITAIN ENVELOPED UNDER THICK FOG

London, Eng., Jan. 6—A large part of Great Britain today lay under a thick mantle of fog, accompanied by frost which in some places was most severe. Lancashire and Cheshire were most severely hit. Motor accidents in great number and slowing up and confusion of shipping was the result.

Dog Catcher Goes on Job Taxes Payable, Tags Ready

Dog taxes are now payable and the tags may be secured at the police station.

Thomas Thorne, the dog catcher of last year, is again on the job in chase of tagless dogs, the owners of which will be prosecuted.

Complaints continue to come in of dogs biting or attempting to bite people and of chasing people.

THE OLD GRAY MARE DIED KICKING GAILY

Manitoba, N.S., Jan. 6—Martin G. Hilliard's old gray mare ain't what she used to be.

Three months ago, Babe, for 25 years faithful in every task at the reins, became too weak to stand alone.

Mike conceived a sort of sling to reach to hold her suspended in her stall. That was one of the many comforts the family observed upon her. She accepted them all with proper gratitude.

But yesterday the kind-hearted owner thought maybe a companion might cheer Babe up. So he took a day to her stall.

Babe kicked so hard at the animal that she fell out of the harness and all efforts to revive her were in vain.

EIGHT ARE MISSING IN MINE EXPLOSION

Beckley, West Virginia, Jan. 6—Eight persons were reported missing today following an explosion in the Glen Roger mine of the Ralph Wyoming coal mining company in Wyoming county, thirty miles from here.

The German "carp harvest" produced some 7,500 tons of fish, for 1930.

HIGHWAY TRAFFIC WAS NOT TIED UP BY HEAVY MANTLE OF SNOW

Telephone and Telegraph Communication was Maintained

Belleville, and this vicinity, got its first real snow of the winter last night and today train automobile owners were shovelling their cars out of garages, small boys were up at an early hour with their sleighs and off on the sidewalks and for the first time this season, everything had a real mantle of snow.

Although sleet started to fall early yesterday afternoon, changing to snow accompanied by a howling wind later in the evening, there was no damage to speak of done in the vicinity. "All clear", reported the Superintendent's office of the Canadian National Railways this morning. "We were very fortunate," one official stated to The Ontario Intelligencer today, "we did not have any trouble of any kind. The trains all ran on schedule and there were no mix-ups or accidents."

The Bell Telephone Company has the same cheering news. They did not have any trouble whatever with their lines and clear wires to the four points of the compass were maintained.

The highways are in excellent condition. Aselstine & Sons, who conduct stage routes to the northern points of the county, stated today that their busses were able to get through all roads with no trouble and were also to keep up on their schedule. Snowplows were out on highway No. 2 last night, cleaning off the snow.

Five delivery of mail was begun sixty-seven years ago.

DEMAND RECALL OF THE MARINES

Mexico City, Jan. 6—Representatives of Augustino Sandino, Nicaraguan insurgent chief, and Juan Constantino Ocasales, who calls himself secretary of Mexico to Sandino, were made public today. Both demanded recall of the U.S.A. Marines from Nicaragua, Sandino's note was particularly bitter, "In order to save Nicaragua it is necessary to burn it. If the invading assassin is going to rob us of our homeland at least he will have to rebuild it over the ashes of our bodies."

MAY BE FORCED TO FORSAKE FLIGHT

London, Eng., Jan. 6—Amy Johnson, the Aviatrix, today told the Evening Standard by telephone from Warsaw that she may abandon her flight to Peiping across Siberia. "I hate to give it up" she said, "but it seems quite likely now that I may have to abandon my trip". Miss Johnson's plane was damaged yesterday in landing near Warsaw.

Samuel Johnson, who published in 1747 the first complete English dictionary, managed to collect no more than 50,000 words. Webster's dictionary, published seventy years later, contained 160,000.

BADMINTON GAMES

On Saturday night, January 3rd, the Kingston Badminton Club were guests of the Belleville Garrison Badminton Club. Both senior and intermediate teams played a match of the winter schedule. The Kingston players proved themselves to be superior to the players of the local club, showing the result of hard concentrated practice which they have every day. Belleville lost in both divisions, the seniors losing 6-15 and the intermediates 9-12. This season the Belleville team is very much weakened by the loss of "Army" Arm strong and Jack Rooney, two of the best players. After the play supper was served in the lounge. The hostesses were Mrs. Eric Keeler, Misses Doreen Walker, Helen Potter, Leona Riggs, Charlotte White.

On January 16th and 17th the annual tournament of the St. Lawrence Badminton League is to be held in the Brockville Armouries. This is a tournament to decide individual champ ionships in singles and doubles, it is hoped that a large entry will be received from the Belleville Garrison Club.

SHOWED HIS OWN MOVIES

His own moving pictures taken in Africa on his journey by motor from Cape Town to Cairo were shown members of the Rotary Club at their meeting at Hotel Quinte on Monday by Mr. Robert J. Graham. The speaker gave an address supplementing and explaining the films. These were very much appreciated by the members of the club as they showed conditions in the Dark Continent as well as pictures of some wild life.

CAR SKIDDED INTO POLE

When a car owned and driven by Edward Beach Mee, of Shawville, Pontiac township, Quebec, crashed into a hydro pole on Farley's hill in Trenton about 8.30 Sunday morning Mrs. Mee had her arm rather severely hurt while the other occupants of the car received a severe shaking up. The car was badly damaged. Wm. Mee and his wife at the time of the crash were his son-in-law, Alan Judd and Judd's wife, an eleven months' old baby and a nice, Lola setter, aged four. Apparently Mee jammed on his brakes in the middle of the hill and skidded into the pole.

MARINE TRAFFIC WAS HAMPERED BY SEVERE FOG

Freighter Was Aground off Long Island According to S.O.S.

New York, Jan. 6—A Long Island Sound steamship rammed a car float, the freighter sent out a distress call and maritime traffic from the liners to the ferries in New York harbor inched its way along today in a heavy fog which followed a January grisade.

The passenger ship Georges Washington, bound in from Boston struck the car float in the East River, pitching three box cars into the water, making the float helpless and punching a hole in the steamer's bow.

The William N. Page, freighted with coal sent out an S.O.S. saying she was aground off Southampton, Long Island, with twenty-five men aboard. Coast guards went to help her. All transportation lines have been delayed and others await clearance of the fog to start.

New York, Jan. 6—Running in both directions, the Long Island Sound steamer George Washington was damaged in a collision with a car float in the East River today. The steamer's stem was twisted and a hole punctured in her bow, but she proceeded toward her pier, police were informed.

"ATLANTIC" — A BRITISH SUPER PICTURE AT BELLE

The whole of the action in E. A. Dupont's talkie for British International Pictures, "Atlantic," an adaptation of Ernest Raymond's play "The Berg" which is the feature offering at the Belle Theatre, today and Wednesday, matinee daily, takes place in three hours and is set on board a great ocean-going liner.

It opens with scenes of evening life aboard the liner. The ballroom is filled with dancers, and the smoke-rooms with people, while on the decks couples promenade to and fro, and all unconcerned, enjoying the night air before retiring. Then with dramatic suddenness, as the ship ploughs its way through the water, there comes a terrific grinding crash, dancers are thrown to the floor, card tables upset, and everybody is thrown in a heap. Then lightning the word flies around, "the ship has struck an iceberg." The dramatic qualities presented by such a theme can be readily recognized when handled by a director with Dupont's power of extracting the last ounce of dramatic force from such technoe situations. The variety of sounds in a "talkie" add to the effectiveness. Dupont was the producer of "Piccadilly."

Charlie Murray in "Their Wives Vacation," Fox Sound News with important happenings gathered from everywhere and a novel sound offering are announced for exhibition on the same programme.

WORLD'S CHAMPION PREFERS CHICAGO

Berling, Germany, Jan. 6—Max Schmelling, writing in the Berliner Zeitung, says he will defend his world heavyweight title in Chicago against any opponent picked by the National Boxing Commission, but that he will not defend it in a New York ring where he won it. He has some harsh things to say about the New York athletic commission.

JUNIORS PLAY IN KINGSTON ON WEDNESDAY EVE.

Schedule for the Local Junior Hockey Gru ps Re-arranged

A re-arrangement of the schedule for the Junior O.H.A. series in this group was necessary by the dropping out of Brockville. This team had joined the junior group of the Rideau Hockey League, which left Kingston Hockey Club and Gananoque as to the two remaining teams. The two clubs did not wish to carry on under this arrangement and invited the "B" section of the group including R.M.C. Queens and Belleville to join them in making a complete five team group. This was satisfactory to all the teams and the schedule for the group was drawn up yesterday afternoon in King ston with George Van Horne as convenor. The OHA. executive notified Brockville it was their last chance to compete in O.H.A. series but the management of the Brockville club believed they could better themselves in the Rideau League, as the expenses would not be as high and there would be more rivalry, which would better their attendance. Stan Burgoyne represented Belleville at the group meeting yesterday and was fully satisfied with the schedule as drawn. Belleville will play at home on Thursday, January 15th, Friday, January 16th, Wednesday, February 4th and Friday February 13th. The away from home games will start tomorrow night when the team plays Kingston Hockey Club the other dates being Friday, January 23rd, Wednesday, January 28th and Wednesday, February 11th. The complete schedule follows:

Wed. Jan. 7—Belleville at Kingston
Sat. Jan. 10—Queens at R.M.C.
Mon. Jan. 12—Gananoque at Kingston
Mon. Jan. 12—R.M.C. at Kingston
Thurs Jan. 15—R.M.C. at Belleville
Fri Jan 16—Gananoque at Kingston
Thurs. Jan. 22—Queens at Belleville
Wed. Jan. 21—R.M.C. at Gananoque.
Fri Jan 23—Belleville at Gananoque.
Mon. Jan. 26—Queens at Kingston.
Wed. Jan. 28—Belleville at R.M.C.
Fri. Jan. 30—Kingston at Gananoque.
Wed. Feb. 4—Kingston at R.M.C.
Wed. Feb. 4—Gananoque at Belleville.
Mon. Feb. 9—Gananoque at Queens
Wed. Feb. 11—Belleville at Queens
Fri. Feb. 13—Kingston at Belleville
Sat. Feb. 14—Gananoque at R.M.C.
Mon. Feb. 16—Kingston at Queens.

KEEN INTEREST IN OPENING BATTLE THURSDAY NIGHT

The hockey fans are steaming up over the senior tussle which takes place at the Belleville Arena on Thursday night, when Queens will be the Gold Diggers from this city ice horns. For years Belleville and Queen's have vied with each other for a place in the hockey results and to date the struggle can be said to be even but what this year will bring forth has not been determined. Queen's have a smart team and will take some beating. Morris in goal is one of the best goalies in the Province and earned his place by hard work and strict application. Murphy and Squires the dynamite twins came up from junior company together and make an ideal pair for defense. They have plenty of courage and are great offensively in fact the greater part of Queen's offensive lies in the defense. Lee, Gibson and Patterson form the front line of always choices and all of these boys are shifty with plenty of stickhandling ability and can get goals. Behind these boys is the line of last year McDowell, Day and Reist that can carry on while the regulars are resting. Wally Elmer the coach has developed a new system and it will be interesting to watch the battle of wits between him and Stan Burgoyne who will guide the locals.

Belleville will have their regular team out and every man is in the pink of condition and ready to go the sixty minutes at top speed. "Dusty" Jeffery thinks that Queen's will be easy picking, while Montgomery and Holway have already picked the "they shall not pass" men. Leachman, Smith and Mulvihill will be the gunners for the first front line with Davis, Weir and Hull in reserve. This should give the cash customers a tidy battle and it is to be hoped the teams will be greeted with a full house. The winning of the first game may mean the championship and Burgoyne is ready to mark it in the win column.

ANGLICAN YOUNG PEOPLES' SOCIETY ELECT OFFICERS

The annual meeting for the election and installation of officers of St. Thomas' A.Y.P.A. was held in the Parish Hall last evening at 8 o'clock. After the presentation and adoption of reports, which were found to be in a very healthy condition, the meeting under the chairmanship of the vicar, proceeded to the election of officers, which are as follows:—

Hon. President—Cecil Juby.

Presidential Committee—Margaret Tilley, Margaret Hardy, Fred Gardiner and Ralph Ashton.

Treasurer—Arthur Thomson.

Secretary—Elizabeth Whitten.

Editorial Secretary—Phyllis Davis.

Director of Music—Alfred Evans.

Executive Committee—Ena Potter, Mirion Lyons, Bernice Arbuckle, O. Smith and G. Washington.

After Archdeacon Lyons addressed the members briefly upon the foufold principles of the Association, Miss Jean Wallbridge delighted the gathering with her rendition of "Hungarian Rhapsody" Mr. Jim Haegerty, who was a most welcome visitor, was well received, and his two numbers, one vocal and the other instrumental, were much appreciated. After the programme, a social hour was spent and the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Light refreshments were served by the ladies during a social hour, which brought to a close a very pleasant evening.

NORTHERN ONTARIO LANDMARK DESTROYED

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Jan. 6—Word is received from Michipicoten River Village that the home of Joseph Legarde was burned to the ground. The house was a well-known landmark in the Michipicoten mining field, and played its part as a hostelry during the early boom days when it was known as the North Star boarding house. In it many of the mining deals of the field were discussed and consummated, and prospectors worked out their plans for the discovery of El-dorados under its roof.

UNIQUE DISPLAY AT ST. MICHAEL'S

Beautiful Representation of Nativity Graces the Altar

Today was celebrated the Feast of the Epiphany, the coming of the Magi. Masses at St. Michael's Church were solemnized at five-thirty, seven and nine o'clock. The most solemn was a solemn High Mass. This evening solemn vespers and benediction of the Blessed Sacrament will be celebrated at seven-thirty, the celebrants will be Monsignor Nicholson and the Deacon Rev. Father Madden and sub-deacon, Rev. Gerald Hanley who will be raised to the priesthood next Trinity Sunday. Rev. Mr. Hanley is at present a student at St. Augustine's Seminary at Toronto.

The crib in the southwest of the sanctuary was of especial interest today, with the figures of the three Magi or Kings, who after the birth of Christ approached the town of Bethlehem to worship the Child. Following the kings is a camel led by a Nubian while about the fields are figures of sheep and shepherds. The representation of the town of Bethlehem set on the hills, was thrown into relief by the forms of the Magi and their entourage.

The figures of the Magi have been seen in St. Michael's before but the camel and the Nubian have just been added to the figures used for the representation of the scenes of the Nativity and the subsequent incidents in the infancy of Jesus. The workmanship on the figures is very fine and the representation of the town, the manger with the Child and the procession of the Kings with the surroundings of the fields impress the eye and through the eye the soul of those who regard it, especially the younger members of the parish, the children.

AUSTRALIAN HORSE CHALLENGES WORLD

English Racehorse Owners Not Likely to Send Another Challenger

London, Jan. 6—There is keen interest in English turf circles over the record of Phar Lap, the Australian three-year-old, who has won the principal races in Australia, this season. Phar Lap's owner, a man named Davis, has issued a challenge to the world—but he stipulates that any match that is arranged shall be on Phar Lap's own battle-ground. And there is small likelihood of English horse owners sending a challenger all the way to Australia. Similar ventures in the past have not turned out so well.

Phar Lap's owner suggests a race for "any distance, and any amount," which leads Sporting Life to remark: "There is suggestion here that a second St. Simon has come forth, and of St. Simon the late "Matt" Dawson declared that he was as good at five miles as at five furlongs."

In the possession of a horse of all-round ability such as this, any man is to be congratulated, no matter what part of the world he hails from, and it is particularly gratifying that the owner of Phar Lap is a son of the Empire.

But English owners of horses worthy of taking up such a challenge remember Papyrus; and the recent big money inducements held out by American promoters for a World's championship test have so far not tempted the former to send valuable properties across the seas. They consider that all the fame can be won at home, and there is the prospect of the goals of the race-track being materially added to, in the shape of stud subscriptions.

"Good horses from distant parts of the world have always been welcome in this country, Sporting Life says. A greater "sport" than Howard Bruce, of Baltimore, the owner of Billy Barton, who sent that horse twice across the Atlantic for the Grand National, did not do nearly much at the first time of asking, one could not wish to have. Since then we have had John D. Hertz and Reigh Count, over from America, both helping to contribute to the pleasing chapter in English Turf history; and at the present time there is in this country Stephen II., belonging to an Australian enthusiast, for Montreal Hadassah in the Windsor Hotel.

"I've seen them come ashore at Jaffa," he said, "and kiss the soil with a great deal more earnestness than if they had been kissing their sweethearts."

They had read Tolstoy and Turgenieff, but they could not make a good glass of tea, nor thread a needle, nor circumcision themselves right away in rough work. But they were enthusiastic striving for a great ideal, and soon they learned how to take their place shoulder to shoulder with men as laborers, carrying loads, digging ditches and holes, welding crowbars and generally refusing to take advantage of the superior delicacy of their sex.

Having himself run a farm near Jerusalem, Mr. de Haas spoke from first-hand experience of labor conditions there. He employed four men and had also to employ a girl. Wherever as he was, he did not like to see her working as a laborer, exerting her slender one hundred pounds to carry rocks weighing two hundred pounds.

But when he tried to reason with her, she accused him of taunting her with the weakness of her sex, and she was only able to satisfy his sensibilities by employing her to tend seedlings, which he persuaded her she could do much better than the men.

Referring again to the Amazonian colony, the speaker said: "They were bobbed hair, just as you have, but from a different motive. It was because they wanted to look roughneck. They bought shorts and wore high rubber boots and tried to do the hardest jobs imaginable. That demanded that they be regarded not as women at all."

The speaker's message was that, just as women had been enfranchised by the Zionist organization, so therefore any other organization had enfranchised them, they owed a debt of service to the movement. And they even visualize the possibilities of a woman leader, ruling the Jewish destinies the world over.

"But such a woman must be interested in major problems," he warned, "and not merely subordinate, health-to-hand problems, as I am afraid you are at the present time."

ART EXPERT IS RETURNING HOME

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 6.—Although he enjoys an international reputation as an expert and connoisseur of art, and was recently appointed curator of the 1,500 pictures at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts which are valued at approximately $2,000,000, Philip L. Hendy, a young Englishman, was informed that he was not rated as a "desirable person" under the immigration laws and that the time limit allowed him as a visitor to this country could not be extended further. Hendy said he would return to England shortly and re-enter the United States under the yearly quota from England.

In the first curator to be given charge of the valuable collection at the Boston museum he has been commissioned by the trustees to select new paintings required by the institution in the future. Hendy was admitted here as a visitor in September 1929. His investigation of the immigration laws, he said, revealed that no particular time limit was placed on the stay of "learned persons" in this country. Individuals under the visa classification were limited to teachers and instructors in accredited schools and universities. A number of officials had told him that this definition could not be extended to cover workers in the field of art.

When his stay as a visitor expired, he was granted a six-month's extension and after returning to London last March was given another extension of six months this year. The second period of grace, rarely granted to visitors, expires shortly.

Hendy is a graduate of Oxford, will visit European art centres in the interest of the local institution.

AMAZON RACE REBUILD PALESTINE

Women Working as Laborers Wish to Look Like Roughnecks

Montreal, Jan. 6—How women, members of the Athenian Eden, are panning the wheels of progress with their shoulders in Palestine, and all for the sake of an ideal, was described by Jacob de Haas, of New York, of the administrative committee of the American Zionist Federation, to the Montreal Hadassah in the Windsor Hotel.

"I've seen them come ashore at Jaffa," he said, "and kiss the soil with a great deal more earnestness than if they had been kissing their sweethearts."

They had read Tolstoy and Turgenieff, but they could not make a good glass of tea, nor thread a needle, nor circumcision themselves right away in rough work. But they were enthusiastic striving for a great ideal, and soon they learned how to take their place shoulder to shoulder with men as laborers, carrying loads, digging ditches and holes, welding crowbars and generally refusing to take advantage of the superior delicacy of their sex.

Having himself run a farm near Jerusalem, Mr. de Haas spoke from first-hand experience of labor conditions there. He employed four men and had also to employ a girl. Wherever as he was, he did not like to see her working as a laborer, exerting her slender one hundred pounds to carry rocks weighing two hundred pounds.

But when he tried to reason with her, she accused him of taunting her with the weakness of her sex, and he was only able to satisfy his sensibilities by employing her to tend seedlings, which he persuaded her she could do much better than the men.

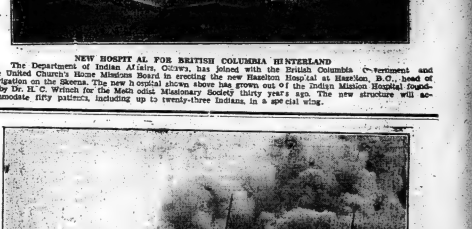
QUEBEC PROVINCE HAS CARVING SCHOOL

Montreal, Jan. 6—The province of Quebec enjoyed a definite school of carving and modelling under the late French regime, said Prof. Ramsay Traquair of McGill University, in the course of a lecture in the Chateau de Ramezay.



Instancing the work of Levasseur, Emond, the Baillarge brothers, Andre Paquet, Jean Mine and others, the professor showed that while Europe was modelling its work on severe Gothic lines, this province was continuing the work of the French renaissance.

NEW HOSPITAL FOR BRITISH COLUMBIA HINTERLAND

The Department of Indian Affairs, Ottawa, has joined with the British Columbia Government and the United Church's Board of Missions Board in erecting the new Hazelton Hospital at Hazelton, B.C., head of navigation on the Skeena. The new hospital shown above has grown out of the Indian Mission Hospital, founded by the Rev. W. H. Collison, Missionary Society thirty years ago. The new structure will accommodate fifty patients, including up to twenty-three Indians, in a specially wing.

IS PEACE EFFORT ONLY ILLUSION?

Stockholm, Jan. 6—Archbishop Soederblom of Sweden, who is considered by many as a possible winner of the Nobel peace prize, a few days ago made a remarkable speech in Stockholm on the subject: "Is the peace thought an illusion?"

"Now a generation grows up" the Archbishop said, "which was not present when the powers of hell were let loose over our part of the world. Youth is the barometer of mankind. In many places it now indicates thunder and storm. We must not speak about history or peace in such a manner that youth reacts against it. But the prospects are not bright. The disarmament, which we were promised, hardly seems to lessen the implements of destruction but to give them an increasingly awful perfection. We must never forget the menace hovering over this little European humanity, justly proud but unjustly conceited over its long-time position of honor and power, now squeezed in between the armed threat of the East and the world revolution and their universal state of America with its power of youth."

As hopeful signs of peace the speaker mentioned the supernatural Christian unity formed through the organized work for peace through the churches. He also quoted the striking resolution at the world meeting of the Anglican bishops, urging every church in every nation to refuse to recognize any war, unless the Government of its own country has declared its willingness to submit the dispute to meditation. A supernatural order of right is now being built up through the treaties between the nations to use arbitration instead of war to settle disputes. The speaker urged the people and the states to use the power to continue building up that structure which, according to our Christian faith is a continuation of God's own creation.

The Archbishop warned against the idea that anyone has a monopoly on the peace movement, since peace is always a matter to use for partisan interests. "Amongst the fundamental dogmas of the Christian faith is the brotherhood of all men around our greater brother Christ," he went on. "In this respect there is a duty also to weed out of the school books and out of the public mind of brasher history everything that breathes hatred or contempt against other countries. It is our human and Christian duty to work zealously and faithfully for the seemingly impossible —for peace. The one road to peace is a narrow one, on which every human does not leave himself in peace, but takes up an implacable war against old Adam in himself and in others."

WAY OF EVADING INCOME TAXATION

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 5 (CP)—An Oriental of this city, replying to a demand for income tax returns, wrote that he was selling shoelaces and "if you can show me how get much income on my business I am very like pay tax." A newlywed asking for an extension of time to pay her husband's tax, the lowest financial cycle in a man's life is six months after standing before the altar and paying 'I will'." A Scot, wrote in asking for a deduction of $1.04, representing twocent stamps which he had affixed to his pay cheque each week and forgot to deduct from his income-tax return.

CANADA AND POWER PROBLEMS

The World Power Conference in which forty-two different countries are represented meets as stated times in the various capitals of the world to discuss power problems. These periodical meetings at which Canada takes a leading part affords an unequalled opportunity to demonstrate to the world at large the position Canada occupies as a land of low-priced power with unlimited possibilities for industrial expansion.

Something like 5,000 motor coaches enter London every day, while more than 1,500 use that city for picking up and setting down passengers.

CROWDS ATTEND PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY GAMES

Bloomfield Seniors Impressive Display Wins In Fast Double Header

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Picton, Jan. 6—Nearly one-thousand fans were present at the second game in the Prince Edward County Hockey League, played at the local arena, Friday night, and were treated to an evening of good sport.

Demonstrating and assembled put up a battle royal and the Bloomfield boys succeeded in scoring three to their opponents' six. They were lawyer and forced their way through defence by sheer force. The game was outlined to be rough, but Referee Croft overlooked much as many members of both teams are playing their first hockey. Howard Reddick and Jesse Mercer, Bloomfield players, provided most of the excitement with their fine rushes and stick handling. For Demonstration, Hall and Dawson and Bolton looked best. Both goalies were given a great deal to do.

The second O.H.L. game of the affair brought the crowd to a high pitch of excitement and roars greeted each of the many spectacular plays. Some excellent hockey was played. The Collegians have a smart team, but found Myatt, Storms, Welsh and Young a hard stretch to break through to get at the Imperial's goal. Collegiate stars included Laverne, Wright, Hall, Boyle and H. Herrington. The Collegiate scored one in the last period and despite a great attempt by Imperial failed to score.

Miss Hattie David of Toronto is visiting the Misses David, Bridge Street. Previous to coming to Picton she visited friends in Napanee.

Miss Elleda McAlpin of Athens, and Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Berry and two children of Kingston, N.Y., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Alpin, Johnson St.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Smith were tendered a shower of gifts by their friends at their home on Ferguson Street, Mr. and Mrs. Smith were recently married.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Heffernan, of Midland, are visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Heffernan and other relatives in the county.

Mr. Will Purtelle has purchased the farm of the late George Munro at Demorestville and will take possession immediately. Mr. Purtelle is now living at Bethel.

Gordon Reed, Cherry Valley, has been announced as the winner of the T. Eaton Scholarship of $100 to be applied on attending the O. A. C. at Guelph, for his examination on Agriculture conducted by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Fifteen scholarships are given and Mr. Reed was winner for this district which comprises several counties.

Milton Storms and Son had their big Studebaker car damaged when going down the town hill. It steered on the slippery hill, hitting a hydrant, and smashing it off.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Hadgin have returned to Rochester, N.Y., after being guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Whaling.

Mrs. Kenneth Jinks of Rochester, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Strickland over the holiday.

The boy singers from His Majesty's Chapel Savoy are to pay a return visit here. A month ago they delighted audience which completely filled Picton United Church.

FIRE AT OWEN SOUND

Owen Sound, Jan. 6—Two serious fires occurred here, the first destroying a one and a half storey frame house belonging to Henry Courtney. The second broke out in the store occupied by M. R. Sheyck. Damage to stock so the value of around $5,000 was done.

AGONY OF INDIGESTION

Shuddered at Food — Now Eats Anything

Don't say that indigestion can't be overcome. That you must suffer from the fiery pain, the gnawing, sickening misery, the nausea, the headaches, the dizziness, the sour risings, the belching, the gas, the bloating, the heartburn, the coated tongue and bad breath. That one kind was recommended, another kind was that. Remember indigestion, gas, sour stomach, belching, etc., will not long be allowed.

"I first started taking Kruschen Salts three or four years ago. For years previously I had suffered agony with indigestion. Night after night, for weeks on end, I had very little sleep and I was nearly worn to a shadow of my old self for want of rest. I got so run down that I was afraid to cut out my evening meal, and was recommended to take all kinds of remedies, but none of them did me any good. About Christmas-time, 1928, one of my friends was one of your adverts "Take Kruschen Salts and enjoy your Christmas dinner," so acted on that advice. I started taking them, half-heartedly, I will admit, but after the first few days my attacks got less and less. I kept on, and they completely disappeared and I have been a regular 'Kruschenite' ever since. I am now 55 years of age, and I can eat anything at any time without any ill effects, and I sleep like a top, thanks to Kruschen."—J.R.C.

Indigestion is caused by a failure in the flow of the gastric or digestive juices in the stomach. All these years of being assimilated by your system, simply poisoning and breeding disease. The producing harmful acid poisons.

immediate effect of the 6th mineral salts in Kruschen is to promote the healthy flow of the vital juices of the body. Your system begins working again like a perfect machine. And that means a blessed end to indigestion, and a renewed and wholesome enjoyment of your food without the slightest fear of having to pay the old painful penalty.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 4/6, and 7/6, per bottle.

EARLY SPRING IS PREDICTED WITH FINDING OF ROBIN'S NEST IN ROCKIES

JASPER, Alta., Jan. 6.—Residents of this mountain town are telling each other that spring is already here because Vernon Sliter, a school boy, son of a locomotive engineer, Wednesday this afternoon on the Cabin Creek Trail discovered three warm robin eggs in a newly made nest in a spruce tree.

The robin is the first bird to return to this part of the Rocky Mountains, and its presence is considered exists however, of eggs having been discovered before May or June.

The unusual mild weather in the main Athabasca Valley in which no snow has fallen for the past four weeks is taken to account for the present vagary.

Thaw such climatic conditions do not extend farther than a few miles from town is vouched for by Captain Hons Gibson of Olds, Alta., who has returned from the Yukon, where while there he travelled on six feet of snow and in company with Joe Wood of Jasper accomplished an outstanding Alpine feat in ascending Mount McDonnell on skis in seven hours. Mount McDonnell is 10,650 feet high.

MARSHAL JOFFRE, SAVIOR OF FRANCE

In the time of France's greatest crisis, General Joffre had the fate of his country in his keeping. Events proved that he was just the man that Providence needed, a man of inflexible purpose, long vision, cautious temper incomparable common sense, and on whom danger made only coolness absolute. It was from the first Battle of the Marne that the authentic Joffre emerged. Preliminary to that great struggle, he had been under the gravest scrutiny before the on-rushing German hordes, step by step, on and on, until they reached the position Joffre had prepared for them to be called a halt and issued the most momentous order any army has received in the whole history of war.

"You must be prepared to die rather than yield ground. Weakness will not be tolerated." And Joffre had the courage to carry his words into effect. He and his written, which included British, "contemptibles," triumphantly passed the great ordeal, and if the finest victory of the war was not Joffre's the first Battle of the Marne, often referred to as the Miracle of the Marne was the symbol of that victory. It settled for all time the question of how did Joffre as master of the art of generalship and command.

Remember that Joffre was not only a great genius, but a great man. He was also a man of great character. Part of his grandeur in this respect was manifested in his human attitude which showed itself, apart from his genius and other high qualities, as a special thing. Vainglory was not in the least perverted and powerful, but if he was indifferent to applause and seemingly heedless of public criticism he was ever swayed by considerations for others, particularly the soldiers under him, and mindful always that all that was due to them should be acknowledged and, as far as possible rewarded. When Joffre wrote "we" in his orders, he meant, not himself, nor his staff, nor his corps commanders. He meant the army as he referred to his brave soldiers, by whom he was invariably and affectionately called "Papa Joffre." In an illuminating talk with Owen Johnson, the novelist, the Marshal once said: "In what you write don't make me too prominent. What France is doing is big. I do not want people to talk about me any more than the others. I am one citizen of France." And what a faith of citizen it was thought for the feelings of others that prompted him to minimize the nature of his last illness at his death. And when his leg had to be amputated fifteen days before his death he did not allow news of the operation to be published lest it might cause a "fuss" and mar for many the Christmas holiday season.

One of the great heroes of France, and perhaps her greatest soldier since Napoleon, Joffre remained always, and in virtue of merit, a supreme figure in the Republic to which he rendered such loyal and valuable service.—Montreal Gazette.

JOFFRE ANSWERS TRUMPET

There is no pathos in the passing of a tired, aged warrior like the late Marshal Joffre, Father of Victory in France.

Little more usefully can he written nor even the great soldier and patriot than already has been penned. All the allied world now pays tribute to the man who played a major part in the greatest struggle of all time. But this much is self-evident. Napoleon has been called a man of destiny. His personality and genius changed the whole course of history. Yet only during the past week one of the greatest military thinkers expressed the opinion that the world would have been infinitely better off had Napoleon never been born.

The Joffres are just as truly men of destiny as are the Napoleons. If evil genius can alter the course of history for worse, benevolent talent also can be used to alter it for the better.

Joffre was the anti-type of Napoleon in every way. Yet Joffre did for France what Napoleon never did or could do.—Toronto Globe.

"SAVIOR OF FRANCE"

The late Marshal Joffre had many of the qualities more generally associated with the British people. Not brilliant, but a human engineer, as Clemenceau, he was, on the contrary, stolid and phlegmatic, but he gave an impression of solidity of judgment and purpose which gained the confidence of all with whom he came into contact. Honest himself and thoroughly to intrigue, he had the faculty of looking at a question from all sides and then taking up a position with unflinchable tenacity. But it was this very honesty of purpose which led to disaster at the opening of the war in 1914, when he was unwilling to credit many quarters of the danger of a wide German flank movement through Belgium, and would not believe that the enemy would thus trample on a "scrap of paper." But, when they did, he made every effort to retrieve his error by concentrating the retreating Allies near Paris, and the "Miracle of the Marne" was the result.

The question: Who won the war? has often been discussed; it is not yet settled and probably never will be; but to Joffre goes the glory of winning the Battle of the Marne and thus restoring the morale of the Allies. His order of the day to the French troops was typical of the man. The time has passed to look backward, he proclaimed; every effort must be employed in attacking and driving back the enemy; troops which are unable to advance must, at whatever price, hold the ground gained, and die on the spot rather than retreat; with conditions as they are, no weakness can be tolerated. It is generally acknowledged that at the Battle of the Marne, Joffre's genius really took the war. On the victory being thus won, and the consummation of his name as the "savior of France."—Toronto Mail and Empire.

PORT COLBORNE DEFEATED DUKES

Sailors Trounce Marlboros in Toronto Arena — Was Well Earned

TORONTO, Jan. 6.—Another Toronto entry in the O.H.A. senior series took a tumble last night before the onslaught of persistent and capable out-of-town forces. While it took ten minutes of overtime at the Arena Gardens for the invigorators from Port Colborne to set their right course, there is no gainsaying the fact that the impressive manner in which Harry Shannon and Bill Mountain guided the visitors' ship of state through the turbulent shoals of the Marlboro defence for the winning goal, well earned their 3 to 2 victory over the Dukes. The crown carriers as in their initial appearance, seemed to be suffering from something similar to enough to keep them off their stride and seldom were they able to take advantage of the many scoring opportunities that they created. The Ports, on their display last night, appear to be the strongest senior club seen here this season, but as the year is yet young, the Dukes are still expecting great things of their boys.

Like other senior games this season neither team was outclass in the first half from Niagara Falls and West Toronto juniors of last season, interspersed between the teams, the spectators became acquainted with some of the players, and when play became speedy the howl sections were seldom idle.

Ports Open Scoring

Port Colborne's limber lot of active agitators were the first to tally. Marlboro muffed several fine chances with careless moves around the Navigators' goal and on a play that some say is Marshall Joffre, Father of Victory in France.

OSHAWA DEFEATS KITCHENER TEAM

Kitchener, Jan. 6—Harvey Corbett's Twin City Silverwood team of the Ontario Pro Hockey League, dropped a hard fought battle with the Oshawa Pats here last night by a score of 4 to 3 and as a result slid down into the cellar berth.

From the drop of the puck it was a fast interesting battle with the locals having an edge in every one of the three periods. Repeatedly they had the visitors tied up in their own end of the rink, but Freddie Faught, in the Pats' net was too good on most occasions making marvellous saves. Tim Clark of Barrie, looked after the goal-tending duties for the locals and made a good job of it.

Kitchener Opens Scoring

The locals opened the scoring after nine minutes of play, Freddy Barnes beating Faught from close in on a nice shot which caught a high corner of the net. Davey was off at the time.

A pair of rapid fire goals for each team featured play in the second period. Stanhope put the visitors on even terms with the Twin City six when he netted the puck on a Rice to Joyce to Stanhope play. Twenty-three seconds later Rice was credited for a tally which put the visitors in the lead.

The advantage was short lived, however as Schnarr netted Osborne's puck and 25 seconds later scored again on a combination play with Osborne and Hasty.

Rice and Stanhope combined for the tying goal in the third period and then Rice won the game for the Pats on a lucky goal.

As the locals pressed Rice shot the puck to the Twin City end to relieve pressure. The puck bounced in front of Clark and continued on into the net for the winning tally.

CORNWALL BEAT CHESTERVILLE 4-0

Cornwall, Jan. 6—Cornwall Colts had a sweet revenge on Chesterville here last evening when they defeated them 4 to 0 in a Central Ottawa Valley League tilt. The play was fast and furious during the first period but slowed down during the second and third stanzas as the ice got heavy. The locals found new spirit in the third and the visitors still held the low end of the 4 to 0 count they tried desperately to break their luck with the Cornwall goal-tender.

To Percy Whitford goes the scoring honors for the evening He was responsible for all four goals. Whitford while M. Jamieson and Collins rapped in the remaining counters. The teams:

Referee—Ernie Evaire, Ottawa.

Galt Registers Third Victory

Galt, Jan. 6—In the most interesting hockey game witnessed here in years, the Galt Terriers registered their third straight victory in the Ontario League when they defeated the Niagara Falls Yellow Jackets 3-2 last night. The Pickering east-siders have yet to break into the win column.

It was a hard checking, strenuous game that greatly pleased the crowd, which was much larger than the opening affair, and the fans went away better pleased than ever. The sub-form back-checking and team play proved important factors in the locals' victory, they excelling in getting in closer on the citadel than their opponents, and Bormister put in one of the busiest nights of his career.

The victors had an edge in speed, but they showed little effective combination, and solo efforts went for naught.

Guelph Squad Remains On Top

Guelph, Jan. 6—Alf. Skinner's Guelph Maple Leafs maintained their undefeated record in the Ontario loop when they whitewashed the Stratford Nationals here last evening by a 4-0 count and kept up at the top of the league. The game was played on sticky ice but despite the fact that the home stern were much lighter than their opponents, the Leafs traded bump for bump with them in the heavy going.

For the winners, the work of Bassett in the nets stood out, and the clever little centre man put up a great game both offensively and defensively. His sweeping check had the Nationals handcuffed.

Ironstone, in goal, made some marvelous saves and was again a leading figure in the Guelph win. Moore, Kenner and Goodwillie also went well. For the losers Hap Hazel, Spooner, McCoy and Morrison played smart hockey.

Stratford Reverse Kitchener Loss

STRATFORD, Jan 6—Stratford Midgets were stunned for their defeat at the hands of the Kitchener Panther Kittens in the first game of the season at Kitchener, by reversing the verdict in their return engagement here last night when the locals squeezed out a 7-6 victory after ten minutes of overtime. The game was at night fit and both teams battled in the last ditch.

Overtime should never have been necessary had the Midgets been more careful around the nets, but they would persist in trying to kill time while a man short, and the manner they adopted was to play around the back of their own net, the result was that the Kitchener lads snarped the puck and notched three counters by slipping the puck out in front of the local net, where a team-mate slapped it into the cage while uncovered. Kitchener notched two goals while Stratford was serving time and also notched another while the visitors were short a man. Loose defensive work on the part of the Midgets was mainly responsible for three counters that should never have been scored.

Advocates Selling of Apples by the Canadian Unemployed

Montreal, Que., Jan. 6—A woman writes to the Press asking that the unemployed should be urged to sell apples on the streets, as is being done in New York. She thinks that "1. A source of revenue would be furnished to the unemployed. "2. The farmers and apple producers could dispose of their apples. "3. The general health of the citizens would be improved—if there is any truth in the adage that 'an apple a day keep the doctor away.'"

LIQUOR EXPORTS ARE INCREASING

Also to "Countries Adjacent to United States," Big English Distiller States

London, Jan. 6—"Have you noticed any increase of export spirits to foreign countries?" was a question put to Sir Alexander Walker, director of the big distillery company, by Rev. Henry Carter at a recent sitting of the Royal Commission inquiring into the liquor licensing question. Mr. Carter being a member of the Commission.

Sir Alexander replied (amid laughter): "There has been a large increase to Canada and countries adjacent to the United States, of course." He explained that that spirit was obtained from the distillers here. They did not know it was going to the United States because it passed through so many hands, but they had a strong suspicion where it went. In Canada the Government dispensaries were selling these goods in their area and they went straight across the border. he asserted.

Mr. Carter: "Would you, as distillers, if you could, stop the export of spirits to the United States?" Sir Alexander: "Certainly not." "You could not?" pursued Mr. Carter. "We would not," replied Sir Alexander.

Bottled in whiskery, port wine and claret, which had been brought by Sir Alexander for the information of the Commission is shown to the public body. One of the members, F. B. Whitbread, said he felt thirsty and asked for a drink of water. He drank the water—plain. He laughingly shook his head at the suggestion of a fellow-Commissioner that the whiskey exhibit might be useful. Sir Alexander, explaining the samples he had brought said:

"Here is a bottle of port between 25 to 40 degrees of strength. There is a pint of whiskey 30 under proof. They both have the same content in alcohol. The consumer of the port—say a one-bottle man—could consider he was taking a temperance drink. Yet if, you offer him a drink of a pint of whiskey, he would think it was dreadful."

The claret, at 20 degree of strength was equivalent to four "doubles," Sir Alexander continued. "A man," he said, "might drink a major portion of the claret and think he was having a temperance drink. Yet if I asked him to drink the whiskey he would be astonished to think he was going to have four 'doubles'."

Sir Alexander was questioned by Rev. Henry Carter on his statement that the consumption of spirits was almost entirely confined to the middle aged and over. "What about young people?" asked Mr. Carter. Sir Alexander: "I think the consumption of spirits by young people has almost entirely ceased, with the exception of the type you meet in the West End, who drink cocktails. Young people on the whole appear to care more for beer."

McGILL MANUSCRIPTS WILL BE EXHIBITED

Montreal, Jan. 6—When the International Exhibition of Printing opens from earliest times to the present begins in London on January 7 next, many manuscript examples of Oriental manuscripts from the library of McGill University will be on exhibition, the institution having accepted an invitation to contribute to it.

The illuminated pages which have been selected include a page from a Shah Nameh or book of the Kings of Firdusi, illuminated about 1310; a very fine drawing of the Death of Alexander, dated about 1300 and a leaf from a 12th century Persian Bestiary showing on both sides spirited drawings of animals.

BELLEVILLE Day and Night

Radio Fans Corner

The storm certainly played havoc with the reception last night. It made it jerky and erratic every so often but between those periods everything was lovely. Continued that way fairly steady all evening so by midnight we were used to it.

The boys of Horace Heidt's orchestra weren't quite the Happy Californians last night that they generally are, no sir they were certainly a sad bunch of boys because as the announcer told us Lebo won dead. Lobo you'll remember fans was Clarence's beautiful police dog trained by him and loved by them all. Do you wonder the boys were sad?

WEAF has the edge on the program of WJZ 60-night because we can tune in at 9 and stick right with the station until 11.30 and hear cracking good programs. If they can come clear out from under the bed where he had taken refuge from the cruel, hard world we'll hear them at 7.15 per usual over WJZ.

At 9 we go brik to WEAF in honor of new programs, the Blackstone Plantation, which is having its premier tonight. Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit are the soloists, Alfred Swenson and Buxton Irvings contribute dialogue and the orchestra is under the direction of Jack Shilkret.

The Frolic at 8.30 over WEAF and that means Coon-Sanders orchestra a smart program if ever there was one. We can stick at 9 from WEAF for the next program starting at nine and tune in on WJZ because Percy Grainger's pianistic compositions is the guest artist, of the program being presented there and we all want to here Percy.

WEAF begin at 9.30 for the happy program of the "Bakers" closely followed at 10 by B. A. Rolfe and his Lucky Strikers. Duke Ellington and his Cotton Club orchestra at 11, by the way did you hear them play that beautiful "Indigo" number of Duke's last night? If sure was neat. Vincent Lopez at 11.30 same station. Don't forget the Cuckoos program at 10.30 p.m. WJZ to-night.

Over 2000 Volumes of Type Distributed

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 5.—(By the Canadian Press)—A delight on one of the most interesting activities of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind was given at a recent meeting of the directors when was shown the first volumes in Braille or other raised type had been circulated by the institute's library. Over 2,000 throughout Canada and in parts of the United States, and even in Mexico. The circulation was 500 volumes greater than in December, 1929.

The institute's library was established 23 years ago through the generosity of a donor, blind readers all over Canada are served by the library free of charge. Braille literature is also carried through the mail free of charge, every country being party to grant this concession, which was made in 1908. In addition to books loans the institute published a monthly magazine, the Braille Courier, which is circulated to all blind readers who desire it, free of charge.

The circulation of Braille volumes for the year will be considerably in excess of last year when it totalled 31,971, it is forecast.

PRESENTATION TO BELLEVILLE COUPLE

Thirty-five years of happily married life was fittingly celebrated last night when Mr. and Mrs. David Bennett, 103 Bonh Street, were hosts to 50 friends and neighbors who gathered at their home to enjoy the event. During the evening an address was read to the happy couple by Mrs. James McKenna and a presentation of a silver sandwich dish was made by Mrs. Sharma, the recipients briefly replying. Euchre was played in the early evening and Mrs. Carter, Mrs. Chapman and Mrs. Kiser won the lady prizes and W. Hannah, L. Herbert and Mr. Elliott were the winners in the same competition. Dainty refreshments were served at the conclusion of play and dancing was indulged in until the early hours. Mr. and Mrs. Bennett were married in the city in the little church at the top of Murney Hill by the late Rev. Boyd and have children who blessed the union, two boys and one girl. Mr. and Mrs. Bunnett have resided in the city practically all their lives and have made many friends who will wish them many more years of happiness.

WATCHMAN TOLD DRIVER TO CROSS RAILWAY TRACK

Carelessness of Gatekeeper Results in Deaths of Three Men

KITCHENER, Jan. 6.—Two witnesses testified that Joseph Stevenson, watchman, signalled the car to cross at the inquest last night into the deaths of Abraham Kipfer, Oliver, his son, and Ervin Zehr on December 30 last when their car was struck by a Canadian National Railway train at the Lancaster Street crossing here. The three men were residents of New Hamburg.

It was also disclosed at the inquest that the watchman is blind in one eye. The jury, in its verdict, after stating the men came to their deaths by being struck by a train, censured what they termed the "incompetence" with which the crossing was guarded.

The jury also recommended that gates, subway or viaduct should be established at the scene of the accident for future protection. The inquest was presided over by Dr. P. H. Kathleinech.

HIKING ROUND WORLD

Halifax, N.S.—Arriving here in the course of a projected journey around the world mostly by foot, that began at Washington in September, Joseph Sekulich, slim young Jugo Slavian, left to get a ship for Newfoundland, whence he aims to sail for England. At an average rate of 30 miles a day, Sekulich had hiked 2,511 miles when he reached here. He hopes to complete the globe-circling tour at Washington in something less than four years. The total mileage of his planned trip is 23,100.

With a command of eight languages Sekulich anticipates less difficulty in Russia and other countries than would otherwise be the case.

MINAS BASIN CLOSED

Parrsboro, N.S. — The government steamer Poland arrived at this port recently having collected the buoys in Minas Basin and officially marking the close of the shipping season here. Chilling vessels, locally owned were more than usually active this season in the lumber trade out of the Bay of Fundy, and last winter's cut combined with the lumber cut this year, will make the next shipping season a busy one for these vessels.

PREDICT RETURN OF PROSPERITY

Door Opened for a New Development in Business —Is Claim

DETROIT, Jan 6.—Two nationally prominent men predicted revival of prosperity in 1931 in addresses before the 20th convention of the National Shoe Retailers Association, here yesterday.

"Nineteen thirty-one," said Al. H. Geuting president of the association, "is opening the door to a new business development to show a profit on a new business that will lay a foundation for something even better than we enjoyed in the past.

Rome S. Stephenson of South Bend Ind., president of the American Bankers' Association, sounded a note of rapid revival, from the making no restoration do not operate on a constantly expanding spiral," he said. "Growth is not identical in all types of industry and production.

"Despite the low condition of business, the waning of confidence, and the most intense depression, our country has suffered little diminution in real wealth. Savings deposits in banks rise greater than a year ago.

"As month succeeds month in 1931 inventories will be reduced thus hastening the day when unemployment will give way bringing hope and buoyancy in place of dismay and pessimism.

ACTRESS, VICTIM OF DOPE HABIT

Alma Rubens, Former Screen Favorite Possessed of 50 Grains of Narcotics

San Diego, Calif., Jan. 6—Alma Rubens, former film star who was released from a state institution a few months ago after taking a cure for the narcotic habit was arrested late yesterday in the U. S. Grant hotel here on a charge of possessing 100 grains of narcotics.

Arresting police officers said they had found the narcotics sewed in the lining of an evening gown which was in the actress' overnight bag in her room. Miss Rubens denied the drug was taken to the city jail. There she asked for permission to communicate with a newspaper publisher, but was refused.

Police entered the case when Ruth Hall, Miss Rubens' maid, telephoned headquarters and asked that her employer be arrested. She said that Miss Rubens had attempted to take her coat off in their automobile last night.

However, authorities did not believe the charges sufficient to merit arrest and refused to act.

A short time later Miss Rubens appeared at the police station. She charged that her husband, Lewis Thorbald, had stolen $9,000 in jewelry from her and asked that he be arrested.

The chauffeur was able to clear himself of the theft charge, police said, and they became more interested in learning the reason for Miss Rubens' strange conduct. They went to her room in the hotel, one of the most fashionable in the city, and a search was made and finally the overnight bag was opened and the narcotics found.

AUTO WRECKED TRIO WERE HURT

Men Were Pinned Beneath Wreckage of Car at Sault

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Jan. 6—Dwight Marshall, a University of Toronto student, Orville Cameron and Nelson Reid, all of Desbarats, are confined to their homes as the result of injuries received when a car owned and driven by Marshall left the Soo-Toronto highway a mile east of Portlock, crashed into a pile of rock and was completely demolished.

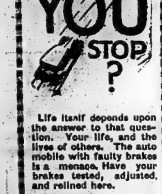
Marshall and Reid were pinned under the wreckage while Cameron, with a broken arm and other injuries, walked down the highway at one o'clock in the morning seeking aid. He encountered Tony Solomon, of Desbarats, in a car, and the two of them succeeded in releasing the trapped men and they were taken to Desbarats.

Marshall has injuries to the spine, Reid's head was terribly gashed and he is suffering from shock and loss of blood, and Cameron, in addition to a broken arm, has internal injuries and bruises. It is believed all will recover.

PRINCE OF WALES A KEEN AIR PILOT

London, Jan. 6 (by the Canadian Press)—The keen interest taken by the Prince of Wales in aircraft was well demonstrated a few days ago when he flew 180 miles in a twin-engined amphibious monoplane owned by Captain Robert Holt, wealthy Canadian. For a greater part of the flight the Prince was himself at the controls. He also took the controls of the giant German seaplane, the DO-X, for some minutes while the pioneer of the air was in England recently.

His flight in the Holt plane was from London to Southampton and back with his own private pilot and six other persons and on the return the Prince piloted the plane to landing at the Fairey aerodrome. The machine used has two 300 h.p. engines and it attains a speed of 120 miles an hour.



In addition to piloting the machine he insisted on an explanation of the amphibian and spent half an hour at the conclusion of the flight examining the mechanism. Incidentally, he got his hands covered with oil and grease and went without his lunch.

NURSING DEVELOPS ON SPECIAL LINES

Toronto, Jan. 6—Emphasis was laid on the importance of a common ground between public health and private and hospital nursing by Miss Ethel Johns of New York, formerly of Winnipeg and Vancouver, in an address to nurses here.

"It was inevitable that nursing should develop along specialized lines. But now there seems to be an increasing tendency towards specialization not only in functions but in organization," she said. Miss Johns referred to the fact that unemployment was causing unrest among the United States nurses. She stated that a survey was being made in Canada which would show whether the market was flooded with nurses.

EVANGELISM

Every man is spiritual as well as material, whether he wants to be or not, said Mrs. Coss in a sermon given Sunday night in the "Y" auditorium.

The consensus of opinion today is that the man or woman who has attempted the development of the spiritual portion of their being is slightly warped and not entirely unbalanced. This is lamentable, as it leads many people to think that to eat, drink and have good clothes is all there is to life.

Man is a triunvirate being and can never be properly developed nor satisfied until he has given serious thought and the necessary time to the education of the spiritual man which is him.

Our schools and colleges undertake the training of the mind, doctors and physical directors the development of the body, but God is the only agency which can successfully train and develop the spiritual man until he couples his rightful dominant place in the scheme of our lives.

"There is a natural body and there is a spiritual body," Paul tells us, advising us all through his writings that the spiritual body is most important and lasting. "As is the earthy, such are they also which are earthy", again he tells us—living in pride, vanity, and "hatred and hating one another." Not a very flattering picture, but a true one, nevertheless.

Of the earthy, again he says, "ever learning and never able to come to a knowledge of the truth".

The truth of the matter is that as we have born the image or form of the earthy, some day all those whom God has successfully interred will bear the image of the heavenly and we shall awake in His likeness having a spiritual body instead of a natural one as we have now.

The only way to enroll in God's school is to begin this living now and as on very simply in Acts 2:38, "Repent Peter says, "and be baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ—, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost."

Mrs. Coss is finishing a series of sermons that November, 1930, interrupted by the Christmas holidays which she spent in Toronto with her family. Pastor and Mrs. Adams have ably assisted in this revival and are happy over the results granted them thus far.

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S LEAGUE PARTY

An enjoyable card party was held last evening in St. Michael's Acctemy under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League. Euchre and bridge were played, and there were about sixty tables of players. The door prize a five dollar gold piece was won by Miss Millard Boyd. The novelty euchre prize was captured by Mrs. A. Cleary, and the novelty bridge prize by Mr. George Nixon. The prizes for games were won as follows:

Euchre

Ladies' first—Ellas Flagler; second, Miss Lena Drummond; Men's first, Mr. J. Wima, second, Mr. Maurice Connell.

Bridge

Ladies' first, Mrs. P. J. Lee; second Mrs. Chas. Meagher; men's first, Mr. Harry Williams, second, Mr. George Nixon.

Refreshments were served, and a short programme was given. Miss Patricia Meagher contributed a recitation "Who's Afraid", and Miss Catherine Harris entertained with two dance numbers.

FARM LIFE NOW RAPIDLY CHANGING

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 6—"The farm woman no longer keeps a few hens," said the convener of the agriculture committee a the 29th Convention of Ontario Women's Institute. "The flock of hens keeps the farm woman." That farm life is changing was another of her many interesting observation. "The 'short-class' girls will not live in a home where the parlor is used only for funerals and weddings and where there is an unhappy dining-room. She wants to use all the house and make it the home it should be."

Complete fire fighting equipment is carried on a trailer of English invention that can be towed to a blaze by a motorcycle.

PLANES MENACE TO ANIMAL LIFE

OTTAWA, Jan. 6.—As a sequel to complaints that aeroplanes are becoming as much of a menace to Canadian animal life as automobiles to pedestrians, the Department of National Defence has issued warning to pilots and aviation interests of the Dominion that special precaution must be taken to protect wild life.

The warning circulars issued by the Department are the out-come of representations made by the Canadian National Silver Fox Breeders' Association and the Association of Provincial and Dominion Game Officials. The former body requested co-operation to prevent low flying over fox farms, because of loss and damage done during the fox whelping season. The game officials asked that pilots be reminded of "the threat which sea planes make against wild life, including game and water fowl."

To overcome the aero-danger to fox farms, distinguishing marks will likely be provided at fox farms which aviators will be able to see from the air. Yellow and black paint will be applied on which towers and pylons to warn day fliers. To mark those farms located on night air mail routes, the department suggests that red lights of sufficient power, to be seen three miles away, be set upon the farm site.

FIFTY YEARS AT BAR; RETIRING

LONDON, Jan. 5.—By the Canadian Press.—Sir Ellis Hume-Williams, K.C., one of the most prominent practitioners in the Divorce Court, is retiring after being at the Bar nearly 50 years. Sir Ellis is 67 years of age. A few weeks back considerable attention was devoted to his book, largely reminiscent of his many years' practice in the Divorce Division, in which he declared that women were less faithful than men.

Sir Ellis was one of the strongest opponents of the Act which restricted the reporting of Divorce Court proceedings. "I never thought the Act would work," he said, "and now we have seen it in operation that opinion is justified. It can quite safely be left to the good sense of the Press what should and what should not appear in reports of the cases."

During the general strike Sir Ellis —he was then M.P., for a Nottingham division—drove a general bus between Ealing and Aldgate.

LITTLE BENNY'S NOTE BOOK

Me and Puds Simkins was strwking along just wawking along and we seen a baby carridge with a baby in it waiting outside of the meet store and we was standing there looking at the baby on account of not having anything else to do and the beby was looking back at us preberly for the same reason, and I sed, Heer comes Shorty Judge, lets pretend we been hired to watch this baby and ask him if he wunts the job.

Sure, he's a easy mark ,Puds sed. And Shorty came up and I sed, Hay Shortly, do you wunt to mrke some money? This babys mother asked us to ask him if he and we're tired of watching it. Do you wunt to do it? I sed.

Sure I aint doing anything, Shorty sed. And he started to stand along side of the baby and me and Puds exch leened against a awning pole like 2 people glad to be out of work, and the lady kept on not coming out and Shorty started to look at us skeptickus, and prittly soon Lucky Leroy Shooter come up and Shorty sed, Hay Lucky do you wunt a job, Im tired watching this baby, its mother must be buying enough meet to start a meet store of her own, do you wunt to do it?

Lucky Leroy saying he did, and Shorty leened against another awning pole and Leroy stood there alongside of the beby. Being a baby with blue eyes and one tooth, and prilly soon a lady came out of the meet store and put 3 packiges in the baby carriage with the baby, Leroy saying to her, Im the one thats watching your bcby, lady.

O, are you, I must say I was getting a little worried and its nice to know he was being watched, I think I have some pennies, the lady sed.

With she hist, and she gave them to Lucky Leroy, sounding like at least 5 or 6.

Proving if youre lucky youre just naturely lucky.

COLLEGE STUDENTS ASSIST THE HUNGRY

Toronto, Jan. 6—As the first grip of winter held Toronto about 80 girl students at the Western Technical School acted on a mission of mercy, and after spending some time assembling a quantity of vegetables and produce which they had secured from friends, prepared a hot meal for about 100 hungry men at the Men's Hostel, Gerrard Street East. The unexpected treat was rushed over, and for the kindly thought "the men" expressed their gratitude to their young benefactors.

TO TEACH SPANISH

SAINT JOHN, NB., Jan 6— The provision by educational authorities of assistance to New Brunswick school students wishing to study Spanish, was recently recommended by Premier J. B. M. Baxter Emphasizing the importance of the forthcoming mission to South America of delegates from the Canadian Chambers of Commerce and Manufacturers' Association, Premier Baxter declared he was watching the mission with interest, and according to results, would endeavour to have the province provide means of study in Spanish to students wishing to take it up He felt that Canada and South America would soon be brought very much close together by reciprocal trade. He thought Spanish might profitably be substituted for German as an optional language in the schools.

Nesting Place of Blue Goose Found

Ottawa, Can.—After six years of relentless searching in the Arctic wastes of the north, a Canadian government scientist, J. Dewey Soper, finally discovered, in June, 1928, the nesting place of the Blue Goose. The North West Territories Branch of the Department of the Interior now has issued a booklet describing Mr. Soper's long search and including all the data and facts gathered in "Blue Goose Land" in Baffin Island.

Because the booklet is the only authentic report in the world on the nesting and breeding habits of this species of wildfowl, it is in great demand among ornithologists and is being distributed to all parts of the North American continent. From the viewpoint of a bird lover the booklet tears aside the veil of mystery that has enshrouded the Blue Goose ever since the species was known to men.

The first part of the report, filled with Mr. Soper's six years of wandering through the Barren Lands of the north during which time he traveled 20,000 miles before he succeeded in locating the legendary "Blue Goose Land," is the mystery of the breeding habits of this species of goose has intrigued ornithologists for years. The Blue Goose spends the winters on the Louisiana coast and in the early spring begins its long flight northward. It has been traced up the Mississippi valley, across the Great Lakes and as far as Hudson Bay and James Bay but from there its trail vanished completely.

It was in 1923 that Mr. Soper began his long search to end the mystery. During a trip of 7,000 miles, touching at Greenland, Labrador, Devon and Baffin Islands, enquiries were made of the Eskimos and while men concerning the northern habits of the Blue Goose. Finally, he was told by one old Eskimo that the goose nested on the shores of a lake far in the Baffin Island interior. Mr. Soper decided to follow this single clue and in 1926 struck a camp on Cumberland Sound, Baffin Island. Because of the lateness of season, however, he was unable to trek overland before the snows began flying south. He spent the fall and winter mapping and exploring the country and in visiting Eskimo tribes.

Early in the spring, with a party of Eskimo dog-drivers, Mr. Soper began his trip into the interior. After five months of arduous investigating, he returned to his headquarters with the mystery still unsolved. The old Eskimo had been mistaken in his information.

Undaunted by this failure, Mr. Soper determined to search once more for the nesting place of the Blue Goose. The winter of 1926 was spent in long trips over the rugged terrain of Baffin Island, exploring and soliciting information from the Eskimos. So persistent was he that he was named by the natives "Klamesser" the man in search of the Blue Goose.

In the spring of 1928 a new camp was struck at Cape Dorset at the Southwestern extremity of Baffin Island. Eskimos from this locality informed him the geese nested on the tundra along Foxe basin. Unfortunate events necessitated Mr. Soper's return to civilization in the fall of 1928 and practically the whole of the next year was consumed in study and preparation for the final drive to be conducted in 1928.

In the summer of that year, Mr. Soper returned to the north, again taking up headquarters at Cape Dorset. The fall and winter were spent in mapping and exploring the country. In May, with four sledges, 42 dogs and five Eskimos, "Klamesser" set out for the Foxe Basin country. A permanent camp was struck and named "Camp Kungovik" after the Eskimo name for the Blue Goose. With two Eskimo helpers Mr. Soper prepared to spend the summer there, deciding to chance a retreat later through the interior of the island, by means of a canoe.

It was at this camp that the Blue Goose was found at its breeding ground, thus solving a zoological mystery of long standing. About six weeks was spent in observation, photographing and gathering minute data on the nesting habits of the birds. Of the thousands in existence, the vast hordes assembled like huge snowbanks against the background of the brownish tundra. The intensity of it all fell upon the eyes as does a surpassing poem, or strains of music upon the ear. It was epic, with the heroic flavor of those larger experiences in nature which strike across one's pathway but once in a lifetime.

Of his homeward trip back to Hudson Strait and a waiting government steamer Mr. Soper had little to say. Save for the unprotected sea the frail craft was tossed about in cockle-shell and finally 72 miles of oily ice masses had to be surmounted. The good supply of the little party gave out but with their parsimonious cargo of scientific material finally the S.S. Beothic was reached, nine hours before she sailed for the south.

The question of conserving the Blue Goose, Mr. Soper considers a big one question for the United States. It will be unmolested in its Northern breeding grounds for many years to come and only when it migrates to the south is it vulnerable to the guns of sportsmen.

The BEST Gray Hair Remedy is Home Made

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Orlex Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It will gradual... darken streaked, faded or gray hair and make it soft as silk. Does not color scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

SEVEN HURT IN TRAIN ACCIDENT

Windsor, Jan. 5— Seven persons were slightly injured yesterday morning in a crash in the yards of the Michigan Central Railway, Galt by flying glass and bruises about the body constituted the injuries.

The injured were Edward Parish and George Miller of Buckland, N.Y., and four from New York: Miss May Chan, associate editor of Vogue; A. H. Couling, president American Rebuilt Shoe Dealers' Association; Jesse Adler vice-president of the association, and A. H. Kenyon, associate counsel for the association. The name of the seventh person was not ascertained. They were en route to a big convention in Detroit.

The first section of a special train from New York to Detroit was at the Windsor depot and a light engine was standing close behind it when the second section of the special loomed up out of a fog, struck the rear engine and crashed it into the rear coach of the standing train.

Passengers were dumped about but only the seven required first-aid treatment, which was given in Detroit, to which station the train proceeded immediately after the crash. Damage to rolling stock was slight.

Heavy fog was the cause of the crash. Fog has enveloped the border since early Sunday morning. During the early hours of the day objects a hundred yards distant were hardly visible, but since noon yesterday there has been some improvement. Despite the fog and slippery pavements, there has been dearth of accidents in this border area during the week-end.

TIME, RELATIVE ON A HOSPITAL BED

Montreal, Que., Jan. 6—After one has been in hospital for two or three months he begins to realize, with Einstein, that time is purely relative, says the literary editor of The Gazette. Whether you sleep at night or in the daytime, whether you take meals from the bill of fare, really much matter; if I find fish I remark, "why it's Friday, the night nurse who comes on duty at 7 p.m. and go off at 7 p.m. don't know whether they are coming or going, whether it's supper; nay, further one of them told me they don't know whether it is yesterday or today or tomorrow.

On another day he writes: A friend has sent me a questionnaire. "Who, when told that the poor in Paris had no bread, said: "Let them eat cake?" And the answer in Marie Antoinette. I am prepared to bet that Marie Antoinette never said a thing of the sort, but for the life of me I cannot remember what lady or Mrs. French Queen did say the remark which gave rise to the myth. The word, translated "cake" in the current version, was "brioche" and referred to the cheapest sort of bun then manufactured. True enough the lady had failed to recognize the fact that the peasantry had not the money to buy even that, and said, not unnaturally, that she could not understand why the peasants starve in order to hold on they could eat "brioche." As told these days the story sounds as thought it were a piece of intolerable insolence on the part of a grand-seigneur. It wasn't; it was a question put in perfectly good faith.

Numerous Messages of Congratulations on Premier's Appointment

Toronto, Jan. 6—During the past week Premier and Mrs. Ferguson, wife of Ontario's Premier, has been filled with flowers and congratulatory messages on the Premier's new appointment, but a note of the real loss felt is sounded everywhere. An interview in the "Mail and Empire" gives a picture of one who has been a great influence in Canada:

"A charming woman sat in the library of her home the other day with a slightly wistful look as she had tea amid the books the needlework quilts, the panelled walls of the house to which she has given the personality of 'home' in a city of friends; yet with a gleam of ideal in her eyes as she thought of the Canadian home in London."

She is not worried by the weight of her new duties. "It is not a matter of being a premier's wife, or the wife of the High Commissioner. It is just a matter of finding in what you are doing and doing your best every day. We shall do our very best for Canada. We had been difficult at times," Mrs. Ferguson said as she reminisced of the early opposition days. "Many good men are deterred from entering politics because they hesitate to subject their families to the bitterness of political life. But I knew that he was the very best man that he believed in his work, and as he said, ready to stop any time the people did not want him.

"I have always been interested in his work. My friends used to wonder what interest I could find in attending the meetings when he was arguing a case that had to do with a suit over a few sheep or some bushels of wheat, but I was interested."

"One thing—we want to give the greatest possible opportunity for English and Canadians to know each other. We don't want merely to entertain Canadians. My husband and I will not be the only link which interprets; the Canadians themselves will be. I have found English people anxious and eager to know Canadians." Mrs. Ferguson spoke of the understanding reached at the many luncheons, teas, and other social functions during the Imperial Conference. By getting to know each other better, the new and old world people avoid being misled by the first way of putting things, she thinks.

One of the interests of her successive trips to England has been in noting the constant decrease in drinking there. At many functions, while wines and malt were offered, they were refused by most of the women and many of the men. "I talked to Lord—— about it. He explained that they could not keep up their staffs and indulge in the luxury of wines. To throw so many servants out of employment was unthinkable. It was better to sacrifice pleasure than to add to the country's difficulties. He said that the upper classes were trying to give an example of dressing and hard effort to meet the country's responsibilities."

Even when state officials were being entertained, there was usually economy and simplicity. Mrs. Ferguson remembers a Buckingham Palace meal was as large as ever, where the host had by any means been able to keep up his staff, but by cutting out wearing simple gowns and frocks, eliminating expensive liquors and foods. "At several luncheons the menu was simpler than the average Canadian household would expect on an ordinary day," Mrs. Ferguson said with admiration.

BANDITS LOOTED DEPOSIT VAULTS

Ransacked Boxes in Lawrence Avenue Bank at Chicago — Customers Frantic

Chicago Jan. 5—The mysterious robbery here by "Cap" of the Lawrence Avenue National Bank occurred all right, authorities discovered tonight when they went on the bank vault swung open the door.

Utter chaos was revealed inside the vault, contents of 20 or more safety deposit boxes lay scattered over the floor amidst broken boxes, steel tools and other debris.

Except the loot taken cannot be determined for several days, federal county police, and bank officials who participated in the probing announced.

It was decided to disturb nothing until finger-print experts had made a thorough examination.

An excited crowd of several thousand persons milled most of the afternoon about the bank. Chief of Detectives John Norton finally was called to take charge and keep order. Police had to resort to their night-sticks to prevent the frantic safety deposit box owners from forcing their way into the bank.

George Piles, president of the bank, took one glimpse of the vault and almost fainted. Later, when he had recovered his voice, he said:

"The vault has been rifled. There's no question now."

The discovery subsequently at least part, of the amazing story told Thursday night in milwaukee by John C. Malloy, assistant cashier, that he had been held up in the bank New Year's Day and then kidnapped by bandits who looted the vault.

Chesterton Paradoxical on Return to Montreal

Says Nations Cat-Calling to Each Other and Industry Has Cut Own Throat—

Montreal, Jan. 5.—"We have in the world today the strange paradox—the more we produce, the less the people have," G. K. Chesterton, King of Paradox, explained today from the depths of an easy chair in the lobby of a Montreal Hotel. The famous British man of letters left word that he would not see reporters, but a newspaperman trapped him in a corner of the lobby where he sat reading. He explained that he was resting a few days in Montreal before commencing a lecture tour in the United States.

Mr. Chesterton said, "The world will have to get back to something much simpler, industry has cut its own throat. We must make the world less industrial. We must return to a life in which some of the population live more in peasant style; they must be nearly self-supporting."

"We must have fewer people making sausages and more people raising pork."

"In the smaller cities perhaps you still have some of the simpler life. I was in South Bend, Indiana, and I was struck with the equality of the people and their neighbourliness. All this is very jolly but I fancy it is all that is left of Jefferson's idea of democracy."

But this business of turning out machines and hats and shoes in vast quantities is bad. I do not think these chain store fronts are a good thing. It is unnatural and wicked business. It is an inhuman idea to me. By now the chain store idea and mass production have become almost suicidal to industry. We cannot go much farther."

"The best comparison I can make is the modern traffic jam. We all have so many wonderful machines for going ahead that we cannot go ahead at all."

"Sinclair Lewis may paint a true picture of some conditions but he does not see what is good and there are many good things to write about." His characters are interesting and what strikes me as fine is the equality in these towns. From an Englishman's standpoint it is an ideal achieved. Lewis, however, is not enthusiastic enough about his own country.

"These men like Lewis and Shaw who put on stock in patriotism are the products of these times. I should argue with them in this way I should go right back to the beginning and say, 'You be king, Shaw; you be doctor, Lewis, and let us see how you would manage it.' They would last no time at all. If you cannot make them feel a touch of patriotism, if self-preservation and love of country mean nothing to them, how can they instill it in others?"

Throughout the interview, "G.K. C." delighted in his own bon-mots and phrases, and chuckled appreciatively at his own wit. "The world is now at such a pass that the nations are cat-calling to each other." His massive frame shook as he chuckled at the idea.

Another quip. "All men are born free and equal, even including Lord Rothermere. They know why they believe that, but I do not think Abraham Lincoln did. Lincoln was not a Christian, and if you do not have Christianity you do not have equality. Mencken, who is not a Christian, does not think men are equal. He calls most people boobs, I believe." Again came the deep chuckle.

RESTORE PEACE IN QUEBEC MINE

Unrest Among Workers Results in Quick Departure of Superintendent

THETFORD MINES, Que. Jan. 5.—Peace was completely restored today in this asbestos mining centre, when on Friday morning a party of some 300 unemployed miners marched on the headquarters of the Asbestos Corporation, Limited, and demanded the person of Mine Superintendent J. H. Jenkins. On assurance that Jenkins would leave the town at once the men quieted down, and in a short time the superintendent left on a train, bound for Quebec City. The men then dispersed.

It was learned that the cause of the unrest was the recent closing down of Beaver Mine, due to lack of orders. For some reason the men thus thrown out of work held Mr. Jenkins responsible. They also accused him of employing foreigners in preference to the local French-Canadians. Mayor Oliva Cyr and Chief of Police Oulette, accompanied by a squad of armed police officers, attempted to disperse the mob, as it advanced on the mine beer quarters, but were unable to dissuade the leaders from their project.

Marshals met the marchers at the entrance to the plant and asked the leaders to enter for a conference. This was agreed to, and after a brief parley you do not have equality. Mencken, who is not a Christian, does not think men are equal. He calls most people boobs, I believe." Again came the deep chuckle.

Light has been preserved by freezing it at 313 below.

Nearly 800,000 tons of caustic soda are produced in the United States annually.

1931 COUNCIL FORECAST

Mayor Reid in his forecast of the activity of the city for 1931 told the inaugural meeting of the city council that "we must prepare our expenditures for 1931 in every department with the exception of industries." In another place he notes that the two most important items for this year are the completion of the filtration or water purification plant and the encouragement of industries. "We must lay more stress on industries, that is, if we expect our city to get the share we should get."

The Chamber of Commerce has been steadily at work on this problem of securing additional industries for the city and it is anticipated that the city will soon see results of great importance. Naturally this department cannot "show its hand" in regard to the efforts made to bring plants to this city until negotiations are completed. For that reason the public in general does not know details of the efforts and the progress of the efforts towards the bringing of industries to Belleville.

The council has lent every help to the Chamber of Commerce and Mayor Reid's insistence upon the industrial expansion of the city is a hint to the citizens to make a greater effort towards this end.

Belleville is facing a new problem, the congestion in the schools and the demand for more accommodation space for the teaching of public school classes.

The mayor, though the year ahead does not seem to concern itself with the building of more bridges and does not have to undertake the purification project which is nearing completion, is not going to have this a year of inaction. He is going to make it a year of action. A milk bylaw is one of the plans he has in store. He is having the council study the question of the quarterly payment of taxes in the city.

He is not going to complete this year without making a strong effort with the aid of the council, to bring Sir Henry Thornton and the Canadian National Railways directors to see the wisdom of providing Belleville with a modern northern station.

He sees the possibility of expansion of the demand for gas as the one way to make the plan a success, so that it will operate at a profit and make the retirement of debentures possible.

Touching on the employment situation the chief magistrate urges the individual citizens to provide a few days' work if at all possible for unemployed men.

The esplanade project is not forgotten but will lie in abeyance for the time being until more monies are available for such undertakings.

Once again the success of the Belleville Hydro Commission is matter for favorable comment, proving the wisdom of the choice which the citizens made two years ago.

Mayor Reid has forecast the highlights of council's activity for the year and those for this year and those who know his work last year and the hearty co-operation he received from the council believe that the year 1931 will undoubtedly be one of great possibilities.

A NOTABLE EDITION

Picton Gazette has just issued one of the finest editions in the history of journalism in Ontario, a 60-page paper to celebrate the centennial of the Gazette. There are but six older papers in Canada, Quebec Chronicle-Montreal Gazette, Kingston Whig-Standard, Montreal Herald, Brockville Recorder and Times and Christian Guardian, now the New Outlook of the United Church of Canada. The Picton Gazette was founded in 1830 and was first known as the Hallowell Free Press. From this little sheet to the present anniversary edition is a story to be hailed by every lover of the growth in circulation and importance of this paper, by the development of the county or province in which it serves and by the thorough and comprehensive manner, by ever increasingly effective means of news collection, and by the improvement in the technical means of printing. Today the Gazette still serves this county, the Garden of Ontario, as it set out to do in its earliest editions.

The Picton Gazette is a county newspaper in a peculiar manner. Few counties are so thoroughly and effectively served. For that reason the anniversary edition is an intensive view of the various county activities. Through the centennial issue Prince Edward County is provided with thorough news service and the issue takes on a peculiarly individual characteristic, which no other newspaper's special edition could assume.

It traces for a century the growth of the community. The history is intimate and the entire production indicates the closest knowledge of facts. It goes back to the coming of the Loyalists in 1784, Helen Merrill Egerton having a special article on the "First Band of Loyalists." The establishment of the Catholic faith in this district 140 years ago is treated in an article by Mr. A. E. Calnan, while the history of Roman Catholicism in Prince Edward Co., from 1800 on and that of the Anglican communion from early in the nineteenth century is traced. For one hundred and fifty years prior to the capture of Canada by the British there had been a Roman Catholic mission in what is now Prince Edward County though its exact location is not now known. It is thought this mission was near Bald Head. Wellington Catholic Church was founded in the year 1800. Presbyterianism was organized 97 years ago at Picton. Various intimate relations, the establishment of the judicial district, the settlements which have grown up, matters of interest in agriculture are a few of the matters touched upon. It mirrors the life of the town and county.

AN ANNIVERSARY

Christ Church congregation has marked the sixty-sixth year of its existence during which time it has played a great part in the life of the community. Christ Church congregation is stronger today than ever in its history and is carrying on a great work among the people of this large community under the Rev. Rural Dean C. E. Clarke. Other congregations join in felicitations to this congregation on their notable service to the people of this city and district

SIDELIGHTS

BECAUSE I LOVED YOU ONCE

Because I loved you once dear one,
Sometimes the darkest hour
Will glow with that past April's sun,
Will bloom with that far flower.

And when across the drab today
The golden veil is drawn,
The love of that lost yesterday
Must still, I know, live on.

Because I loved you once, my dear,
With such a deep intensity,
A fairer place, the sky more clear,
More magic on the sea.

It is a debt I cannot pay
Through all the coming years,
That love, whose memory takes away
The bitterness of tears.

Although our eyes may never meet
With rapture, as before,
Because I loved you once, my sweet,
I love all life the more.

NEW YEAR'S EVE MADNESS

is the only term which can in any way describe the manner in which New Year Eve is welcomed in the large cities of the United States. The favorite form of celebration seems to be a noisy Bacchalian revel in which dignity, convention and in many cases even decency is discarded. Radio listeners in Belleville heard the bedlam of uproar emanating from the New Year's crowd in Times Square, New York City ,and it would seem that a million humans had gone violently insane. Radio also carried the noise of the revellers in the night clubs of the great cities with the musical programs prepared for the occasion. Seemed as if thousands of people were trying to kid themselves that they could throw off all troubles of the old year and enter the new year without a care in the world. Hope ruled the moment, hope that the new year would bring happiness and prosperity, that the scars of the old year would fade like magic, hence the great efforts to stimulate joy culminating in hysterical exuberance in the thought that a new year might mean a new deal. With most of the new year is looked forward to in the belief that it cannot be worse than the last and consequently must be better it also follows that the rough, hard trail to the mountain top for many, and looking down on the other side into a visionary land of health, happiness and prosperity it is only reasonable to expect better going from now on. New Year's Eve as seen through the alcoholic haze is weird but the morning after the night before finds the revellers sans vision, plus a nightmare, a horrid hangover and an outlook decidedly dreary—when the tumult and the shouting dies returning sanity recrods the first New Year's resolution, NEVER AGAIN.

ONE OF THE brightest prorpects for 1931 is that of better drinking water for Belleville if it is governed by Alderman Totten, minister of Aqua Pura in the George Reid cabinet. Ald. Wotten says the liquor store might as well close up after the new and improved water is turned on.

WHY ADVERTISING MANAGERS GO MAD

When the proofreader nods, the results are sometimes disastrous. Hence, when a department store's ad on advertisement like this there was weeping, wailing, etc.:

"Men's athletic union suits, tomorrow, 95 cents. Bright colored cretonne. Tieback style. Ruffled edges. You can't imagine how dainty those will look hanging at your windows. Phone us and we will call at your home to take measurements. Fast colors. Need little laundering. Hurry! They can't last long."—in the laundry ether.

Q.—At what time of the day is it correct for one to make the call of condolence or inquiry?

A.—At any time of the day; the caller rarely advances beyond the front door.

Q.—Should a woman remove her hat at the theatre?

A.—Yes; some states have laws to this effect.

Q.—What does a hostess rightfully expect of a guest?

A.—Punctuality.

Newspaper Opinions

THE LATE FATHER MINEHAN

Father Minehan of St. Vincent de Paul Church, Toronto, will be greatly missed, not only in his own church, to which he has given a source of strength for many years, but in all good causes within the city his place will remain unfilled. He had a deep sense of the responsibility of citizenship and was always ready to co-operate generously with men of all faiths in movements for the betterment of the living conditions of the poor. In nearly every social reform movement of the past twenty-five years Father Minehan has been his ally and did his work. He was a staunch advocate of the temperance cause and ready at any time to take the field and champion it. His sympathy always was with labor, the workers, the seekers of work who could not always find it. He looked all his life for some means whereby social injustice could be lessened.—Toronto Star.

HEAT LIKE WATER AND LIGHT

Many persons must have read the despatch, in the newspapers the other day, dealing with Winnipeg's successful central heating experiment, with a good deal of interest and not a little envy. Central heating, of course, is no new thing. But Winnipeg was the first Canadian city to undertake to construct a municipally-owned central heating plant in conjunction with its hydro enterprise. The experiment has proved a big success. Two hundred buildings in the city are now heated during the winter—and winters in Winnipeg are by no means Floridian in character—and it is now the intention to extend the system at a cost of $450,000. Winnipeggers are beginning to envisage the day when the entire city is thus warmed and lighted. The average cost of this municipal heat supply is much lower than the privately generated heat.—Ottawa Citizen.

A TAKING DISPOSITION

There is an element of humor in the grim rounds of the newspaper joke columns about the traveling sales man who left an estate of 500 towels, 300 cakes of soap, three dozen spoons and a hotel key. A contemporary hects it "Small Business". Having come in contact with many salesmen in greater or less degree during forty years, we were inclined to register indignation, on their behalf. Heiclemen do not seem to us a despicable specialist; in fact, the travelers are the mainstay of the hotel business, at least in the smaller cities and towns. Certainly they are not responsible for many improvements of which the general public receives the benefit. Individually, they make a better appeal than that other people's silver and linen offer no special temptation.—Woodstock Sentinel Review.

THE BLACK SHEEP

A writer in the London Star, some years past, undertook to rehabilitate the black sheep. He tells of one man with twenty-seven convictions against him who won the Victoria Cross, and another he met not go as far as to say that a man to be a military success must be a social failure, he piles up evidence in favor of the theory that such people have special significance. To quote: "The war has discovered the good that is in him, and has released it for useful service. It would seem that black sheep is often only black by the accident of circumstance, upbringing, or association. He is a misfit. In him, as in all misfits, there is an infinite complexity—good and ill together. No one who has faithfully examined his own life can doubt some definite direction this way or that."—Montreal Star.

DOES HARM

Radical western farm leaders are not helping their cause by such statements as that made by W. J. Ward, president of the United Farmers of Manitoba, when he declared that "so long as the western farmer is made the pawn of other people's game for certain eastern interests just that long will he remain in the hopelessly insolvent condition of the present day. That sort of talk is the language of the demagogue and contributes nothing to a successful solution of Canada's economic problems. Mr. Ward intimates that the condition of agriculture in the west is the result of selfish policies originating in the east he is making a charge that his own intelligence should tell him is poppycock.—Peterborough Examiner.

9. Give your name and address to the parties concerned with you in an accident.
10. Carry your driver's license with you always.

Mural Designs of Today

The latest effort calculated to make New York all up is the series of murals by Thomas Benton, the New School for Social Research. Joseph Urban, architect, designer of stage settings for revues and backgrounds for section picture spectacles drew the plans for the school building, and provided an outside that will rave every passer-by into excitement at first sight of that high, all-glass front—"What's that building?" Not only is the whole front transparent, but it leads backward to receive the full light of the sky. Having received from the outside of the building one of those jobs so much desired by New Yorkers, they may go within and get another from Mr. Benton's series of murals, entitled "America Today."

These murals carry over into a new medium the sort of decorative work that has been made familiar in the satirical metropolitan magazine, particularly in the two panels entitled "Gay Activities." These panels might be classified as visualizations of the stock topics of tabloid newspapers. Here are the Bowery bread lines, they are characterized by vitality and emotion, are filled with movement, satire, and criticism. To be appreciated they really must be seen. Anything like circumstantial description must be impossible.

Other panels deal with what might be called constructive activities. "The Changing West" indicates how the oil industry is bringing about new phases of life between the Mississippi River and the Pacific Ocean. Airplanes are cutting down distances, surveyors are blazing out pipe lines, the sheep herder is starting away for new pastures.

"Power" is expressed in terms of a speeding locomotive, a winging plane, a larger plane, a soaring dirigible, great whirling turbines and plunging pistons, a dam symbolizing water power, and a high tension line representing electricity.

"Steel" is largely composed of a huge furnace showing the tapping of a blast furnace. In the distance are the skyscrapers and ocean liner that steel has made possible. In "Coal" are figures behind the activities of mining and shipping this fuel. "Agriculture and Lumbering," "The South," and "City Building" are other paintings in a similar illustrative vein.

Pictorially, the murals are sure to be the subject of much discussion. To some persons they may seem too violent. If they thought entrance into a building would enable them to escape from the strident and dynamic voice of industrial and pleasure-seeking activities outside. It might be implied that the school authorities were saying to those within their walls, "There is no escape from the life of the present for those who enter here. If you wish to flee into the past, fly one of the academies."

Literacy's Rise in London

LONDON—A reduction of illiteracy in London from 2.93 per cent to 1.3 per cent of the total population in the last 40 years is but one of the many remarkable changes in the conditions of education, wages, housing, sobriety, crime elimination, and general living conditions which are contained in the first volume of a monumental "New Survey of London Life and Labor," just published here by Messrs. P. S. King and Son.

For two and a half years an army of hundreds of special investigators, under the able direction of Sir Hubert Llewilyn Smith, former chief economic adviser to the government, and aided by funds from the London School of Economics, the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Foundation Memorial, the Carnegie United Kingdom Trust, and other work bodies have been hard at work on this "Book of London." Another two and a half years of investigation lie before them, but result that the average wage-earner can now buy a third more goods in return for daily labor of an hour's less duration.

The proportionate advance of rates of wages since 1890 has been about twice as great for unskilled as for skilled occupations, and the rise in minimum rates of pay in the so-called "sweated" industries had been always the average rise for occupations generally.

The consumption of beer, has fallen by nearly a half in the period since 1891, while its alcoholic content has also been decreased considerably.

Fewer Persons Homeless

On the subject of unemployment, the rather surprising fact is revealed that up to 1929 the rate of unemployment was very little higher than it was at the end of the nineteenth century. But far more individuals are in receipt of poor relief. The broad conclusion emerging from the figures collected in London is that today unemployment is much the same in type and in volume as it was a generation ago.

Despite the present industrial depression, London's economic underworld—the survey says, and the maintenance of a "pool" of unskilled labor has long been recognized by social observers as one of the most potent sources of economic degeneration, in recent years however, there has been a great improvement in the wellfection of more permanent dock service.

Increase in Honesty

The direct connection of crime and poverty in London has been found to be a good deal less than is often suggested. Recent slowing crowding, the investigators for the survey discovered, show that in only 3.2 per cent of the cases of persons committed for trial enviles is poverty the "major cause." On the whole there are shown to be fewer acts of violence and more honesty than in 1863.

The expansion of travel in Greater London has far outstripped that of population in the years since the Booth survey. The railways, trams and buses of the metropolis now carry between them more than three more passengers per day than they did in 1890.

The extent to which the cinema now fills a gap in the leisure of the poorer classes is shown by the statistics of six boroughs with a population of about 1,000,000. In 1891 there was only one picture theatres and musical halls, capable of accommodating some 34,000 people. In 1929 the number of theatres and halls had increased to 59.

People's "Flier" Strengthened

An important statement is awaited in the introduction of the first volume of the survey by Sir Hubert. "Sometimes the suggestion has been made," says, "that the measures of social improvement recorded, may have at the same time weakened the power of the people. The real question is whether the 'subnormal' element of the population has grown. But an answer to this can only be given by persons to point in the opposite direction."

Sir Hubert, who was also one of the compilers of the monumental work of the Commissariat of the Christian Science Monitor that he expected the eight new volumes, which would complete the survey, would be that of the greatest value to the Government, municipalities and social investigators, and that it would be sold widely in America.

Only now, with the appearance of the first volume of London Life and Labor," does the great work of Charles Booth attain its highest value, for, in the words of that philanthropic ship-owner: "Comparisons with the past are absolutely necessary to the comprehension of all that exists today; without them we can attribute nothing to the heart of things."—Christian Science Monitor.

TOO MANY REVOLVERS

Apparently deadly weapons can be purchased as easily in this country as groceries. Any young fellow who thinks it a glorious adventure to go around holding up people and demand big money at the point of a gun does not seem to have the least difficulty in obtaining the firearm he requires. There are far too many revolvers and rifles in this country, and while that condition pertains there will be plenty of killings, premeditated and accidental.—Peterborough Examiner.

CANADA'S MINERAL RESOURCES

At the opening of this century, gold and coal were only two large items of Canada's mineral production. Today the Dominion mining industry owes its magnitude not only to coal and gold, but to copper, nickel, lead, silver, zinc, asbestos, and in short, to perhaps as wide a diversity of ores as any country affords mining enterprise.

Autumn Polonaise

by H. Lewis Raybold

The supple fingers of Jimmy coaxed a plaintive, minor melody into a crash ing climax of superb chords that sent little shivers playing up and down Mary Louise's spine.

"Ah, Jimmy," she cried, when he swung around on the piano stool with the whimsical look in his blue eyes which meant, "Please say you like it!" "That's wonderful! Oh, can't you see that you must do what I want you to do?"

Which is what, darling one?" teased Jimmy, jhe knew quite well what Mary Louise meant.

"Quit the hardware business. Spend your savings for a year in New York. By the end of that time you'll have found out whether you really have the tremendous talent I think you have. You're just got to do it!"

"Says you!" Jimmy reached over and kissed the two pretty slender hands in his. "Listen to me, honey. Do you know what such a procedure on my part would mean? No wedding bells for years at the least. I'll be more trumps over the autumn hills, no cosy little picnics in Sunset Cove. Furthermore—" Jimmy Henderson could never be sad or serious for long — "furthermore, I'll risk you run of losing me. 'Out of sight is out of mind,' you know!"

"Nonsense!" declared Mary Louise truthfully. "Absence makes the heart grow fonder!"

For a moment Jimmy's fine blue eyes looked past Mary Louise out into a garden whose darkness was sweet with honeysuckle. Suddenly he jumped to his feet. "By George," he cried, "I'll do it! And if I fail—"

Yet in lifelong months which followed, there were times when Mary Louise wished with all her heart that Jimmy would fail because then he would come back to Laurelville—and her.

Letters were a poor substitute for Jimmy's gay and exciting presence. Sometimes they sounded so like the boy himself that Mary Louise read one or two over them. Sometimes they were so strange that she went about with a sweet little teasing ache in her heart and a hurt expression in her loyal gray eyes.

The one which reached her Christmas week brought gray eyes.

The one which reached her Christmas week brought no joy to her holiday.

"Dear old thing.

"What do you know! Lady Luck is smiling on your boy friend. Gilda's Blaine — the Gilda, by the way — has asked me to play her accompaniments at her recital. Reckon she is singing a little thing of mine I made up recently. How's that for a Christmas present?

Your Faithful Jimmy.

P.S.—I've written a polonaise dedicated to Gilda. It's quite good."

The weeks went by without another word. Then came an envelope enclosing a ticket for the recital of Gilda Blaine Contralto. At first Mary Louise thought about tearing it up and flinging the fragments in the fireplace in a gesture of renouncement. Then she changed her mind and decided to go.

Now a journey from the acquestered town of Laurelville to Big City was a very real event in Mary Louise's untravelled life. Sh felt very small and young and alone when she stepped from the train into the vast reaches of the Grand Central.

Jimmy had written quite definitely that, unless she could arrive on an afternoon train, he would be absolutely unable to meet her. This Mary Louise, who was a conscientious secretary to the owner of the local hardware store, could not bring herself to do. Besides, Jimmy still wanted to marry her which she very much doubted.

She bought a cup of coffee, a sandwich and a section of apple pie in the busy restaurant across the street; then ferreted her way to the concert hall. It proved to be in the very heart centre in the third row from the front. Rather too near for the music but quite perfect when it came to watching Jimmy's face. Her heart all but stopped beating when he entered from the side and walked over to the piano.

Gilda, who turned out to be a mature, more sophisticated sort of person that Mary Louise had imagined her, began the program with three familiar arias which she sang exquisitely to Jimmy's subdued accompaniment. The audience liked her and applauded generously. She sang again for them. Then took a step forward to the very edge of the platform.

"I take great pleasure," she said in a dramatic voice, "in announcing a number not on the program. Mr. James Henderson will now play the 'Autumn Polonaise,' written by himself."

Spell-bound Mary Louise listened. All the militant glory of the fall with its flaming banners of color, its brave defiance of winter's advancing battalions, were in the music composed by his clever brain.

Other numbers by Gilda followed. Mary Louise scarcely heard them. Even the closing song, a wistful bit of melody with the haunting Jimmy touch in it which Jimmy loved, did not stir her as had his polonaise. It had been Jimmy's, Gilda but she claimed it for her own.

Mary Louise had just one idea in mind and that was to get away before Jimmy found her. She was determined him a letter of congratulations but she could not wait to watch him sharing with Gilda their mutual triumph.

She was slipping out through a side exit when someone grabbed her arm and whirled her.

"Jimmy. "Did you like it, darling? All your doing, you know. My being here and all that. And my "Autumn Polonaise'? I had to dedicate it to Gilda, of course, but you were my inspiration!"

"Gilda? Oh, she had to hustle home. She's married, you know, and one of her kids has the mumps or some silly illness like that. But I'll write about Gilda. Let's discuss you and me. Our marriage, for instance. Why, Mary Louise—"

For Mary Louise, who never did such a foolish thing as to show her emotions in public, was all but weeping on Jimmy's shoulder!

BULLET SHATTERS CAR WINDSHIELD

Hamilton Jan. 5—As James Treslidder of 192 Balsam Avenue was proceeding in his automobile east along Main Street yesterday afternoon a few minutes before 5 o'clock a bullet of small calibre crashed through the windshield of his car and wounded him in the upper lip. This occurred at a point near the Delta Collegiate. Mr. Treslidder said he heard no report of the discharge of a firearm, and told Police Constable Green of the occurrence. The constable immediately searched the district and made inquiries, but did not learn the source of the bullet or the identity of the person that fired it. Police were inclined to think that a young boy was responsible, as the bullet was of .22 calibre. The wound in Mr. Treslidder's lip was not serious but had the bullet been an inch or so higher the prank might have been much more tragic.

PRAIRIES HOPE LIES IN MIXED FORM OF FARMING

(By the Canadian Press)

EDMONTON—Much has been said in recent years about the advisability of the farmers in the Canadian West going in for mixed farming, and a considerable number have done so to a certain extent, but it has not become general on the prairies. The importance of mixed farming was stressed by the Minister of Agriculture for Alberta, Hon. George Hoadley, in a speech at Vegreville, recently.

Mr. Hoadley expressed the belief that the salvation of agriculture in the West depended upon mixed farming. He referred to the work the Department of Agriculture is doing in sponing the province as to its agricultural possibilities. That is, certain districts are being set aside as containing land suitable for wheat growing and in which the cultivation of wheat is recommended by the Department, while other districts are being set aside as particularly suited to mixed farming and so recommended.

The Minister of Agriculture claimed that one reason for the present depression in the West is that high pressure salesmanship has placed on the farms a good deal of machinery that the farmers have not required, and now the farmers are being pressed for payment of the debts which they contracted when they bought the machinery.

Seeks to Reinstate Honor of Rembrandt

The Hague, Holland, Jan. 5—Rembrandt, the great Dutch master of talent, went bankrupt in 1656 when he was about 50 years of age, and though he lived for 13 years afterwards and did some of his finest work in those 13 years, he never succeeded in paying off his creditors and he died a bankrupt. For the past 150 years or thereabouts posterity has held Rembrandt van Rijn, of Amsterdam, in the highest honor. It has bought this or that painting or etching at a price which would have paid off all his creditors a hundred times over, but still his memory has not been cleared of the cloud that rested on his name when he died. His probity has not been restored. He has not been discharged from bankruptcy.

Now however a descendant of a brother of Rembrandt's first wife, Saskia van Uylenburg, has applied to the Amsterdam Court for the rehabilitation of Rembrandt.

The Handelsblad has published text of the request made by the applicant, whose name is not given, but who is stated to be a scientific Dutch University. He says that he has a great admiration for his "forefather" Rembrandt, and is filled with sorrow that the last part of the master's life should have been passed in the severest circumstances, ending in a bankruptcy from which he has never been rehabilitated. The end by of the master forms a sharp contrast to the fame of his works and the profits made by publishers, authors, and art dealers.

The descendant argues that, according to Dutch law, Rembrandt had the right to demand his rehabilitation. And that that right also exists for a close kinsman of the master. He supports his demand for the Court pronouncement of rehabilitation with a long list of legal arguments based on the bankruptcy laws of Holland from the 19th century to the present time. He cites a book recently written by Dr. J. W. van Loon, Dutch Gentleman and afterwards naturalized in the United States, entitled "Life and Times of Rembrandt van Rijn," in which the facts and years of Rembrandt are described. An amount of 6,852 florins and 90 cents was paid, out of the proceeds of the sale of the master's estate on his death, to Titus van Rijn, Rembrandt's son by Saskia. Nothing seems to have been paid to Rembrandt's ordinary creditors, but on both of these creditors exists. This, the student continues, justifies the case for rehabilitation. He pleads for a favorable decision to clear the name of the bankrupt may not for ever remain on the property left by Rembrandt.

ADVOCATE FARM FOR THE YOUNG

(By The Canadian Press)

FREDERICTON—The effort which the New Brunswick Department of Agriculture is making through education to guide the interests of young people on the farms of the province to a realization of the advantages of farming as a vocation is meeting with gratifying support.

Since the opening of the New Brunswick School of Agriculture in 1930 one hundred and fifty young men have attended the annual fall short courses in practical agriculture. The attendance at the 1930 course just concluded was the largest on record, the number of students being thirty-five. The membership of young people's livestock and poultry clubs organized annually increasing proportion of the students of this school. This year half of those enrolled have been club members. It is expected that the total number of ex-club members of teen-age farmers will even larger proportion of the students at the fall term, whose interest has been aroused by participation in a calf-raising or a poultry-raising project. A feature of the registration project. A feature of the registration this year was the growing proportion of French-speaking young men.

Public support of the policy of spreading agricultural knowledge among the young people of the province is evinced by the contributions toward assisting students to attend the school and the prizes donated by various agricultural societies, co-operative associations, service clubs, financial and business firms and private citizens. A feature of the closing exercises was an address to the students by the Minister of Agriculture, Hon. Lewis Smith, in which he stressed the advantage which farm boys in the province today possess in having a residence school such as this within a few hours' journey of their homes. He urged them to continue the study and practice of agriculture and to tell other young men in their home communities of the character of the lessons and the demonstrations taught and performed at the school.

JONAH AND WHALE DISCUSSED AGAIN

Halifax, N.S.—The story of Jonah and the whale is a myth, declared one who while is still news. The old controversy as to whether the Biblical account of Jonah and the whale or a recital of actual fact has been given impetus here following a recent sermon of the Rev. John Mitch, pastor of Fort Massey United Church.

In a series of sermons on How to Read the Bible, Mr. Mitch remarked that the Book of Jonah considered to be one of the greatest missionary pamphlets of the race, and that in reference to the attacks of the "scoffer and scorner, the true believer has always taken the true and wise methods."

"The book is an imaginative story in poetic language," said Mr. Mitch, "Jonah is no historical figure. He is the personification of the Jewish nation, and the character the author gives to Jonah is the character of the Jew of that day, that he would have the Jew see for himself."

The story of the "great fish," Mr. Mitch continued, referred to a mythological creature supposed to exist, and "No Jew, reading that story when it was written, had any doubt in his mind that that fish was there to hear ing sea referred to poetical upheavals, and the dragon of the deep represented the sea and the mythological way Assyria and Babylon, who had swallowed up the tribe by taking them into captivity. Jeremiah had similar language when he said, 'Nebuchadrezzar, the king of Babylon, hath devoured me, he hath swallowed me up like a dragon, he hath filled me out.' This imaginative figure would present no problem to the Jew of that time."

Finally Jonah went to Nineveh, where the success of his preaching was phenomenal. That which he fear to see—and thought he saw—destroying his hope that the city would be wiped out as Sodom and Gomorrah had been.

"What Jonah had was the spirit of Pharisaism," said Mr. Mitch, "the same thing that Christ was up against in his day, the spirit of pride with contempt and scorn on a neighbor who hasn't as much knowledge of God as he has."

Many who read his sermon disagreed with Mr. Mitch. "Too much modern thing is bad for man," in the opinion of J. W. Douglass, of River John, who submitted that many miracles the equal of Jonah's swallowing had been accomplished, and gave the opinion that "Mr. Mitch doesn't know any more about Jonah and the fish than any man in the congregation."

"Not being a great scholar, I never found any difficulty in believing that the book of Jonah is founded on fact," not even after reading some of the facts compiled by those who are doing their best to eliminate the supernatural from the Bible, and made it a mere human book, wrote A. D. Falconer, of Arndale.

In finding the impromptu correspondence debate, Mr. Mitch pointed out that in Pilgrim's Progress is a vivid description of the fight of the faith of Christian with the monster Apollyon. If I were preaching a sermon on Pilgrim's Progress," he said, "as Christian fought with Apollyon so must every man do battle with the same monster, and Christian will rise up in judgment against the people of this generation who do not conquer their temptations. Yet no one would have to be considered that I accepted Pilgrim's Progress as literal, historical fact. No more do our Lord's words imply that he believed the book of Jonah to be literally true."

USING TACT AT THE TABLE

By Constance Cameron

There seem to be two types of mothers when the question arises of making children do things which they should do. We all agree I think, that every child should consume good, nourishing food, plenty of vegetables and much milk. We all agree on that except, sometimes, the children.

And here is where food problems arise. And having arisen, one type of mother announces: "There'll be no coaxing and cajoling or sidestepping in my family. Mary will eat what is put before her because she ought to." That is the "might" way of doing things. Sometimes it works and some times it creates an antipathy toward food, to correct which the mother has to do an about-face after all.

The other type of mother uses tact, says little about food being eaten because "it's good for you," and seems to get better and more painless results in the long run.

The approach to any food problem, like that to any other child-training problem, lies in the nature of your child. For each child is an individual and must be treated as such.

But most children will respond to the element of play or surprise if it is not made too pointed.

I know a mother who falls under the "tactful" classification. Her son John, aged 4, scorned green foods of all kinds. One evening at dinner Mother served an attractive orange-colored salad. John looked at it in disgust. Apparently no attention was paid to him, but Mother finally said in an offhand way: "The first who guesses what's in this salad can help me make another surprise salad tomorrow."

John immediately tasted his. Dad tasted his, and the guessing was on. "Pineapple," announced little John. "Right," said mother, "but what else?" And John's salad had almost disappeared before he discovered that he'd been eating grated raw carrots combined with a fruit he adored.

Cud, suspecting the orange-colored vegetable and remembering John's dislike for it, had postponed guessing his. But John was only delighted that he'd been more keen than Dad.

"You may help me for another tomorrow," said mother, "and we'll see if we can fool daddy again."

That worked well with the vegetable end of dinner.

But John felt he was too big a boy to drink milk, so mother tried getting something different in his milk each time, and had him guess what it was. One meal it would be malted milk, another a spoonful of chocolate sauce, again a raw egg beaten well with sugar added and a bit of nutmeg sprinkled over the top.

Nothing is ever said in that family about drinking or eating "because it's good for you." Even the surprise element isn't stressed too hard, but every once in a while the mysterious contents start and food somehow releases John.

ONE EGG MARBLE CAKE

One and one-half cups sugar, one-half cup butter, one egg, one and one half cups milk, three teaspoons baking powder, three cups flour, one tea spoon vanilla. Put half the material into a separate bowl and add one square of melted chocolate. Alternate the batter in the cake tin. Frost this cake with frosting covered with melted chocolate.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

KIDNEY LIVER BLADDER

087 THE PHILLIPS

Fashionably Speaking By Lucille

Dear Readers:

With the weather dreary, hinting of snow, and then dashing hopes of winter sports by sending sleet, we must look about for bright forecasts of Spring to take our thoughts away from the disagreeable situation out doors. And so it is a very good time to hear about hats for the coming season, for what woman doesn't respond to delightful millinery!

The straw hats of last Spring and Summer made such an instant appeal that designers could not overlook their importance in arranging for hat styles this year. So once again straw models will have a very definite place in millinery offerings. The old favourites, milan, baku and sisal weaves are to the fore and there has been a new straw introduced, known as "paille sadrakhan".

Other materials are not neglected, however, felt, grosgrain ribbon and silk-crepe de chine being used for very dainty models. Although millinery designers have not announced definitely the new styles for Spring, stylists predict that there will be much variety in the models. Hats may be tiny, tightfitting affairs, such as those of the winter season, or they may be brimmed to an alarming degree. Turbans and bonnets are also popular.

As for colours, here too there will be room for many tastes. Pink is to be a leading shade for sports and hats of this color will have trimmings of black. Black with blue will be another approved combination. Green will hold its own for Springtime, Turquoise blue promises to lead in the blue tones. Navy, this year, do not necessarily have to match the costume. In fact it will be quite fashionable to wear one that does not. This does not mean that the hat will not have some link between it and the costume. This will be supplied. In the case of a turquoise hat, by a turquoise necklace, and the frock may be of any desired color.

Fashionably yours,

Lucille.

Fashion Flashes

A colorful existence is possible for even the darkest frock. An afternoon gown of black crepe gains color by means of ornamental inserts of red, mauve, orange and pink. It has V-neckline and a moderately high waist line.

Selling life is easy for lace frocks, for they go everywhere. A lovely informal frock likely to go places is made of pale yellow chiffon contrasted with black chantilly lace. The chiffon is used for the bodice and inserts in the skirt. The lace jacket has a self ruffle on the hem and sleeves.

Out on the ocean will go those fortunate beings who will wear the bathrobing South. Ideal for yachting parties is a three piece costume in jersey. It is of red, navy and blue. A boat design is embroidered on the white sweater-blouse.

Hold high the head if you are wearing one of the new evening caps at semi-formal gatherings. Ideal for the jaunty wearer is a small cap of black net with a double wing-like trimming of turquoise blue glycerine ostrich feathers. The trimming extends from either side of the back of the cap, which is worn back from the forehead.

Frocks are flowering into new beauty. One of the most exquisite evening frocks of the season is made of layers of flesh, yellow, peach, orchid and green net. The lower part of the frock has embroidered on it every variety of orchid and many other flowers outlined with rhinestones.

Material mergers are popular this season, some frocks using three or four different fabrics. An evening dress with a sheath-like bodice of blue and gold metal cloth has a full skirt of blue chiffon posed over stiffened blue net. The skirt is embroidered in rhinestones in floral motifs and is also embellished with knots of lavender chiffon flowers.

HYGIENE OF THE NOSE

Ignorance as to the proper care of the organs containing the special senses leads to a great deal of discomfort for many individuals.

Mistreatment by the sufferers themselves of conditions that arise in these organs, according to their own ideas or those of their well-meaning but not so well-informed neighbors, results in much, if not more harm than comes from lack of knowledge as to how to keep the parts in a healthy condition.

The nose, throat and ears are closely related in their location and functions. Here we confine our remarks to the nose, but it should be borne in mind that the well-being of any part or organ of the body depends to a great extent, upon the health of the whole body.

There are some important methods of care of the nose, which, if practised, will do much to prevent the occurrence of abnormal nasal conditions. They are important because their use will make for a happier life for the individual through the avoidance of discomfort and illness.

Just inside of the nostrils are found several rows of hairs, which, projecting into the nasal passage, act as a sieve for the indrawn air. Infections such as boils at the root of these hairs are not uncommon, and they are usually due to injury from picking the nose or from cutting of the hairs which have become long. Such infections cause a great deal of pain and discomfort, and may give rise to serious conditions. The obvious way to prevent such trouble is to keep the fingers out of the nose, and not to pull at the hairs. If it is necessary to trim the hairs, scissors should be used, as this does away with the possibility of allowing bacteria to gain entrance and set up infection.

The nose like any other organ, must be used if it is to develop properly. If the nose is obstructed during the early years of life, the surrounding parts do not develop properly. As a result, there is a high arched palate, irregular teeth, a long-drawn, narrow face, a nasal tone to the voice, and the partial or complete loss of the sense of smell, the last named very often affecting the sense of taste which is so closely related to that of smell.

The most common cause of obstruction to normal breathing is an overgrowth of adenoid tissue. But whatever the cause, no child or adult should be allowed to continue to be a mouth-breather for any length of time.

Obstructions in the nose not only lead to the deformities already mentioned and to the loss of the senses of taste and smell, but they predispose to the development of infections in the middle ear, throat and lungs, because the air is not properly prepared by passage through the nose, where normally it is filtered, warmed and moistened, it reaches the delicate tissues of the lungs in such a state as to increase the burden thrown on the tissues, and so lowers their resistance and increases the chance of the development of bronchitis or pneumonia.

Personal comfort, the sense of well-being, the general health of all parts of the body and particularly of the nose, throat and ears, will all be definitely improved by taking care of the nose, by seeing that there is no obstruction of the nasal passage and that natural breathing is practised.

Questions concerning Health addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

WOMEN OF EARLY DAYS WERE SLAVES OF FASHION

Montreal, Jan. 5—Father Chenu, noted French Dominican, lecturing here on "Women in the Middle Ages" chose the book by Robert de Blois on the "Education of Women" for his chief theme.

In those early days, women were already the slaves of fashion, more elaborate hats replacing the modest bonnet, shoes becoming more fancy and dresses styled to suit refined tastes. A writer exclaims "what has become of the simplicity of other days, when women had only three gowns, one for the festive days, one for Sunday and one for the home!" They were not satisfied with new fashions, some arranging their hair in a very elaborate way and other taking pride in the bobbed hair cut. Cosmetics formed part of the fair sex's box of thicks, even at that time.

De Blois declared that the education of women was a very delicate and difficult matter and it was not an easy task to teach them to walk with elegance and grace, not to talk all the time, and to observe a certain discretion in their looks.

TEMPERANCE IS NOW ORGANIZED

Toronto, Jan. 6—Picturesque in her orange and flame-colored sari and headgear, arranged as the Hindu wraps women of India wear it, Miss Mable Evangeline Archibald, M.A., of Chhindwara, Madras Presidency, for many years a missionary under the Canadian Baptist Mission Board, and now home on furlough—after more than an hour in Willard Hall on conditions in her adopted country, particularly with regard to the Temperance movement.

"The Women's Christian Temperance Union is organized in eight of the Provinces of India and each division has its officers and various departments and holds annual conventions, and we have Temperance literature prepared in 16 of the 200 languages of India," she said. "The last national convention was held in Delhi, the Capital of India, just before I left, and it is here that land has been secured for headquarters and the build ing is now going up. Among the well organized leaders of a concerted drive for prohibition are three Indian women. One of these was a woman inspector, who gave up this work in order to help the temperance cause by lecturing in the schools to the boys and girls of South Africa."

Miss Archibald's comments on the changing conditions in India, its customs and attitudes were most interesting. Had she met Gandhi? Several times, she said. "Once he came to Chicoutimi, where I live, in the Madras Presidency. Ten thousand people gathered to meet him. He mounted a platform six feet high and sat cross-legged thereon and spoke against drink child marriages and other evils of India. He weighs less than 100 pounds and his voice was so weak no one could hear him, but his remarks were shouted out by another."

CENTRAL ELECTRIC STATION INDUSTRY

Canada's central electric station industry — the generation or distribution of electrical energy for public use — has attained record proportions because the wide distribution and accessibility of her abundant water powers is such that, with modern means of transmission, low cost hydro-electricity for industrial, agricultural, and domestic use is available to all but a small proportion of her population. Industrial supplies of native fuels constitute potential sources of electricity.

TOO MUCH ACID

may be causing those frequent headaches

WHEN there's too much acid in your stomach, you must force yourself to work, and even pleasures are too great an effort. Appetite lags; the digestion is poor; the whole system suffers.

Laboratory tests show an acid condition is due to errors in our modern diet. But you need not wait to diet your way out of the trouble!

Take a tablespoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

This will neutralize the excess acid instantly; make you feel like a new person in just a few moments.

Take a little whenever heartburn, sick headaches, nausea, flatulence, indigestion or biliousness show the digestive system is becoming too acid. Whenever you are taking cold or feel sluggish, weak, constipated. Phillips' Milk of Magnesia has a gentle laxative action.

Delightful to take. Endorsed by physicians for 70 years and prescribed everywhere for men, women and children. The genuine is always a liquid; it cannot be made in tablet form. It always bears the name Phillips' for your protection.

$628,000 DEFICIT WAS REPORTED FOR YEAR 1930

Succession Duties Show Big Advance—Revenue Gain is Noted

MOTOR RECEIPTS DOWN

Liquor Revenues in Depression are Not Decreased According to Treasurer

TORONTO, Jan. 7.—Notwithstanding economic depression in Ontario's fiscal year, 1930, which transformed a provincial surplus of 1929 into a $628,000 deficit, revenues from the sales of liquor did not decline in the "depression" year as compared with the "boom" year which preceded it. This is one of the curious features of the annual pre-sessional financial statement issued yesterday by Ontario's new provincial treasurer, Hon. W. A. Dunlop. "The amount received from the Liquor Control Board," says his statement, "was practically the same as last year."

The last fiscal year's revenue from the Liquor Control Board amounted to $7,811,000; in that year sales of liquor, beer, wines, etc., amounted to $65,360,080.81. Assuming that the revenue for the fiscal year 1930—that is, the profits, etc., turned over to the Government—are "practically the same," it is believed that the sales also must approach somewhat the same figure as in 1929.

Despite an increase of $3,300,000 in the province's revenue—the largest on a big increase in succession duties—the minister's statement reveals a deficit for the first time in four years.

The situation showing in a nutshell, so the generally-prevailing unsatisfactory economic conditions of the year has existed.

Ordinary revenue and interest on invested funds amounted to $87,325,-000; ordinary expenditures, including public debt charges, totalled $87,953,926. Heat is not taken that the increase in succession duties amounted to $4,500,-000 the deficit would have approached closely to the $1,000,000 mark, since other sources of revenue fell far short of the estimated amounts.

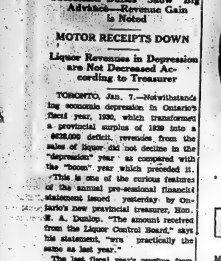
Gasoline Revenue

Revenue from gasoline taxes shows an increase of $2,258,000 more than amount collected the previous year. This is partly accounted for by the fact that the five-cent tax per gallon was in effect for a full year against seven months only in 1929. The report says:

"The amount collected fell short, however, of the anticipated revenue for 1930 from this source by $750,000, which is reflective of conditions in 1930. Against the increase of gas tax, however, must be set a reduction of $3,300 in motor vehicle licenses, consequent on the reduction in license fees put into effect at the beginning of the past year."

AIR CARAVAN IS AGAIN ON ITS WAY

Natal, Brazil, Jan. 7—Thousands of inhabitants of this far north eastern tip of the South American continent gathered here today to gaze in amazed admiration at the ten Italian seaplanes which yesterday flew cross the Atlantic to complete one of the greatest achieve ments in aviation history.



After the gruelling trip of 1,700 miles the air caravan plans to start tomorrow for Rio de Janeiro.

JOFFRE'S BODY LIES IN STATE

Paris, Jan. 7.—The body of Marshal Joffre, hero of the Marne, rested today in Les Invalides, the hall of French martials, sheltering the bodies of Napoleon and Foch. Two million Parisians braved the freezing weather to stand outside the long cortege along the route of the funeral cortege to pay homage to the departed marshal.

CHICAGO SLAYER ADMITS GUILT FOLLOWING PLEAS BY HIS WIFE

Attacker of St. Thomas Brakeman Shielded by Victim, Police Claim

St. Thomas, Jan. 7.—Five months after Russell Gervest, St. Thomas brakeman died declaring he had slipped while making a coupling, a telegram from Chicago police today suggested he had been pushed to his death by a hobo.

Trainmen were frankly puzzled by Gervest's whispered assertion—mortal statement that he had fallen beneath the wheels. There was no occasion for the brakeman to be making a coupling when the tragedy occurred, they said. Chief Constable Gunson of St. Thomas was suspicious. As there had been no witnesses of the fatality, the coroner's jury however, last July returned a verdict of accidental death.

Today the following wire came from William Morton, Chicago chief of detectives:

Wife Tells Police

In custody here Jerome Johnson, 26 years old, whose wife informs us he made an admission to her that he was beating his way between Buffalo and Detroit in July or August of this year and at St. Thomas encountered a railroad employe or a switchman, who attempted to put him off the train. Johnson assaulted and threw the man under the train and thought he had killed him. Please wire for answer if you have a record of such an accident and if you want him."

Tonight Capt. H. O. Tryon head of the Michigan Central Railway police, St. Thomas division, left for Chicago to question Johnston whose application in the east followed an attempt to enlist on the Chicago police force. It was while investigating his past history that the Chicago police heard his wife's amazing story of what she said her husband had told her.

May be Brought Back

Chief Constable Gunson says steps will be taken to bring Johnson to St. Thomas if Capt. Taylor's investigation substantiates the alleged admission of the man to his wife.

Gervest was injured on July 21 at Hagersville. He was assisting in making up a freight train and was found by other members of the crew beside the end of a car on a spur track. He died several hours later after whispering to a comrade the puzzling story of falling while making a coupling.

PAY CARGO PLANE OFF FOR BERMUDA

Hampton Roads Naval Air Station, Va., Jan. 7 (CP)—The sleek white monoplane "Tradewind" piloted by the youthful red-haired widow, and the man who laughs her to fly streaked away in the darkness on the first leg of flight via Bermuda and the Azores to Paris, carrying a pay cargo, Mrs. Beryl Hart and Lieut. W. E. Macaren took to the air at six a.m. today.

BRAKEMAN FATALLY HURT

Cochrane, Jan.7.— James Betty, 38, of Sheenboro, Quebec ,employed as a brakeman at the Abitibi Canyon, died from injuries received late yesterday. Betty was coupling two cars when, in some manner, his head got slammed between the two blocks, fracturing his skull. Frank Beeney, a cousin of the victim, was an eye witness of the accident. The body will be held here until viewed by his wife on Thursday.

CRITICALLY HURT SEEKING AN OWL

Port Colborne, Jan. 7—In attempting to capture an owl which was sitting on a high tension wire of the Hydro Electric system here yesterday afternoon, Arthur Richardson, 15, was severely shocked and thrown twenty feet to the ground. He was taken to the hospital where his condition was reported as critical. The bird was killed when the boy reaching from the steel plate formed the contact.

MOOSEHEART LEGION INSTAL OFFICERS

Installation of the newly-elected officers of Mooseheart Legion No. 427 was an interesting event in the Moose Auditorium last evening. A large number of members were present and the installation ceremonies were carried out in an impressive manner. The officers installed by Deputy Grand and Regent Jackson of Toronto, assisted by Legionaire Wells who acted as Grand Guide. They were:

Senior Regent — Legionnaire L. Collins.

Past Regent—Legionnaire G. Ivers.

Junior Regent—Legionnaire M. York.

Chaplain —Legionnaire L. Holland.

Recorder—Legionnaire M. Brown.

Treasurer—Legionnaire E. Beare.

Financial Secretary Legionnaire Pope.

Assistant Guide— Legionnaire McGinnis.

Sentinel—Legionnaire St. Louis.

Argus—Legionnaire B. Boyle.

Pianist—Legionnaire A. Gill.

Captain of the Degree Team—Legionnaire Griffith.

After the installation, the installing officer was presented with a bouquet of roses by the members of the lodge. Mrs. Ivers, the Past Senior Regent was presented with a silver camerole. The retiring Recorder, Legionnaire Doran and the pianist, Legionnaire Gill were presented with silver candle sticks.

During the evening short addresses were given by the Grand Regent of Ontario, Mr. Donovan, Mr. Baxter of Hamilton, a Moose organizer and a member of Picton, L.O.O.M.

Refreshments were served, after which there was dancing, with Chas. Cooper's Orchestra in attendance.

PRESENT BOARD HOSPITAL HOLD FINAL MEETING

Honorary Secretary W. H. Nugent Praises Work of Five Years

GROWTH OF HOSPITAL

Modern Fire-Proof Wing at Hospital Said to be Needed

At the final meeting of the Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital held on Tuesday, January 6, in the committee room at the county buildings, Mr. W. H. Nugent, honorary secretary of the board, presented the report for the month of December and referred to the five years governing control of the hospital.

Mr. Nugent placed his resignation in the hands of the board after a service of five years. Mr. J. A. Ellis, vice-chairman occupied the chair. The report follows:

Shire Hall, Belleville,

January 6th, 1931

"To the Board of Governors,

Belleville General Hospital.

"Mr. Chairman—I beg to submit the following report on the activities of the Belleville General Hospital for the month of December, 1930:

Hospitalization Days:: Ordinary Patients, 1938; babies, 336; Total 2276. Daily average ordinary patients, 63; daily average babies 10; total 73. Receipts ordinary $7,939.86; miscellaneous, $107.26; County of Hastings grant $175.00; City of Belleville grant $6,304.40; Total receipts $13,576.71. Ordinary receipts $13,576.71. Ordinary receipts, daily average $438.06; total receipts $13,576.71. Expenditures $8,522.01. Receipts over expenditures $5,054.70. Surplus receipts $5,054.70.

Admissions 197; discharges 191; deaths 21.

"I am most going to make any comments on the financial condition for the month of December more than to say that it shows a very substantial balance of $5,054.69, receipts over expenditures. This is explained by the monthly county grant of $6,304.40 and the Belleville total grant for the year of $6,-026.40.

Resignation Accepted

"The new bylaw affecting the Belleville General Hospital management, passed by the W.O.A. of Belleville, reads in this wise: under which the present Board of Governors was appointed and operated, and as the new plan of management will not become effective the present board, it is only fitting that I should place my resignation in the hands of the Board if for no other reason than that the Government in its reorganization and selections should be free to choose and appoint according as they deem to be the best advantages and interests of the Belleville General Hospital. According to the provisions of the new bylaw the regular monthly meetings will be held at the hospital which will necessitate the filing of all papers at the institution, and for economic reasons only the present office staff of three, the secretary-treasurer could, probably, act as secretary to the board, thereby saving the expense of the honorarium paid for the service of the Honorary Secretary.

Five Years' Service

"Now at the conclusion of my pleasant and active five years connection of the Board of Governors it offers the opportunity of mentioning briefly their activities in the past and giving a few facts that may prove of interest to those concerned in the progress and welfare of our institution. First, it is with feelings of personal regret that I sever official connections extending over a period of five years, during which time it has been my good fortune to enjoy the confidence and cooperation of those with whom I worked.

"The Superintendent, Miss McIndoo, and her efficient staff I found conscientious qualified and vigilant; no task too exacting to receive their attention to insure the greatest measure of success, always sympathetic, courteous and tactful, possessing executive ability to meet the difficult situations incident to the conduct of institutional management.

"The office department, first under the supervision of Miss Alice Quinn, and in January 1927 succeeded by Miss Jean Adams, justly merits the appreciation of this Board for their loyalty to the institution. Eminently qualified for their positions they faithfully labored with one great purpose in view, the best interests of the Belleville General Hospital.

"The Board of Governors, both collectively and individually, have been

MILITARY HONOURS FOR DR. F.M. BELL

Remains of Well Known New York Doctor Brought to Kingston

Kingston, Jan. 7—The remains of the late Dr. F. McKelvey Bell, prominent surgeon and military man who died yesterday in New York, will arrive in the city on Thursday afternoon it was announced by members of the family here this morning.

Military honors are being paid the deceased in New York today, though it had been at first planned to have a military funeral in Kingston. The funeral, after arriving in Kingston, will be taken to Cataraqui cemetery, where a simple burial service will be conducted.

The late Dr. Bell was a brother of H. C. Bell of this city, and also of D. J. H. Bell, of Hamilton, former mayor and alderman of Kingston and who was for several years medical health officer here.

Miss Ann Grant, of Hamilton, survives, in addition to the widow of the deceased, two sons and a daughter.

UNITED CHURCH AID IS GRANTED FOR THE WEST

$52,000 Set Aside for Support of Embarrassed Centre There

REGINA PARLEY

Amount Provided to Cover Salary Arrear and Debts to June 1st

REGINA, Jan. 7.—The sum of $52,-000 has been set aside from general church funds to relieve distressed churches and ministers in the three prairie provinces, it was announced yesterday by Rev. Dr. Peter Bryce, Toronto, secretary of the maintenance committee of the United Church of Canada.

This announcement was made following a discussion of church affairs in the west at a meeting in Regina attended by 40 representatives of churches. The conference was a special one called by Rev. Dr. E. H. Oliver, moderator of the church.

After having reviewed the entire situation concerning the people at large, it was found that the Red Cross Society and the provincial Governments of the three prairie provinces, also church organizations of both eastern and western Canada had done great work in placing required relief where it would do most good, Dr. Bryce said.

The $52,000 which the church has decided to grant to the west "will be to cover salary arrears and church debts to June 1st," continued Dr. Bryce said. This amount will, or should cover such relief until June 1 or talk over that what further relief is necessary, other steps will be taken to keep the churches involved in the field, he added.

Members of the conference, which represented 3,000 preaching places in the west, after analyzing conditions as they certainly exist in impoverished areas where food clothing and fuel are necessary, included in their recommendations:

THREE BIG CONTRACTS ON TRAIL-ORR

At the end of this week or on Sunday or Monday, Mr. Vernon Orr, in charge of his "Trail-Orr" will leave for the United States on a motoring tour for the Toronto Convention and Tourists' Association which uses the back panel of the car. The Province of Ontario, using the left side, and the Canadian National Exhibition, the right side. The painting on the sides and on the rear panel of the car as a whole car is the work of a Belleville man, Mr. Henry Smale of Scanlon-borry's. Mr. Orr also especially fine work on the decoration.

Mr. Orr told the Ontario Intelligencer today that he has options for two more "Trail-Orr" cars to go on tour in the springtime.

The first car is at present in Belleville.

PREP GROUP TRYOUT

The Y.M.C.A. Prep group of boys of ten and eleven years of age held skating and tryout for the Ki-Y hockey league at the Simpson rink last night. There was a good turnout of the boys and some good material is available for the lads for the bantam series team. The junior school boys had their skating party recently at Simpson's rink.

ENSIGN COMING

On Saturday, Sunday and Monday next, Ensign H. Wood, of the Salvation Army, Toronto, will come to Belleville it was announced by Ensign Hoolet today. He will conduct all the services on Sunday and will give an address on Monday. A band festival will be held on Sunday afternoon. Ensign Wood for the past seven years has been a missionary to South Africa and will tell some of his interesting experiences in that country.

INSTALL OFFICERS

Rotary and Kiwanis, both service clubs which do immeasurable good in practically every community of any size in Canada and the United States, joined hands in Picton last night when Charles Dolan, past president of the local Rotary Club, installed the officers for 1931 of the Picton Kiwanis Club. It was an interesting ceremony. Dr. D. W. Outlet is the new president for 1931, his chief aid and vice-president will be Bert Tulley; Stanley Hambley is the secretary and Alec Wright the treasurer; Fred Newman will be the District Trustee.

Mr. Dolan, in making the address of the evening, stressed the important duties of the officers to their club and to the community. Mr. Joe Imlah, past president of the Belleville Kiwanis Club was present last night also.

MANY COMMUNICANTS

The largest attendance, according to records, to be at a Communion Service in Holloway street United Church for many years was present last Sunday morning and evening in those services. Rev. Neal, pastor of the church, said that he had very rarely seen a larger turnout for communion.

MOIRA CHAPTER MET

Members of Moira Chapter R.A.M. enjoyed an interesting address by Companion Rev. Dr. J. A. Seymour, at their regular convocation held in the Masonic Temple last night. His address was "Australia" a subject upon which he is qualified to speak as he spent many years in that interesting country. First Principal William McIntosh with his efficient staff of officers initiated candidates into the mysteries of the degrees. The usual toasts were drunk at the banquet, which followed the degree work and the address by Rev. Dr. Seymour made a delightful evening and one long to be remembered.

25 REGISTERED

Twenty-five students registered for the regular course at the Eastern Ontario Dairy School, the session of which opens today in Kingston. Those from this district who are attending the 1931 session include—Eric Lidster, Belleville, Raymond Lidster, of Belleville, Ralph Ketchaon, Moira; Sidney Johnston, Madoc, William Hod kinson, Stirling, Vernon Curry, Foxboro, Norman Fisher, Bancroft, William Fisher, Stirling, and Douglas Howe, Stirling.

ZERO WEATHER

Although the mercury did not drop below zero, residents felt the biting wind which blew out of the northwest as they wended their way to labor today. The thermometer at the pumphouse, which is quite reliable, registered three degrees above zero early today while the highest point was 7 degrees above. Yesterday the weather was more moderate the lowest being 19 degrees and the highest 29 degrees Later today the weather moderated considerably, the wind which came out of the northwest dropping to a zephyr.

OPENING GAMES IN OWL LEAGUE

Bankers and Arenas Were Losers in Last Night's Tilts

The opening games of the Owl League were played last night, the bankers scoring defeat at Wellington in the Prince Edward town by a score of 3-1, while the Arenas won from the Night Hawks by the same score. The league operates after all good residents have retired to slumberland so it is how should say up since night and witness one of the contests and they would be regular customers thereafter. Wellington held much the best of the Money Lenders being shown ahead in the score column. They registered one counter in the first frame no goals were scored in the second game but Wellington outscored the visitors 2-1 in the last period. The Bankers team was composed of goal Davies, defense Miles and Clarke, centre Burley, wings Brown and Neeland and Alternates Walsh, Jenkinson and Christie.

The Arena team at shovelling snow off the ice are first class workmen, but as hockey players they come along ways from the standard required. Nevertheless they defeated the Night Hawks or boys who have designed to go to, and of they have do not go home until the early hours by a 3-1 count, and in so doing kept pace with the leaders Keith Scott for the Hawks gave a marvellous exhibition in the twine, the only mistake being when his stick caught in the mesh and the rubber was put on the hue line. One of his team mates took him out of trouble by gently moving the puck in the net to give the Arenas a score. These games are played after the regular hours at the Arena and some ready spending Arenas are seen and some time when a diversity of amusement is needed drop over to the Arena and watch this league in operation.

lectively and individually, deserve credit for the measure of success attained, for there have been worthwhile things accomplished under their administration during the past five years.

Accounts

"Let me correct a wrong impression which by accident or design has been circulated somewhere freely, viz.: that $1,500.00 bad debts had been written off the hospital books in 1930." True, on the advice of the auditor this amount was written off at the time of the audit about September 30th, 1930, but none of that amount applied to accounts contracted during the year. For the information of those who desire to know the correct version I herewith submit the following, showing the years and amounts which making up the actual sum written off:

1923—$128.00; 1924—$119.25; 1925—52.00; 1926—$35.00; 1927—$764.05; 1928—$1,563.43; 1929—$786.35. Total $3,497.88.

"A similar practice was followed in 1927, 1928 and 1929. All public institutions and commercial organizations are compelled from time to time to write off bad accounts and the hospitals in this regard are seemingly in a more unfortunate position as they cannot select their patrons, as the law compels a general hospital to admit all sick persons. In many cases residence cannot be fixed, in other instances they are admitted in good faith to a private or semi-private ward, after incurring a large account for maintenance it is discovered they are worthless, and the hospital is forced to stand the loss. This is one feature wherein the doctors could materially assist in having the patients properly placed. No one has less tolerance than I for people who, by subterfuge or misrepresentation, try to evade the payment of a just account, yet personally I doubt the wisdom of placing a professional collector to harass people who are really indigent, as the results are negligible and only increase the distress of the unfortunate.

Five Years Ago

"In taking over the management of the Belleville Hospital late in the autumn of 1926 by the present Board, the first thing found necessary was to borrow money to liquidate an antiquated mortgage and pay off long-overdue accounts. This loan was arranged with the city of Belleville in April, 1925, on a ten-year basis, but retired in four years, also paying $3,373.54 interest, which amount included $700.00 paid on old mortgage preceding the loan, making a total of $23,373.54. In addition large amounts were required for extraordinary expenditures, improvements, repairs, equipment, etc.:— 1926 —$1,790.59; 1927—$5,580.65; 1928—$1,594.12; 1927—$1067.27; 1928—$10,816.41; 1929—$6,349.09; 1930—$8,197.00 for hospital beds, mattresses, bedside tables, etc., $4626.83 making a total of $39,726.50, with mortgage and interesting amounting to $63,097.04 with all operating expenses paid.

Growth of Hospital

Marked progress has been made in the popularity of the hospital as shown by yearly increase in the daily average of patients: 1924—47.1; 1925—50.18; 1926—54.67; 1927—71.89; 1928—76.88; 1929—83.09; 1930—84.91. The same advancement is noticeable in the training school, in 1925 only four nurses were presented for graduation. Annually the number has increased until in 1930 a class of 16 graduated. The foregoing figures show to a limited extent the many difficulties the Board of Governors were forced to meet and the large amounts that had to be raised for immediate demands and necessities besides recognizing the need to lay aside certain monies as a nucleus of a fund to provide for permanent improvements and necessary expansion. The retiring Board need have no regrets, or fell disheartened, on the record of their achievements and their contribution of service to the institution. I would be remiss in courtesy if I failed to mention such members of the Board as His Honor Judge Wills, Mr. Robt. Tannahill, Mr. H. W. Ackerman, Col. R. Vanderwater, Mr. R. M. Mitchell, ex-Mayor Mitchell, K.C., ex-Mayor Greenleaf, Mr. J. A. Kerr and Mr. J. D. McMillan who contributed largely to the success attained. While these gentlemen are by no means the total list, many others were equally zealous but thru the the ordinary course of events were not permitted to serve as long a term and lack of space" precludes inclusion of a more complete list. All were actuated by sincere desire to make the best of every opportunity for the advancement of the institution. In contrast to the adverse financial conditions and its depleted patronage when the Board of Governors accepted the responsibility of management, we find on December 31st, 1930, at the end of five years, a bank cash balance of $30,799.55, donations and bequests $6,398.23 bills receivable $19,819.78, and a bequest from the Ritchie estate of at least $20,000 now in the hands of the W.C.A. which according to the terms of the will is to be used in extending the uses of the hospital in such ways as the Women's Christian Association of Belleville shall think expedient, such as cooking, laundering and such other matters as may be carried on there efficiently," making a total of $76,924.66.

Fire Protection

"This insures for the coming board easy financing, and a reasonable hope that they will be in a position to complete improvements which has been under consideration for some time, namely that of lessening the fire hazard to meet the standard now demanded by the Provincial Secretary's department and secure complete standardization of the Hospital by the American College of Physicians and Surgeons. In the original plan of construction c: the present building not sufficient care seems to have been taken to reduce the fire hazard to the minimum and the Provincial Fire Marshal urges that conditions should be improved as early as possible. This will require a large expenditure and justifies the policy of the Board in laying aside each year certain monies to provide for exigencies that might arise. The Board has already expended considerable sums in the installation of fire doors, lining elevator shafts and clothes chutes, also providing sufficient fire extinguishers. Plans for further fire protection were contemplated by the Board, but their action was delayed waiting the Inspector of Hospital's later report in order to conform with its requirements of the department. "The great need of the hospital at the present moment is a modern fireproof wing.

"The experiences of my duties brought me intimate knowledge of our General Hospital and its great possibilities for benefit to the afflicted and service to the community. My association with the Board of Governors and Executive has afforded opportunity to discover the splendid qualities of these men who have given freely of time and ability to promote better conditions for patients and hospital organization. Their courtesy and support in my department has earned my appreciation and established a friendship not severed by my resignation as Honorary Secretary.

"Extending to the newly appointed Board every good wish for greater achievement, I remain,

"Yours cordially,

"(Sgd.) Wm. H. Nugent,

"Hon. Secretary."

Interest of the curlers in the city is at fever heat this season and last night the club games among the rinks from the club were opened and much enthusiasm and splendid curling was witnessed. Three rinks were in use & two of the rinks being used for practice games, and on each rink was a full quota of players. There are more taking to the game this year than in any previous winter and a most successful season is on tap. R. J. Dewey, the president, with his efficient secretary W. H. Orrie are making plans to interest the curlers to fill the last day of the season. The club games will only run through the month of January and then will come local bonspiels and open competitions, which are very popular among the curling clubs in Toronto. On Friday night of this week, the junior curlers will go to Kingston for a game and with W. A. Harden, R. E. Orr and P. O. Pitney, the vice president as skips, the club should make a creditable showing. The return game will be played in two weeks.

Last night the first game of the inter club schedule was played with Davey Davison, skip out a win over Capt. Bottum. The score was 15 to 6. Davison counting five singles before Bottum touched the chalk. Captain with his General Motor rink then came through with a two and a three count but Davey smashed his way through three ends with a count of three for each, which put him well in the lead. The rinks were:

McNee	H. A. Torrance
John Anderson	H. Boulter
W. O. Adams	A. W. Peck
W. Davison	W. H. Bottum
Skip 15.	Skip 6.

The games scheduled for Monday and Wednesday night next week are January 12th, Orr vs. Pitney, A. R. Symons vs. R. J. Wray, W. N. Belair vs. W. H. Bottum, T. J. Hurley vs. Joe Imlah and January 14th Davison vs. C. J. Symons, J. G. Galloway vs. Harden, J. A. McRae vs. R. Orr and H. B. Stork vs. A. R. Symons.

QUEEN'S "BEES" WILL FACE THE YELLOW SHIRTS

Juniors Open Season With the Kingston Hockey Club Tonight

The pros and cons as to which team will win the opening game in the senior "B" series tomorrow night at the Belleville Arena, are discussed with opinion evenly divided. Some think that Stan Burgoyne has a squad which can take the measure of the Tri color of Queen's, while there are others who believe Wally Emery's team has the experience and ability necessary to haul down the decision. Be that as it may, the fans who journey over to the Arena tomorrow night are going to see a hockey game in which no quarter will be asked or given and when speed and condition alone will win. It should be the best game of the entire season as both squads are in the pink of condition and just tugging at the leash to get that first game in the bag.

Stan Burgoyne will trot out his strongest lineup and the final practice last night found the boys ready for the bell. "Derby" Jeffery was kicking them out from all angles and was given the maximum of protection from the defence. From first line wak work the smoothly, while the reserve forward line working against the regulars gave the pilots some interesting moments. Queen's are ready for the game after finishing a rather successful tour of the United States and will bring their record to the city. Murphy and Squires are pleasing performers while Lee and McDowell in the pivot positions are boys that control the centre ice area when in action. Queen's has a goalie in Morris, who is the best in amateur ranks, his checking being sensational at times. It is a case of going in close to beat this net-minder "Mac" McCarthy of Toronto will handle the bell for this important fixture and his last appearance in the city was most satisfactory.

Tonight the juniors open their season on foreign ice, when they take on the fast Kingston Frontenac in a game which may decide the group championship. Kingston is picked to win the group but Belleville has a smart team and are ready for the grind. Every player who has been used this winter will be taken to King ston although not all of them will get into action.

Varsity Defeated Princeton Sextette

Princeton, N.J., Jan. 7—A strong University of Toronto hockey team broke a Princeton winning streak of six games by scoring a 4-1 victory last night.

Livingston scored for Princeton in the first period, but Fergusson tied it up a few minutes later. Bell gave the visitors a one-goal lead in the second period and both Leak and Ferguson counted in the final session. Ames, Canadian goalie, made a number of spectacular saves to cut off Princeton scoring threats.

LOCAL CAGERS TO PLAY KINGSTON ON SATURDAY NIGHT

All-Star Players from College and City to Meet Y's Men

With the prospect of having to start their regular scheduled fixtures in the Eastern Ontario Basketball Association in the near future, the Y's Men's Basketball Team is endeavoring to arrive at top form by engaging in as many exhibition games as possible. To this end, the management have arranged for a group of Kingston players to come to Belleville for a game at the Campbell street Gymnasium on Saturday night.

The visiting team will be composed of a group of All Star Players drawn largely from the ranks of Queens University Senior Intercollegiate Team. Possibly the Club Men are over ambitious in attempting to match their skill against a team of such high calibre and it is very probable they are letting themselves in for a real drubbing. Be that as it may, their coach is of the opinion that a real hard game, whether it ends in a win or a defeat, will be of more benefit to them than would a fixture against lesser opposition. Consequently although it is not a league game, local followers of the Indoor pastime will be given an opportunity of seeing what will without doubt, be one of the smartest exhibitions of basketball to be played on the Y Gym this year. Certainly the locals do not expect to encounter as stiff opposition in any of the league fixtures in their group and planning credit for one assist. "Bat" Phillips other member of the starting forward line, helped out with one of the two assists on the first goal.

Recreation Alleys

In the Junior League played at the Recreation Alleys last night the Bears took three points from the Plymouth —for the Bears, Jim Graham was high with 323, 262, 199—784 and for the Plymouth, B. Drew was high with 302, 194, 190—696. In the Ladies League the Lucky Strike, took four points from the National Grocers, for the Lucky Strike, Miss I. Thrasher was high with 274, 206, 192—691, and for the National Grocers, Miss S. Maraskas was high with 194, 211, 150 —405.

In the afternoon club bowling Miss P. Way won the prize with 589.

The Teco Bowling Club opened their winter league when four teams got away with a good start, this league will be a mixed one. Teco No. 2 took 3 points from No 1. Team No. 2 and No. 4 broke even with 2 points each. The high bowlers for team No. 1 Miss A. Wilkins was high for the ladies and for the men, J. Semain was high with 547 for team No. 1 and for team No. 2 Miss R. Pittsburgh Jackets Lose to Bulldogs

Windsor, Jan. 7—Outplayed most of the way but battling to the last minute, Fatsburg Yellow Jackets bowed to Windsor Bulldogs for the first time in the current international Hockey League season here last night, 3-1.

"Eddy" Northcott, recalled by the Montreal Maroons and slated to join them in Toronto, Thursday night, celebrated his last evening as a Bulldog by collecting one goal and one assist. Lorne Duguid, lanky centre ice performer, continued his scoring spree by adding the other two goals and gaining credit for one assist. "Bat" Phillips other member of the starting forward line, helped out with one of the two assists on the first goal.

STIRLING SQUAD DEFEAT MADOC IN HECTIC GAME

Little Scored Winning Goal Two Minutes After Face-off

With both teams playing good, fast hockey, the Stirling team captured the opening home game of the Trent Valley League from Madoc last night by a score of 1-0. The goal came two minutes after the puck was dropped for the face off and came from the stick of "Bud" Little, who took Jack Acker's pass as they blazed through the defence, to whip it into the netup behind Hulin .It was a nice play, well executed and as it happened, proved the winning counter. The Madoc team tried hard, and in the last period flung every resource at their command into the fray, but it was of little avail, and the red and whites were able to cling tenaciously to their scant margin.

Both teams were evenly-matched and there appeared to be little to choose between them on the night's play. They were both strengthened from last year, White and Sprague of Perth joining Stirling while the Little brothers hail from Oshawa. Madoc have three imports from Port Arthur with Barkey of Buffalo back again. The hockey has improved, and last night's game was as pretty a contest as any hockey fan might demand. The play was clean and only four penalties were handed out. Referee Courneyea of Peterboro kept them well in hand.

Ingram, Davis and Jack Ackers, veterans of the game, all turned in smart games for the homesters while Johnston, L'Heureux and Andrews shone for the visitors. The game was witnessed by a large crowd. Out of respect to the late George Whitby, father of the manager of the Stirling team, who died on Sunday, a minutes' silence was observed.

On Monday night Tweed team was at home to Frankford and defected this time by a wide margin on the play throughout.

Stirling—Goal, Morton, defence Ingram and Hall; centre, Davis; wings B. Little, T. Little, Subs, Day, White and J. Ackers.

Madoc—Goal, Hulin; defence, Barkey and Addison; centre, O'Hegrest, wings Johnston and McGuire, subs, Moon, Anderson and Watson.

"Y" Alleys

The ladies' six-o'loon league got away to a flying start, when the Arenas, champions of the fall series, took three points to the Athletics, a new entry, one. Although the Arenas took three points, the Athletics put up a real game against their more experienced opponents. High bowlers were Mrs. Tice for the Arenas and Mrs. Madden for Athletics.

Another league to get started was the Teachers which opened with a inter-group game, between Queen Mary and O.S.D. "B." This game resulted in Queen Mary taking three to O.S.D. "B" one, in a very even game. A glance at the scores will show several fine singles.

The Junior League, the third league to get away, started with the Maple Spillers and Hydro Short Circuits making their bow. The Maple Spillers took all four points—which gives them a nice start. However the Hydro Crew will be dangerous when they get going. From now on this League will be known as the Bush League and it appears to be a well balanced league.

LEAFS TIED THE OTTAWA SQUAD

Maple Leafs and Senators Staged a Tough Game in Capital

Ottawa, Jan. 7—Seventy minutes of gruelling hockey failed to bring a decision when Toronto Maple Leafs and Ottawa Senators met in a National League joust here last night. The old rivals fought each other with every trick in their bag from bell to bell but the best they could do was two goals each and they divided the points. Toronto using theirs to go into clear possession of second place in the Canadian section standing as Montreal Canadiens latter before the brilliance of the Detroit Falcons.

The close tussle saw each of the teams take the lead, only to be caught by the hard-striving opposing forces. Leafs went to the fore in the opening period on a goal by Harold Cotton. Early in the next frame Red Kilrea bristled the count on a goal he scored with a rebounding puck, and as mid-season the homesters edged in front when Danny Cox beat Goalie Chabot from a face-off near the Toronto net. Less than four minutes later, the score was again put in the stalemate class when Jackson's long shot caught the Senator netman off guard. The Toronto puckmen had an edge on the Ottawans in the matter of speed but the sheer doggedness of the homesters made up for the discrepancy.

Cotton Gets First Goal

The teams opened wide the throttle from the initial drop of the puck but iron-clad back-checking resulted in neither goal being menaced. Lamb finally broke away for the first shot on the net, a back-hander that forced Chabot to his knees to save. Clancy had the Leafs' first try but the long shot was wide. When the second-period lines came on play opened up. Toronto's neat combination of the Toronto big front line had the good sized crowd on their toes. It took a brilliant save by Connell on Conacher's point-blank shot after they had swept in a rush.

Applying a principle used by the Romans 2,000 years ago, many English homes today are being warmed by heat radiated from walls and ceilings.

The 130,000,000 acres in France devoted to crops is cultivated by 5,000,000 proprietors, making the average size of a farm about 21 acres.

MAROONS BOWED TO THE RANGERS

Bill Cook, Great New York Forward Again Was the Star

New York, Jan. 7—The New York Rangers gave one of their best exhibitions of the National League season last night as they trounced the Montreal Maroons, leaders of the Canadian division, 5 to 1. The Rangers held the upper hand almost at every point of the game while the famed Maroon attack never was given a chance to get started. Although defeated, Montreal held first place in its division.

Montreal attacked listlessly most of the time and showed only a few flashes of its best defensive game, while the Rangers looked like world-beaters in every department. The game was off to a slow start, but gained speed soon after the second Ranger goal and wound up in a fast, rough session that brought seven third-period penalties, including a major to Babe Seibert.

New York scored first in the opening frame on a neat pass from Jerry Dutch Keeling. They countered again early in the second period on Bun Cook's shot after Frank Boucher's pass before Nels Stewart made a quick pickup of Seibert's rebound and snapped in the only Maroon goal. Dolson and Thompson gave New York a two-goal advantage again before the period ended. With two Montreal players off the ice in the middle of the third period, the Rangers completed their scoring in one brief burst of action. Bill Cook scored both goals, only ten seconds apart, on a pair of neat passing plays.

The synchronization of stations as the only feasible method of relieving broadcasting congestion is now being considered.

H.B. FETTERLY IS HEARD BY CLUB

Principal of Ontario School for Deaf Spoke at Holloway Street Church

H. B. Fetterly, principal at the Ontario School for the Deaf, was the speaker at a Men's Club meeting held in Holloway Street United Church last night. Mr. Fetterly gave an illustrating address on the Province of Quebec, the natural resources of that great province, its wonderful water power, its industries and its school system and the influence of the church in the development of the province. Fetterly, who has been connected with educational matters all his life and was public school inspector in the east before assuming his present position, was able to speak with authority on the Quebec system of education. Mr. Fetterly was introduced by C. B. McGuire.

An extremely interesting programme was provided during the evening. Mr. Ernest Mills presided. Solos, were rendered by Messrs. Al Sullivan and Frank Hitchon, and Mr. Lennox rendered a piano solo. As well, community singing was in order during the evening. Refreshments were served later, Messrs. Charles Brown, Alan Lennox and Matt Denton helped with the refreshments. It was announced last night that the Rev. E. Crosley Hunter of Toronto, will be here next Sunday evening for the church and will give an address on the Passion Play at Oberammergau.

KIRKLAND LAKE EPIDEMIC WANES

NORTH BAY, Ont., Jan. 7.—The situation in Kirkland Lake is greatly improved and the epidemic of septic sore throat is definitely checked and on the wane was the statement made to-day by Dr. W. E. George, district medical officer of health. Only about 75 cases are now left. A pasteurizing plant has been installed in one of the camp dairies and five others are following suit immediately, Milk was said to be the cause of the disease.

BELLEVILLE AND DISTRICT FREE FROM SERIOUS FORM OF CRIME

In spite of the serious unemployment situation, crime in this district is under control, according to Inspector W. H. Lougheed. There is little doing at the present time and is probably due to the close vigilance that the various officers throughout the district are giving to their particular community. There have been no serious cases in the district for some months and only routine matters have come to the attention of

MRS. L. ADAMS-BECK STRICKEN SUDDENLY

Victoria, B.C., Jan. 7.— Mrs. Lily Adams-Beck, novelist, known for her writings under her own name and the nom de plume of E. Barrington, died suddenly on January 3rd, in Kyoto Japan, according to advices received here today. She was a former resident of Victoria.

Mrs. Adams-Beck was apparently in her usual health until recently judging by letters received a few days ago telling of her future plans.

An Englishwoman by birth, Mrs. Adams-Beck came to a distinguished naval family, being the daughter of the late Admiral John Moresby and granddaughter of the Admiral of the fleet, Sir Fairfax Moresby. For many years she lived in the East, travelling extensively in Little Tibbet and journeying to many parts of Asia never before visited by a white woman.

While on her way from the Orient to Europe in 1920, Mrs. Adams-Beck and her husband visited Victoria and decided to settle here. While here she wrote a number of books and articles including historical novels, under the pen name of E. Barrington.

Ex-Mayor Hanna Heads Belleville Hydro Board

Ex-Mayor; Charles E. Hanna has been chosen chairman of the Belleville Hydro Commission for the year 1931. At the inaugural meeting of the board consisting of Commissioners Mayor Reid, C. E. Hanna and H. E. Fairfield, held on Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Hanna was the choice. Mr. O. H. Scott is secretary and manager.

It is understood that it is generally arranged that the elected commissioners alternate in the chairmanship.

The next meeting of the board will be held on January 19th.

As the Belleville Hydro year ended December 31st, the thirteenth power bill alone remains to be received to complete the books for last year.

KIWANIS URGED TO ASSIST YOUTH IN CHOOSING SUITABLE VOCATION

Local Service Club Planning Ice Carnival — George Cole Takes Office

The members of the Kiwanis Club were given an inspiring address yesterday at their weekly luncheon in the Queen's Hotel, by Mr. Milton Sorsolell, assistant director of Technical education for the Province, who indicated how the Kiwanis Club might aid young men in seeking their profession in life. The speaker was introduced by George Ferguson and Kiwanian appreciation for the fine address was given by Rev. Earl McCutcheon. George Cole, the new elected president, presided for the first time and a large number of the members were out to greet their new head. Claude Tice was organist-at-arms and James Bassett song leader, with Ross Hunter at the piano. James Bankier delighted with a splendid solo.

Russell Wotten, chairman for the ladies night, gave a report of the progress of the function and named a number of committees to act with him in putting over the party. The ladies' night will be held on January 27th but the place of meeting has not as yet been fixed. Ernie Fahey, chairman of the ice carnival committee, named his committee to put over another real party, which is promised to be bigger and better than ever. The committee are Fred Smythe, P. C. McLaurin, Bill Rankin, George Griffin, Howard LaPalm, Jack McIntosh, Joe Imlah, George Forhan, Cal May, C. D. Tice and Tom Hutchison. A committee from this operating committee were appointed to meet the Arena directors and secure the ice for some time in February.

Mr. Sorsolell stated at the opening of his address, that Vocational Guidance was something new in educational matters. "In the past years we have been turning pupils out of the elementary schools and saying now go and find a job, when there are 14,500 types of occupation in this Province", said the speaker. He asked the question as to how all the members of the Kiwanis Club came into their occupation in life, and answering the question for them stated, that they came by their occupation through necessity and mother's guidance. Tracing the different methods by which people found their occupation, the speaker showed how people in other generations had used the telescope, palmistry, phrenology and from 1920 to 1923 many had studied the structure of the brain and from its conformity tried to figure out what a man was best suited for. Coming down to the present generation man is tested by the intelligence test but only the brightness of a youth can be tested by this method not the intuitive and the perseverance. He stated that every child should be indexed on entering the school and closely watched for his science, mechanical and other abilities. Pointing out how the Kiwanis Club could benefit the pupil, he showed that members of the club should visit the different schools and explain to a pupil their occupation, how much ability it takes to run the concern, the wages that can be acquired, and where the top of the ladder is reached in that particular line. Through this information, the boy or girl can judge for himself or herself the best course to pursue in life. The speaker embellished his address with many stories taken from his own experience in the handling of children, which was most interesting.

More than 2,160,000,000 slices of Hawaiian pineapple tickled American palates last year, it was estimated.

In 1930 factory hours varied with the sun.

RadioFans Corner

Reception last night was fairly good, fading bothered us a little but outside of that everything was lovely. Distance was coming in well too, it has been we've noticed ever since the snow came, long may it snow!

WEAF offers the Tea Timers at 5.30 closely followed by the Rex Cole Mountaineers. For those that like the hillbilly type of song here's your chance to hear something real good. Uncle Abe and David follow at 6.45.

The Lucky Strikers and Duke Ellington more than outdid themselves last night to present us with smart arrangements of new and old pieces and their orchestra were marvels of rhythm.

The "Varieties" are heard tonight from WEAF at 8.15 and that always means plenty of fun for the fans, as Welcome Lewis controlls, will be heard and Sammy Herman brings along his xylophone for our enjoyment. "Slug" Baer is the genial master of ceremonies.

The Chicago Little Symphony orchestra is on the air from WEAF at 9.00 and William A. Jones, president of the National Electric Light Association is to be the guest speaker. Vaughn James and James Melton, tenors, and the Revellers are heard from this same station at 9.30.

To finish up with the presentations of WEAF we list the next one at 10.30 which brings us Cravilland Rice, who is interviewing "Rube" Goldberg, cartoonist tonight. Vincent Lopez swings on the air at 11.00 for a half hour's presentation of good music. Jack Albin's orchestra follows and then we'll hear "Sweet Lady," you've guessed it, Florence Richardson.

We're getting a break tonight, fans, the Smith Brothers are heard at 7.45 from WJZ, don't miss them. The Foshers, at 8.00 and, the Novelty orchestra at 8.30. Muriel and Vee put in an appearance at 9.00 and the Pleasure Hour at 9.30. At 11 it we tune in on WABC we can hear Guy Lombardo and these Royal Canadians of his.

It goes through life with the wrong kind of start.

One end of a nale is pointy
And the opposite end is flat,
So if you have your choice wich to sit on,
Its safer to pick out that.
(But youre usually not consulted).

Everybody has 10 naturel nales
If their fingers red toes are all rite,
But if they hit those nales with a hammer
Their not acting very brite.

Whose happier thah a carpender,
All day nalling nales?
He hits each one on the top of the head
And in the wood it sits.
(No wonder, look at the practice he's had).

Nales are most useful for wood things,
So they can be hammered with silents
But 2 sheets of paper and noiseless paste.
Prove kindness is better than violents.

E. LORNE REID AGAIN REEVE OF BANCROFT VILL.

Henry Harryett Wins From J. W. Hudson by 24 Votes

Despite inclement weather heavy voting was recorded in the northern townships. Spirited contests were fought in practically every township and in Bancroft village E. L. Reid was elected mayor by the slim majority of thirty-five votes. He defeated F. A. Towle in a hard-fought battle.

The results of the elections in the north are—

WILL DEDICATE MEMORIAL WINDOW

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Picton, Jan. 7—On Sunday next, His Lordship Bishop C. A. Seager, is to visit the Church of St. Mary Magdalene here. At the eleven o'clock service he will dedicate the Owen Memorial window, recently erected. The Bishop will also hold Confirmation and the newly confirmed candidates will receive their first communion. The Bishop will preach at the evening service at seven o'clock.

The hydro power was off here for some hours on Saturday night. There was a very large crowd in the town and the stores had a close early. Picton gets its power from Trenton.

Growth of Aviation is Story of Broken Records

Since Orville Wright Lifted Plane 27 Years Ago Development Phenomenal.

CANADA PIONEER

Dominion Will Shortly Have Lighted Air Trails Across Continent

Toronto — Records are made to be broken. That is the motto ever before manufacturers of the infant industry of aviation, an infant which in twenty-seven years has grown beyond even the most optimistic expectations. In that time records for speed, altitude, refuelling, long distances, solo and dual flying have fallen right and left. On December 17, 1903, Orville Wright first lifted his home - made plane from the sands of Kitchyhawk, N.C., for the world's first aeroplane flight, and in the short span of thirty years, the flight record of twelve seconds has been broken times beyond recall, so much so that in 1930 a trans-Atlantic flight, while recognized as remarkable, was still somewhat commonplace.

Every country in the world has had a share in the growth of the aviation infant. Great Britain, Canada, the United States, Germany, France, Italy have all taken their part in producing the ships of the air. Even now, a giant plane capable of lifting 169 persons from the water is being groomed for a trans-Atlantic flight attempt.

In Canada's north aeroplanes are carrying prospectors to and from their claims, changing in an hour or so journeys which formerly took a month or longer. Landing fields are being constructed, lighted and marked in nearly every Canadian city. A chain of them will soon bridge the country. Air mail is being delivered from Pelee Island to Ahlavik — from the most southern point in Canada to far beyond the Arctic circle. Daily air mail delivery is looked upon as quite ordinary in the larger cities of the country today.

Beyond it all is the work of pioneers. Hundreds of men have died that we might receive our mail, our express, our quick transportation. Hundreds more of them have succeeded, completed epochal flights, and are now "grounded," carrying on the organization of which makes aviation's present developments a permanent one.

Just twenty-seven years ago, on December 17, 1903, an infant industry was born. The father of the infant was Orville Wright, who with his brother, Wilbur, constructed and flew the first aeroplane which had ever carried a human. However, even before that flight there had been many attempts to fly, on both sides of the ocean.

In 1804, Wright continues his flying. One hundred and five flights in all were made by Orville and his brother Wilbur. Their plane, entirely home-made, had been manufactured from white cotton cloth and some second growth ash. It was powered with a sixteen horsepower gasoline engine, made by the Wrights. Their first flight lasted only twelve seconds, but in 1904, Orville made the first successful bank and complete turn with an aeroplane. The following year fifty flights were made by the Wright brothers. They had tuned their engine up, until an average speed of 38 miles an hour was attained. In one flight, the field at Dayton, Ohio, home town of the flying brothers, was circled 30 times. The two were the only men in the world who had flown in an aeroplane up to that time.

Early European Feats

In 1906, Santos-Dumont, Brazilian aeronaut, became famous. He constructed a plane which was capable of making only straight-line flights, but it became a world-wide sensation. France began to pay attention to the science of flying in this year, and out of the groups formed there came the work of Blériot, the Voisin brothers, and Farman. Delagrange established the first real endurance record by staying aloft nearly half an hour. In 1907, Delagrange flew 656 feet, while later Blériot made his first turn while in the air. This achievement was made in a Voisin plane, but a few weeks later, flying his own machine, Blériot made many flights, ranging from 100 feet in length to 1,970 feet.

Aviation really began to assume its stride in 1908. The United States Army, which had been paying considerable attention to the experiments of the Wrights, signed a contract with the brothers for the first army plane. The same year, too, Wilbur Wright went to Europe, and for the first time a passenger was carried in a plane. Too, he established a world's endurance record, this time of one hour, 31 minutes, 25 seconds. For this marvelous feat of early-day flying, he received the Aero Club of France prize of 5,000 francs. Wright's army plane was demonstrated to many notables in September of this year and eight days after the demonstration, the first fatal aeroplane accident occurred. With Lieut. Thomas Selfridge, U. S. Signal Corps, Orville was flying at Fort Myer, Va. The plane crashed, and Selfridge died. Wright was severely injured.

Endurance records became increasingly popular, and the world gasped in 1909 when Blériot hoisted his ricketty aeroplane at Calais and grounded at Dover. He had crossed the English Channel for the first time by air, and in his feat in those days was considered the equivalent of a trans-Atlantic flight would today. An international air meet was held at Rheims, France and Glenn Curtiss won Grand Prix with a famous bamboo machine. A record flight of 84 miles was established by Paulhan, and on October 4 the first air meet of the year, Wilbur Wright brought America to his feet when he circled Grant's Tomb and flew across the Hudson. Delagrange, at Doncaster, set a new speed mark of fifty miles an hour, and Farman, in France flew seventeen miles without stopping.

In 1910 the infant industry was making lusty strides. Paulhan established an altitude record of 4,165 feet, and topped this feat by flying in a driving snow storm at Denver. Glenn Curtiss flew from Albany to Inwood, N.Y., the first inter-city flight on record. This was topped by the feat of Clifford H. Harmon, who flew a Farman plane from Mineola to Greenwich, Conn., Long Island Sound, in thirty minutes. The distance was 28 miles, and this proved to be an overwater record. Geo. Cassey of Peru, flew across the Alps in this year, but died from injuries received in landing his plane. Then came the first commercial air transport. Gilbert Ely flew from Dayton to Columbus, 65 miles, carrying five bolts of silk. The accident total increased this year, unfortunately, and thirty-two men died.

However, 1911 saw still increased activity in flying. Prizes were offered freely in many parts of the world, and in all more than $1,000,000 was offered and won. McCurdy attempted to fly from Key West Havana, and fell into the ocean. The Hydro-plane was introduced into the United States. Lincoln Beachey flew over Niagara Falls and down the river, and Atwood flew from Boston to Washington. Two army aviators, Lieutenants Ellyson and Towers, flew 140 miles, from Annapolis to Fort Monroe, in two hours, 27 minutes and the first trans-continental flight took place. Calbraith P. Rogers was the hero of this exploit, but it took him 49 days. He made many repairs enroute.

Records Set in 1813

Thousands of flights were made in 1912. A new duration record of six hours, 35 minutes, 19 seconds was established by Lieutenant Towers, of the United States Navy, and Lincoln Beachey set a new world's altitude record of 11,642 feet at Chicago. Air-ship passenger services for short distances were successfully operated at Berlin.

Navy pilots flew at night in the following year; Bielovucci flew fifty miles over the Alps; Mulinals flew across the Dardanelles, 112 miles; Moulinais flew from Paris to London, 207 miles. In this year, too, the first aeroplane was used in warfare. The Turks obtained a German aeroplane, and this ship was used in an engagement against the Bulgarians. Harry Hawker, already well on his way to fame, flew around the British Isles in two and a half days. The distance was 1,000 miles.

The first year of the Great War saw the invention of the automatic de-

Get Set for Banff Carnival

The stand-out week in the west this winter will be February 7-14 when the Banff Winter Sports Carnival will be held. Parades of skiers, ski-joering, snowshoeing, curlers, hockey, skating, tobogganing, sleighing, mushing, and every variation of winter sport, there is added to all these the incomparable beauty of a setting in the heart of the Rockies, clothed in their winter dress of ermine beneath a sky of turquoise. The pretty little town of Banff is lit from end to end in a blaze of colored lights with, here and there, the picturesque costumes of the Stoney Indians and the colorful note of bright-hued blankets, befeathered headdresses, beaded squaws and shiny-eyed papooses. As if all this were not enough to crowd into one short week, there is the great Ice Palace, lit up at night with fireworks displays, the annual trap shoot of the Banff Gun Club, the packing contest with its high light of the famous diamond hitch, and open air swimming in the hot sulphur springs, unique in the annals of winter sports. Masquerades help keep the fun of the carnival going and it ends up with the election of the Queen for the ensuing year. Lay-out shows skiers in action under the shadow of the mountains with insets of Sir Henry Thornton, president of the 1931 carnival, W. E. Round, secretary-treasurer of the event, and Miss Doris Winnifred Parkes, of Vancouver, Queen of the Carnival.

all-metal plane to top off 1931's list. The South Atlantic was crossed for the first time in 1922. Captain S. Cabral and Admiral Gago Coutihne flew from Lisbon to Rio de Janeiro, with intermediate stops. The distance was 2,600 miles. Lieutenants Kelly and McCreary set a new world's duration record of 35 hours 18 minutes, 21 seconds, flying over Rockwell Field, in an army plane.

Records fell right and left a year later, McCready and Kelly stayed aloft for 36 hours, five minutes; and followed it up less than a month later by flying from New York to San Diego in 26 hours, 50 minutes, non-stop. Capt. A. J. Williams, of the U. S. Navy, flew himself 266 miles an hour to take the speed honors.

Between May and August of 1924 the U. S. Army staged a round-the-world flight. This hop included the first westbound crossing of the Pacific and the first west bound crossing of the Atlantic. A "dawn to dusk" flight from New York to San Francisco was made by Lieut. Russell Maughan of the U. S. Army, in 24 hours, 44 minutes, making six stops.

The following year, Commander John Rodgers, U. S. Navy, attempted to fly from San Francisco to Honolulu. The flight failed, but a new distance record of 2,051 miles was established. Commander Rodgers was saved after the ship had landed on the ocean. Another endurance record was set when Drouhin and Landry stayed aloft 45 hours, 11 minutes, 30 seconds at Etampes. The speed record again went to United States when Lieut. James A. Doolittle flew 254 miles an hour.

Byrd Crosses Pole

On May 9, 1926, one of the great flights of all time occurred. Commander Richard E. Byrd and Floyd Bennett flew across the North Pole. Another South Atlantic Crossing was made by Commander Ramon Franco and three companions. The distance was 6,230 miles. Sir Alan J. Cobham flew from London, England, to Melbourne, Australia, making many stops enroute. The British Airship R-34 flew from England to the United States and return.

More progress built up in 1927, and trans-oceanic flights became the order of the day. Charles A. Lindbergh flew non-stop solo from New York to Paris, 3,600 miles, and became hero of the world. Chamberlain followed with a New York to Germany flight of 3,923 miles, and Maitland and Hegenberger hopped from San Francisco to Honolulu. Commander Byrd, fresh from his north pole flight, flew non-stop from New York to Vel-sur-Mer, France, and Smith and Bonsie flew from Oakland to Greely Island in the Hawaiian group. Art Goebel won the Pole prize, offered for San Francisco-Honolulu flight, and several participating planes were lost. Col. Lindbergh flew non-stop from New York to Mexico City, and Lieut. C. C. Champion established a new endurance record this time of 43,418 feet. Clarence Chamberlain and Bert Acosta set a duration record of 51 hours, 11 minutes, 25 seconds, while Schlee and Schlee and William Brock flew from Harbor Grace, Nfld., to Tokio, Japan, in a series of long hops.

In 1928, speed became prominent. For the first time in world history a human travelled at more than 200 miles an hour. Major Mario de Bernardi, of Italy, in a Macchi monoplane, travelled 318 miles an hour to win the Schneider Trophy. Three Germans in the Bremen, flew from Baldonnel, Ireland, to Greenly Island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, for the first east-bound non-stop trans-Atlantic flight. Lieut. Nungesser and Coli flew from Paris to Spitsbergen, across the Arctic sea. Commander Kingsford-Smith accomplished the seemingly impossible by flying, from Oakland, California, to Brisbane, Australia. This is regarded as one of aviation's greatest achievements. The distance was 7,435 miles, and the time 81 hours, 19 minutes. Three stops were made. Amelia Earhart became the first woman to successfully fly the Atlantic when her plane, carrying two men, Stults and Gordon, completed the hop from Trepassy Bay to Wales. The present world's long distance record, 4,466 miles, was established by Del. Prete and Ferrarin, of Italy, in flying from Europe to South America.

Many Ocean Crossings

Again in 1929, there were many trans oceanic flights. Assolant, Lefevre, Lotti and a stowaway flew from Old Orchard, Me., to Cosmillas, Spain. The entire weight of the stowaway's most wrecked their ship on the take off, and the unwanted passenger was universally condemned. Three more flights from Seville to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, 4,100 miles, and Williams and Yancey flew from Old Orchard, Me., to Santander, Spain. Coste and Bellonte followed this a week later with a flight from Paris to Villa Coublay, France 3,128 miles. They had started a trans-Atlantic flight but were forced to go back after many hours' flying. The Englishmen, Jones-Williams and Jenkins, flew from England to Australia, 12,000 miles. O'Brien and Jackson made a refuelling record by remaining aloft more than 960 hours. Major A. D. Orlebar of England brought a magnificent record to Great Britain when he won the Schneider cup at 328 miles an hour. Three days later, Flying Officer H. R. D. Waghorn of England flew his Supermarine at 365 miles an hour, the present world's speed record. Coste and Bellonte made their second long flight, this time from Paris to Natitaki, Madagascar, a distance of 4,900 miles. Commander Byrd crossed the South Pole, the only feat in history to fly over both poles.

In 1930, the Graf Zeppelin, German airship flown from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to South America and beaten by way of Lakehurst. The distance was 18,000 miles, and the time was 9 days. This topped a list of brilliant achievements. Lieut. Graf, non-stop round-the-world flight, and two speed Atlantic crossings. Kingsford-Smith's Australia-England hop, world's most brilliant flyers, flew from Newfoundland, Ireland, to New York, with one stop at Harbor Grace, Nfld. Costa and Ballonte, the immortal combination, flew from Paris to New York, non-stop, in 37 hours, 17 minutes, 30 seconds. This year, too, saw the end of British airship to arrive in Canada. She was the R-100, and the trip was from Cardington to Montreal and return. Shortly afterward, the R-101, her sister-ship was burned in France. Nearly fifty men died in the crash. In October, Arnold Boyd, flying to Toronto, and Lieut. Connor, an Australian, flew from Harbor Grace to the British Isles. Boyd was the first Canadian to make a trans-Atlantic crossing although several had tried previously.

Among the greatest individual feats of aviation are those of Commander Byrd from the states navy who has flown over the north and south pole in different years, and the remarkable achievements of Kingsford-Smith, who, in command of other outstanding aviators, is the finest flyer in the world. Kingsford-Smith's feat in flying from Australia in a tri-motored plane speaks volumes for his ability and conception, and the value of proper equipment. This, however, as few the Atlantic, and the first broke all records for an England-Australia flight, the first long journey in just over 12 days. Straight-Australia flight was made in a small, 125 horsepower plane, as compared with the huge tri-motored ships of the Kingsford-Smith.

And so, through the last 27 years, the infant aviation has grown tremendously. Millions of dollars are represented in aviation factories, landing fields, and other appurtenances. Air mail delivery has become commonplace, as has also the delivery of express matter by air. In Canada's northland, aeroplanes are used extensively for exploration, mapping, and fireguard. From Pelee Island, southernmost point in the Dominion, to Aklavik, up in the Arctic Circle, the first riders of the air mail fly land and take off. Within the next few years, according to Canadian authorities, a complete trans-Canada line will be in operation. And much of the credit for the present, worldwide development of the infant science may be given to those pioneers who have gone before. Each record, each flight, each epochal journey has added to the store of knowledge, and the coming year promises to be an epochal one, for the infant, born in 1903, has now attained manhood.

A Remedy for Earache. — To have the earache, is to endure torture. The ear is a delicate organ and few care to trifle with it, consequently we call in a doctor. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil offers a simple remedy. A few drops upon a piece of lint, moistened cotton and placed in the ear will do much in relieving pain.

ELECTRIC HEATING OF THE SOIL

Electric heating of the soil is the subject of an article in the Hydro Bulletin for December wherein is related the result of experiments carried out independently in Norway, Sweden, Great Britain and the United States demonstrating the advantages and practicability of using electricity for heating the soil in plant culture.

Different methods were used in applying the heat, all of which are reported to be satisfactory. In Europe the experiments were carried out with a heating element in the form of a single resistance wire insulated and sheathed to protect it from corrosion and buried below the surface of the soil. Another method is to lay drain pipe under the bed through which the cable is drawn.

Many hardy plants may be started very early in the season with electrically heated hotbeds. They can be forced until time to harden them off and transplant to the field. The beds may be easily converted into cold frames for hardening-off plants merely by turning off the heat. Cabbage plants, seeded on February 24 were ready to transplant in about two weeks. Other plants were as successfully forced.

It would be possible also to use the hotbeds during the winter. Radishes were planted October 15; on November 26 they were thinned and a large double handful harvested from four seats. More harvests were made on December 8 and 28, and January 22. Lettuce planted in the same time kept over winter and was successfully forced during late February and March.

With climatic conditions as exist in Ontario and the market for out of season fruits and vegetables supplied greatly by imported products, it would seem that this is one of the means of meeting public demands by using Hydro power to assist raising these products profitably.

ELECTIONS

Elections are often put in the class of horse races for their uncertainty.

If it was not for the uncertainty there would be little use of holding these annual ballotings.

Sometimes there are absolute turnovers which must surprise the defeated by the size of the majority. The victor generally claims that he expected to win by the large majority.

Elections have other advantages also. They give the public an interest in the administration of they provide the opportunity to say "yes" or "no" to a man on the town council or parliament, the service to the community, either separately or together.

If elections cause disappointments they also, occasionally for they mean somebody has to win as well as someone to lose.

So who would go without elections! They are part of the democratic experiences of life.

LUNA-TICKERS OR MOON-AFFECTED CLOCKS

Even clocks may become "luny" or lunatic, according to scientists, meeting at New Haven. The moon (luna) has power to slow down or to speed up slightly clocks, located in earth's surface, the accuracy of which is affected by its elevation or distance from the earth's centre of gravity.

This explains why some may use for being late of winter mornings.

BABSON'S VIEWS ON 1931

Roger W. Babson, famous as world economist and statistician, in a message in the financial edition of the Christian Science Monitor envisages the new year as a time of opportunities for all of business and again affirms the oldtime statement that the time to buy is when others are anxious to sell. He also expresses the view that Europe must effect improvement.

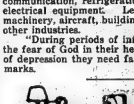
Mr. Babson is the one economic student out, who clearly saw the collapse of late 1929 and was fearless in the course of market events and prices with an uncanny skill. He has a comprehensive grasp of the world of economics and as a balance wheel in business, as a spiritual view of the importance of life which sets him apart from the economic writer who thought in material things. Mr. Babson sees the movement of humanity, dominating markets and commodity prices.

He expects a business revival in the summer of this year within hailing distance of the normal. He reviews the money situation, which he believes is fairly stabilized; he touches on production and consumption and finds a more favorable balance in sight. Men of the "mainspring" type, he says, hold back until the outlook becomes more reassuring. He expects a strengthening of bonds.

As to the stock prices, he says: "It is at least a conjecture that the low level of the stock market will be reached before 1931 is over. It has not been already reached." He very sensibly reminds the country that in the great business expansion which terminated in 1929, the apex of the market occurred late in the period. It is therefore a matter of question whether a corresponding tendency may not appear on the down side, with the low point of the market postponed until the period of depression is well developed.

"In fact I cast somparize the outlook for the next twelve months no more confidently than to describe 1931 as a year of opportunities. It promises opportunities not only in investments but in commodities, careers, and a host of other activities."

Mr. Babson says there are reasons for believing that the very broad movement of commodity prices over long stretches of years may still be downward but this possibility should not be confused with the near-by bargains in 1931.



Turning to labor he says that if wage-earners had a real grasp of economics they would not look to the politicians as the saviors but see their most powerful friend and ally in the thrifty and research worker. In the period of expansions the shortage of labor can be overcome by labor-saving devices and its decrease in the number of jobs, by research and science can work out new industries.

Business sales should increase in 1931, he comments. He anticipates good results from the efforts to solve the problem of distribution. There is one possible mistake—that of setting sales quotas too low.

As an advocate of peace Mr. Babson sees only deficits for Europe until a disarmament plan is developed.

Best appraisals he sees in chain stores, foods, chemical, paper, and electric power, stocks not in order: then paper products, communication, refrigeration, bakeries and electrical equipment. Less favorable are machinery, aircraft, building, coal, copper and other industries.

"During periods of inflation people need the fear of God in their hearts and in periods of depression they need faith in God," he remarks.

IN TIMES OF AILING

There are some I suppose who don't worry at all
About measles and fevers when children are small.
There are some who can say: "Oh, it's just whooping cough;
But I'm not so placid, if truth must be told,
I am half sick myself when she catches a cold.

They tell me I'm silly to act as I do;
That the ailments of childhood all children go through.
And maybe that's so, but when one of mine get
The cull eyes of fever I start to fret.
The flushed cheeks of illness I...dread to behold,
And I can't say complacently: "It's just a cold!"

I know there are people who think me a fool
The good Lord has blessed them with nerves that are cool,
But mine are the jumpy sort, mine are the kind
That will not keep still with a doubt on my mind,
And when Janet is stricken with fever or pain,
I am never at ease 'till she's better again.

PICKING THE 1931 HEADLINES

Predictions for the coming twelvemonth are likely to make more refreshing reading than summaries of the past. They are less hampered by hard facts. Taking an interesting flight into the completely hypothetical, The Editor and Publisher (New York) prints a selection of the biggest 1931 headlines, if the events they announce could be prevailed upon to happen.

The biggest news "break" possible, according to a majority of the editors questioned, would be "any significant story concerning a definite end to depressed economic conditions." Headlines reading "Stocks Return to 1929 High," "Three Million Return to Jobs," or "United States Steel Resumes Full Time Work," would set extras rolling.

Another popular story would be starting news on prohibition, to be announced by such screaheads as, "Hoover for Repeal of Eighteenth Amendment," or "Supreme Court Affirms Clark Decision."

CRIME DETERRENT

We have it on the word of Brig.-General Hughes, superintendent of the Canadian Penitentiary system, that the lash is an effective crime deterrent and he adds that he would dislike to see corporal punishment abolished. We should suspect, too, that there is not another official in as close contact with the criminal class than Brig.-General Hughes makes regular inspections of the penal institutions, seeing the prisoners and conversing with them. Of much greater concern to him than the punishment of wrong-doers is their reformation and if the lash is the deterrent he claims it is, then it will be generally agreed, we think, that the end justifies the means. — Hamilton Spectator.

FLEA FOR HUMANITIES

A surprising plea for the old-fashioned education of schools, for a flexible mind, to how to think, as against the teaching of specialised knowledge, was made by Dr. Robert A. Millikan, Nobel prize-winner in physics and head of the California Institute of Technology, in an address before a Greek letter fraternity in New York. Master of Liner will find the lecture recent by before the Royal Canadian Institute in Toronto, on "Cosmic Rays" may have imagined that the lecture would be up on physics, but in his New York address he stated that he did not know anything about the subject until he was in his second year. At college he had taken the usual academic degree of Bachelor of Arts, after being exposed to five years of Latin and Greek. Then he went on to what he "catapulted" into science by accident. —Mail and Empire.

COD LIVER OIL AND HEALTH

Cod liver oil used to be a household remedy for many physical troubles, including consumption, and speculation was rife concerning the reasons for its beneficial effects. It was not until 1919 that scientists proved that its well-known properties were due to vitamins. A report on "The Relative Values of Cod Liver Oil "From Various Sources" prepared for the Empire Marketing Board by Professors J. C. Drummond of University College, London, and T. P. Hilditch of Liverpool University, states that Empire cod liver oil, particularly from Newfoundland and Scotland, is richer in vitamins, on which its value as a body-builder and tonic depends, than similar oil from any other source. The vitamins of cod liver oil that are found in cods' livers depends, in turn upon the presence or absence of marine vegetation, on which the fishes are particularly fertile, and this is now seen to have an important influence on human health.—Mail and Empire.

THE RIGORS OF ROYALTY

The death of the Princess Royal, the Dowager Duchess of Fife, has called attention once more to the sacrifices that even regal life which are anything but splendid. "The Princess," says one cable despatch, "was an ardent movie fan. Her own life-story would be made a gripping moving picture. Such a picture would show a young girl, in early as 10 years of age, already bored to tears by the tiresome tinsel of court life—yearning to escape from it all and gain the simple freedom of the life of the ordinary citizen. Such a picture would show the Princess there was tragedy. Her own wedding was that. Royal rarity, a love match. Her noble husband, one of the handsome men of his breed. At his request, her household was stripped of the retinue of courtiers and servants which had made her life a social treadmill. For years she lived as simply and quietly as a Royal personage could ever hope to live. Then, the Great War came, and she and her husband were shiz wrecked —an ordeal from which her consort never recovered.—Toronto Globe.

READING, WRITING, SPELLING

Members of the Ottawa Collegiate Institute Board received quite a shock from the report of four inspectors from Toronto on the reading, writing and spelling of the boys and girls in the first form of one of the institutions. Of 38 boys examined in reading there were classed as good, five as fair, 15 as poor, and three as bad. Of 34 girls examined in reading eight were classed as good, 15 as fair, nine as bad. In writing, 77 students were examined. Of these 11 ranked as good, 33 as fair, 23 as poor, and 3 as bad. In spelling, 11 classes of the first form were specially tested, comprising 349 students. Of these 66 ranked as good, 107 as fair, 81 as poor, and 95 as bad.—Mail and Empire.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Measure of Sun Spots

New Haven, Conn.—Although a spot on the sun looks dark because it is cooler than the surrounding surface, it is at the inconceivable high temperature of 8033 degrees Fahrenheit, Miss Charlotte E. Moore, of Mount Wilson Observatory, said in a paper read before the American Astronomical Society today by Dr. John Q. Stewart, of Princeton University in her absence. Her paper said that the picture was possibly 72 degrees too hot or too cold, but that it represented the most accurate measure of the temperature of sun spots ever obtained.

Miss Moore also calculated the temperature of the surface surrounding the spots at about 9,980 degrees. While the spot is much hotter than any temperature that can be attained on earth, it is about as much cooler than the surrounding sun as a cake of ice is cooler than the flame of a gas range, her paper said.

The method used to determine these temperatures involved a study of the distribution of light of color in the spectrum of the spots. Photographs of the spectrum were made with the great 150-foot tower telescope at Mount Wilson. In a pit seventy-five feet deep below this tower is contained the world's greatest spectroscope. By measuring the line intensities with the intensity of corresponding lines in the spectrum of light from an arc lamp, Miss Moore was able to calculate the pressure of the electrons over the spot. She found this to be about four-thirds as great as over the surrounding part of sun. This enabled her to ascertain the amount of gas in the atmosphere of the sun in different places.

Above the spot she found the amount of material in the solar atmosphere was about seven-tenths again as great as over a corresponding area elsewhere. This made it more opaque and reduced the light emerging from the lower levels, causing the dark appearance of the spot.

Woman Shows Photos of Eros

Miss Margaret Harwood, who is the only woman director of a research astronomical observatory in the world, and the station at Manitoulin, a small town sides of the photographic light curve of Eros in 1930, which disclosed the researches to measure the solar system by the aid of minor planet Eros which this month comes its closest approach to the earth.

The planet, about fifteen miles in diameter, shining with its reflected light of the sun, gets through its variation of brightness in 2 hours 38 minutes, according to Miss Harwood, or revolves on its axis in 5 hours 16 minutes.

The pictures showed that in variation of brightness the changes are greater now than in October, and much greater than ordinary rotation can account for. In 1924 observations showed a shorter period, or about twenty-five minutes more variation of brightness than the present observations.

Miss Harwood's statement of "how the planet advances" will be followed by later observations on "why it advances," she said.

Lowell Finds Pluto Disclosure Flicks

Percival Lowell, discoverer of the planet Pluto, unwittingly photographed it as early as 1914, according to Dr. C. O. Lampland of the Lowell Observatory, whose paper was read as the astronomical session of the Pacific Coast Astronomical Society. The plates were found to contain a new planet after its discovery about a year ago.

The plates were said to establish a longer orbit of the planet and that about 250 years are required for Pluto to go around the sun. About a fifteenth of the orbit of the planet has been measured, it was stated.

Necrology of the Great

Of prominent scientists, statesmen and others who died in 1930, the names of Lord Davidson, the Archbishop of Canterbury, reached the age of 94; Cardinal Vannutelli, Dean of the Sacred College, 91; Robert Bridges, the Poet Laureate, 85, and Lord Balfour, 81. In our own community we should put among the distinguished dead Alexander, who died at 87, and Major George Haven Putnam at 85. Their dying at great age disputes the saying that when the gods love people young—unless, indeed, the adage means that at whatever age they die they are still young of spirit. This was true of all these in their advanced years. Lord Balfour and Major Putnam even played tennis well up in their seventies. Bridges became almost his immortal work in the eighties. Lord Davidson was, at 83, addressing the twelve thousand people gathered in Edinburgh to celebrate the reunion of the two churches of Scotland. Dr. Alexander was recive in pastoral service into the evening of his last day of life.

Old age had not reduced them, as it did Tithonus, to insignificance. On the other hand, some have been dead long in very midst of their renown, like Achilles. The Earl of Birkenhead was but 58 and appeared to be at least ten years younger. Mr. Harry Payne Whitney and Mr. V. Everit Macy died at the same age, 58, but both bequeathed so much to the public good that they lengthened their lives far beyond their years. Primo de Rivera was but on the threshold of the sixties. Mr. Bolitho was almost the only one on the list who had not reached even the forties, but he belongs rather with those who gave their lives for their country in war.

—The Editor.

Belleville, January 6, 1930.

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:—

I observed that Mayor G. A. Reid in his excellent inaugural address yesterday suggested that taxes in Belleville be paid quarterly. No doubt his Worship has some good reason for this change, or a reason he considers good for he is too level-headed a business man and too conservative to recommend any change unless for the sake of change. Still it is to be hoped that the council will consider the plan well before adopting it. It is a matter that will bear discussion. The arguments are not all on one side.

When a change in methods is suggested it is natural to ask, What will be the advantage of it? Who will benefit by it? In this case will it be a benefit to the tax collector? No, his work will be vastly increased. A great deal more book-keeping is required when four entries have to be made, instead of two, as at present. The collector's work may be so increased that he may find it necessary to engage additional clerical assistance to take care of the extra work. This means additional expense which the ratepayers have to pay. In order to meet out of his own pocket, seeing that the Council has laid these extra duties upon him, Mr. Deslee no doubt will need to notify tax payers four times a year through the press that the time for the payment of taxes has arrived. Moreover the tax collector will need to be enlarged and they will be considerably more complicated. Because of this the cost of preparing and printing them will be increased. These are not large items, but in the aggregate they count.

Will the Council itself be benefited by the change? Will it be in a position to make the change? Will the treasurer have the work and emoluments and will the Council be in a position to strike the tax rate so early in the year? If the taxes are to be paid quarterly I presume the first instalment will fall due in March. Can careful and efficient preparation be made so early in the game? And if the estimates are not carefully and accurately made it is probable that the chairmen of committees will have surpluses on hand, or possibly be faced with an overdraft, and both these things are to be avoided.

Will the tax-payer be benefited? Will he think that a favor has been conferred upon him if he can call he down to the City Hall four times a year to pay his taxes? He must make these visits during the working hours for the office is not open at any other time. It may be said that he does not need to go near the City Hall for he can pay his items but in the aggregate they count.

Toronto collects its taxes in three instalments. But a discount is allowed the man who pays all his taxes when the first instalment is due, a smaller discount when the second fall is open the second instalment is due, but no penalty is attached unless some of his taxes are still unpaid when the third and last instalment is due. Why not Belleville with advantages adopt that plan, and give a discount to the man who pays all his taxes at once? I observe that yesterday the Council made arrangements to borrow $250,000 from the Bank of Montreal. The rate of interest is not stated but I learn it is at the rate of five per cent. If the tax-payers of the city paid one fourth of their taxes in each year it should not be necessary to borrow so much money and therefore interest charges would be saved. This would give the man who pays his taxes in advance the benefit of a discount of say 4 per cent. The difference between the two and the tax-payers would gain something.

Personally, if I am not allowed a discount when paying taxes in advance I would prefer to pay all my taxes at one time. It saves both trouble and expense.

NOISES THAT NEUTRALIZE

Chewing-gum and ear wads of cotton have been used for passengers to alleviate the discomfort of airplane noises. Nothing has been done to muffle the inevitable roar of the plane which announces its approaches to people below. Lake Shipping Becomes A Canadian "Big Business"

Last of Schooners Passed This Year and Steam Reigns On Inland Waterways.

TORONTO—Another mile stone in Canadian inland navigation history has passed—another shipping season has closed on the Great Lakes. While the volume of shipping on the inland waters is expected to show a reduction this year due to the economic depression and other circumstances, still and all, has become a vital factor in position as one of the country's big industries.

It is a far cry from the days of old, with their somewhat primitive vessels, to those of today, when thousands of huge steamers, each carrying enormous loads of ore, coal, and grain, yearly ply the lakes. It is a far cry from the large canoe of the voyageur to the steamer Lemoyne, capable of carrying the tremendous load of 565,000 bushels of grain. Times have changed, and with their changing has come the complete abolition of sail on the lakes as a means of propulsion. And now steam, in turn, after years to be the most effective means of operation, is gradually giving way to oil drive.

After the canoe-propelled vessel came the small sailboat, then the schooner, and then the larger sailing vessel or clipper ship. The growth of this type of ship on the Great Lakes came gradually. The first is believed to have been the Griffin, Cavalier, de La Salle's vessel, which was lost near the Manitoulin Island, and the keel of which was surveyed and investigated just a few months ago.

First Steamboat

However, the first steamboat is not so veiled in mystery. She was the Walk in the Water, built at Buffalo, N.Y., and this primitive cockleshell did not last very long. The steamer Erwin was the first cargo-carrier on the lakes and she took a cargo of grain from Port Arthur the cargo consisting of about 20,000 bushels.

Evolution of Great Lakes shipping followed the war of 1812. There had been several naval engagements on the lakes during the war, but when it brought the famous Naval Treaty of 1912, an unassuming document which was one of the first steps in naval disarmament.

The treaty, signed by the United States and Great Britain, was as follows:

The naval force to be maintained upon the American lakes by His Majesty's government and the government of the United States shall henceforth be confined to the following vessels on each side:

On Lake Ontario, to one vessel, not exceeding 100 tons burden, and armed with one eighteen pound cannon. On the upper lakes, to two vessels, not exceeding like burden each, and armed with like force — all other armed vessels on those lakes shall be forthwith dismantled and no other vessel of war shall be there built or armed.

The treaty was respected by both sides, and marked the abolition of navies insofar as the lakes were concerned. However, construed vessels, used mostly for the prevention of smuggling, are still operated on the lakes.

In 1817, Canada came to the fore in shipbuilding, and in that year two steam vessels made their appearance. They were the Ontario and the Frontenac, and both met with disaster on their initial trips. The Ontario was a side-wheeler, built at Sackett's Landing, and, running into heavy weather, the side wheels were torn from their bearings. The Frontenac started out from Prescott, Ontario, and ran aground in the Thousand Islands. The Ontario was 240 feet long, and of 24 foot beam, while the Frontenac was 60 feet longer, and eight feet wider.

From 1817 to 1907, progress was slow as the steamers were concerned while, but one of the largest steamship lines in Canada was formed in 1907, and from then on progress became increasingly rapid.

Early in the present century, the grain movement from west to east really got under way. Three routes were opened: rail to Port Arthur, and water to Montreal; water to Georgian Bay ports and to Montreal, Quebec, to Portland, Me.; water from the head of the lakes to Buffalo, and rail to American seaboard ports. And, incidentally, including brokerage and transfer fees, it costs from 60 to 66 cents per bushel to transfer wheat from Manitoba to Great Britain.

In the past 15 years, steam has rapidly replaced sail on the lakes. This year, the last schooner of her type, the Our Son, foundered in a storm, and the passing of the picturesque old sail boat was regarded with a feeling of regret. Many of the old schooners had been used in recent years for barges, being towed by steamers, but the Our Son was the last vessel to move under sail.

Even steam power is fast immune from the process of transportation change, for in the past two or three years, many internal combustion driven boats have made their appearance on the inland seas, and still more are on the ways in readiness for launching.

Fast Loadings

But while things have changed considerably with regard to vessels things have also changed in loading and unloading operations. The amount of cargo carried by single vessels is a thing, but the loading process is even more so. The Lemoyne, for instance, built of Canadian timber, and a Canadian shipyard, and the largest vessel on the lakes, has been loaded at Port Arthur in record hours, 19 minutes, and on that occasion her cargo of 565,000 bushels of wheat was an all-time record.

As an example of the value of time in loading, it may be considered that boats around $500 per day for demurrage for time a vessel stays at the dock. Not only wheat and stone, however, is handled so rapidly. The R. O. Kerr, an ideal coal carrier of time ago established a record for loading with iron ore. The test was made officially by the Lake Carriers Association, and their report says: "The ship arrived at the dock at 4.43 1-2 p.m., loading began immediately and the ship was ready for departure at exactly five o'clock. The total loading time was 16 1-2 minutes. The cargo was 12,500 tons. The load was 12,507 tons. At Conneaut, the end of the trip, this entire cargo was placed on the dock in 9 hours, five minutes, also official time.

Honors are fairly evenly divided with regard to records. The port of Duluth, Minnesota, is the greatest grain shipping port in the world — but the twin ports of Port Arthur and Fort William, Ontario, are the greatest grain shipping ports in the world.

Just how much money is invested in shipping in Canada is highly problematical. Docks, elevators, unloading machinery, and all the buildings and warehouses necessary for successful operation are costly products, while the cost of vessels alone mounts to many millions. One Canadian shipping company has nearly 100 boats in operation, including three passenger vessels which are as large as the smaller ocean liners. And there are almost 100 smaller companies. The salary bill for crews alone is also figured well above the $5,000,000 mark, for each vessel carries an average of 20 men.

The only real drawback to Canadian shipping is the freezing in for winter, which means a complete cessation of navigation for several months. While the lay-up does give owners an opportunity to make needful repairs and overhaul their ships, it also means that crews, in the majority of cases, are out of work all winter. For the person providing a satisfactory method of keeping Canadian boats moving through a long and stormy of the arduous winter, fortune is waiting.

AGED PETERBORO MAN IS ROBBED

W. G. Johnston Was Forced to Hand Over Money to Pair

Peterboro, Jan. 6—Confronted by two big men when he answered knock on the door of his home a short distance from this city last night W. G. Johnston, aged 70, was forced to hand over $20 which he had in his pocket. According to Johnston, one of the men grabbed him by the throat and threw him to the floor. After allowing him to get up he struck Johnston with his fist and forced him to hand over the money. No arrests have been made.

She Thought He was Dumb

by Louise Pepe Armstrong

He had not been in the employ of the Pebbly Insurance Company a week when Susie Gilford dubbed him the Dumb Egg.

Susie was a valuable employee. Having charge of the advertising department, with an eye to the new commercial college to supervise, she yet found time to study various plans of the company and acquaint herself with pending forms. And she had more than once succeeded in selling a prospect when seasoned agents had failed.

Times were slack when Walter Hammond was taken on as an agent. It was whispered that his family was connected with that of the General Manager at the Home Office. That was the only explanation for Hammond; he certainly had not developed any hotly convincing line, he was not a spender, and he proved himself in spite of good intentions on his part, just so much dead timber.

Mr. Rollins, manager of the local office, gave him every opportunity. Hammond progressed, going over the field with his new agent and pointing out pertinent facts with which the interest of the prospect might be aroused. Hammond read booklets gotten out by the company on endowment plans and insurance that poured over figures, but obviously to no avail. He had been agent for over a month, with not a single policy to his credit. Susie's nickname stuck; everybody began calling him the Dumb Egg.

It was only because Mr. Rollins was at home sick that morning that Walter Hammond happened to have speech with the old English gentleman. Mary Dorne, stenographer, told Susie about it.

"The old English gentleman has called again to see Mr. Rollins," she said. "Mr. Walker told me not to let anyone disturb him, and as the other boys are out I let Mr. Hammond talk to him."

"Why didn't you call me?" asked Susie in alarm.

"I did say I'd call Miss Gilford, but he...."

"Oh!" exclaimed Susie, flushing. She knew from experience that there were men who would not discuss any sort of business with a woman, no matter how proficient she might have proven.

But Susie was worried. She knew Mr. Rollins had been especially tactful with the old English gentleman, that he was one of their best prospects. The two times he had called before, Mr. Rollins had been closeted with him for several hours. Nobody in the office even knew the client's name, and that was why, when Mary Dorne spoke of him as the old English gentleman, because he was tall and soldierly in bearing with drooping mustaches, they had all called him that.

She got up from her desk and went along the corridor until she reached the closed door of the manager's office. She heard voices behind that door, the thin, concise tones of the prospect and the pleasant bass voice of the Dumb Egg. She hated herself for snooping, yet forced herself to listen. The Dumb Egg might queer the whole business, might make some blunder that would send the old English gentleman flying to take insurance through a rival company.

"Mr. Rollins has been advising me to take this large policy for the benefit of my grandchildren," the prospect was saying. "But my daughter's husband is well off and there's really no necessity for my putting funds in trust for the education of her children. I'd always rather set my heart on having a little country place....not too far out, you know, with a garden."

"Not a large house," commented Walter Hammond helpfully, as the old gentleman hailed in the revelation of his dream. "Sort of cottage, with attractive layout of grounds, shrubs and flowers...."

"Indeed, yes!" cried the insurance prospect. "That's something I've looked forward to....a modest little place of my own."

Susie chose this moment to enter. She saw Hammond smiling across at the old English gentleman encouragingly. The prospect's faded gray eyes lit with excitement, his mustaches bristling.

Putting down some letters on the table before Hammond, she said apologetically, "I'm so sorry to interrupt, but Mr. Rollins wants you to come right up to his home, Mr. Hammond, to discuss a very important matter."

It was an unpardonable thing to do, breaking in on a private conference, but Susie knew Mr. Rollins would think her justified in the lie she told. She felt sure that with fifteen minutes' uninterrupted talk the old English gentleman would be irrevocably sold on the country cottage, and the trust, fund for the education of his grandchildren. She was not an idle dream.

Mr. Rollins must have given Hammond quite a dressing down, for when he returned to the office two days later there was a coldness between the manager and his new agent.

"The Dumb Egg," Susie Gilford exclaimed. "He doesn't even realize he's queered some of the best business ever developed!"

But though Hammond spent several mornings in the office, he did not appear idle, nor was he figuring insurance plans; he was writing. He had sent out for some glazed linen paper and India ink and was busy over something which did not appear to be remotely connected with the Pebbly Insurance Co.'s business.

Susie suppressed what it was to hardly questioned him.

"Oh, I'm making plans for a friend of mine," he admitted, smiling up at her. She could not help being a little unconscience-stricken at his smile. There was something guileless about the Dumb Egg, and he certainly was handsome, with lean, bronzed face and dark, expressive eyes. He was different from the other men in the office . . . sort of to the manner born.

She pulled herself up short. Never do to sentimentalize over a fellow-employee and the Dumb Egg at that!

"Miss Gilford," he said, "I think I'll be speaking, "I wonder if I might call on you tonight. There's something I'd like to discuss....."

She looked up, startled and confused. It had just been in her mind to talk with the Dumb Egg, tell him a few things.....

"Certainly," she agreed, giving him her address. "I'd be glad to advise you, if you think I could do any good."

That very afternoon Mr. Rollins fired the Dumb Egg. It seemed that the old English gentleman had called and refused to see the local manager. "He wants to talk over with Hammond," Mr. Rollins exploded. "Wanted to see Hammond about some garden plans!"

Susie wondered if the unfortunate youth would now call. Her advice would be of no use to him now. She almost blamed herself.....

But at the hour she had named the bell of her flat was rung, and when she opened the front door there stood the Dumb Egg, carrying a brief-case, and looking strangely but cool-Gallic.

"I wanted you to see home work I've been doing the past week," he said, boldly taking a seat beside her on the davenport and ignoring the arm chair she had indicated. "Business has been so slack at the office, I felt sure Mr. Rollins wouldn't mind my doing it there, but I seem to have offended him. But if I take out a big policy with the company later, he may forgive me. You see, these are garden plans."

Susie almost laughed in his face, and then she wanted to cry. He had flung away his chance, and he did not even care. "Garden plans!" she echoed. "Will they help you make a living?"

"I hope so, Susie! I'm sure you've realized what a square peg in a round hole I've been, trying to sell insurance. Well, when Mr. McAdams liked the plans I made for his cottage, and recommended me to his son-in-law, Mr. Cromwell of Cromwell & Wright,...."

"Those landscape gardeners and architects?" cried Susie light breaking at last. "Why, only the most wealthy people can....."

"So you see," said the Dumb Egg quietly, "after all, I'll be able to keep the wolf from the door, in spite of being a first-class insurance agent. I'm even planning," he added, grinning at her flushed averted face, "to build another cottage.....with a garden.....if someone I've long admired could be interested in life there.....among the flowers.....instead of in estates over which they die, and their administration. What do you think, Susie?"

"I think," admitted Susie Gilford, expert insurance advisor, miserably, "I think that the person you have in mind ought surely to be interested in such a proposition.....that is, unless that person is a hopeless Dumb Egg!"

UNEMPLOYMENT CAUSES MORE SERIOUS PROBLEMS

Toronto, Jan. 6—"If other problems could be set aside while we deal with unemployment our task would be simple," said Miss Marjorie Moore, executive secretary of Scarboro Neighborhood Workers' Association. "Unfortunately, however, unemployment not only increases the number but the seriousness of the problems. Illness of the breadwinner, mal-nutrition of children go hand in hand with "no work, no wages" and many breadless tramp down town to look for work and return home tired and discouraged to find just the same kind of food they have had every other night; city supplies do not allow for much variety. "Dailiff's notices figure large in our day's job," Miss Moore continued. "They are the inevitable consequences of a Winter like this. Last Saturday we had 18 families to call on. Twenty had arrears in rent, four had no food in the house and in eight the children needed clothing. On the other side of the picture is the public members by wanting to help. We have had more offers of jobs and material help in the district office than ever before."

THE NEW YEAR

Our yesterdays, touched by the Hand of Time
Our days of loss and our days of gain,
Years, grim and old, soiled by sin's
dark satin,
God takes away, and gives us again
Days pure and white as the fresh new snow,
The New Year's dawn with sky
aglow,
And courage to meet the days to
be,
From the power of the past forever
free.

We need not mourn o'er the days
now dead,
No tears o'er their bier be it ours to shed;
We need not grieve o'er their loss and pain
For better day will come again;
For dread the dawn of this New Year's sun
With the chance of a prize when the race is run,
For as thy days, thy strength shall be."

Be the promise of God to you and me.

Fashion Flashes

By Helen Follett

Drab-headed women used to mourn because they had wool the color of a mouse's overcoat. Store and more femmes are accepting it relying upon health and luster of the tresslocks, plus the perfected coiffure, to get them by in the beauty ranks. Drab hair is the most difficult of all shades to dye. Dark brown hair, or black, is the easiest. No woman should attempt to color a pepper-and-salt crest; even the experienced professional dyer finds that the gumption skill is required for a successful job.

There is one way and one way only to lighten up slack abdominal muscles and that is by exercise. A corset is a support and a temporary help, but it does not correct the prohibit. Bending exercises are effective, if accomplished with hard, muscular pulling. Throw the contents of the bottom box on the floor and pick the buttons up one by one, stooping over without bending the knees. Carry the body tall at all times.

Sob sisters who whine about yallery complexions should make it a practice to drink orange juice before breakfast and to consume at least one glass of tomato juice a day. They need canada too, and vegetable fats that are often thrown away when vegetables are boiled. A sallow skin is a reflection on one's eating habits.

That individual who has cultivated a trained mind does not indulge in needless worry, which only weakens one in the daily contest between one's self and monotony. Fretful thoughts get out of the mind when pleasant thoughts get in. Worry slows up body functions, chills the skin, upsets digestive activities, turns a sweet face into a lemon.

Bed coverings in the Winter season should be warm but light. No woman can look topnotch if she doesn't sleep comfortably. The mattress should also be too soft nor too high. There should be a moving current of air in the bedroom to chase away the odor of stale air that hovers over the head of the sleeper.

Fashionably Speaking By Lucille

DEAR READERS:

There is always some genius in our midst who is able to dress perfectly on what we consider a mere song. What is the secret? She has studied fashions and has learned how the designers do their stuff. She knows it is the little things that count, and she can add those touches beautifully and to excellent advantage. It is she who can rework a last year's model nearer to the new season's desire.

Collars and cuffs and sleeves now give the distinguishing air to an otherwise perfectly simple, plain frock. The major addition is far from difficult, and all it requires is exercising a little care and ingenuity.

The main point is to select models that stress simplicity, then they can be accessorized in diverse ways, with no one the wiser but you.

Several little ribbon bows travel down the back of a very simple evening gown of satin to mark the back closing in a new model from one couturier. You too can add that stamp of chic.

Another designer poses a little flat ribbon bow on the shoulder of a silk crepe blouse and knows that it will receive favorable mention.

It is a common practice to buy a dress and wear it as it is, in spite of certain details of treatments that are not completely flattering. Sometimes the sleeve may be changed a trifle to suit your individual silhouette. If a circular ruffle, for instance, is posed too low for your arm, place it higher and be content. The result will bring the model nearer to the goal of perfection.

The new overblouses which soften the line of demarcation between bodice and skirt should be adjusted as to length according to the figure in its width and length. A blouse of this kind should end at the correct point for you.

Many new models have sleeves cut in one with the shoulder and frequently this method leaves the neckline too loose for the average person. Take in the seams or add a few pin tucks in such a way as to hold the fullness smoothly.

The same black dress you and your neighbor have selected can be made individual by a touch of color. Black mesh or net with a note of pink or blue will lend a subtle difference. One clever costume model with a very low decolletage was brightened by a little cluster of pink and blue forgetmenots surrounded by a narrow lace ruff placed at the centre of the V neckline.

A luxury note in floral touches is a corsage bouquet of real lace to hold small roses matching the gown with which they are worn.

Fashionably yours,
—LUCILLE.

"FOR PITY IS AKIN TO LOVE!"

By Beatrice Fairfax
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We have one daughter for whom we have done everything in our power. We gave her the best education our means would permit, and she has at present a very fine position. Her father and I hoped she would marry before we passed on. She has had very nice young men come to see her, and we have always made them welcome, but she has never taken any interest in them.

About six months ago a man employed by the same firm as she is, lost his wife and was left with four children. Because she was sorry for them, my daughter began doing things for these children—taking them to the park on Sundays, having them here to supper, and making some of their clothes. She has always spoken of their father as quite a success of a failure. But pity seems to have gone its fatal work — she has fallen in love with the man who really has nothing to recommend him. To make matters worse, my husband and sons constantly abuse him. She tells you that they have paid no attention to her queer fancy in the beginning, that her interest in him might have died out.

Disappointed Mother.

It seems likely if no notice had been taken of your daughter's budding interest in the widower's family, it might not have developed into a love affair. We are all given to spurring the newest of our hobbies which is far on we take more calmly.

And as you probably have noticed in other families, the surest way to make one's daughter marry an undesirable is to abuse him. Just pour on the young man you'd rather not have for a son-in-law and you'll find you've only been keeping a chair warm till he takes his place in the family circle.

Why? Because you're started that most potent of forces—pity to working. "Pity is akin to love," says one poet and another, "Of all the pities (that) lead to a woman's love, Pity's the straightest."

Let the family get busy knocking and the most unpromising young man becomes a hero. Opposition is the first step toward the success of any cause—and its practically the same thing with daughter's boy friends. If you don't like them, and would rather see them around as "permanents," go slow on criticism.

If you don't, daughter's lively imagination will invest them with qualities they never possessed. From a curious, instinctive sense of protection that all women have she becomes an ally and a defender.

If you're a really clever person — but, alas, how few of us are—there can be done by lifting them wherever at the queer thing daughter has brought home than by all the abuse you can muster.

A well applied dash of humor, a telling word of banter—if it's to the point—will make the most ardent love affair look like a cake of ice left on the doorstep in August. Like tabasco sauce, the gentle mockery must be applied with a maker's hand, or it's going to have the contrary effect.

Keep Douglas' Liniment handy. A sure, speedy remedy for burns, sprains, aches, minor painful soft corns, warts, scald feet. Invaluable for inflammation and muscular rheumatism.

CURB MORBID CURIOSITY

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Curiosity is what we learn by, advance by, and, one might say, even live by. Were it not for curiosity surely life would be a drab existence, rather more vegetable than human. Yes, of and by itself, curiosity is a fine thing. It is a vital, pulsating dynamic interest that helps mightily to keep us going.

But there is curiosity and curiosity. But by no means all of it is desirable. And when it is so, it becomes a distinct liability rather than an asset.

When a crowd gathers in the street and the onlookers stand fascinated by the sight of a bleeding and wounded man who has been struck by an automobile, (the curiosity instinct, thus motivating them can only be designated as morbid.

For the interest shown is not one of pity nor is it born of the desire to help. It is merely a display of excitement which temporarily titillates the emotions and leaves unpleasant memories in its wake.

None of us is entirely free from morbid curiosity. Some have it more; some less. Deep down, however—and often unconsciously—we tend to be drawn to what is unseemly and sordid.

The fact is that morbid curiosity is a survival of the ancient and primitive days when killing and death and unexpected catastrophes, like plagues, were frequent occurrences among the human family.

To be sure, there is argument aplenty that we are not as civilized as we fondly like to think we are. We still destroy each other unmercifully in war; we run over women and children and maim the aged with our automobiles; we tolerate gangster crimes and allow many a murder to go unsolved.

Yes, despite all our shortcomings, there can be no question but what peoples as a whole, as well as individuals, are at least wanting to develop and reach up to higher and higher planes, despite the nagging and often overpowering influences which we have inherited from our original ancestors.

Among these influences, undoubtedly, should be listed morbid curiosity. Watch yourself, therefore, and find out how much it still holds you in its grip.

Observe your reactions to electrocutions, to the clanging of an ambulance or fire engine, to any gruesomeness as reported in play, book, newspaper or motion picture.

To overcome morbid curiosity it is not necessary to avoid all such experiences. It is merely necessary to recognize your interest for what it actually is, thus automatically controlling it because it has been definitely conscious and so has lost its power of overwhelming you.

Controlling morbid curiosity makes for refinements in thinking and feeling, as well as for compassion.

These go far in developing any race into finer and better men and women.

In eczema the treatment of the system is even more important than the application of skin lotions, etc. Eczema is a stubborn condition and the great est experience and patience may be required to overcome it.

Among the list of serious automobile accidents in Massachusetts every month, stolen cars figure in about twenty of the crashes and injuries.

Fliegers of South Africa are wearing American silk hosiery.

In all infantile complaints that are the result of the depredations of worms in the stomach and intestines Miller's Worm Powders will be found an effective remedy. They attack the cause of these troubles, and by expelling the worms from the organs insure an orderly working of the system, without which the child cannot maintain its strength or thrive. These powders mean health and improvement.

"It tastes good!" SAID BETTY BUTTERWORTH age 7 years

Rejoice, mothers—here's wonderful news about cod-liver oil

You know how children hate cod-liver oil. What a struggle it is to make them take it! But try this emulsified form—and you'll make the same happy discovery that Mrs. Butterworth of Edgewood Rd., Long Branch, Ontario, did.

Mrs. Butterworth, like thousands of other mothers, knows what wonders cod-liver oil can do for youngsters, but she'd never been able to make her daughter like it. So when we called on her recently, she gladly consented to let Betty try Scott's Emulsion of Cod-Liver Oil.

Betty took a spoonful. "Why, this tastes good," she smiled. "I like it!"

Pleasanter to take — but that isn't all!

Pale, thin, run-down children need cod-liver oil. Give it the pleasantest way—give Scott's Emulsion.

Scott's Emulsion hasn't that strong "fishy" taste. It brings you purest, Norwegian cod-liver oil in its pleasantest form—perfect emulsion. Easier to take—easier to digest. You get more good out of Scott's Emulsion and you feel the benefits quicker.

Scott's Emulsion contains no alcohol. It is rich in vitamin A, the growth-promoting vitamin that helps guard against disease. It is rich in vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin that prevents rickets. It also contains lime and mineral elements that aid in forming sound bones and teeth. This gives Scott's Emulsion a special advantage for growing children, infants, nursing and expectant mothers.

PREMIER SILENT ON ATTITUDE OF FEDERAL HEADS

Says Bennett has Promised 95 Per Cent. of Pension Cost

PROVINCES 5 PER CENT

Bennett Says he is Surprised at Statements by Manitoba Premier

Winnipeg, Jan. 8.— The Dominion Government in future will pay 95 per cent. of the cost of old age pensions, it was revealed today by Hon. John Bracken, Premier of Manitoba.

Mr. Bracken, in commenting on the western premiers' conference here Tuesday with Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, disclosed that assurance had been given by Mr. Bennett that the provinces would be called upon to pay only five per cent. of the old age pensions charges as compared with the 50 per cent now contributed.

Mr. Bennett in his election speeches had promised relief for the provinces in the cost of old age pensions, and Mr. Bracken in his comment today said:

"With regard to old age pensions, the Prime Minister amplified his previous statement and made it clear that the Dominion would pay 95 per cent. of the cost."

Legislation Expected

Legislation, it is indicated, providing for the larger payment by the Federal Government, will be introduced at the forthcoming session of Parliament.

In commenting on the conference, Premier Bracken said:

"With respect to the agricultural situation, Mr. Bennett thoroughly understands the seriousness of the difficulties facing the West. I should much prefer that any further statement concerning the Dominion policies relating to this question should come from Mr. Bennett himself."

Mr. Bracken said the general received discussion with Mr. Bennett was quite satisfactory to all, resulting in clearing up many minor difficulties. He also revealed that the Prime Minister had requested the premiers to be represented at a Dominion conference, in Ottawa, for a discussion of questions raised at the Imperial Conference.

Reduction in the pensions rates would mean a saving of approximately $700,000 to Manitoba. Estimates passed by the Provincial Legislature last year for the current fiscal year rather less than $800,000 for the province's share of pension payments and $15,070 for administration expenses. The 5 per cent which would be paid by the province, would take care of administration expenditures.

BENNETT SURPRISED

Fort William, Jan. 8.—Premier R. B. Bennett, who passed through here last night on his way to Ottawa, declined to make a statement or the question of the Federal Government absorbing 95 per cent. of the cost of the old age pension scheme. Premier John Bracken of Manitoba announced today this had been the subject of an undertaking transmitted to he premiers of the Prairie Provinces by Premier Bennett at a conference in Winnipeg.

Premier Bennett, while declining to issue a statement in the matter, was surprised at the announcement being made.

SIX KILLED, ONE LOST IN HUGE TIDAL WAVE

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 8—Six men were killed, one missing and three injured in the huge tidal wave which swept the coast of New Guinea on December 24th, the administrator of that territory reported today. The great wall of water from 25 to 50 feet high swept the coast for 40 miles and travelled three hundred yards inland, the Sapora mission station and the Madang trading settlement were wiped out.

INJURED IN FACTORY

OSHAWA, Jan. 8.—Eddie McDonald one of the candidates for the mayoralty in last Monday's election, was painfully injured this morning in the paint shop at the General Motors plant when his foot was caught between two cars as he was unloading them onto the line. He was removed to his home at 480 Cubert street. Several days ago a child of the family was severely burned.

CANCER CELLS GROWN IN CAPITAL LABORATORY

WASHINGTON, Jan 8—An audience of scientists leaned forward in their seats last night like children at a Western thriller and watched on the motion picture screen the weird antics of cancer cells grown in a laboratory. No cure for cancer was hinted at, but it was said the pictures were a great advance in the study of the disease.

POSSE CAPTURED ALLEGED BURGLAR AFTER LONG CHASE

Police Constable Sylvester Directed Operations and Trailed Man

Peterboro, Jan. 8—After an all-night chase in which members of the residents of Warsaw took part, Provincial Constable David Sylvester returned to the city at 6.45 yesterday morning and lodged Creswell Tighe in the police cells. Tighe was charged before Police Magistrate Langley with having burglarized Payne and Darling's general store in Warsaw. He pleaded not guilty.

Nothing was stolen from the store is not fully known as yet. However, it was found this morning that $300 was missing from the safe. The burglary was committed about midnight, it being alleged that Tighe gained his entrance to the store by smashing the glass in the front door.

Two residents of the village, Thos. Clements and a young man named Payne observed the shattered door. Peering inside the store, they saw the burglar as he rummaged about the shelves with the aid of a dim light from flashlight. The alarm was immediately given but Tighe escaped from the store. Constable Sylvester was sent for and with aid of a posse of citizens, the following Tighe was arrested early yesterday morning.

PREMIER RETURNS TO THE CAPITAL

WINNIPEG, Jan. 8.—Premier R. B. Bennett left for Ottawa yesterday, bringing to an end his New Year's visit to the west. Mr. Bennett's trip included both business and pleasure, for while attending to spending a few days in his home city of Calgary, he delivered an important address in Regina and met the Prime Ministers of the three Prairie Provinces in conference in Winnipeg.

CHILD SCALDED, RESTING EASIER

Two Year Old Angelina Paulino Suffered Severe Burns in Her Home

Little two-year-old Angelina Paulino, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Paulino, Station Street, suffered severe burns yesterday when she turned on a bucket of scalding water that had been left on the floor. The water had been used for scrubbing purposes and had been left sitting on the floor after the task was finished. Angelina was playing about the floor and tucked into the bucket. Her screams brought assistance and a doctor was called. Yesterday it was thought that her burns were more serious than they have since turned out to be, and today the child is resting quietly.

BOYS AND GIRLS CLOSE STUDENTS OF SCREEN WILL ASSIST CENSOR BOARD

New York, Jan. 8—Boys and girls, who are the movies' closest friends and severest critics, are henceforth to lend the wisdom of their youth to the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures, the board announced yesterday.

Hitherto, although the Board of Review—which is in no sense a censorship organization—has occasionally worked with the aid of younger folks in establishing certain standards for films, has been the older members who have made the final determination of a production's worth.

"We have tried to put this work on a scientific basis," said W. A. Barrett, executive secretary of the organization "but we have come to the conclusion that our findings cannot be called accurate unless they carry the weight of approval and the point of view of youth."

Barrett explained that it has been decided, therefore, to include groups of high school students, between the ages of 16 and 18, in the number of workers who review productions before they are released to the public.

FERGUSON BIDS FAREWELLS TO HIS FOLLOWERS

Former Premier Touched as He Says "Au Revoir" to Ontario

A CLOSER BOND

Referred to Dream of Late Sir Adam Beck for Hydro Power

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 8—Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canada's high commissioner to Great Britain, last night said "au revoir" to the Conservative party and to the people of Ontario. In his last public appearance before sailing to assume his new position at London, England, Mr. Ferguson received the thanks of the party and of the province at a meeting which at times gave the lie to its enthusiasm. There were no announcements of importance no great news "breaks". The meeting was solely and simply one of good will and good wishes to the man who had for ten years guided the destinies of the Province of Ontario—and to the woman who had stood beside him in adversity and prosperity, Mrs. Ferguson.

From every county in the province men and women came last night to the meeting here. From political, industrial and educational life, representatives attended. And all had words of praise for the man who was departing. All agreed, too, that he was peculiarly fitted for his new position, and that in choice was a wise one.

Seldom if ever, in the history of Western Ontario has there been such a remarkable display of affection for a man as that for Mr. And Mrs. Ferguson as times showed effects of it. He was almost overcome with emotion as he rose to his feet to address the gathering after his introduction by Hon. Arthur Sauve, Postmaster-General of Canada.

Progress of Province

In his speech Mr. Ferguson outlined some of the strides which had been made by the province of Ontario during the past ten years. He spoke with deep feeling of the encouragement and assistance given him by members of his cabinet and by the people of the province. In his new position at London, things would be different, he felt, but "if I get too lonely I'll just come back again," he said.

He referred briefly to the late Sir Adam Beck, father of Hydro, who lived in London. "Sir Adam Beck was one of the greatest benefactors Ontario has ever known". As a result of Sir Adam's dream, the province now distributes one and a half million horse power of electricity to its residents at cost.

In going to London it was gratifying to feel that he was representing the public opinion of the Dominion. He hoped that a closer relationship between the Empire and Canada could be brought about and he would do all in his power to accomplish that aim. His predecessors who had occupied the high commissionership had found the task an exciting one. He expected that he too would find that the position was not easy. "Some people have told me that the job is an education," he declared, "and that we will be very lonely there." But if this was true, he could always come back to his home province, he maintained.

NO RUSH OF JOB SEEKER FOR POST AT NEW GERMANY

Kitchener, Jan. 8—The Hills village of New Germany is having considerable trouble getting a postmaster. No one wants the job as the pay is too small, the range being between $100 and $126 there being only 45 families in the community. Miss Ida Bauer, the village saint see the job at $2.00 weekly, especially in view of the fact that Miss Bauer who is the deputy is supposed to be on duty from eight o'clock until six. Anthony Frank resigned a month ago and Frederick Scheerer held the post, but he also resigned. The Government hopes to complete arrangements for a new postmaster shortly, and in the meantime Mr. Frank is again reluctantly filling the post.

LOW PRICE BARLEY WARRANTS BURNING OF GRAIN AS FUEL

Burning grain may seem very expensive as well as wasteful and ridiculous, but when barley is worth only 25 cents from six to nine cents per bushel. A Sidney resident who owns a block of land in Western Canada is reported to have sold his last carload of barley at nine cents per bushel, in the west.

"They say a bushel of barley will burn for a day," one prominent agricultural authority remarked to another today. At the figure the farmer got for his bushel it would be cheaper to burn it in a stove than to burn coal even at the mine run prices in the west.

PLANE COMPLETES FLIGHT TO BERMUDA

Hamilton, Bermuda, Jan. 8—Mrs. Beryl Hart and Lieut. W. S. MacLaren hoped to take off today for the Azores. They brought their white monoplane "Trade Wind" here, from Norfolk, Virginia, yesterday on a flight with Fayfield to Paris. The slight soil trouble will be remedied today.

On the flight yesterday Mrs. Hart piloted the plane all the way, MacLaren doing the navigating. Visibility was poor and headwinds bumpy and strong.

FERRY RUNS AGROUND

KINGSTON, Jan. 8.—The ferry Wolfe Islander, which operates between Wolfe Island and the city, went aground about 200 feet east of the Wolfe Island wharf. A call was sent to Kingston for assistance and the tug Sea Queen under Captain Chas. Willard, after working for almost an hour, released the ferry undamaged.

PILOT PLUNGED TO DEATH WHEN PLANE BURNED

Two Giant Airships of Italian Squadron Collided in Mid-air

Buenos Aires, Jan. 8.—A dispatch to La Nacion from Bolsana, Portuguese Guinea, yesterday said that two of the planes of the Italian trans-oceanic expedition collided off Praiabranca Monday shortly after the planes took off for Natal, Brazil. One of the planes fell in flames, the other returning damaged, to Bolsana.

The body of the pilot of one of the planes was said by the dispatch to have been recovered Tuesday. It was impossible to secure details from an official source.

Work in constant loud noises is likely to cause deafness.

SEARCH PARTY REPORTED SAFE

Hope is Given up for Three Others Missing a Week

Kingston, Jan. 8—Just when hope for their safety was almost abandoned by many, word was received here this morning from Amherst Island that Stanley Fairbrain, Russell Wemp and Walter Rikley, of Bath, who went out on Sunday in search of Capt. Sheridan, Cecil Phillips and Anthony Kane, are safe and sound on Amherst Island having been on the False Ducks Island since Sunday. Hope however, has been given up for Sheridan, Phillips and Kane of whom not a sign has been found since they disappeared from the Main Ducks on Friday except for the location of several cushions, identified as coming from Phillips' boat.

TROUBLE ABOARD BRITISH VESSEL

News Chronicle Says Splendid Feeling Exists in the Navy

LONDON, Eng. Jan. 8—CP—"From what we know of conditions in the navy, we shall be greatly astonished if it cannot be shown that the loyal spirit and the relations between officers and men are as good as they have ever been", said the News Chronicle today the comment was provoked by an admiralty statement issued by Right Hon. A. V. Alexander first Lord concerning the detention of sailors of submarine depot ship Lucia, for alleged insubordination. The Admiralty will be sailing today without the Lucia.

BANK PRESIDENT BLAMES HIGH RATES

Montreal, Que., Jan. 8—"Abnormal credit conditions during 1928 and 1929 must be held principally responsible for initiating the present world-wide depression," Sir Herbert Holt, president of the Royal Bank of Canada stated at the annual meeting of the bank stated here today. High money rates and their inevitable effect on the prevailing business and paralyzing development and in many countries. Economic and political structures had been weakened to such a degree that it was necessary for them to receive assistance in the shape of foreign loans before their purchasing power could be restored, he said.

BIG CROWD TO ATTEND SENIOR O. H. A. GAME

The biggest crowd of the present season is expected to jam the Arena tonight when Queen's University seniors open the Senior O. H. A. season here against the Belleville Yellow Shirts. The local boys defeated Queen's in an exhibition game here earlier in the season and the Collegians put up such a sparkling exhibition that the fans are anxious to see them in action again.

NEW BOXING RULES

Albany, Jan. 8—New rules governing the conduct of boxing bouts were recommended here today by the State Legislature in the annual report of Edward J. Flynn, Secretary of State, submitted yesterday. Among other things, Flynn suggested that gymnasiums used as training sites of boxers which charged admission fees to watch practices, be subject to tax.

Jackson is said to have been shot in a quarrel arising about Jackson's wife.

PONTIFF OUTLINES CHURCH'S STAND ON MARRIAGE, DIVORCE

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 8.—Age old Roman Catholic doctrines of marriage and divorce were reaffirmed and emphasized in an encyclical today by Pope Pius eleventh

He reaffirmed in the strongest terms the church's stand against birth control, divorce, abortion, and "those modern travesties as trial, companionate and short term marriages", branding such practices a "grave sin" and "intrinsically shameful, foul, murder". The Pontiff flayed in scathing terms those who would limit children.

THIRTY-FOUR KILLED IN RAILWAY ACCIDENTS

Ottawa, Jan. 8—Thirty-four persons were killed and 242 injured during October, 1930 in railway accidents on Canadian railways according to returns issued today by the Board of Railway Commissioners. Railway accidents took a toll of 20 lives with 183 injured while five persons were killed and 49 injured at highway crossings. There were 213 railway accidents and 37 at crossings.

ROBINS SIGN CLARK

Brooklyn, Jan. 8.—Lefty Clark, Brooklyn, Dodger pitcher, has signed his contract to play in the 1931 season, Dave Driscoll, Brooklyn club manager, announced. Clark is the 13th pitcher to have signed with the Dodgers for the 1931 campaign.

ABANDONED GOLD MINE MAY YIELD RICHES FOR MICHIGAN PROMOTERS

Is Madoc Village to be Centre of Another Rush of Miners?

UNDER OPTION

"Is Madoc to see somewhat of a revival of the gold rush days of the seventies?" is a question which is being asked.

The origin of the query lies in the gold mine prospect about nine miles from Madoc village, on a side line from Queensboro, which it is said is under option to Michigan interests, the option having recently been extended for 45 days.

It will be remembered that some weeks ago a party of capitalists interested in the mine went by motor all the way from Grand Rapids to the airport in Sidney and were thence conveyed to the prospect in the middle of this county. A few days ago they came back to this section by rail, visited the scene and have again returned home.

Rumor stated today that they were expected back in about two weeks' time to make another examination of the mine after the shaft has been deepened. The shaft is down, it is said, one hundred and thirty-eight feet, the latest, it is said, is promising in its indications.

What is in store for this centre which is not far from the Bay of Quinte way to Madoc was a beaten highway with the rush attracting daily attention from not only the local but from metropolitan newspapers is to be seen.

The members of the original party to visit the prospect near Queensboro, are Keith Stacey, A. J. Olbert, F. Stacey and H. Reid, all of Grand Rapids, Michigan.

The mine prospect is in the area which gave Hastings County considerable gold production in the seventies. At this time when world interest centres upon gold production and when the market value of gold mining shares gives some indication of what they cannot fail to be worth, the passing interest in any effort to make a thorough exploration of many prospects in Hastings.

WOMAN PARADED AS A MAN FOR 17 YEARS, FORGED CHEQUE HER UNDOING

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—For 17 years Marie Smith, in men's clothing, decided men's work as a steamfitter, married another woman and lived happily.

She would have continued being a man to all her acquaintances if she had not been called before Judge Joan H. Lyle yesterday to face charges of passing $32 in worthless cheques. Then in court it was revealed that she was a woman, although she appeared before the judge, clad in a man's suit, with a man's haircut and with a row of man-size cigars in her breast pocket.

"I could get no work as a woman," she explained. "so I put on men's clothes and got work right away. I have worked at men's jobs ever since and hold a Steamfitters' Union card."

The pocket full of cigars, she said, merely was to aid her disguise.

Some time ago while she was out of work she said, a man induced her to pass the cheques, promising to give her the proceeds of every fourth one She needed the money, she added, to make payments on the home where she lived happily with the woman she had married.

Judge Lyle placed her on probation for one year.

JOYFUL REUNION AT LOCAL DEPOT AS BROTHER MET SISTER AFTER THIRTEEN YEARS LONG ABSENCE

Harry Howard, Peterboro, Saw Years Bridged in Happy Meeting

There is one citizen of another town who will always have a warm spot in his heart for Belleville. Mr. Harry Howard calls Peterboro his home, and, in common with all good citizens of the Liftlock City, is ready to give three rousing cheers for that town on any occasion.

But Belleville has done a good turn for Mr. Howard, Strange are the ways of fate!

Thirteen years ago, in 1918, Mr. Howard lost all track of his sister Hunt as he might, he could not locate her. At last he had placed in Detroit the vague news that she was in California—and that state is famous to say the least.

Yesterday Mr. Howard was in the city on business and last night went up to the north station to see off on the farewell to a friend bound for Toronto. After he had placed the friend's baggage on board he happened to notice a woman passenger standing by. She appeared to be the baggage attendant's wife, so he passed on. He approached her respectfully and asked her if her name was not Howard.

"You are Harry," she said. The woman exclaimed excitedly. And so it proved to be!

After rejoicing and explanations Mr. Howard's sister, who is now Mrs. Charles Grant and was travelling to Montreal with her husband, dashed the long trip from California, to Belleville in order to come right on to the eastern city with them. But she had more business in this city than she took good care that the family should not be separated again and got her address. He intends to travel east for a visit at the end of the month.

Thirteen years is a long time to be separated from a sister, but they have given up all hope of ever seeing each sister again. But the tangled threads are finally unravelled themselves and a brother and sister are reunited. They are going to take excellent care that they do not become separated again.

LITTLE BENNY'S NOTE BOOK

Me and my cousin Artie was wawking along just wawking along, and Artie said, Ben, you see this man over dere, I bet a cent he's bald headed.

Then always wanting to bet about something, and I said, I bet a cent he's not, how do we going to prove it?

If we follow him a while maybe he'll tip his hat to some lady, Artie said.

Which we followed him about a block and a half and he took a key out of his pocket and went in a house without taking his hat off first, Artie saying, Good nite what kind of manners is that? Well, he must have it off by this time, lets ring the bell and when he comes to the door we'll find out, he said.

Well we half to say something to him, don't we? I said. You cant ring peoples bells just to find out if their bald headed, I said, and Artie said, Thats easy, we'll just ask if Mr. Jones lives here.

And we waked up the front steps and I rang the bell and some lady in a apron opened the door. Being a short lady with a long chin, and me and Artie just stood there and she said, Well what is it?

Does Mr. Jones live here? Artie said, and the lady said, Yes, he just came in.

Me thinking, Heck, its reely his name. Proving we should of picked out a more unusual one like Mr. Proctor or Mr. Canopener, and we kept on standing there and the lady said, Do you want to see him?

Maybe he's and the rite Mr. Jones, Artie said, Is he bald headed? he said, and the lady said, Yes and he's bow legged and pidgin toed and hump backed and cross eyed.

And she quick slammed the door mad, making the bell a tie.

Neither of us having a cent anyways.

A novel motorboat, shaped like a tornado, will not sink.

RETURNED HOME IN THEIR PLANE

Rawdon, Jan. 8 (By Mail)—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hubbel have recently celebrated their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary.

Sorry to report Master Ralph Emmons on the sick list.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bailey spent Monday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Silas and attended the Christmas tree at Salem.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Reid and baby John spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Harvie at Bowmanville.

On Sunday morning the pastor spoke on a New Year's theme and the choir rendered two anthems "We shall shine as the stars" and "When you know Jesus too," next Sunday Holy Communion will be held at Bethel Church and Jan. 11th, Rev. Truscott, West Huntingdon will be in charge.

One burgh has been the centre of attraction for the past few days as about thirty have enjoyed a ride in the air. On Wednesday afternoon quite a commotion arose as an aeroplane was seen flying in the vicinity of Alma Beds and later it alighted in his field. The pilot was Mr. Kenneth Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith, and the owner was Mr. Kenneth Gunter, of Baltimore, Maryland. The plane has always been kept in an aerodrome until it arrived in Canada. The boys left Baltimore Monday but were held up at Williamsport, Penn., owing to snow and fog. On Wednesday they proceeded to Mount Pleasant and they were five and one half hours making the trip. Kenneth Smith has a Government flying license having completed a full course at the Curtiss-Wright flying school and he is now engaged teaching private owners how to fly. He has put in about one hundred and fifty hours of flying time. The boys were quite chilled when they arrived here but after a good supper were none the worse for their trip. On Christmas they moved the plane to a long field at Leonard Sharp's home and each day they have been busy giving passengers a ride in the air. The plane holds twenty-five gallons of gasoline and during their forced stay at Williamsport their expenses mounted as they had to keep their plane in a warm hanger, so they chose this way of meeting expenses. A few have enjoyed a ride to Stirling while others flew about the country. The boys are leaving in a few days for their homeward trip to Baltimore and all wish them the best of luck on their journey. The plane is a "Doyle" and was manufactured in Baltimore. On January 2nd they flew to Stirling and dropped posters. Several of those who have been riding in the air profess a liking for the pastime so mayhap aeroplanes will be numerous in this vicinity in the near future. The boys expect to leave Mount Pleasant sometime during the second week of January.

A new son has arrived at the home of Mr and Mrs. Burrel

Frankford

Frankford, Jan. 7 (By Mail)—Last Saturday evening the members of the Loyal Ladies Orange Lodge met in Orange Hall under the leadership of the newly-elected worthy mistress, Mrs. Lloyd Hannah.

A large attendance was on hand to dispatch the business.

Before the members separated after the close of business a very pleasant and happy event took place.

Mrs. D. Frost, worthy mistress for the past two years was asked to stand before the altar by the presiding officer to receive a set of jewels to gold the insignia of the office she held for the past two years. An address was also read which touched the feelings of the members of the fraternity.

Dear Sister Frost:

As your term of Worthy Mistress expires tonight, we feel it would be amiss in us, to let pass this opportunity without expressing to you our gratitude for the services you have rendered the society and this lodge in particular. In your untiring efforts for the advancement of our cause, as evidenced by the continued prosperity of our Lodge while you presided we feel we could express ourselves in no better way than by asking you to accept this jewel unit for its intrinsic value but as a token of our appreciation and esteem. Hoping you will long remain a member and that we can look to you for advice and help. Wishing you the compliments of the season.

Signed on behalf of the Lodge
Yours in F. H. and C.
Mrs. K. Elliott.

OBITUARY

LATE MRS. FITZGERALD

The floral tributes sent to the late Mrs. Fitzgerald were as follows: Wreaths—Husband, Daughter, Son-in-Law and Grandchildren. Beatrice and Wallace Scott, Mr. and Mrs. J. Crozier and children, Toronto. Cross—Sarah, Edna and Harold Fitzgerald.

Sheaf—Mr. and Mrs. Storms, Mr. and Mrs. Fayers.

Sprays—Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Cooper and family, Mr. and Mrs. Corne and Isabel, Mr. and Mrs. John Exley, Mrs. Wilder and Mrs. Vickers, Mr. and Mrs. Gunn and Emma.

In the names of bearers of the late Mrs. Fitzgerald should have read Mr. C. A. Campbell instead of Mr. T. G. Hiddleston.

JAMES SHERWOOD PECK

The funeral of the late James Sherwood Peck took place yesterday afternoon from his late residence, 267 Ann Street. Services were conducted by the Reverend Hilliard Jones, of the First Church, assisted by the Rev. Buckner.

The funeral was held under Masonic auspices of Belleville Lodge A.F. & A.M. Members of Sons of England Lodge and the Independent Order of Foresters, also paid their last respects to the deceased.

The bearers, all members of Belleville Lodge, included M. Wor. Bro. Colonel W. N. Ponton, Rt. Wor. Bro. H. J. Clarke, Rt. Wor. Bro. B. Backus, Wor. Bro. J. B. Boyce, Rt. Wor. Bro. C. J. Symons and Wor. Bro. Fred Wallbridge. Interment took place in Belleville Cemetery.

LATE MRS. J. A. BIRD

Mrs. J. A. Bird, whose maiden name was Winnifred Leslie, daughter of the late Thomas Leslie and Sarah Graham, was born in Sidney Township, Hastings County, on October 15th, 1872 and was married to Mr. J. A. Bird of the same community on January 17th, 1894. For a number of years they lived on a farm in Sidney township in the vicinity of Mirah Hill when their two sons Dr. O. L. Bird, now of Oshawa and Roy G. Bird, also of the same city, were born and, who with their father now mourn the loss of a very loving wife and devoted mother. The deceased with her husband and sons moved to Brighton in 1917, where she has made a host of friends by her kindly disposition and her thoughtfulness for others. She was a very untiring worker in the church, where she will be greatly missed in many ways. For the past year she has not been in good health, being confined to her home and mostly to her bed during that period. The best of medical counsel and assistance was sought, but in spite of it all a malignant growth developed and carried her away. Though an intense sufferer during most of this time she displayed almost a superhuman type of cheerfulness. The end came and brought her peace on December 15th. The funeral service which was largely attended, was conducted at her home on Chapel Street, Brighton, by her pastor, Rev. C. W. Barrett, assisted by Rev. C. E. Cragg of Oshawa and Rev. W. D. Tucker of Toronto, both old friends of the family. Interment took place in the Belleville Cemetery. A large number of friends extend their sympathy to Mr. Bird and his sons in their bereavement.

MOIRA LODGE INSTAL OFFICERS AMID POMP AND COLOURFUL RITES

Rt. Wor. Bro. J. W. Barlow was the Chief Installing Officer

Before a packed lodge room in the Masonic Temple, Front Street, the officers of Moira Lodge No. 11, A.F. & A. M., were duly and legally installed for the year 1931, with all the pomp and ancient ado by Rt. Wor. Bro. J. W. Barlow, D.D.G.M., and his staff of installing officers.

This was the first time since the inception of the lodge in 1802 that the installation ceremony was not held on St. John's Night, December 27th, and plainly showed the wisdom of the change by such a large crowd of brethren. Large numbers of visitors were present from the city and district as well as those from a distance to view and congratulate the members of the installing board on the fine work done in this beautiful ceremony. To the chief installing officer goes the credit of organizing and carrying to a successful conclusion such a ceremony.

The usual installation banquet was generally marked by a feeling of joy and happiness but last night there was a tinge of sadness and mourning to the occasion as for many years the board who augmented by the late Rt. Wor. Bro. H. F. Ketcheson and the late Rt. Wor. Bro. John Newton, who have passed on just recently, and tribute was paid to the splendid work of these grand old members of Moira Lodge.

Rt. Wor. Bro. Barlow had as his assistants, Rt. Wor. Bros. H. J. Clarke, and J. O. Herity, Very Wor. Bros. G. Dulmage, H. A. Morgan and R. McCrudden and Wor. Bros. H. J. Hall, F. G. Chamberlain, J. W. Skinner, W. C. Mikel, Capt. Browne, Wm. McIntosh, E. A. Thompson, and Alex. Kidd.

On behalf of the officers and members, Wor. Bro. H. J. Hall in an eloquent tribute, presented to the chief installing officer the thanks of the lodge and a gift to be presented by him to his partner in life, to which the Rt. Worshipful brother replied thanking the officers for their goodwill and the gift. To Very Wor. Bro. George Dulmage fell the honor of presenting to Wor. Bro. John Cook a past master's jewel and extolled the work of the master of 1930 as only George can do. Wor. Bro. Cook replied in his very able manner.

The work of the lodge room being over the brethren repaired to the banquet hall where they were greeted to the strains of music supplied by that peerless organization, the Eureka Lodge Masonic orchestra, and a banquet of rare excellence, consisting principally of that delectable food, fish and chips, Wor. Bro. John Cook was the toastmaster and seated with him at the head table were Past District Deputies, Past Masters and Past Grand Lodge Officers. The toast to the King and Craft opened a very enjoyable programme, which was perhaps one of the finest that the old banquet hall has heard in many a full moon. "Grand Lodge and Grand Lodge Officers," proposed by Wor. Bro. Wm. McIntosh was eloquently and interestingly responded by Rt. Wor. Bro. H. J. Clarke. Bro. Al Sullivan in his usual fine voice was heard in a very appropriate solo. He was accompanied by Bro. Leo. Riggs. The toast to the "Installing Officer", was proposed by Wor. Bro. Mikel and he paid a fine tribute to the work and life of the installing master, and was responded to by Rt. Wor. Barlow. At this point Moira Lodge anthem was rendered. This famous piece of music is known far and wide as a masterpiece of harmony by the members of Masonic lodges everywhere. The choir last evening consisted of: George Dulmage, leader, Jack Hall, Alex. Kidd, Capt. Browne, Wm. McIntosh, Harry Thompson, and although one or two of the members had to sing twice, the thing went over big. The toast to the "Visitors" was proposed by Very Wor. Bro. Dulmage, who in a reminiscent mood told of meetings in the olden days when there was always an overplus of visitors and how they were treated and the way visitors are entertained at the present time. To this toast Rt. Wor. Bro. J. O. Herity replied, thanking the officers and members of Moira Lodge for the kindly way visitors were extended the hand of friendship in this old lodge. Wor. Bro. Fred Chapman and Wor. Bro. H. Asseltine also replied.

At this time a rare musical treat was given Bro W. Asseltine and Bro. Lockyer in a trombone duet which was well received by the brethren.

The "Newly Installed Officers" came in for words of praise from Wor. Bro. F. Chamberlain, to which amid the strains of "For I'm Working on the Railroad" Wor. Bro. R. F. Orne, Bro. W. M. Barlow and Bro. Ford responded.

The orchestra played a number of selections during the evening and their renditions were much enjoyed.

The officers who were installed last night were:

Wor. Master—R. F. Orne.
I. Past Master—John Cooke.
Sr. Warden—W. M. Barlow.

108 YEARS

Trenton has just lost by death a woman in whose record were recorded a life'me of 108 years, the distinction of being the oldest resident for many years past, says the Toronto Globe editorially. Mrs. Susan McKenzie Carman was born at Trenton in 1822, the daughter of Colonel Shadron Hawley, a pioneer merchant and lumberman.

Since the birth of Mrs. Carman this old world has been largely remade. Napoleon had died in the previous year. The machine age had barely begun when she was born. The first steamship had crossed the Atlantic only in 1819. The railway did not come into being for several years, and the telegraph and cable belonged to the next generation. As for electricity's marvels in light and power, and the greater wonders of the wireless, they belong to still later generations.

The Loyalists had founded Ontario less than forty years before Mrs. Carman saw the light. The Rebellion of 1837 was not even discussed, though William Lyon Mackenzie paved the way for it by launching his first newspaper, the Colonial Advocate, at Queenston in 1824. It was mid-century before responsible government was secured, and nearly twenty years later Confederation was achieved. Trenton was still "Muddy York". was not a village until 1834, and there was but little settlement west of its boundaries. As for the West, it was as it had been left by La Verendrye, Sir Alexander Mackenzie and Captain Vancouver; a sleeping giant, powerful, but heedless of its own strength.

We speak of the brevity of human existence, but such a life as that of Mrs. Carman shows the broad scope possible to one human being's eyes, and indicates again the youth of the Dominion as it makes its strids among the nations.

All of Australia that is not city, town or suburb, is referred to there as "the bush."

MOOSE EUCHRE AND DANCE

Last evening was another of those pleasant bi-weekly affairs at the Moose Auditorium. A good sized crowd enjoyed a game of progressive euchre. The dancing was to the music supplied by Charlie Gayer's Bon Tons. The folks who attend these functions certainly know how to dance away dull cares. A delightful lunch was served at 11 p.m. The splendid prizes for cards were won by the following:—

Gents first —Mr. Tom Wells, Jr., second, Mr. Bill Ralls, third, Mr. Franz O'Brien.

Ladies' first— Mrs. George Hammett; second Miss Elizabeth Edison; third, Miss A. Conway.

HOLLOWAY STREET W.M.S.

The January meeting of the Holloway street W.M.S., was held on Wednesday afternoon in the lecture room of the church, Mrs. Hall president, occupying the chair. Mrs. Hall led in prayer. Reports were given by the various agencies on the work of the past year. Rev. H. B. Neal took charge of the installation of officers elected some time ago, and conducted an impressive service and led in prayer. The hymn, "Breathe on Me Breath of God" was sung. Mrs. Scott, leader of Group No. 1 then took charge of the program. Mrs. Shepherd read the devotional leaflet, Mrs. Leavens gave a reading on temperance, Mrs. Worden sang "I Come to the Garden Alone", and Mrs. McKee read the third chapter of the story book. Silent prayer followed with prayer by Mrs. Neal. Mrs. Neal moved a vote of thanks seconded by Mrs. Scott to Mrs. McKee on her part of the program. Dainty lunch was served by Mrs. Scott and her group members, in the social half hour which followed. There are ten groups in the W.M.S. the leaders being, Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Bean, Mrs. Hagerman, Mrs. Langsbeer, Mrs. Hudgins, Mrs. Moll, Mrs. Denton, Mrs. Livesay, Mrs. Neal, and Mrs. Kerr.

SNOWFALL AND WORK

Lightness of the snowfall so far this winter has spent fewer jobs for men who look to this class of work to help out their winter work problem. Early winter one year ago saw an almost unprecedent fall of the "beautiful" and individuals and the municipal corporation expended quite a large sum of money to keep walks clear and roads passable. What the future weeks have in store no one can tell but indications would scarcely suggest anything like the precipitation of last year's winter months.

ON PUBLIC WORKS

Quite a large number of men are still at work on the unemployment plan for several days there have been odd few-hour jobs at snow shovelling for some men. Work on Ridley avenue sewer will, it is expected start shortly.

TAX PAYMENTS

Mayor Reid's suggestion of the four-date payment of city taxes is causing discussion not only among individual taxpayers but also among council members, so that when the proposal is made in council there will, it is expected be a thorough discussion of the proposal. Meantime it is expected that there will be numerous letters written in regard to the change from the two-date system to the four-date scheme.

INSPECTORS HERE

Three Inspectors are today visiting Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School. The technical department is being inspected by Mr. A. M. Hamill, and L. S. Beattie, while M. A. Sorsoleil is inspecting the commercial classes.

DROPPED BELOW ZERO

It might be hard to believe, but the mercury dropped lower last night than it did on Tuesday evening when this district was visited by a howling storm. Two degrees below zero was registered at the Pump House last night. Temperatures for yesterday and today were:

BOX CAR DERAILED

A box car on an east bound freight train on the Canadian National Railways left the tracks in the vicinity of Birdsall's station between five and six o'clock Wednesday morning, causing some slight interruption in the passenger schedule. The cause of the car leaving the tracks is not known.

BOARD OF HEALTH MET

The Belleville Board of Health met this afternoon to complete the business of the year 1930. Organization of the new board composed of Harold Bateman, J. V. Doyle and A. F. Stillman will take place early in February.

PAID LAST TRIBUTE

Representatives of many companies attended the last rites on Wednesday at Stirling for the late James Ralph business man and mortician, among those present being N. L. Cole, of the National Casket Co. of Toronto; W. Bartlett of the Dominion Casket Co. of Toronto; Chas. Clarke of the Guelph Casket Co., Guelph and others. Among the undertakers and embalmers attending the obsequies were Mr. J. Imlah of Bellerville. The funeral was very largely attended by all classes of the community.

DIRECTORS' LUNCHEON

The regular weekly luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce was held at noon today. There was no special speaker for the occasion. Regular routine business was discussed. A full attendance was reported.

Madoc

Madoc, Ont., Jan. 2—Results of elections in Madoc village are

For Reeve—D. Wintock, returned by acclamation.

For Councillors—W. J. Hill, Geo. West, C. Wallbridge and George White elected by acclamation.

For Public School Trustees — W. Brett, R. P. Wellman and R. O'Riordan, were elected by acclamation.

For H. E. Commission — Frank Smith and E. C. Tufts.

Prof. Harold Croft of Halifax who is the guest of his mother Mrs. Wm. Cross, during the Christmas holidays assisted in the morning and evening services at the Anglican Church of St. John the Baptist, Madoc, on Sunday, Jan. 4th, owing to the indisposition of the Rector, Rev. P. Gailey Reynolds. Rev. Mr. Reynolds will be confined to the house and under the doctor's care for some days with a severe cold and on Monday was reported as confined to his bed.

At Trinity United Church and St. Peter's Presbyterian Churches preparation services were held on Friday evening. On Sunday morning Communion services were held. At Trinity United Church there was an exceptionally large congregation. The subject chosen by the pastor, Rev. A. W. Rivers, for the morning worship, was "A Communion Meditation," taking as a text "1 Cor. 5; 7 and 8, Christ, our Passover." A beautiful solo was given by Miss Marion Henderson, of Trinity United College, during the morning's service.

Mr. Charles Allan, of Whitewater, formerly of the Allan Settlement, now residing in the United States, was a noted visitor in Madoc Village during the Christmas Holidays. He was a much appreciated guest organist at St. Peter's Presbyterian church on Sunday evening during Christmas week, and gave a short recital following the service. His organ numbers were: "Japanese Sunset" "Ave Maria" (Gounod), and the "Hallelujah Chorus (Handel).

On Sunday 4th, the evening subject of the Rev. O. W. Rivers was "All things new in the New Year." Mr. P. S. Wilder of Kingston, spent the Xmas week end and New Year's Day with friends in Madoc. Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone Beattie and family of Port Hope spent the Xmas holiday with friends in Madoc.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Carleton and children were guests of Mrs. W. H. McBain last week.

IS PUBLIC TASTE NOW RETURNING

London, Jan. 7—Is the public taste in amusement returning to the Variety Show? At any rate it is most interesting to learn that the famous Palace Theatre—which in the choice character of its appointments has really been worthy of such a title—is forsaking the production of musical comedy to allow the variety performance to reenter. It was only a few months ago that Sir Alfred Butt, the great entrepreneur, expressed the gloomiest views concerning the future of the music-hall.

The Palace Theatre has in its time played many parts. It was built by the late Rupert D'Oyle Carte, Carte, of course, was the producer of the immortal Gilbert and Sullivan operas. The outstanding success achieved by the earliest of the works caused Carte first to build the Savoy Theatre, With English light opera proving so acceptable, Carte imagined that the same success might attend the production of English grand opera. With this in view he built the Palace Theatre, which was opened with the performance of Sullivan's "Ivanhoe." Either opera on the grand scale was beyond even the genius of Sullivan or else the British public had little taste for anything new on these lines. "Ivanhoe" had but a moderate success. The Palace Theatre became a music-hall and continued as such till after the War. It then passed over to the "Movies" for a time, and lately musical comedy has been staged there.

The Bible was printed in three new languages last year, one for a tribe of Eskimos in Alaska.

TO BUILD BRIDGE AT KINCARDINE

LONDON—Plans have been deposited with Parliament for the new bridge which is to cross the Forth at Kincardine. It will be of steel, having 14 approach spans with an opening swing bridge giving two clear openings of 100 feet each, and has been designed by Sir Alexander Gibb and partners. The total length of the bridge is 2,400 feet.

Two projects have been under consideration; one a bridge at Alloa and the other at Kincardine, and the engineers on both schemes agreed that on the balance of financial and traffic considerations the Kincardine site was to be recommended. The total cost of the scheme is approximately $1,500,000, and the building of the bridge as part of the official unemployment relief works will naturally be of value to the steel industry.

WHAT DOES THE LINEN CLOSET NEED?

By Hannah Wing

This is the time to take stock and get ready for the January sales. What about the sheets, pillow cases and towels? It's so much better to know exactly what is needed and to buy wisely and well, taking full advantage of the many goods to be had at unusually low prices during this unusual year. And isn't unusual a good word for this year, But to get to the subject of the linen closet.

When you begin to plan the things you have to buy, do it carefully. Good linens are always cheaper in the long run than linens that you think might be all right just because they are inexpensive. Don't misunderstand me and think that I advocate your spending a great deal of money. I do not, but I want you to look for quality first, then price.

Take sheets, for instance. They should always be bought at a reputable store, because it takes an expert to know a good sheet. Therefore, you have to rely on what the store tells you. Cotton sheets are the wisest choice for satisfactory, everyday wear.

Look for soft, firm, evenly woven cotton. The evenness of the weave is the only thing that shows you that a sheet is woven from long lubricant cotton fibres that make for long wear. Sheets 108 inches long and 72 inches wide for a single bed and 90 inches wide for a double bed are the accepted sheets. (Some measure inches are before hemming). And speaking of hemming, fewer women are hemming nowadays than formerly, is little saving involved between buying sheeting material and buying sheets all ready.

Pillow cases are judged in the same way as sheets, and while for a standard size 36 inches long and 42 inches around. Sheets and cases have taken to color in the last few years, and now the sheets on your bed may be in harmony with the rest of your room. Pastel shades, dark greens, yellows, and orchids frequently take the place of the invariable white sheets of yes or back.

Buying in a reputable store is doubly important when you buy colored sheets, for you want the warranty of fast colors that will not fade the first time they go into the washtub.

The towel family is divided into two large groups: First, the face towel with its little stepsisters, the guest and hand towels, and, second, the bath towel. Face towels may be flax, cotton, or a combination of the two. Linen towels are made from flax and have many points in their favor, but they are more expensive than cotton, or cotton and linen. However, they absorb water in a dime, dry readily, and do not lint. And, of course, they look very well after laundering. Cotton is a good, inexpensive choice for day-in and day-out wear if you take care to buy a soft, firmly woven quality of towel.

Bath towels are another subject. Soft Turkish ones, woven from cotton, and with a water-absorbing surface, make the best towels. Loops characterize the weave, and it is imperative that these loops be woven firmly to insure their not slipping. The background, too, must be closely and strongly woven to withstand strain, or else the pile threads will pull out in no time.

Look closely at a towel before you buy it, and notice the filling threads between each row of pile—and that there are the better the quality of the towel. Be sure, too, that the pile is soft and thick. Single yarn is used for the warp thread in cheaper towels, or four threads are spun together into what is called ply. Be as generous as you please in the matter of bath towels. If you want a guide, 24 by 45 by 48 inches is an adequate size.

Towels are interesting things to buy these days. There are so many new colors and patterns in border and all-over designs appearing in the shops.

Really, there's no limit to what you may expect to find and what you can do in the way of bathroom decoration. Once you have decided on your color scheme, you can carry it out in bath towels, face towels, wash towels and bath mats.

Only two of seven girls failed to finish an eighteen-mile roller skate race at Birmingham, England, whereas nine out of eighteen men dropped out.

Fashionably Speaking By Lucille

DEAR READERS:

The last of those who have been holding out against donning galoshes have had to succumb to the need for them as winter sent some biting weather. Most people consider galoshes a heavy burden, and put off the evil day of their appearance as long as possible.

This year's styles are very neat, however, and no one should mind them. The favourites are the chic little carriage boots, of velvet with the fur trimming. These, for street wear are in brown or black, and in large cities the girls who go out dancing obtain them in ivory or white for evening wear. Most galoshes are in the smaller style, and can be made lower by folding down the tops. Sometimes, however, girls complain that the galoshes rub the ankle at the back, causing blisters. The way to avoid this is by wearing higher cut galoshes.

Fashionably yours,

LUCILLE.

Raoul Walsh's Epic Film, "The Big Trail," Comes To Belle Today

The most pretentious undertaking in motion picture history, a re-enactment on motiotone film of the historic pioneer trek of 100 years ago that resulted in the winning of the West, has been completed by the Fox Film Corporation under the direction of Raoul Walsh. The picture, "The Big Trail," will be shown at the Belle Theatre today and Friday, matinee daily.

Starting April 20, Easter Sunday, Walsh led a company of 375 including actors, technical men and musicians, across general help, over a route of 4,300 miles, passing through seven states and requiring more than four months time. The film is epic in treatment in that it records the spirit of a mass phenomenon. Walsh's stated purpose has been to picturize a mighty surging wave of humanity coming from the East into the West, land hungry, liberty hungry, home hungry, turning their faces toward the wilderness and pushing into the setting sun. His Big Trail does not represent any one of the numerous routes followed in the years after the first pioneer wagon train left Missouri for the land beyond the Rockies. It is rather a composite of all those treks.

Emphasis has been placed on the simple creed of the pioneers, the fearless facing of obstacles, the candor and honesty with which the pioneer did his stint, according to his lights and often at an incredible sacrifice, a grim heroism marking every weary mile. Tragedy, romance, sorrow, comedy, hope danger and incredible adventure which attended the westward march all have been given appropriate place in the story, which was written by Hal Evarts, noted author and authority on the west. Interwoven with the drama is a compelling youthful romance with John Wayne and Marguerite Churchill as sweethearts.

There are 83 speaking parts, filled by an impressive list of players. Heading the cast, besides Wayne and Miss Churchill are El Brendel, Tully Marshall, Tyrone Power, David Rollins, Frederick Burton, Louise Carver and Marcia Harris. There were 347 players in the group that went over every foot of the trail, encountering difficulties and hardships not far removed in some cases from conditions met by the pioneers. Besides these thousands were recruited as the various filming points bringing the aggregate number of persons appearing in the film to 2,000.

Among them were 725 Indians, representing five tribes, Araphoe, Crow, Shoshone, Cheyenne and Blackfoot.

Episodes chosen for special climatic treatment are the bogging down of the wagon train, the fording of the treacherous Snake river, the ravages of winter, an Indian massacre, a buffalo hunt and the lowering of the wagons, equipment and livestock over a rocky cliff. Pioneer wagons used numbered 185.

The states traversed were Arizona, California, Oregon, Idaho, Wyoming, Montana and Utah. Scenes also were made in Yellowstone National Park.

The United States patent office granted nearly 50,000 patents during the last fiscal year, while receipts totalled $4,000,000 a new record.

The first railroad passenger cars were little better than boxes mounted on wheels.

$100 a Month

is a lot of money to a young man just starting out on his first job, but he soon looks eagerly for a raise.

At age 35 he may think it all right to "spend" up to $100 a month. But around age 50 he begins to figure how much capital he has saved—and then realizes that $100.00 a month is the interest on $20,000, and not to be treated lightly. At 60 or 65—perhaps too late—he begins to worry about his wife's age, and $100 a month then seems a lot of money to the "old boy" he will soon become.

A HUNDRED DOLLARS A MONTH INCOME FOR LIFE

BRIDGE STREET UNITED CHURCH WEEK OF PRAYER

Bridge Street United Church is each night this week excepting Saturday, observing the universal science of prayer and study.

Monday evening's service was associated with the young people's organization.

Tuesday evening the Women's Missionary Society of the church was in charge.

Mrs. (Judge) Derchie as president conducted the program while Mrs. H. W. Ackerman assisted on the platform. Prayers were offered by Mrs. (Rev.) Bishop, Mrs. (Rev.) Baker, Mrs. F. E. O'Flynn and Mrs. (Rev.) Bell. A beautiful solo was rendered by Mrs. Glenn McKinnon. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. A. R. Schryver from Matthew's gospel, Chapter 17, verses 14 to 21, with the parallel reference to the story of the healing of the young lunatic as found in Mark 9, 2?-29.

Dr. Chas. W. Bishop, principal of Albert College, said: "Jesus was the master physician in this spiritual clinic. The test of our lives is not in easily becoming keyed up to certain duties rather the hardest task is to carry on in a normal way work that we ought to perform.

"In these days there is not much difficulty to organize humanity the genius is in the ability to write and fuse into operation those and interested onlookers. To minister on behalf of others is not enough, the greatest force of leaders is to inspire others on in nobler achievements, to change their natures as well as their surroundings.

Prayer as a medium in accomplishing results may become sort of an evasive thing to us whereas it is a matter of having our good equipment related to the Divine touch just as electrical power apparatus furnishes a good illustration in the generation of unknown and limitless performances. Effective prayer is more than asking God something for ourselves, or the exercise of our souls in devotion or standing for what Providence is already willing to bestow upon mortals. Instead, prayer is communion, getting in tune with the Infinite, possessing faith to believe that hard tasks may be accomplished with Jehovah's help. We need more a deeper belief in the existence of Divine power and the visualizing of results.

"As a final resort too we often may approach the throne of grace and as part of intercessory service be humble by prayer is a great factor," was the conclusion of Rev. Dr. Bishop.

Last night Rev. E. Farsworth addressed the congregation after which the governing board of the church meets to receive reports upon the year's activities of the various organizations in the scope of the church life.

CORRECTION

In the advertisement of Walker Stores Ltd., in yesterday's paper the item "5 yds. Brandcloth 25c." was an error in setting. It should have read "5 yds. Cheesecloth 25c". As the special is a feature of the Walker Store's Anniversary Sale.

Growing Deaf With Head Noises? Try This.

If you are growing hard of hearing, and fear catarrhal deafness or you have roaring, ringing, buzzing noises in your ears, go to your druggist and get 1 oz. of Parmint (Double strength) and add to it 1-4 pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy, and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to mix. Anyone who is threatened with catarrhal deafness or who has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

COFFIN OF EARL OF BOTHWELL RAIDED

Copenhagen, Jan. 8—Thieves broke into the ancient village church Tuesday night at Faarveile on the Island of Zeeland, where the body of the Earl of Bothwell, husband of Mary, Queen of Scots, lies embalmed in a glass covered coffin.

The thieves smashed the glass cover but apparently disappointed at finding no jewels inside, left the coffin otherwise undamaged.

The Earl of Bothwell came to Denmark as a prisoner after fleeing Scotland. King Frederick II captured him in Norway removed him to Denmark, and kept him prisoner for seven years, until he died in 1576.

Railways in Canada consumed 5,200,000 tons of Canadian coal in 1929.

BUYING MORE but SPENDING LESS
Even when money is scarce and everybody is trying to stretch incomes as far as possible, A & P Stores are crowded justlikethis.
More people are buying food in A & P Stores today than ever before. Old customers are paying less for what they buy than they paid last year, and new customers are getting more for what they pay.
The ranks of A & P customers go right on growing in bad times as well as in good, because the public like to get full value for its money.
MONEY GOES FAR IN A & P STORES—NOT FAST.

BELLEVILLE CUBS EASILY DEFEATED BY KINGSTON IN OPENING TUSSLE 6-2

Fast All Marred Game In Which Players and Spectators Took Part—Blake and Thurlby Were Outstanding for Winners, McGuire, McDonald and St. Denis Showing Well for Cubs—Teams Forced to Play on Ice that Had Been Treated with Salt by Cubs' Rink Crew in Efforts to Handling Outbreak and Also the Game Were Not Good.

By O. D. T.

If the calibre of the junior group is to be judged by the game played between Belleville Cubs and the Kingston Hockey Club last night in the Rink Arena rink in Kingston, the hometown aggregation by a score of 6-2, the periods being 15, 5-1, then the fans are in for a real winter. The Cubs were beaten on their merits last night but they did in no way give the exhibition they displayed against the Toronto aggregation on New Year's night in this city, or else the score would have been somewhat different. Kingston team entered the senior city league as a team and were the winners but they were not a four goal better team than the night's play. Information comes to hand that both Queen's and R.M.C. have strong aggregations and the game in the win column will be something to cherish.

Breaks Against Cubs

The Cubs received two bad breaks last night but in one the home team suffered as well. As all are aware the Jock Harty Arena is owned and controlled by Queen's University and the board of management sometimes takes liberties, that are not to the best interests of other teams that play on the Arena. The teams were asked to play their junior fixture on ice that had been treated with salt used on Queen's senior squad in preparation for their game in Belleville tonight. Not that the ice was poor but the principle did not seem to be right. The teams were entitled to a clean sheet and they gave a display that will make more junior fans in this district. The other break was from the referee and this is not an slib for the defeat. Dr. "Chick" Mundell was the arbiter and his work was not at all good. There were many stoppages of the play and not all for penalties. The most distinctly state that where a trip occurs and the play stopped a penalty must be given but this rule was not carried out. The Cubs' management is not saying that Mundell was partial but it looked that way to unbiased spectators and this should not be. The O.H.A. should appoint neutral referees regardless of the expense and it is not likely that Belleville will pass the Kingston referee at any time their team plays in Kingston when any Kingston team is competing.

Good Preppery

Not only was the game hard fought but it was peppery and a free-for-all developed late the closing minutes of the game in which players on both sides, the referee and spectators took part. The game was entirely to blame for the flare up. The teams were battling behind the Kingston net for possession of the rubber and the Kingston player had just checked Wood between his stick and the cushion. "Pete" Morgan tried to secure and Wood gave him a dig in the instep with the butt end and the fight was on. Even the alternates got into the fray before referee Mundell could separate the combatants. Morgan was given a penalty but the linesmen and players were jumped on the ice and separated the combatants. Morgan was given a penalty but the linesmen and players

HEIFER CASE IS ADJOURNED IN POLICE COURT

Milton Robinson of Halloway Seeks to Establish Ownership

George A. Babcock of Sidney town ship was charged with the theft of a heifer from Milton Robinson of Halloway on December 6th in police court today. Mr. Charles A. Payne, K.C. appeared for Babcock and B. O. Donnan conducted the case for the Crown. As Magistrate Mikel had an engagement in Toronto, the case was not completed but will be resumed on Wednesday next.

Milton Robinson the first witness called for the Crown stated that he missed this particular heifer on December 6th and found it being driven away by Babcock with seven other heifers, which had been pastured on Walker Evan's farm in Thurlow Township. Meeting Babcock on the road with these heifers, Robinson explained that the heifer belonged to him and that he was certain of ownership of certain markings, but Babcock stated that the heifer belonged to him as he had raised the animal. Mr. Donnan examining the witness asked as to whether he had questioned Babcock on the markings and Robinson replied in the affirmative. He stated they were punched in the left ear. At this time the witness examined the heifer's ears and found no patch mark.

Babcock then stated that the mark might be on the right but all that was found in the right ear was a scratch. Two other heifers in the herd had patch marks on the left ear. The witness also explained to the court that the heifer had not been confined with the rest of his herd and that he had owned the animal since a calf of six weeks.

Mr. Robinson also stated that on the day he missed the heifer, it was in his barn in the morning, and had been allowed out to run with the others. Lewis Robinson father of the former witness, corroborated his son's evidence as to what took place when the two of them overtook Babcock driving the cattle away.

Provincial Constables Ben Hammond, who investigated the charge, stated that with Robinson and Embury Hough he went to the Babcock farm in Sidney Township and there both Robinson and Hough identified the heifer as belonging to the former. At short time, the heifer was in the barn with a number of matured cows and the officer stated in the bar that Babcock said that the heifer wouldn't stay with the others and even at the time of bringing down from the pasture field, it would not mingle with the other cattle.

The report from Dr. I. H. Eby of Toronto was also given on the piece of the ear used for examination and this specialist stated in his report there was no sign of patch marks. Dr. Hagerwell gave evidence to the fact that if a heifer was once punched, the mark would remain, and that the punch hole could be found. In the case of putting a V in the Crown ear, the doctor explained that the scar would always carry the mark. Embury Hough also gave evidence that the heifer seen by him in Babcock's barn belonged to Milton Robinson.

Walter Evans for the defence stated that certain marks would heal and grow over and that he had known that the heifer in question had been ear-marked. Dr. Wellwards would not state that the heifer had been punched but indications from his examination pointed that way. Only a portion of Babcock's evidence was taken when the court adjourned.

THOMAS WALSH IS DEAD AT WINDSOR

Was Formerly Well Known Hotel Keeper at Read

Thomas Walsh, a former well known resident of Belleville, for many years, died very suddenly in Windsor this morning, according to word received in this city. The news was a great shock to his family.

Four years ago last September he left this city to live in Detroit and resided there until recently when he went to Windsor. As far as known he had not been ill nor complaining of feeling unwell.

Thomas Walsh was born 83 years ago 15 Read the son of the late William Walsh. He spent his early life there and later conducted a hotel at that place. Later he removed to this city and made Belleville his home.

He is survived by his widow, to adopted niece, Mary Walsh, and five brothers, James of Read. Frank of Belleville, Edward of Melrose, Philip of Harold and Andrew of Belleville.

Mr. Walsh was a member of the Catholic Church.

The funeral will take place at Detroit on Saturday morning, burial being made in the plot of his brother, John, who died three years ago.

An improved X-ray tube, which is said to be more effective in treating patients and taking X-ray pictures, is announced.

PISTOL FIGHT COST LIVES OF 2 MEN

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 8—Gun fights with criminals cost the lives of two men here today and three were wounded. Patrolman James Ryan 37 and Albert Burke 43, district telegraph operative died in a hospital a few hours after they were shot. Patrolman John Cleary may be paralyzed for life as result of bullet in his spine. The men were shot by John W. Clemens and Jack McArthur, 37, ex-convicts when they went to arrest him in a west side flat.

INTRUDERS FLED WHEN WOMAN SCREAMED

Oshawa, Jan. 8—Three masked men, one of them armed, entered a home at 507 Albert Street at midnight last night and attempted to hold up the occupants, according to a report given on to the police.

There were three people in the house at the time, William Kuz, Mrs. Kuz and Harry Rutka. When one of the men threatened them with a revolver and demanded money Mrs. Kuz screamed loudly, and the intruders are said to have turned and fled.

USING MUCH WATER

OSHAWA, Jan. 8.—Oshawa in 1930 used a total of 666,000,000 gallons of water, according to records kept by City Engineer W. C. Smith. This was an average of 1,820,000 gallons per day, or a consumption of 77 gallons per head of population per day.

Frankford

Frankford, Jan. 7 (By Mail)—The United Church Epworth League meeting was opened with a song service by the league choir and audience in unison. Rev. A. S. Doggett led in prayer after which the minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary, Wm. Hinds.

Rev. Mr. Doggett gave a review of the collections for the Missionary Fund during the past term and expressed pleasure that the sum for the circuit was slightly in excess of last year.

The Scripture reading of the 92nd Psalm was given by Mr. Maldwyn Thomas.

The meeting was then thrown open to Mr. Fraser, missionary to Mores, who gave an illustrated lecture, describing living conditions and progress of mission work in that country.

At the close of the Rev. Missionary's address, Mr. Morrow moved a vote of thanks be extended him and also a vote of thanks to Mr. Cecil Palmer of Stockdale for his assistance to Mr. Fraser in showing the pictures.

Hymn No. 133 was sung, after which the meeting was closed by Rev. Mr. Fraser with prayer and the Mizpah Benediction.

THE PLAY'S THE THING.

"The play's the thing wherein we'll catch the conscience of the king," but the conscience of the actor. Enter Mayor Ernie Marks, well known veteran of the stage footlights, as leading man or hero in the new production, "Oshawa in 1931." The plot is beginning, the first scene has opened and the evolution of the story of the city's success in the year just opened is begun. Advance notices state to the municipal public that the play will somehow have a happy ending.

In this production the stage star Ernie Marks is cast differently than ever before in his life. He is the leading municipal man, and the "heavy" around him will revolve the business men of the big industrial city. Situations will develop naturally but there will be no lines written in this play except what Mr. Marks and his company of aldermen will make for him and for themselves. Indeed Mr. Marks may not be expected to know how even the first act is going to end, how the second is going to open and whether there will be more than three acts. He cannot tell whether the year's entertainment is going to be pure drama made up of striking situations, big events, in the life of the citizens, but he does know that somehow the year will end and the curtain be rung down on a finished production.

Oshawans need have no fear of Mayor-elect Marks. As a good actor, he will be able to "ib" where necessary; if any of his colleagues blunder in their lines he will take up a cue and carry on.

Mayor Marks, in search of a stage star to know what rests upon his shoulders.

Taxpayers as well as actors will watch the course of Ernie's year in the municipal theatre. His friends know his performance will be a finished one for he knows enough of municipal life to see that he is surrounded with a capable cast to round out the civic drama.

Life after all, even the life of a municipal council and of a municipality is very much a play. We know not how a year is going to end, but that it will end we know right well and that the knots will be untied and the hero receive his reward. We know not the course of fate, though as in Mr. Marks' case we know enough of him and have sufficient confidence in him to believe that he will be guided with the artist's instinct unfailingly towards the solution of the municipal plot, a perfect setting with the difficulties all smoothed away as the curtain descends.

THE HYDRO

Belleville Hydro Commission has organized for another year and will soon be able to make the annual statement for the year ending the thirty-first day of December 1930. The public expects in spite of the reduction in rates and the improvement in the lighting system of the city a fair surplus.

The Hydro is one of the departments of the city which has been showing a healthy condition. Since this city took over the plant, in this district Tweed and Toronto have climbed aboard the Hydro band wagon. Doubtless the success of Belleville and other cities, owners of their own distributing plants, has made these two municipalities decide to become partners in the Hydro enterprise of the Province of Ontario.

VOICE OF COSMIC DRAMA

"Billions of miles away, atoms are doing strange things which men cannot persuade them to do on earth," says the Christian Science Monitor. "No one knows just where this elemental drama is being enacted, but the voices of the performers are clearly discernible in the form of cosmic rays. And now comes a possible clue by which physicist and astronomer may decide whether cosmic rays originate in the frigid vastness of interstellar space or in the terrific heat and pressure of the stars themselves.

"In Vienna, Prof. V. F. Hess has announced his discovery of a "cosmic ultraradiation" capable of penetrating eighty inches of lead with less of only half of its intensity. It is apparent that his independent research has paralleled the cosmic ray discoveries of Dr. R. A. Millikan and his colleagues, who have found some rays so short that they will penetrate more than 190 inches of lead.

"But the Viennese announcement contains one phrase which, if confirmed, upholds, embodies a fresh approach to the source of cosmic radiation. It is that the intensity of Dr. Hess' rays depends upon the interval time. In the Millikan experiments, it was reasoned that if cosmic rays came from the stars they should be more intense when the great star clusters of the Milky Way were overhead than when comparatively open constellations are in the zenith. But no variation was found, which added to the evidence that the radiation came from interstellar space rather than from the stars. Now Professor Hess's announcement that the intensity of the rays varies with the apparent revolution of the stellar sphere may affect the existing theories.

"Definite knowledge of the source of cosmic rays is one of the first requirements to enable physicists to explain how hydrogen atoms may be combined into helium, oxygen, silicon and iron. It is believed to be the energy released through these "mergers" which is detected on the earth in the form of cosmic rays. By devices which measure the absorption effect of the atmosphere on these rays, Dr. Millikan already promises important contributions to meteorology. The uses of this radiation promise to transcend the applications of the X-ray and radium, once its potentialities are fully understood.

SIDELIGHTS

SUN DIALS

Sun dials have their uses still
On this busy sphere,
Not alone to mark the time,
But to lend us cheer,
Showing how much wiser they
As the seasons flow.
Since they let the shadowed hours,
All unheeded go.

Ages back the people set
Sun dials here and there,
Steadily Time's finger moved
Through the sunbright air;
One could never fail to trace
Moments fair and warm,
But there was no record made
Of the hours of storm.

Sun dials, wiser far than men,
Count but golden days;
Still, it's not too late to try
Using sun-dials' ways!

PRESS PICTURES just received from England add another feather to the cap of Powers touring elephants by revealing the fact that the pachyderms are learning to play cricket. We always knew Billy Power's elephants were smart and now we know they have a smart publicity agent. Belleville folks have very kindly feelings toward this herd of performing elephants as the animals are sort of a local legend since they were owned by Billy Power, brother of Tom Power, and have for years been top-liners in vaudeville, being now owned and managed by the widow of Billy Power. For the past few years the elephants have been touring Europe and are now doing the British Isles. Old timers will remember when Billy Power brought his elephants to Belleville for a week's visit. They were quartered at the Queen's Hotel where they gave daily receptions to hundreds and caused a peanut famine the second day after their arrival. Evenings the elephants gave performances at Power's Theatre, later Griffin's, the stage having been strengthened for their weight. It was a great week for everybody, Power's theatre prospered, Power's Hotel did a rushing business, the elephants increased their poundage and Tom and Billy wore the smile that would not come off. Now that Power's elephants are walking all over the earth it is interesting to recall that for eighteen seasons they were the headliners at the Hippodrome, New York city. Bill Power got the elephants from a sick circus away back when Hector was a pup and just how old they are probably nobody knows just exactly, but they are old and they are wise, and in all their long lives have caused very little trouble, so may be classed as extra good Christian elephants, not a bad bull among them.

OH, YEH!

A magazine is a great invention—the company gets the name, the printer gets the money, and the staff gets the blame.

If we print jokes, folks say we are silly.
If we don't, they say we are too serious.
If we publish original matter, they say we lack variety.
If we publish other things from other papers, we are too lazy to write.
If we are rustling news, we are not attending to business in our own department.
If we don't print contributions, we don't show appreciation.
If we do print them the paper lacks individuality.
Like as not some fellow will say we swiped this from another paper.
—And we did.

NO USE TEMPTING FATE

Grim was the reply of the Scottish gravedigger when a certain niggardly farmer was haggling about the charge for his wife's interment. I well remember the grave digger recounting the incident. I asked him if he ever had had any difficulty in getting payment for his rather trying work.

"Only yince," he said. "It was when Ewen Swan buried his wife. Ye mind her with the guid guan tongue. After I had raised my kep, as a signal to the mourners to gang, Ewan stayed ahint. Says he to me, 'What will I be aw'e ye, John?' 'Seeven and six,' says I. 'It's over much,' says he, 'in licht sandy soil like that,' and he hands me a croon. 'Sandy soil or hard clay it's seeven and six,' says I, 'and doon with another half croon or up she comes!' And I nivver seen a half-croon come sae smert oot o' a farmer's pooch."—Scots Observer.

MODERN ETIQUETTE

By Roberta Lee

Q.—Does the bridegroom give the fee to the clergyman?

A.—No; the money is put into an envelope and the best man gives it to the clergyman as he is leaving.

Q.—How much soup should be served to each person at dinner?

A.—A half ladleful.

Q.—What is the requirement of a written refusal of a request?

A.—Tact, but it should not be too apologetic.

MASSACRE OF THE ROADS

A boy born today in the United States will be far less liable to be killed or wounded by a motor vehicle before he has time to grow up. The fatalities and accidents of this country have less to fear from the wars of the future, so far as their children's lives are concerned, than from automobiles. The aggregate toll of life already taken by this high-powered vehicle in the past twenty years is staggering. Yet, at the present rate, the total of deaths on the highways in the next twenty years will exceed by far the deaths of American soldiers in all the wars in which the United States has been engaged, beginning with the War of Independence. War between nations has been outlawed as an instrument of national policy. Among ourselves, the motor car already surpasses war as an instrument of national slaughter.—Springfield Republican.

REST CURES AT COLLEGES

It may sound incredible, but it is an undeniable fact that one eminent American University has established a course of open-air classes in rest and relaxation—but, be it noted, for the overworked and underfed and toilworn labourer, but for its girl students who find the business of study too exhausting, when taken in conjunction with the high pressure of festivity, which involves parties, dances, and similar social duties that are as much in essential of their lives as their studies. After all, it may not be such a bad idea. All talking and reciting is prohibited during the rest classes, and those attending them are encouraged to sleep. At the end of one month's test, it is reported by the Varsity authorities that the students have gained in weight. One girl put on 12 ounces, as eight pounds.—Montreal Star.

WAGE LEVELS AND THE SLUMP

Not only the employer himself, but society in general, will benefit if employers run it so far as he is able he bolsters the wage level instead of yielding to the temptation to wreck it for his immediate gain. This is the philosophy behind the agreement reached by the industrial and labour leaders whom the President summoned in conference shortly after the stock market crash. The need to abide by it is stronger now than it was then.—New York Herald Tribune.

MUSIC IN THE BANK

From a small town in Texas comes a story of how a "run" on a bank, based on unwarranted rumors of impending insolvency, was transformed in its few swift moments into an occasion of jollification. The news that depositors, aroused by careless talk and panicky forebodings, proposed to march to the bank in force to demand their funds prompted the officials to arrange a little surprise. A fine orchestra was hinged, and stationed behind flowers and palms; the employees of the bank become a large reception committee. When the depositors arrived at the counting room of the bank they were greeted with a rousing melody and the smiles and friendly talk of president, cashier, tellers, even the office boys. Questions on the actual condition of the bank were answered frankly, assurances being given that there was no reason for fear or alarm. What might have been a financial disaster turned out to be a gala event, made bright by stirring music and an atmosphere of candor and good cheer. —Christian Science Monitor.

THE BIG CONTEST

Preaching the other Sunday in his "slender-like" Riverside Church, New York, built by Rockefeller money, Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick surveyed the world economic situation. And in it seemed notable for its candor, extracts from which were published in The Citizen Friday, he summed up the outlook in time, words which seem in on trial with communism for its world competitor. I do not like communism. I love liberty too much. I cannot condemn such suppression of free speech, free assembly, free labor as communism involves. But the verbal damning of communism now popularly indulged in America will get us nowhere. The ultimate decision between communism and capitalism depends on one point only; can capitalism so adjust itself as to prove able to perform their regular heart pulse and breathing in a new subject.

TWEED—A combined regular and annual meeting of the W. A. of St. James' Church was held in the Guild Rooms on Thursday, December 18th.

Hymn No. 219, The Master Comes, was sung, Rev. W. R. Wright read the story of the Nativity from St. Luke's Gospel and conducted the devotional opening and closing exercises.

The annual reports of the year's work were most gratifying.

The officers and delegates elected for the coming year are:

President—Mrs. Geo. Clarke.
Vice-President—Mrs. M. Wallace.
Secretary-Mrs. C. Hayes.
Treasurer—Mrs. F. Mitchell.
Delegates—Mrs. C. Hayes.
Alternate—Mrs. M. Knowles.

Tweed Nominations

Nominations for the offices of reeve and councillors for the village of Tweed for 1931 were received in the township hall on Monday evening by the clerk, Mr. W. B. Hurck, and plenty of good material was proposed from which to select a council for 1931. Following is the list:

Reeve—W. S. Gordon, H. P. Purdy, S. B. Rollins.

Councillo.s—A. C. Hakely, J. W. Bateman, S. Lee, Tom Bailey, M. J. Quinn, W. H. Sayers, H. P. Purdy, F. Hindle, E. Myles.

Mr. James Ryan was asked to preside at the public meeting which was held immediately following the nominations and after expressing his pleasure at seeing such a splendid turnout of ratepayers, called upon Mr. O. H. Kerr, chairman of High School Board, to read the Financial Statement of the High School for the year.

The following were the speakers at the meeting: Messrs. W. S. Gordon, H. P. Purdy, A. D. Blakely, M. J. Quinn, W. H. Sayers, S. B. Rollins, J. W. Bateman, S. Lee, T. N. Beatty, F. Hindle.

The play, Aunt Jerushy on the War Path, staged by the Young People of the United Church, Thomasburg, in the Oddfellows' Hall, Thomasburg, was a great success. The play was greatly enjoyed by a large audience. Between the acts a solo was rendered by Doris Platt and a duet by Messrs. J. Chappell and W. Harrison.

Mrs. Henry Blakely, assisted by Mr. J. R. Bateman, ably directed the play. The following were those taking part in the play: Miss Mae Lee, Mrs. Helen Blakely, Miss Mildred Adams, Miss Mary Asams, Miss Dorothy Clare and Messrs. Earl Bateman, Clare Carter, Freddie Porter and Laurison Kennedy. The chorus girls were Misses Dorothy Clare, Ana English, Doris Platt and Olive Carter.

ACTORS SLUR WORDS; KING REGRETS THIS

His Majesty Wishes Preservation of English Language on Stage

London, Jan. 7.—The King's interest in the theatre, and especially His Majesty's interest in the proper use of the English language, were referred to by Sir Nigel Playfair, the well-known actor and producer, when presiding at an "at home" at the Embassy Theatre recently.

"When I had the honor," he said, "of speaking to the King after a performance he had witnessed in which I was acting I was astonished at the tremendous interest he took in the English theatre, not only from the point of view of entertainments, but also as a means of preserving the dignity of the English language. The King emphasized how important he thought it was that actresses and actors should give good speech, and what a pity it was that some of the younger ones slurred their words and dropped their voices at the end of sentences."

Sir Nigel added that slurred speech was not confined to young actors and actresses. "I have known many older ones," he said, "whose chief aim seems to have been to keep the author's words a dim secret."

NEW TYPE OF PLANE WILL APPEAR SOON

London, Jan. 7.—Among the more unusual types of service aircraft produced by the British industry are the small aeroplanes built for reconnaissance work from submarines. Considerable ingenuity is needed in the design of an aeroplane which shall be seaworthy and efficient and yet be small enough for compact storage in the limited space available within a submarine. A successful craft of this kind is the Parnall "Peto," a small two-seater constructed largely of stainless steel, which has made long cruises in one of the largest submarines in the Royal Navy.

The craft is a biplane powered with an air-cooled engine of approximately 150 horsepower and is specially fitted for catapult launching from the submarine deck. Carrying a military load of about 500 pounds, exclusive of oil and petrol, the small craft is able to remain aloft for two hours, extending by many hundreds of square miles the area which may be effectively reconnoitred by a scouting submarine.

Once on board again the "Peto" may be folded into a small space and lowered into a tiny hangar in the submarine hull. The maximum speed of the machine is 110 miles an hour and a height of 2,000 feet, from which a wide expanse of sea may be swept, is reached in 11 minutes' climbing.

PILES!

Ended Without Cutting or Salves

"Thousands of Pile sufferers have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither salves or cutting remove the cause.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation and strengthen the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonardt was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 900 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist with a rigid money-back guarantee.

Dr. Leonhardt's prescription has a wonderful record of success right in this city and J. S. McKeown invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantees to refund the purchase price if it does not end all Pile misery.

Women in Politics Impresses Premier

TORONTO—Hon. G. Howard Ferguson declared himself as "most impressed at the increase in attendance of women" at the annual meetings of the Ontario Liberal-Conservative Association, when he took advantage of the temporary absence of the chairman, and had a word with his own kind. The Prime Minister went on to say that the "women had a wholesome and perhaps mellowing effect upon the meetings" and his experience had been that "if properly directed they are most valuable." The Prime Minister smiled and the audience responded to the compliment.

Keep Douglas' Liniment handy. A sure, speedy remedy for burns, sprains, felons, blood poisoning, soft corns, warts, scald feet. Invaluable for inflammation and muscular rheumatism.

The Only Thing That Helps her Lame Back

Ontario Lady Uses Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mrs. J. S. Reid Speaks Very Highly of Canada's Foremost Kidney Remedy—Dodd's Kidney Pills

Enterprise, Ont., Jan 5 (Special) — "Anyone I get a Lame Back I turn to Dodd's Kidney Pills and they soon do the work," writes Mrs. John S. Reid, well known and highly respected resident of this place. "I have used them for years. As I occasionally take a Lame Back. They never fail to do the work."

With the winter months approaching colds and chills, which double the work of the Kidneys. Often the results are serious, for, if the Kidneys weaken, harmful uric acid and other poisons are allowed to escape. Backache, dizziness and urinary disorders should not be neglected. Use Dodd's Kidney Pills to stimulate Kidney activity. This treatment relieves you of discomfort, and wards off Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica. An occasional course of Dodd's Kidney Pills will prevent Kidney disorders.

FORMER EDITOR WAS SPEAKER AT CANADIAN CLUB

John Bird Heard With Delight on "Nonsense" Literature of English Language

LITERARY TASTES

Hopes "Alice in Wonderland" Will Still be Popular with Future Generations

Members of the Women's Canadian Club heard with delight last evening the address in John St. Church Hall on "Nonsense" by Mr. John Bird who proved to be one of the most refreshing speakers who has yet addressed the club. In the course of his lecture which dealt with the nonsense literature of the English language, he hearers were entertained with extracts from the beloved verse of Alice in Wonderland, the limericks of Edward Lear, humorous contemporary poetry, and by the stimulating and delightful comments on each of these, and on things in general by Mr. Bird.

By nonsense literature, Mr. Bird explained, he meant that literature which occurs in the English language only, which is associated with Lewis Carroll, Edward Lear, Gilbert and Sullivan, Hilaire Belloc, A. A. Milne, and certain moderns. The greatest of these is Lewis Carroll, author of "Alice in Wonderland". So far from being a "clever" book, this book, Mr. Bird said, was one of the greatest in the English language, easily the greatest in the last century.

The Verse of Alice

Hundreds of those who went to war carried "Alice" in their pocket Such a little had this book in the English world that its mere vocabulary has penetrated to a great extent the English language. One speaks of persons being "mad as a Hatter" "dead as a dormouse".

"I like to think," said the speaker, "that two thousand years from now some German Herr Professor standing on the ruins of London bridge will find copies of Alice in Wonderland, that he will read its ever-increasing bewilderment of Humpty-Dumpty, of Tweedledee and Tweedledum, that he will delight that the latter were twin deities who fell at last from their high pedestals, and finally, it is my hope that he will produce a seven-volume work on "Alice in Wonderland— The Bible of the Early English".

Dual Literary Personality

Charles Lutwidge Dodgson (Lewis Carroll) was a teacher of mathematics Christ Church College, Oxford, and is one of most interesting of dual literary personalities. All commentators, Mr. Bird felt, have been inspired to ignore Charles Dodgson and exalt Lewis Carroll. This was a mistake, for the secret of this literature is only understood by reference to Dodgson. Charles Dodgson was shy, conventional, inhibited, Lewis Carroll gay, witty, irresponsible. The two personalities, were not only different, they were antagonistic.

On the subject of Carroll, Dodgson was positively morbid, and did everything to keep the two personalities apart. Those who mentioned Carroll to Dodgson were summarily snubbed, even Queen Victoria met with this treatment. When she expressed her delight with Alice, and intimated that she would be graciously pleased to have Dodgson's next book dedicated to her, Dodgson was furious. He categorically denied, and his duty time consented however, and in due time a scholarly treatise on mathematics, by Charles Lutwidge Dodgson appeared, dedicated to the Queen.

Tilt With Queen

Another rather entertaining tilt with Queen Victoria took place when she had seen a picture which Dodgson on amateur photographer of some skill, took of himself. The Queen expressed her desire of having a copy. Dodgson sent this word to her, "Mr. Dodgson presents his compliments to the Queen and regrets that it is his rule to give his photograph only to young ladies".

The right hand of Dodgson did not know what the left hand of Carroll was doing. Dodgson was meticulous in regard to the respect due to religion.

BAY OF QUINTE UNITED CHURCH CONFERENCE MAY CONVENE HERE

Approaches are Made to Executive — First Time in Six Years

There is a strong possibility that the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada may be held in Belleville this summer. The four United Church conducting an invitation was sent yesterday by Dr. R. H. Bell of Bridge Street United Church, requesting that the conference be held here this summer.

The conference last year was held in Cobourg. If the Conference should meet here it would mean that approximately three hundred and fifty delegates would be present. They would come from Toronto easterly to Brockville and from as far north as Renfrew. It is six years since the Conference was in Belleville and the local United Church ministers are anxious to have it come here again. The conference lasts for a week. It will be some little before a reply is received from the Conference headquarters.

JUVENILE GANG SENT TO PRISON

Killed Service Station Proprietor for the Sake of a Thrill

Kansas City, Kan. 9—Rounding up of a gang of 13 juvenile bandits and murderers, all boys and girls in their teens, was completed here last night after two youths had been sentenced to life imprisonment. The others awaited trial.

The gang was implicated in five murders, innumerable highway robberies and car thefts. They were described by Chief of Detectives H. B. Thurman as "ruthless killers" who shot their victims for the "thrill of seeing them die."

Seventeen-year-old Homer Baldwin, implicated here in the slaying of Wm. Price, bakery driver, some time ago, was sentenced to life imprisonment after he had pleaded guilty to first degree robbery. The gang's leader, Everett Haldimand, 17, started serving a life term yesterday at Kansas State Penitentiary for the murder of John Belzel, Tyro, Kansas, filling station operator.

Willie Harley, his young companion, and two 14 year old girls were accompanied the pair for the "thrill," are held, in Independence, Kansas, awaiting trial for Belzel's murder.

Police are holding four other boys and girls, one of them a 19 year old youth and another girl accused with.

One of the girls said Haldimand shot Price and that seeing the wounded man struggling on the ground "was too comical for words."

McGRATH RESIGNS FROM HYDRO BOARD

Toronto, Jan. 9—Announcement of his resignation as chairman of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario was made today by Charles A. Magrath.

Speaking at a luncheon of the Municipal Electric Association Mr. Magrath told of his intentions to resign and expressed the hope that Premier George S. Henry would appoint a successor immediately.

NEW SHERIFF IS OFFICIALLY SWORN

George H. Stokes of Hungerford township on Thursday entered upon his duties as sheriff of the County of Hastings. Mr. Stokes was sworn in on Thursday afternoon before County Attorney B. C. Donnan and at once undertook the duties of his office.

He succeeds the late James H. Clare for some years sheriff of the county who died early in the year 1930.

THREE YEARS A CRIPPLE, SUCCUMBS TO TERRIBLE BURNS

Sturgeon Falls Jan. 9—Jean Stonge a cripple for the last three years, died at 4 o'clock last night in the Sturgeon Hospital here of terrible burns received when fire gutted the frame dwelling of his brother, Arthur Stonge, on Arthur street.

The victim and his 19-year-old niece, Palmere Sorge, daughter of Arthur, were asleep in the upstairs apartments of the house when the fire broke out about 8.30 o'clock yesterday morning.

Awakened from her sleep by the smell of smoke, Miss Stonge rushed downstairs in her nightclothes to find the flames readily eating their way up the wall. In her haste feet she ran out and called for help to get her uncle out before the house became an inferno.

POSTPONE WRECKING OF SLOT MACHINES

Montreal, Jan. 9.—Newspaperman, press photographers and movie men were present this morning on the Champ de Mars for the wrecking of 400 slot machines, promised yesterday by Ald. J. Allan Bray, chairman of the executive committee. They go red noses and cold feet but no action.

"I will let you know the day on which we will smash the machines," came a message from executive committee chambers.

From other quarters it was learned that the machines may have used as a gesture somewhat over-generous when he said the city would even break up the machines existed and in connection with which court judgments are not yet forthcoming. The director of municipal services is a lawyer, and it is understood he painted a rather vivid picture of the damages the city might have to incur were slot machines to be wrecked and their owners later to be acquitted of court charges.

OVER $36,000 IN PENSIONS PAID

Possibility of Relief Under New Measure by the Federal Gov't.

From December 1st, 1929 to November 30th, 1930, the city of Belleville's share of Old Age Pensions paid to citizens of Belleville was $7,190.90, which is twenty per cent of the total paid to the beneficiaries of the Act, Mr. Bray said. This means that practically $36,000 per year or $3,000 per month is being paid those on the pension list.

It has been stated that the Dominion Government will relieve the municipalities of the old age tax burden and it is generally accepted that this will be lifted from them at the forthcoming session of Parliament. On Wednesday of this week speaking at Winnipeg, Premier Bracken, of Manitoba, stated that it was the intention of the federal government to assume 95 per cent. of the old age fund subscriptions. Nothing was said as to who will pay the remaining five per cent. Premier Bennett, however, when questioned upon this matter neither affirmed nor denied the truth of the statement.

If the municipalities are relieved of the full twenty per cent. they are now paying it will mean that Belleville will not have to raise $7,190. This fund is growing and names are being added to the list so that if the assessment on Belleville if the municipalities are not relieved will continue to climb beyond the $7,190. There are about 187 names on the fund at present.

Mothers' Allowance in Belleville used slightly more than seven thousand dollars last year in the period from January to December 31st.

Between the two funds between four teen and fifteen thousand dollars of city taxes was consumed in Belleville last year.

COUNCIL LAUNCH CAMPAIGN FOR NEW INDUSTRIES

Mayor Reid Determined That New Plants Shall Locate Here

EXPANSION ERA

Announcement of Importance Will be Made Within a Few Days

A special meeting of the City Council was called today by Mayor Reid to consider many important matters which demanded the immediate attention of the City fathers. All the members were present excepting one when the meeting convened, and discussion of the most amicable kind was indulged in. The council are determined first more industries shall be located in this city and today's meeting was called to devise ways and means whereby they could be secured. Some important announcements will be made to the citizens in the course of the next few weeks.

Seth Wheeler a resident of the city made an offer for a lot next to Mc-Laughlin Motor Co. Company on Coleman Street and the council by recommendation decided to sell this property to Mr. Wheeler for the sum of $150.00 providing that a house be erected in the near future, which agreement was concurred in by Mr. Wheeler.

In order to promote the bringing of high type industries to the city and assisting a report on the properties in the city that can be used for industrial purposes, a committee of Mayor George A. Reid, Aldermen John Fisher, D. Russell Wilson and C. Cliff Walker was appointed to make a survey of the city and bring a report to the council. This report will be received at the earliest possible opportunity. The meeting held today was of the greatest importance to residents and an announcement of the business conducted will be made to the near future.

ESCAPED FROM MIMICO, RANSACKED RAILWAY BOX CAR, ARRESTED HERE

Smart Work by Constable Foster Results in Apprehension of Boys

Close observation of property belonging to the Canadian National Railway and strict application to duty, effected the arrest of James Rogers and Nicholas Turex by Railway Constable George Foster, late yesterday afternoon at this terminal. These two boys one under the age of sixteen, escaped from industrial school at Mimico some time yesterday and apparently broke into a railway car in order to steal a ride out of Toronto, While on duty at Cobourg Constable Foster noticed these two boys in the car, but was unable to hold up the train. He did how ever lock the car from the outside, so that they could not escape and then proceeded to Belleville by another train, which closely followed the one in which the boys were riding.

In Belleville the door was opened on the car and the pair taken in to custody. They readily admitted their escape from the Industrial School. The youngest boy was taken to the Children's Shelter while the other is confined in the police cells awaiting trial tomorrow on charges of breaking and entering. It is understood from the railway constable, who made the arrest, that the boys broke into several boxes and parcels in the car but did not secure anything of importance. The charges against their depredations will be considerable.

FATE OF OSWEGO SAILORS SEALED

Lake Ontario Yields No Traces of Three Men — Hope is Abandoned

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 9— With no trace whatever found of either Capt. William Sheridan, Cecil Phillips and Anthony Kane, who have been missing since they left Main Duck Island on Friday night for Bath, hope for their safety has been practically abandoned.

The finding of the cushions and hatches of the boat occupied by the missing men has confirmed that opinion.

Sheridan's brother and Anthony Kane's brothers-in-law of Anthony Kane, who were in the city yesterday, left this morning for their homes after last minute making arrangements for the care of the bodies of Sheridan and Kane if they come ashore.

CREW ON TOWING BARGE SAVED IN NEW YORK BAY

Bayonne, N.J., Jan. 9.—A tug towing a barge with 12,000 barrels of oil, sank in the harbor here today. The crew of 12 men was believed to have been saved by the barge crew.

PREMIER BENNETT IS BACK IN THE CAPITAL

Ottawa, Jan. 9—Back in Ottawa today after his trip to the west, Premier R. B Bennett plunged into work at his office. He arrived this morning from Winnipeg where he conferred with the premiers of the three Prairie Provinces.

It is thought that prolonged damp may let lose sulphuric acid in the air.

SHEEP RANCHERS IN ANTIPODES ARE BETWEEN SATAN AND DEEP BLUE SEA

An article that will be of interest to sheep farmers in this district who raise sheep was sent in to The Ontario Intelligencer today by a subscriber who evidently is in the business himself. The article concerns New Zealand sheep and reads. "Sheep are a product of intense breeding and are grown in New Zealand to keep the grazier and the buyer crazy. They differ very much in quality and breeding and the man who can guess correctly the value of the sheep, is called a sheepman by the public, a fool by the grazier and a poor business man by his creditors. The price of sheep is determined at Addington, Burnside and Stortfield lodge and goes up when you have sold and down when you have bought. An agent would buy a country stock and station firm, was sent to one centre to watch the sheep market and after a week's observation wired his boss as to this effect—"Some think they will go down and some think they will go up, but I do not. Whatever you do will be wrong. Act at once."

"Sheep are born in the spring, mortgaged in the winter and die in the autumn. You can eat you can't. You will and you won't. Be d— if you do and be d— if you don't!"

Close observation of property belonging to the Canadian National Railway and strict application to duty, effected the arrest of James Rogers and Nicholas Turex by Railway Constable George Foster, late yesterday afternoon at this terminal. These two boys one under the age of sixteen, escaped from industrial school at Mimico some time yesterday and apparently broke into a railway car in order to steal a ride out of Toronto, While on duty at Cobourg Constable Foster noticed these two boys in the car, but was unable to hold up the train. He did how ever lock the car from the outside, so that they could not escape and then proceeded to Belleville by another train, which closely followed the one in which the boys were riding.

In Belleville the door was opened on the car and the pair taken in to custody. They readily admitted their escape from the Industrial School. The youngest boy was taken to the Children's Shelter while the other is confined in the police cells awaiting trial tomorrow on charges of breaking and entering. It is understood from the railway constable, who made the arrest, that the boys broke into several boxes and parcels in the car but did not secure anything of importance. The charges against their depredations will be considerable.

EQUALIZATION OF TAXATION URGED

Local Branch Trades and Labor Council Make Unique Proposal

A resolution requesting the Provincial Government to have a law or laws enacted whereby the motor transport companies will be taxed equivalent to the steam roads and thus have fair competition, was passed by the Belleville Trades and Labor Council at a meeting last night. The resolution was enthusiastically endorsed by the large gathering. The resolution follows in full— "Whereas the Motor Transport of Freight and Passenger business is now making great inroads on steam transportation and thus decreasing a large number of un-employed railroad workers,

"And whereas the steam roads are paying large taxes in every town and city in the province and the motor transports are not faced with heavy taxes, but use the highways of the province that are paid for in a large per cent by railroad workers,

"Therefore be it resolved that this Trades and Labor Council go on record as requesting the Provincial Government to have law or laws enacted whereby the motor transport companies will be taxed equivalent to the steam roads and thus have fair competition.

"Thos. York, Recording Secretary."

INFANT IN CRIB CRUELLY BEATEN

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 9.—CP—A sixteen year old boy, Thomas Delaney, was arrested by the Ottawa police early this afternoon shortly after a baby girl of ten months, living in an apartment house near the Delaney home, had been beaten to death.

The infant had been undressed in her crib by the assailer, who entered the apartment while Delaney was away. The mother of the baby who was Jan Moress in the apartment block and was looking in section of building some distance from her own apartment when the attack was committed. As she neared the room where she had left her infant daughter asleep she heard mother heard cries of agony end rushing in, found her baby badly wounded and bleeding profusely.

WEST ZORRA BARN BURNS

Woodstock, Jan. 9— A large barn on the farm of Murray McPherson, 7rd concession of West Zorra was totally destroyed by fire early yesterday along with a large quantity of grain and hay. The fire was caused by a lantern being overturned in the mow as the owner was throwing down hay.

SMALLPOX AT SAULT

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Jan. 9—This afternoon Mrs. F. Barbeau, 203 Cathcart Street, the mother of nine children was sent to the Isolation Hospital here after an illness had been diagnosed as a severe attack of smallpox. The home has been quarantined and all precautions are being taken to prevent a spread of the disease.

SCHOOL BOARD WAS ORGANIZED FOR NEW YEAR

T. J. Hurley Will Represent Separate School on Civic Bodies

THE COMMITTEES

E. J. Butler, K.C., and J. V. C. Truaisch Accept Former Offices

Organization of the newly-elected Separate School Board was held by St Michael's Academy with all members present. All the standing committees were appointed for the new year, with the representatives from the School Board on the various civic bodies. Thomas J. Hurley, chairman of the Board last year, was unanimously re-elected to the high position and no doubt will give the same earnest ability that has been exhibited in the past. J. V. C. Truisch, postmaster in the city, was also reappointed secretary-treasurer. Although burdened with many other duties, Mr. Truisch always is prompt with information on school matters and conducts his office in a business-like manner.

E. J. Butler, K.C., was again honored by his fellow members in being appointed to the Board of Education from the Separate School Board. He has graced this office with dignity and brings to the Board of Education keen executive ability that is always appreciated. R. J. Black was appointed as representatives from the Separate School Board on the Public Library Board, while M. J. Callaghan and Rev. Monsignor Nicholson, Rev. Father R. Rev. Monsignor T. F. Nicholson, V. G., was unanimously appointed as representatives of the Board's Library. The standing committees were then dealt with and the following members appointed:

Finance Committee—C. T. Dolan, chairman, F. E. McMahon, F. C. Lee and Rt. Rev. Monsignor Nicholson.

School Management and Organization—J. M. Truisch, chairman; Frank Corrigan, John Pasley, Edward Doyle and Rt. Rev. Monsignor Nicholson.

Sites, Building and Repairs— F. C. Lee, chairman; D. V. Huffman, J. M. Truisch, M. J. Callaghan and Rev. Monsignor Nicholson.

Text Books and Supplies—F. C. Lee, chairman; A. Dutton, F. M. Meagher and Rt. Rev. Monsignor Nicholson.

UNEMPLOYED SURGED AT PREMIER'S DOOR

Adelaide, Australia, Jan. 9— Police and unemployed workers clashed today with a number of minor casualties reported. There were no fatalities. The fight was precipitated when a group of unemployed tried to force their way into the office of the state premier, Butler.

WILL CLOSE MILLS IF DISPUTE IS UNSETTLED

Manchester, Eng., Jan. 9—The Central Committee of the Cotton Spinners and Manufacturers Association today advised affiliated members to close their mills on Saturday, January 17 unless the labor dispute with weavers has been settled by the meantime. If carried into effect the recommendation would mean the lock-out of 300,000 workers.

PAUPER'S GRAVE FOR GUNMAN

Chicago, Jan. 9—Mute evidence that crime does not pay came yesterday when application was made to have the county bury Pasquale "Two Gun" Pasqualo, one-time court "bouncer" and gunman in pauper's field.

CORRECTION

In the advertisement of the Singer store, in yesterday's issue the item "Cashmere Hose 75c. pair," appeared. This was due to an error in setting and should have read, "Cashmere Hose, 85c pair," this is a special feature in the Singer Store Closing Out Sale.

WARMED DIRECTOR

Mr. O. H. Scott, Manager and Secretary of the Belleville Hydro Commission has been in Toronto for the past two days attending a meeting of the Association of Municipal Electrical Utilities, which is composed of Hydro engineers, managers and other staff members. The gathering was held at the Royal York Hotel and Mr. Scott was named a Director. A group photo of the officers appears on the Mail & Empire today.

MEET FOR LUNCHEON

The directors of the Rotarian Club with the officers will meet for luncheon at Dickens' tonight, to form the remaining committees for the year and plan the budget for the coming year. The club have taken this method of interesting the directors in attending the meetings so that the maximum of service will be rendered to the Club and also to the citizens of Belleville. Announcement will soon be made for the date of the Rotarian Ladies' Night this date should be kept in mind for one of the biggest events of the year in Eastern Ontario will be staged on the date. Arrangements are already going on for some of the best and most fornful skaters in the Dominion to make their appearance. Speeders on the blades from Toronto and elsewhere will also perform.

HAND CAUGHT IN WRINGER

Demonstrating just how an electric clothes washer should be used, to her mother, Miss Helen Wilson, an employee of a local department store, got her hand caught in the wringer and her whole arm pulled through the machine. Fortunately Miss Wilson was not seriously injured and was able to be back at work today. Outside of some painful bruises her arm was not injured and was not cut.

DANCE AT POINT ANNE

One of the most successful euchres and dances of the local season was held last night at Point Anne under the auspices of the Trail True Blue lodge. The parish hall at the Point was crowded to the doors early in the evening. Cards were played during the first part of the night to be followed by dancing in the latter half. The Circle Six orchestra furnished pep-py music for the dancers. Mrs. Stewart Long was the fortunate winner of the door prize. As well, she won first prize at euchre, while Mrs. Percy Akey was second. Miss Edna Akey carried off the consolation prize.

Mr. Allan of Belleville, won the gentleman's prize.

DAUGHTERS OF ENGLAND EUCHRE

Under the auspices of the Daughters of England a euchre was held last evening at the home of Mrs. E. Shapley, 97 Lingham Street. It was both enjoyable and successful and the prizes were exceptionally good. The prize winners were: Men's first, Mr. H. Law; second, Mr. W. Rose; third, Mr. J. Reeder; gent's hidden number, Fred Stott. Ladies' first, Mrs. C. Draycott; second, Mrs. G. Holst; third, Mrs. W. Whalen; rummy prizes were won by Mrs. J. Reeder, first, Miss H. Stapley, second. After cards a supper was served and a social hour spent.

LADIES' AUXILIARY MET

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. was held yesterday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. C. B. Scantlebury, 80 Highland Ave. Business discussed was of a routine nature.

TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE GAME

Tweed kept pace with the leaders in the Trent Valley Hockey League by defeating Campbellford on their own ice by a 5-3 count. Campbell for the winners was the shining light, scoring four of the goals credited to his team with Grigg adding the other. The inimitable T. B. Hopkins was the referee man for Campbellford and with McKay netted all three goals scored by the home team. The rivalry was keen and two or three sharp flare-ups occurred without any damage being done. Courtenye of Peterboro handled the ball.

FORMER EDITOR WAS SPEAKER

lous subjects, yet his alley cats was quite capable of parodying any hymns as his "You're Old, Father William," and other verse shows. In the matter of parody Carroll's verse will not stand the test. Mr. Bird believed, of most parodists, whose work will be forgotten when the model goes out of fashion, as C. Squire, editor of the London Mercury, writes delightful and brilliant parodies, reads the original his parodies will be forgotten. This is the tragedy of parody. A hundred years from now millions of people will read Carroll because of his delightful nonsense, for his works are not sheer parody.

Humorous Verse

One must not confuse nonsense verse with humorous poetry pointed out the speaker. Mr. Bird spoke of Hunbert Wolfe's humourous verse. It used to be the bachorous custom, he said, of writing unpleasant epitaphs of people after they were dead. This his given away to the writing of exceedingly unpleasant epitaphs of people who are still living. At this Humbert Wolfe is a master. Here, Mr. Bird paused to comment on Canadian literary tastes.

"It has been my great delight in my innocent tour across Canada to find from inspection of drug store and bookstore window offerings, that in Western Canada, Zane Grey has unrivalled popularity. Now, for bank clerks or city bred people to read Zane Grey for the thrill and the instruction in western life that his works afford I can quite understand. But that Western Canadians should read them, I think is really touching."

Nonsense as an Escape

One gets very near to the secret of nonsense when one considers the person of Charles Lutwidge Dodgson. He was so shy and preposterously Victorian, that the nonsense of Carroll was an escape, for nonsense is always an escape from a conventional, hide-bound world.

Another aspect of the success of nonsense literature is the "second" feature. "Take care of the sound and the sense will take care of itself" seems to be the adage to follow in writing nonsense. The delicious humour of Gilbert is in the presentation of the ludicrous in a respectable and serious way.

Not For Children

Most important in the English nonsense literature is the fact that it is primarily directed towards children. The phenomenon of the father of the family buying a tirin for the children and then monopolizing it himself is precisely the same with the literature of nonsense. While applied to children it is largely appreciated by grown-ups. The best English literature is apparently directed toward children, for what the Englishman will not express for fear of contempt, he can write of in a volume of children's literature and describe it as a "kid's" book.

As a parthian shot, Mr. Bird said that he believed that each one should at least once a year, stand on one's head in the middle of the street, not for the exercise, nor for the publicity but for the good of one's soul. Nonsense literature, he concluded, is the intellectualization of that process.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Logie, who expressed the appreciation of the club for the very enjoyable address.

This was Mr. Bird's first visit to Belleville. He is a South African, was educated in England, was an "Oxford Blue" and ran for that University in the Oxford— Cambridge sports. He has been honorary editor of the Harvard "Lampoon", was on the editorial staff of the "Emporia" (Kansas) Gazette and has been associated editor of the "Weekly News Review", Washington, D.C.

His address will long be remembered with genuine enjoyment by those who heard him last evening.

Mrs. M. J. Wilson of Ottawa, is visiting Rev. and Mrs. W. D. Wilson, Foster Ave.

At the evening musicale yesterday given by the United Empire Loyalists' Association at Sherbourne House Club the rooms were attractive in their Christmas decorations. Lovely pink carnations were grouped in the drawing rooms, where the officers received informally. A large basket of Beauty roses rested on the grand piano in the music-room, where the following artistes gave an unusually happy program: Miss Anne Connor, soprano; Mr. Gordon Brown, baritone; Mr. William B. Titmarsh, dramatic tenor; Mr. Charles Pitardeau, lyric tenor, and Madame Ada Lingham Wagner, solo pianiste and accompanist. The latter made her last local appearance prior to a tour of the Maritime Provinces and an early concert in Ottawa before the Morning Musical Club.—Toronto Telegram.

Mr. W. H. Loffman who has been a patient at the Belleville General Hospital, for the past two weeks returned to his home yesterday much improved.

Mrs. Stan Burgoyne, Toronto, is spending a few weeks in town with her husband, who is coach of the Belleville hockey teams.

OBITUARY

CARMAN LATCHFORD

Carman Latchford, resident of Kaminguin Township for some years passed away in Kingston early today. He was born in Huntingdon Township 53 years ago being the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Litchford and has been in ill health for some time. The deceased was well known and highly respected in his community. A member of the United Church he leaves to mourn his loss his parents, three brothers, Charles, Arick and Wilbert, all of Belleville and two sisters, Mrs. Fred Smith of Prince Edward County and Miss Pearl of Toronto. The body is being brought to the home of his brother, Charles of Canniffon Road. The funeral notice will appear later.

Fighting "Eggs" Pays

A saving of $26,000 in one district in Alberta through a local contest campaign in connection with the sugar beet crop, and another case of a saving of $5,900 on one farm alone as the result of contest work with the wheat corn sawfly, show rather conclusively the value of the work being carried out under the direction of the Entomological Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

DR. BELL SPOKE AT BROCKVILLE

Brockville, Jan. 8—The sudden siege of winter with its heavy drifts of snow made the walking and driving difficult Tuesday evening, but a good congregation from the various churches gathered in the Wall street edifice and enjoyed a splendid service. Rev. Dr. R. H. Bell, of Belleville, pastor of the Bridge Street United Church, was the special speaker, and Rev. Dr. MacOdrum was in charge of the service. F. A. Larke, J. B. Copland and Rev Frank Sanderson did prayer.

Dr. Bell's message was based on the revised version of Revelation 1., verses 5 and 6, "Unto Him that loved us, and loosed us from our sin by His blood, to be a Kingdom and to be priests unto God, to Him be glory forever and ever." The message provided an exclusive key to the book of Revelation, and a fine picture of the living Christ, not an absentee Lord whose postponed coming is promised, walking in the midst of His churches.

Dr. Bell called the Book of Revelation one of the most profoundly Christian books of the New Testament. Its occasion and purpose, its interpretation and meaning can only be grasped in the light of the revelation to John of the things that must shortly come to pass. The Apostle in the place of his lonely exile knew full well what was happening to the Christians of his day. He knew that every concerted, pitiable device was being made use of to induce those Christians to renounce their faith. They were living in faith-testing days. They understood what John meant by the beast and the anti-christ that was even then in the world.

The apostle wasn't speculating about some remote future. He was meeting the problems of the people of that day and ergoring them to cling to the faith. He saw beyond the suffering and persecution the greater reality of Christ. He was telling them that Christ was even then in their midst. They had reason therefore to stand firmly in the face of desperate foes. John was the first to sing—"Crowns and thrones may perish, but the Church of Christ shall abide." Against all the suffering and discouragements and difficulties that the church faces we have the great spiritual and eternal realities that are going to last. Christ is on our side and we are going to win out.

VICTORIA COLLEGE LOSES

Potsdam, N.Y., Jan. 8—The Clarkson hockey team won the first game of their season last night against Victoria College, Toronto, 3 to 0. Houston and Donald each scored one in the second period and Houston scored again in the final. The all-American goalie, Easton, managed to stop all of the hard drives of Victoria sharpshooters.

UNITED CHURCH WINTER SCHOOL

Cobourg, Jan. 8—The Tenth Winter School of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada, which brings together every January about 100 young people for a week's Sunday Schools, and Christian Leadership, under outstanding speakers and leaders, will meet in Cobourg during the week of Jan. 12, with Rev. R. T. Richards, B.A., B.D., of Port Perry occupying the president's chair.

The lectures are given in Trinity Hall and the students are billeted by the congregation of that church, Miss J. Reynar acting as registrar.

The daily program begins at 9 a.m. with a half-hour worship period, conducted by Rev. Harry Pawson of Napanee. Then follow bible study classes under the direction of Rev. C. W. Gardiner, Rev. H. B. Neal, Rev. H. D. Wrahm, Rev. O. Campbell, and Rev. J. J. David. At 10.15 an hour is devoted to missions by study, lectures on home missions by Rev. C. E. Dyer, B.D., on Chinese missions by Rev. H. H. Irish of China, and a course in missionary attitudes based on the International Conference of Missions in Jerusalem, by Rev. A. J. McLauchlin, B.A., B.D.

The last lectures of each morning are in two groups, taking entirely different subjects, the first, "The Sunday School in the New Day," by Rev. E. Hanton, LL.B., and second "The Government of Our Church," by Rev. R. T. Richards, by special request of the Young People's Leagues.

The afternoons are devoted to a one-hour course in methods of young people's work by Rev. Roy H. Rickard, B.A., M.R.E., who also leads the recreation periods, followed by winter sports.

At 7 o'clock every evening a vesper service will be conducted by Rev. W. J. Smyth, M.A., B.D., followed by addresses by prominent men in various activities of the United church throughout Canada. On Wednesday evening a splendid play, "The Prince Chap," will be presented by the Hamilton way Street United Church Dramatic Society, Belleville, under the direction of Miss Jessie Tulle, in Victoria opera house.

TAKE TURNS IN WORKING SHIFTS AT BRISTOL DOCKS

BRISTOL, England, Jan. 8.—Dock workers of this seaport have almost solved their own unemployment problem. Worked out by men grown gray on the wharves, the scheme provides for pooling both of working time and of the "dole" received by the men from the government. Through sharing in the combined pool each man saves the other from living entirely upon the money given by the government. They take turns, working for three day shifts, turns about, so each workman gets some wages.

Don't waste any time belaboring the cause of all your troubles — you're the trouble.

ALLEGED THUG IS IN POLICE HANDS

PETERBORO, Jan. 9. — Gordon "Dude" Dundas, 28, Water street, claimed by the police to be one of the pair of thugs who early on Monday evening entered the home of W. O. Johnston and beat and robbed the aged man, is in the Cobourg jail.

Dundas was arrested by Chief Constable E. Murphy of Port Hope in that town late last night. He was brought up on a drunk charge before Magistrate Campbell in Port Hope and sentenced to fifteen days in jail. He was then taken to Cobourg and lodged in the county jail.

Warrants for his arrest in connection with the robbery had been taken out yesterday by Provincial Constable D. D. Sylvester.

DEPRESSION TOOK ITS HUMAN TOLL

St. Hyacinthe, Que., Jan. 9—Victor Charron lived in this city all the 69 years of his life and during the greater part of that time he ran a small tailor shop in the heart of the city.

Everyone knew and liked Charron the tailor but of late years more and more people went to other shops for their clothes. Business got worse and worse and yesterday Victor Charron closed his shop and joined the army of workmen engaged in digging the city from under the week's heavy snow fall.

But the frail body of the wielder of the needle and shears was not equal to this heavy task and after a few minutes' labor the little tailor collapsed in the snow, dead. Heart failure was the doctor's verdict.

CHISOX ROSTER PRUNED

Chicago, Jan. 9—The Chicago White Sox pruning season has opened. Secretary Harry Grabiner has announced the transfer of Emil "Red" Barnes, outfielder obtained from Washington last summer and Lowell Douglass, retired right-handed pitcher, to the Atlanta Club of the Southern Association, to complete the deal for Shortstop Lake Appling.

FATHER AND SON GUILTY

St. Thomas, Jan. 9—Harry Ernest Johnson, aged 35, an unemployed resident of Yarmouth Heights, pleaded guilty to a charge of receiving stolen goods and his 15 year old son admitted breaking into a railway car and stealing 84 hams. Both were remanded. Johnson was driven to accept the stolen goods, he said, in order that his life and family of nine children might live.

M. W. Sheppard of Lemieux, Ont., Heads Eastern Dairymen

USE STAMP "ONTARIO"

Hon. T. L. Kennedy Speaks of Importance of Stamping

Cornwall, Jan. 9—M. Ward Sheppard of Lemieux, Ont, was elected president of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association at a meeting of directors which followed the adjournment of the 64th annual convention here last night. J. F. Gibbons, Renfrew, is the retiring president.

Other officers of the organization include: W. A. Edwards, Aultsville, first vice-president; A. J. Robertson, Martintown, second vice-President; James R. Anderson, Mountain View, treasurer, and T. A. Thompson, M.P., Almonte, secretary. The directors are W. M. Olmstead, Leonard, Russell County; J. R. Olmstead, North Gower, Carleton County; J. A. Sanderson, Oxford Station, Grenville County; A. J. Robertson, Martintown, Glengarry County; W. A. Edwards, Aultsville, Stormont County; Alex. McCruer, Brinston, Dundas County; Harry McIntosh, Perth, Lanark County; J. N. Truslove, Westport, Leeds County; R. McLaughlin, Belleville; West Hastings; R. Dulmage, Consecon, Prince Edward; Charles Thompson, Madoc, North Hastings; Alfred Morrell, Campbellford, Northumberland; O. A. Gillespie, Peterboro, Peterboro County; William Newman, Lonneville, Ontario County; Ed Campsall, Martington, Frontenac; P. J. Murphy, Enterprise, Lennox.

To Send Expert

Speaking at this afternoon's session, Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, declared that the Ontario Government would send a bacteriological expert to Eastern Ontario to assist cheesemakers in producing a better grade of cheese. An expert will also be provided to assist milk producers and cheesemakers in lowering production costs.

The minister stated that inefficiency all through the dairy industry was retarding its progress—inefficiency on the part of the farmer who produced the milk, the maker who manufactured the cheese, and those who marketed the cheese. He felt that when these had been overcome, the dairy industry would take a leading place in Ontario.

Hon. Mr. Kennedy told the cheesemakers that their products would find a better market in the Old Country if they were distinctively packed and better advertised. He felt that the British people preferred Canadian cheese and other Canadian products, and would buy more of them if even product were stamped "Canada" or "Ontario". He said that he would introduce a bill at the next session of legislature, permitting Ontario producers to stamp "Ontario" on their products.

Fewer Specials

Decrease in the number of specials and firsts produced by the cheesemakers of Canada during the past year were reported by T. J. Hicks, senior Dominion grader. Mr. Hicks stated that the total number of specials and first-grade cheese for 1930 was 1.06 below that of 1929. Ontario showed increases in all four grading divisions, while Quebec had decreases in all divisions.

Hastings County led all Ontario in 1930 in the production of specials and firsts with a percentage of 97.9. The gradings of other counties were as follows: Renfrew, 97.5; Lanark 97.3; Carleton 96.9; Glengarry, 96.8; Victoria 96.5; Northumberland, 96.4; Frontenac 96.3; Peterboro, 96.1; Leeds 96.1; Grenville, 96; Russell, 95.8; Lennox 95.2 and Addington 87.4. Twelve of the 20 cheese producing counties of the province showed increases in high-grade cheese.

WEEK OF PRAYER

Because of indisposition Wednesday evening Rev. E. Farnsworth was not able to address the special prayer service in Bridge Street United Church. Consequently the pastor, Rev. Dr. Bell conducted the whole meeting taking as his theme Intercessory Prayer, and such proved to blend splendidly with the previous evening's subject. Quoting incidents from the Scriptures.

Dr. Bell remarked "that the Christian church was as priests to God on behalf of needy humanity. More prayer in the pew means more power in the pulpit as has been truly stated to be the case in the experience of many". For the dearth of workers, Sunday School teachers, leaders in lotty enterprise, in these days of much unemployment, for proper relations even of capital and labor effectual solicitude is required according to the summing up of the present situation by Rev. Dr. Bell.

Radio Fans Corner

Last night's reception was not exactly perfect because there was a constant noise in the background and a slight fading in and out was noticed by the fans. However it didn't stop us from bringing in the programs one bit, fishing was good all evening and at midnight of course, it had just settled into its stride.

Before it slips my mind let me remind the fans that Uncle Jack Little is on the air tomorrow night, 11.45 WEAF. Fifteen minutes is all they give the poor boy for this broadcast but he's supposed to be on Sunday and Wednesday at 1.45 p.m.; last Sunday, however, they fooled us, so don't count on it, sort of sneak up on the station and listen for him.

Duke Ellington and his Cotton Club orchestra has us "Swaying in Rhythm" one minute last night and then plunges us immediately into the "Mooch," one of the weirdest numbers I've ever heard an orchestra attempt, but here it is and it means at 5.45 from WEAF the program of the Two Timers. Picked them up after six last night far from their regular haunts, can't imagine what they were doing off their usual wave length.

Continuing with WEAF we tune in at 6.45 to Uncle Abe and David and at 8.00 to the Cavaliers and Jessica Dragonette. The "Eskimos" next lay claim to our attention at 9.00, unless the call to listen to Billy Jones and Ernie Hare from WJZ is too strong.

Radio Keith Orpheum program tonight at 10.30 from this station and last week they promised us, if you'll remember Ken Murray and Harry Richman. Vincent Lopez at 11, next makes a bid for your attention.

The Footlites at 7.45 from WJZ tonight and Fanny Brice is guest artist at 9.00, she sings her song "My Man" and another one, "Overnight" also "Second Hand Rose." Irvin S. Cobb is again guest speaker on a program at 9.30 and for a good laugh I'd advise you to listen in. Florence Richardson puts in a hearing at midnight.

More than $8,000,000 was spent last winter to clean snow and ice from city, state and local highways in the United States.

Belleville Lead Senior "B" Hockey Group by Defeating Queen's

QUEEN'S CRUMBLED BEFORE THE DETERMINED ASSAULT OF LOCAL PUCK-CHASERS IN OPENING GAME

Tricolor Put up Keen Argument Before Finally Submitting

SCORE WAS 8-4

Hard and Fast Game Pried Lid off Local Senior Section

(By Ross Carey)

Queen's may very well have been a happy one so far, but last night their optimistic prosperity was knocked asunder by Belleville in a hockey game, as decisive and convincing fashion the yellow shirts drowned the tricolor and assumed the lead in the local senior group. The score was 8-4 and that is a fair indication of the play. Battle was in that Shad Energyan's home help enjoyed over Wright's, Elmer's tutored athletes. Queen's collapsed completely under the persistent assault staged by the local puck-chasers and seldom during the evening were they really in the play, although they scored the first goal.

The game lacked nothing in the form of scrambling hockey. Lots of scoring, choice combination, a variety of solo efforts and a bushel of body-checking thrown in for good measure, completed a nice evening and this town were more than pleased with the offering.

The locals opened the first period full of vigorous purpose but before they were completed, Queen's possessed the first goal. The yellow shirts staged a sustained assault and three times they passed up made-to-order chances to score and finally Morris took his eyes off the gymsum and he flashed it out of the hemp. Then Belleville settled down and showed the best effort that The Queen's threats were easily frustrated by the homesters' defence.

"Benny" Morris will not forget last evening in a day or two. He was kept busier than a one-armed man in a library warding off shots. He stretched like a contortion, folded like a jack-knife, and tumbled like an acrobat in defending his citadel.

Queen's simply wilted under the attack and the heavy bodying of the defence had a telling effect on most the biggest of the students. Murphy the giant greadnought was the last to succumb, but he went down like a log and when he brought around until the smelling salts were produced. It was a good game and despite the disparity of the score, the Queen's team put up a good battle. It was a colorful contest and although the last period was somewhat drab in comparison to the first two, the spectators, were given their money's worth. Speed and more speed was dished up with players picking themselves up in every corner of the arena. The fans shook the rafters with a mad crescendo as Belleville continued to pile up the score and "Kenny" Davis who banged home the eighth goal which was not needed as the game was already beyond redemption for Queen's, was accorded just as great a hand as Mulvihill who opened the scoring for Belleville with a long drive five minutes after "Mac" McCarthy sent the teams on their way.

Morris Breaks Down

Belleville sent steaming drives in the direction of the Queen's cage in the first period and after the period "Benny" Morris had allowed two scalding shots to find the twine, they pelted him unmercifully.

The fleet-footed Mr. Smith grabbed the elgusm glare for Belleville with four goals. He flashed around showing bursts of speed and sifted in through Queen's defensive cordon to make life miserable for Mr. Morris, who was somewhat spotty at times. Smith is a welcome addition to Belleville's hockey ranks and the Whitby blonde has installed himself a popular favorite. Understudied and unassuming, he was most effective and Burgoyne made no mistake when he tied a Belleville tag to him.

Johnny Leachman who graduated from the Toronto Imperial Oil team, established a stronger ability style but an effective ice covering system which lulled the Queen's forwards into a state of fancy scoring. He is a great little play-maker, feeds his wings with precision, timeliness and style, and was in general, the wedge of the Belleville attack. He repeatedly broke up promising assaults in the middle area and trailing a dirty stick, he was the bane of the visitor's very existence last night.

Holway who is an veteran in the joints of hockey service, was clever in taking the Queen's players' measure and his husky partner Montgomery, were lavish in their distribution of body checking. Holway, particularly stepped into the tricolor performers with rare abandon and sent them groaning to many times that same fashion. Literally "dished" them when whether they were coming or going". Holway was a potent factor in stopping the rushes directed at him and he and Monty" can well take care of themselves in any man's game.

George Mulvihill played a strong hand game and was dangerous throughout and hit one goal was a beauty. He covers the flank ably and besides being a power in the offense, allows his pass Billy Jeeway and kept him well lashed to the mast. He is one of the chief cogs in the machine.

Jeffery played good hockey in the ists and several times he came cut with really spectacular efforts when the opposition were milling about in front of the cage. On at least two goals the local defence did not cover any too well and gave the elongated set-minder little protection.

Second Line Good.

The second string forward line worked with equal precision and style, and Weir, Davis and Hull laid down a barrage which had the audience in pandemonium. They all turned in a nice game and the front line was not visibly weakened when they were hustled to the boards.

To pick the star for Queen's is a tough job. Murphy who was a marked man throughout, was the most willing and came through with colors flying. Murphy is no pigmy and while he spilled the locals time and again, he received a good deal more himself. Squires tried hard but several tumbles after hitting the stone-wall defence did not help his cause any.

Reist and Lee were the means of entrenching some pretty rushes and "Benny's" goal, while he went unmolested, was a nice effort. Lee, the North Bay flash, managed to get some pot-shots on Jeffery but he could get nowhere. Patterson, brother of the lantern-jawed George of pro fame, played mediocre hockey with Morgan and the little wings and Gibson supplying bursts of form. Morris in goal was bombarded and he stood up nobly and all of the goals were very fast, as is Queen's players had the marked fault of clogging his view.

The crowd was a big factor with "Mac" McCarthy over some of his decisions, and there was a slight demonstration of disapproval. He hand led a difficult situation well.

First Period

Mulvihill and Leachman went in to test Morris right off the bat, and the Queen's goal was menaced. Murphy scored the first goal, stepping in from centre ice, circling the defence which locked none too good on it, and coasted in to flip one into the corner in fifty seconds. Mulvihill took two pot shots at the goal but was wild in his shooting. Leachman went through all alone, made the defence look foolish and blazed it over the cage. The second string forward line signalled their appearance by staging a determined attack and Weir took a poke at the gym-sum but it slithered across the corner. Davis sailed through but Squires lifted his aim almost to the rafters and he (Squires) was given the gate amid the boos of the crowd. Holway pirouetted through and Patterson tried to dump him but went down himself. Belleville was repeatedly charging in but that fickle jade, lady luck, was certainly not with them. Mulvihill sifted one from centre ice and Morris did not know it was in until he picked it out of the twine. It was a soft one and Morris looked like a novice on the drifter. Montgomery, twenty seconds later, drove again from the mid-ice area and Morris was not there.

The shot was travelling like a bullet. Bob Lee went down and Holway lunged at him but took the count himself, missing his target entirely. Lee tore down again and the same Holway charged him and went to the penalty box. Reist and Lee went down and Barney missed a perfect pass. Jeffery made two nice saves and the crowd gasped. There was plenty of stiff body work. Holway sent Murphy sprawling and the pewters applauded. The Belleville defence was impenetrable. Gibson was halted in his tracks with a stiff one from Holway.

First period, 2-1, Belleville.

Second Period

Belleville were playing Morris' weakness and were driving from outside. Both defences were blocking lovely. Smith carried the puck down and circled in the net, he flipped it back and the rubber hit Squire's skate and deflected in. McDowell let fly and Jeffery gathered the shot but it hit the post, and Belleville got a break.

Leachman and Smith went down and with the latter on the business end of the pass, he made no mistake and drove it into the corner beyond Morris' reach. Reist sifted through, the defence looked awfully bad and Jeffery had no chance to make the save. He went in unmolested. The local defence lapsed badly and twice the Queen colour went through and Jeffery saved. Montgomery rifled one at the rotund Morris and it nearly took him off his feet. Reist picked up Lee's pass and Montgomery opened up like a gate and Jeffery made one of his spectacular stops. Smith scored Belleville's fifth goal picking up Mulvihill's rebound and the puck went in off Morris' pads. The Queen's team gamely rallied the Belleville net. Montgomery went in for repairs after Murphy had stopped him with a hard jolt, the sled throwing down over the ex-Perrupher's head. The second string forward line invaded and Hull took a pretty pass from Davis but shot "wild." Murphy went down and was body-checked but took a swipe at the puck and it found the corner. The defence afforded Jeffery no protection. Reist was given a penalty for hooking. Leachman carried the puck down and with Reist, Mulvihill took the pass and caused the mazda to gleam. Montgomery was shooting right on the net. In a melee around the Queen's net, Belleville nearly scored.

Second period, 6-3.

Third Period

Leachman, the great little play maker went down with Mulvihill but George shot wild, Mulvihill shot and the puck went wild and Smith sifted in from close to rebound and shot it into the twine and the score was 7-3. Squires was signalling frantically for the end and got off horn-de-corner bat. Holway got the gate. Patterson took Murphy's pass and scored, a corner-shot. Leachman went down from a stiff body check and he stayed down, but was revived and went back to his post and was rendered a nice hand. Hull was slowing up with Belleville protecting their four goal margin. Weir hit the boards hard behind Patterson but he got to his feet.

Davis scored another goal for Belleville on a pretty solo effort a minute before time was up.

On The Sport Trail

(By C D T)

The Gold Diggers by their display of last night are going somewhere in the hockey world and from the coach down the team is to be congratulated on their fine display. There were no stars, just a team out there, every player giving his best to bring victory. The game was a great crowd-pleaser and the customers will not see a better nor faster game this winter. The offensive of the team is a treat to behold while their defence is much stronger than was anticipated. They have been well coached and their condition speaks well for the trainer in charge. More games like the one last night and the Arena will not hold the crowds wanting to see the boys perform.

x x x x

George Mulvihill did not give the display that he is capable of and there was a real reason. In the first five minutes he was struck over the right shoulder that completely paralyzed the right arm. For the rest of the game he played on his nerve and it could be seen that Burgoyne was not using him often. The versatility of the team was exhibited when the plays were all made on the right wing and Queen's never got hep to what was going on until the damage was done." Smith certainly surprised the talent with his goal getting. The passes came over on a silver platter from Leachman and if the right wing-er made no mistake. In passing, Jack Leachman is about the best pivot man seen around these parts in many years. "Gunner" Arnott probably could bulge the twine more often but his playmaking for the forward line was not to be compared with the effort turned in by the little atom last night. He was good going both ways.

x x x x

Harry Montgomery considered to be the weak sister of the team showed he will have to be reckoned with in any game. He blocking was most effective, while his wicked shooting had Morris buffaloed all night and his goal was a pip. He was ably supported by Stephen Holway, whose considerable layoff has come back to be the same old hard-hitting defenseman and at all times using the exppirience that he has gained in many hard fought encounters. Jeffery was made to look like a real goalie with a real defence in front of him and he turned in a stellar game.

x x x x

Another pleasing feature of the contest was the skating that the winners exhibited. It was thought that Queen's would outskate the locals but with Hull, Davis and Leachman they more than held their own. Davis is one of the most improved players in the district and his goal last night was a masterpiece. He greatly pulled his forward line together and his work on end is equalled the disc into the open twine. Alex. Weir worked hard on his wing and the team was not weakened when the second line of Davis, Hull and Weir were in action.

x x x x

The fans are getting their hockey in bunches with Monday and Thursday nights being taken by the game. On Monday night the intermediates will stage their annual battle with Trenton and the fans will be there when they see the lineup that has been secured. Buskard will guard the twine with Ingram and Murney Green in front. Henry Canning, Harold Buck and Pointer will do duty up front with Allen from the enemy that are trying out for places. If the directors of the Arena will only put the price within the reach of all a bumper crowd will be on hand.

x x x x

Speaking of prices, the fans understand that a hockey team cannot be run on sympathy still it must be remembered the country is in a period of depression and that is going away but still the boys are a little short. They want to make be able to give Belleville a team that will take a place in the hockey sun but feel that the prices are not in accordance with the conditions. It would be a good idea to have a rink full of people watching a game than just a few and the receipts would be more satisfactory. Think it over directors, and give the boys a break that are paying the shot.

x x x x

The junior members of the Belville Curling Club will tonight journey to Kingston for a scheduled game with that city club. Three rinks will be taken down, the players going by motor in the afternoon. W. A. Harden, Percy Gibbard and "Ted" Hall will be the skips in the rinks now being formed. The return game will be played in the city in the near future, points to count on the round. A handsome trophy will be the winner's share.

Hotelmen tied the Bankers with a two-all score in an Owl League fixture staged in the Arena rink last night at the Arena. The game was featured by a Donnybrook Fair which lasted quite a while and was started when one of the players was tripped.

Bankers notched the first counter when Brown slipped through and scored in the first few minutes of the game. The score was tied up in the same period when Elmer Scott scored for the Hotelmen. In the second period Bankers started off well again when they made the score 2-1, but the Innkeepers soon evened it up. The third period was scoreless.

The line-ups included:

Bankers—Davies; goal; Miles and Clarke, defence; Burley centre; Brown and Neeland wings, Walsh, Jenkinson and Christie subs.

Hotelmen—Lafferty, goal; Leo Skelly and Moose Darrah defence; W. Hems and Elmer Lafferty wings; E. Scott, centre; G. McDonald, Norman Garbutt and John Fisher, subs.

PRESS BOX CHATTER

The defeat last night of the Queen's team altered somewhat for the locking administered to the Colts in the Limestone city on Monday night.

The tricolour were simply outclassed and the yellow shirts were off on their way in the two-team group. Another game like last night's and you won't be able to keep those fans away "uchow".

"The best game since the rink opened" was the manney in which one noted hockey enthusiast summed up the situation. And most of those occupying the customers' seats were quite willing to agree with him.

Montgomery is built like a tug boat and hits like a catapult but he allowed a couple of unmarked Queen's forwards to sift through to him. Leaching Jeffery open to the attack. The way he gets back to his post after a sally down the ice is nobody's business.

Stan Burgoyne was more than pleased last night and he fully expects his proteges to take the students into camp right in the Jack Hart on the 21st when the same teams mix it again.

Holway enjoyed himself immensely although he was just about sorry for the cleaners after the first period when he was spilling them every time out.

Leachman was as fresh at the finish as at the start. Plainly his experience in the Mercantile League has given him in good stead and he wasn't jolted all evening. He just stepped over the husky Queen's pair and was not jarred a little bit.

George Mulvihill showed a nice turn of speed and some great puck-handling and was going like a house afire from hell to hell.

Smith, the taffy-haired gentleman, still showed the ideal of the fans he keeps up last night's scoring spree. He's always around to receive pats.

Murphy, Squires, Weir and Montgomery were all casualties but they finished the game.

The team clearly showed the results of careful coaching and Burgoyne has brought them along to a nice state and they should lead the tricolour to the wire.

Queen's disputed one goal and Morris' pleadings with the referee in charge went for nought, as McCarthy was right on top of the play. Queen's claimed Smith was off side.

The locals are well fortified in every department with Hull and Weir showing great improvement. The latter acts as a relief defencemen and does the job nicely. Davis is always dangerous.

In 1877, all the telephones in the world were made in the Charles Williams shop on Court Street, Boston.

ECHOES

The Whig-Standard writer has some caustic remarks to make on the Belleville-Kingston Junior Hockey game. The same in part,

Coming down here from the tranquility of the Moira metropolis (we'll never that to Belleville again, openly touted in their home town as potential champions, showed the Kingston fans that their ten-year Toronto Canoe Club last week went to Geist heads, and when in the last period with defeat staring them in the face, they played the men on the forward line, they made a huge mistake in maintaining the style of hockey, they did manage to score one goal but instead of dropping at least one man back on the defence to say smart team would do, they kept pushing five men into Kingston territory, with the inevitable result that Blake and Thursby three times broke away and the reputed speed of the Belleville wings was woefully weak when they tried to catch the Kingston players. Morton in the Belleville cage, was left entirely alone and he hadn't a Ohlsenian chance of stopping three goals whizzing past him.

What a fine looking championship team Belleville turned out to be? They showed plenty of class in their game with Kingston last night, but that's about all they did show.

As a matter of fact, with the exception of one or two players, they didn't impress the Kingston fans a great deal. Either all the players are good on defence, but the whole team had little scoring punch last night.

BIG RETURNS AT SMALL COST

TO ERECT HUGE SPORTS ARENA

Site of Exhibition College is Acquired by the Financial Backers

TORONTO, Jan 9—An arena to cost about $1,500,000, to seat over 16,000 persons and combining the latest achievements of architectural and engineering science, excelled in size by only one other structure of its kind in the world and second to none in equipment, is planned to be ready for Toronto's next hockey season, it was announced last night.

Occupying a site historic in Toronto's development where over half a century ago Knox Divinity College was erected (later from the city's point and "Fort moll", the new building proposed has been given impetus by the purchase yesterday of the property north of College Street and located by Spadina Avenue. The purchase is in pursuance of plans for the $1,500,000 building which were first launched months ago.

Site Purchase Confirmed

Frank McLaughlin, chief of the real estate department of the Chiarenzi Trust and Exchator Company of Toronto, reached at his home at an early hour this morning confirmed the information concerning the site transaction. The property was purchased from the Mitchell estate, he said, through the Chiarenzi Trust, acting with the Chartered Trust and Executor Company, acting as brokers. W. L. Reid, secretary of the latter company's realty division, co-operated in securing this confirmation.

Outstanding exploiting of the kind in Canada, the new arena is planned for seating crowds as high in numbers as 20,000 for wrestling, boxing and lacrosse matches or for concert performances. It is to embody the latest developments in ice surface equipment and to furnish parking accommodation for approximately 1,000 automobiles under cover in its sub-basements.

With its coming will pass one of the outstanding links with Toronto's trading-laden past. Old Knox College, where thousands of men acquired the foundation upon which much of Toronto's prestige as an educational centre rests, has for many years remained in pathetic grandeur, almost vacant, practically forgotten, except for two military units which used it as an armory.

"Y" Alleys

In an Inter Group game in Teachers' League the Alleys "Y" team took all four points from Albert "A" in an exciting game. A glance at the scores will show some nice singles.

The Meter men made a fine start in their winter League. The results of the night's bowling was as follows:

Motor Smart No. 3 won all three games also high total; Moosehearts No. 1 took No. 2 split the first game for second game and fought hard for the third game. No. 3 winning by 18 pins almost catching No. 2 team who won by two pins over No. 3 team. In the first game No. 1 (red 2 tied for a 1-3 point basis. Pin totals scored were No. 2, 8; No. 2 1 1-2; No. 1 2 1-2.

NOVEL CAGE GAME OPENS SATURDAY Y.M.C.A. PROGRAM

Two Local Bowers Will Stage and Exhibition Bout Here

Something novel in the way of a basketball game is being offered to local fans on Saturday night at the Y.M.C.A. when the "Y" Ladies' Quint will oppose a team of boys. The latter, lately graduated from the ranks of the junior school gym class, are as yet in their early teens. In size they will be all on-range youthful opponents but what the latter lack in stature, they will make up to a large extent in their speed.

The girls have been practising hard in preparation for this game and are keen to get into action again following a considerable recess during the holidays. To predict the outcome of this game would be hazarding a long shot but certainly there will be nothing spoiling in the part of either team when it comes to giving their best effort. This fixture will begin at 7.30 and will be handled by two members of the Y's Men's Team, in order to close a close checkup be kept on the play.

In addition to the two games of basketball which make up the evening's programme there will be one exhibition boxing bout put on by two Bowers who are members of the Association. This latter will take place during the ten minute intermissions between the first and second period of the Kingston vs Y's Mens' Game.

TORONTO DEFEAT MONTREAL SQUAD

TORONTO, Jan. 9.—One little goal but what a difference it makes!

For 45 and a half minutes last night the Montreal Maroons and the Maple Leafs provided a brand of scoreless hockey that was featured by some tight defensive work and great saves by the goalkeepers more than the speed and the brilliance of the attack, but at this point Hooley Smith was given a penalty for a breach of the same defence rule and this offence, of the most minor nature in appearance, became the most important feature of the game. It gave the Leafs the odd men advantage, the same as they had several times previously, and, while it did not shape up as the turning point of the clash between the two leading teams of the Canadian group of the National Hockey League, it was the break of the game as it turned out.

With the advantage of no one in centre ice to check him, Joe Bailey slipped down the ice with Blair and then swung over towards the right boards. Dave Trottier, that expensive piece of hockey material that was the cause of a committee room war between the two clubs two years ago, made several ineffectual attempts to check Bailey, who was toying with the

YOUNG FARMERS WIN SCHOLARSHIPS

Milford, Prince Edward County, Young Man, Among Winners

Gordon Reid of Milford, Prince Edward County, is one of fifteen winners of scholarships donated to the Canadian Canning Limited, to the members of the 1930 "Royal 500" announcement of which has been made by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. These scholarships of $100 each are to be applied on a regular course at the Ontario Agricultural College.

One hundred and ninety-eight tried the examination which was held in each county and district of the province under the supervision of the agricultural representatives.

These youths will enter the Ontario Agricultural College next September in either the associate or degree course. The Ontario Government, it is understood, is cancelling all tuition fees for such winners during the first two years of their course.

As a follow-up to the 1930 "Royal 500" Prize, the department of agriculture conducted an essay contest open to all members of the party.

In addition to local prizes offered for the three best essays in each county or district, each of the writers of the ten best essays in the province receives free transportation, board and lodging for two weeks while attending one of the short courses in the Ontario Agricultural College Guelph, or the Kemptville Agricultural School.

Norman Pindall of Trenton, received one of the prizes, that for Northumberland County.

The tiger is an exclusively Asiatic animal and is not found wild in Africa.

GENERAL'S DREAM OF VICTORY CAME TRUE HE RELATES

DUNBAR, Scotland, Jan 9. — The general had a dream that came true, and his was red with blood of Wad el Nejumi. General Sir Francis R. Wingate, Bart., D. S. O., recalled the prophetic vision and its glory fulfilment when he addressed a meeting here. It was in the summer of 1885 and the Kcale was the Soudan, with the dervish power at its height. Sir Francis was there as an intelligence officer in the British forces. The British general was Lord Grenfell.

One night, Sir Francis recalled, he had just retired when he heard his name called twice by Lord Grenfell. He went to the General's quarters only to find the commander sound asleep. The following day General Grenfell told Sir Francis of a strange dream he had during the night. He saw himself in a boxing ring. His opponent was Wad el Nejumi, dreaded leader of the dervish forces and the same Emir, who captured Khartoum and slew General Gordon in 1885.

In the dream General Grenfell and Wad el Nejumi fought viciously. The British general, under the brutish attack of the Emir, called to Sir Francis Wingate to fan him. Sir Francis did so, and then General Grenfell revived returned to the fight, and knocked out Wad el Nejumi.

That was the dream. That day a battle took place a battle that was a British victory. When it was over, a camel was led to general headquarters across it was the body of Wad el Nejumi.

FAVORS HIGHWAY PROSPERITY BOARD

John N. Betts Makes Proposal on Behalf of National Highway

Vancouver, B.C., Jan. 9—The following letter has been sent to Premier the Right Honorable R. B. Bennett, advocating the issue of Prosperity Highway Bonds.

Vancouver, B.C., December 27th, 1930

Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, K.C.M.P., Prime Minister of Canada, Parliament Buildings, Ottawa, Ont.

Rt. Hon. Sir:—

I am extending to you, and through you, to our fellow citizens of Canada, a brief outline of a proposal for consideration at this threshold of a New Year.

The proposal, in brief, is as follows:—

The Dominion Government, in cooperation with the nine Provincial Governments, to begin immediate construction of an East to West, Coast to Coast Motor Highway; this Highway to be built and maintained by the Dominion Government. Each Province would co-operate by building and maintaining a South to North Highway, from the border to as far North as each Provincial Government may deem expedient, but in mileage at least equal to the East to West Dominion Highway through their several Provinces.

The advantages of South to North travel cannot be overestimated, in view of the wealth and numbers of our good neighbours in the United States.

These Highways would be built and maintained as suggested; and financed by the sale of Government Bonds, guaranteed jointly by the Dominion and Provincial Governments.

They would be called "Prosperity Highway Bonds" and bear interest of 6 percent, non-taxable, in denominations of $100.00, $500.00 and $1,000.00 purchasable through the Chartered Banks of Canada, on monthly instalments.

The first issue would be for one hundred million dollars, and additional issues could be sold as required, up to five hundred million dollars if necessary.

We sold bonds a few years ago for War. Let us now sell them for Construction.

Prosperity Highway Bonds!

Let us all get back on the Highway to Prosperity.

A copy of this letter will go to the leading Daily Papers of Canada, in a few days.

Faithfully yours,
(Sgd.) John N. Betts.

POLL OF LEAGUE SHOWS DRIFT TO WET SETTLEMENT

Result of Vote on Liquor Question by National Economic League is for Repeal

BOSTON, Mass. — An interesting change of sentiment on the subject of prohibition was revealed in the result of a recent vote of the National Council of the National Economic League, an organization whose announced purpose is "to create an informed and disinterested leadership for public opinion — a leadership that is free from partisan bias or class interest and that will be accepted as representing the best thought of this country."

Fifty-five per cent of the 2,633 ballots cast on the question of rejecting or retaining the Eighteenth Amendment, favored repeal, 41 per cent were against repeal and 103 did not vote. In 1926 a similar questionnaire resulted as follows: for repeal, 44 per cent; against repeal, 53 per cent; not voting, 4 per cent.

In the event of repeal, 41 per cent of the voters believed that the question of prohibition should be left for the States to decide. In 1926 this belief was held by only 26 per cent. Forty-three per cent believed that the Federal dispensaries or otherwise, favored, should be given power by Constitutional Amendment to control the sale of all intoxicating liquors, through Federal dispensaries or otherwise, except in States prohibiting liquor traffic.

Members of the council were asked to vote on the manner of dealing with the Volstead Act if the 18th Amendment were retained. Forty-one per cent were for repeal of the Act; 22 per cent for reinforcing it by more effective provisions; 18 for modifying it so as to permit greater alcoholic content in beverage; and 11 per cent for retaining it as it is. Eight per cent did not vote. If the Act were repealed, 39 per cent favored leaving local enforcement of the 18th Amendment entirely to the States; 37 per cent opposed this method and 25 per cent did not vote.

Forty-one per cent or 1089 believed that the Federal Government of the Volstead Act is modified to permit greater alcoholic content in beverages; should control the sale of such beverages through Federal dispensaries or otherwise. Twenty-seven per cent opposed and 32 per cent did not vote.

Only 8 per cent believed that consumption of alcoholic beverages manufactured under a modification of the Volstead Act should be permitted in public drinking places. Sixty-three per cent were opposed to this plan and 29 per cent failed to vote. Fifty per cent favored consumption of such beverages in hotels and restaurants, if served with food. Twenty-eight per cent were against this, and 22 per cent did not vote.

For the question, "should greater effort, and more money if necessary, be spent by the Federal Government to enforce the present law; Yes, 39 per cent; No, 48 per cent; not voting, 13 per cent. A majority answered this question in the affirmative in the 1926 poll.

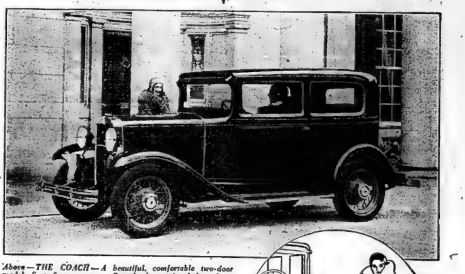
Chevrolet offers six-cylinder performance, greater beauty at lower cost than ever before

. . . . . and in Addition Roomier Fisher Bodies . . . Greater Comfort . . . New Riding Ease . . . De Luxe Wire Wheels

EVERYWHERE the new Chevrolet Six is being shown, people are admiring its new beauty and impressive size. They are talking about the truly remarkable value it offers at its new, low price.

The distinction achieved by the handsome new body lines, de luxe wire wheels and added wheelbase of the new Chevrolet Six is evident. And beneath the hood is a six-cylinder, 50-horsepower motor. The moment you take the wheel we are sure you will be impressed by the difference six cylinders make. It is a pleasure to drive the new Chevrolet because six cylinders are so smooth and quiet and restful.

The new Chevrolet Six is not only the smoothest car in the low price field, but also the most powerful. This accounts for the easy acceleration you will note in traffic



. . . the remarkable speed on the straightaway . . . and the ample reserve of power on the hills.

The improved steering gear contributes new ease of operation. A touch of your fingers on the new 3-spoke steering wheel, and you will find that the car responds easily in turning and parking.

We are sure you will be pleased by the riding ease of the new Chevrolet and the comfort of its new Fisher Bodies. Due to the longer wheelbase, the car grips the road firmly at all speeds . . . giving that sense of security which only a big, full-size car can provide. The improved springs and Lovejoy shock absorbers smooth out rough roads.

With the advantage of a lengthened wheelbase, Fisher designers have been able to create larger and roomier interiors. The driving compartment is fully insulated . . . lessening engine noise and keeping out cold and riding comfort . . . you will find ten minutes behind the wheel of the new Chevrolet Six a memorable experience. We invite you to see and drive this bigger, finer Six today.

Chevrolet's policy has always been one of service to the public . . . The GMAC plan of deferred payments offers the lowest financing charges available . . . and the General Motors Owner Service Policy pledges lasting satisfaction.

LOSS OF RECORD AS ART CENTRE IS IMPROBABLE

LONDON—There is no fear at present of London losing its reputation as a centre for the sale by auction of fine art treasures, according to competent authority. The sale room turn over of New York last season has been estimated to amount roughly to two million sterling. The figure for London for the same period is calculated to have been nearly three times as much and one firm alone in London is believed to have handled almost as much as the combined total of the New York houses.

It is estimated that British works of art to the value of 60 million sterling have gone out of England into America during the last ten years. Nevertheless it is confidently asserted that this represents only a fraction of the art treasures of this country. England is likened to the position of Italy in the 18th and 19th centuries, when Italy was ransacked of her treasures by other countries. Yet Italy still possesses more of her own works of art than the rest of the world put together. Proof of this was furnished by the Italian Exhibition held at the Royal Academy last summer.

Early in the New Year we are to have at the Royal Academy a wonderful exhibition of the best Persian art. The exhibition will bring together perhaps the most wonderful collection of carpets ever assembled. Some of them will display a quality of weaving which is probably unknown in Europe.

FIXING QUALITY

One of the most valuable of the services provided for the protection of consumers in Canada as well as for advantage to growers who produce high quality products is the commercial inspection service of the Fruit Branch. During the past fiscal year, staff inspectors made 3,300 visits to 614 canning plants throughout the Dominion, issuing 2,400 certificates covering products from which 694 samples were taken; these include:

	Cases
Tomatoes	447,000
Tomato products	417,942
Peas	22,100
Corn	11,410
Pears	64,700
Evaporated apples	40,830

The federal inspection service determines the quality of the product, which is required by statute to be marked on the label affixed to every can of product offered for sale in Canada.

CHICKEN CUTLETS

Something really new in the shape of chicken cutlets is being introduced to Canadian consumers this year for the first time. Demonstrations in the technique of boning chicken and a new way of dressing which combine to make bone-free chicken meat, attracted a lot of attention at the Dominion Live Sock Branch demonstration booth at the Royal Winter Fair. One can now buy boneless chicken cutlets at the retail store by the pound — all meat—entirely free from waste.

TAX PAYMENTS

A great deal of discussion is taking place over the number of payments of taxes, whether they should be made in two instalments or in four instalments as suggested by Mayor Reid. It is a healthy sign to have property owners and ratepayers discuss these questions freely through the press, for council seeks no better guide than the intelligent expression of the people; in the absence of which of course the members of council have to act on their own initiative. Before the next meeting of council this question is likely thoroughly to be canvassed by the people who will be able to present their views thus to the council when the question of a change in the method comes up for debate.

Matters touching finance and taxes naturally excite the keenest interest among the people who have to pay the taxes and find the money for improvements and the administration of the city. Accordingly no question is so likely to bring out the opinions of people as a word said regarding taxes or the method of collection.

It is perfectly natural too that when the question of the payments comes up, there should be involved the matter of other payments made the city, the water rates, oiling rates and so on. In today's issue is a communication attacking the present method of many dates of collection, which are of course complicated with gas collections, Hydro electric bills and dog taxes.

Out of this discussion which has developed on the mayor's suggestion should come some good.

FINDING SECURITY AND GUARANTEES

Many new small accounts in banks and demand for quarterly payments are two of the barrent results of the market crash. People having been bitten of the Wall Street fever and price breakdown have learned not to put their trust in stock quotations which are not so steady and reliable as the laws of the Medes and Persians, whose empire itself crashed.

Those who have been "stung" may, many of them be caught again, but there are numbers who have learned something from bitter experience—something for their own good, not to invest or speculate all, for immediate profit but to seek first all security. This many have found in annuities which make a guarantee behind which stands the Dominion of Canada with its untold and undeveloped resources.

Annuities give an absolute guarantee; no stock speculation provides that. Today as a result of the attitude of the public, no less than four million dollars a year is being paid into the fund by Canadian people against future contingencies. Beneficiaries are receiving under the plan one and three-quarter millions yearly. As stressed by the Dominion the fund is not only for aged, it is for the young.

THE BURNING QUESTION

Burning of grain when no outlet can be found for except to use it for fuel may make some people in some parts of the world or in cities where there is scarcity for some feel "hot" that they have to go with little while grain which would sustain life is going up in smoke, yet the burner of grain has no other course to pursue—he has suffered enough and cannot be expected to pay freight on his product and then give it away. The whole matter of value must resolve itself in a question of markets and transportation. If there is no market, there will be no shipping.

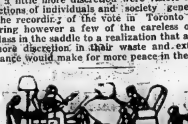
MUST HAVE HIS JOKE

The editor of the Deseronto Post must have his joke. He tells of the "stew" in which Toronto itself last year and adds that but content with this, the electors chose Stew-art as mayor.

HYDRO AS SOLUTION

Hydro as a solution of some of the problems of Eastern Ontario is considered the panacea. Tweed and Deseronto have taken to themselves an alliance with the provincial scheme. Belleville, Picton, Peterborough and most of the centres of Eastern and Central Ontario are in the system.

They have seen the results of the Hydro enterprise in Western Ontario and are determined that the central and eastern parts of the province will have equal opportunity for growth.



SNOW OR NO SNOW

The weather seems indifferent. There comes snow in nature's own good time or there is rain. There is cold or there is a warm spell. In a year when the need was not so great there was plenty of snow for men to shovel but in this year when a good storm would mean money to the workers snow does not fall. This is one of the spheres in which there is no government or municipal control. Nature is ever herself and will ever be.

HOW MANY REDS?

The Peterborough Examiner started talk when it stated after noting that over three thousand communist votes were recorded in Toronto election that "there are more Reds in the Queen City than most people imagine."

However many there be in Canada they are practically all in larger centres—the total cannot be large. There would be even less if a little more discretion were visible in the actions of individuals and society generally. The recording of the vote in Toronto may bring however a few of the careless of the class in the saddle to a realization that a little more discretion, in their waste and extravagance would make for more peace in the land.

SIDELIGHTS

SCARS

The scar across a soldier's face
Men dread to look upon,
May mark some high, triumphant hour,
Some splendid victory won.

And he who bears it may forget.
War's cruel strife and pain,
Dark hours of fighting and defence,
May count them wholly gain.

Because through struggle men have climbed
To fairer ways of life,
To better deed and nobler thought
Unvexed at last by strife.

So scars that on the spirit lie
May show the progress made.
The conflicts whence a soul emerged,
Serene and unafraid.

BUSINESS AS USUAL

Harry Lauder told this to Lord Aberdeen, former Governor General of Canada, who includes it in his book of Scottish stories, "Tell Me Another":

A visiting artist who was down on the program of a village concert to sing "The Village Blacksmith" was resting at his hotel when a caller was announced.

"I understand, sir," said the caller, "that you are going to sing 'The Village Blacksmith' at the concert tonight.

"That is so," replied the singer.

"Well," said the caller, "I just came to say that I am the village blacksmith, and I would like it very much if you could introduce into the song a few words which would let the folks know that I also repair bicycles."—Australian Christian.

EMOTIONS AND THE HEART

The heart is the traditional seat of the emotions, and we still recognize it when we say that we are "light-hearted" or "heavy-hearted."

However this may be, this vital organ certainly responds quickly to joy or to pain.

A writer in L'Oeuvre (Paris) signing himself "Dr. B." tells us that specialists in affections of the heart need to bear this constantly in mind. He says:

"The heart is called by Dr. Charl. Fiessinger 'the signal bell of the emotions.'

"It responds to the least nervous shock, breaks into sudden palpitation, slows up, and resumes its normal rhythm.

"But it does not always react in the same way. Its behavior varies according to whether it is affected by an exciting emotion or by a depressing one. Joy, pleasure, agreeable events, act in one way; deception, anguish, grief, or pain have entirely opposite effects.

"There is no better tonic for the heart than pleasure. Under its influence an affected heart may regain its vigor, or at least may recover from its past injuries; a heart moved by happy feelings beats more quickly and powerfully.

"Professor Merklen tells a story of a missionary, suffering from dilation of the heart who recovered from it when he heard of the conversion of a group of Chinese. His delight had worked a miracle.

"The inverse is no less true.

"Any depressive emotion acts to diminish cardiac vigor. I have known victims whose hearts responded to each onset of illfortune. This action may be powerful enough to bring on syncope, or even sudden death. But such cases are fortunately exceptional. Cases of soldiers who have died at the baccarat table in the course of an exciting game have been several times reported, though rare.

"Patients who suffer from attacks of angina may also succumb in the course of quarrels or discussions. They do not even cry out, but fall down and never revive.

"During the bombardment of Paris several of Dr. Fiessinger's patients died instantly. One man, who had suffered suddenly in the night by the explosion of a bomb from an airplane. She cried out and was gone.

"To sum up, though it is true that, generally, cardiac patients are benefited by agreeable emotions, they suffer injury from painful ones. The general hygiene of heart troubles requires repose, distraction, and, when possible, gaiety. Forget or neglect this essential point and all the remedies in the world will be ineffective.

"On the other hand, assure to the patient a peaceful existence, exempt from violent emotions, and I assure you you can be certain that he will live many years. It is essential that this should be borne in mind in the treatment of diseases of the heart."

ONTARIO'S DEFICIT

It could hardly have been expected by even the greatest of optimists that the provincial governments would have escaped the fate of most other organizations and individuals in these trying times, and come through the year with improved finances. It is disappointing to hear from Hon. Edward Dunlop, provincial treasurer, that, instead of a surplus as has been the case in the past three years, there will be a deficit in the annual statement of $628,000. But there is plenty of cause for satisfaction. Most individuals have had to curtail in their expenditure in practically all departments of activity on which the government relies for its income. On the other hand, the necessity for greater outlays on public works and the various schemes for assisting the unemployed have made increased demands on the provincial treasury, still further complicating the position. Under the circumstances, therefore, the government has no reason to be ashamed of the result.—Hamilton Spectator.

POLICE INSURANCE

Estimating that the officer's salary at the time of his death was $1,200 a year, the City of Toronto, is now pledged to pay out $18,600 during the next thirteen years, and history in the precedents left us to expect that to take the same action in any future case of a similar nature. The whole procedure seems somewhat unfamiliar, and Kingston can benefit from Toronto's experience. It would seem that some form of insurance covering policemen's pensions in case of death in line on duty, permanent or temporary disability, is the logical solution. The municipality has a moral obligation to the dependents of the men who have to lose their lives or are injured while protecting the public from fire hazard or lawlessness. Insurance companies will prepare to meet this obligation. —Kingston Whig.

AN EXTRAVAGANT FAD

The stock crash and the wheat slump while seemingly commercial depression in their train were probably sent by an all-wise Providence to give Canadians a lesson in economy. And in the end that lesson will probably work to the general benefit of Canada. Farmers in the west may learn that there are other crops to grow besides wheat to sell wheat and buy everything else is not good business. And city dwellers, too, have sometimes learned from the depression the habit of buying new U. S. vegetables and new southern potatoes as soon as they appear on the market instead of patronizing the Canadian potatoes and vegetables which have been carefully preserved and infinitely superior to the American substitute. This buying of U.S. produce has become a fad. It is a most unpatriotic fad. Moreover, it helps along the depression in agricultural circles. And it is scarcity of ready cash among Toronto people that is the only thing to prove of benefit to all concerned.—Toronto Telegram.

BENEFITS BEYOND BILLIONS

When Comly Rich a Philadelphia lamplighter back in 1831 applied to the newly organized Franklin Savings Building Association for a loan where with to buy a house out of his meager salary he probably little realized that he was the first member of an enterprise which was to spread over all the United States until a century later, its resources would be reckoned at $9,000,000,000, with membership associations numbering 12,340 and responsible for financing one-quarter of all the homes now occupied. Rich went with monotonous rounds, touching his tiny torch to the street lights and considering the boom his newsbought home would be to himself and family, his sentiment was probably more of wonder that this good fortune should have touched his lowly sphere than of appreciation that the new association had made it possible for him likewise to light a torch to thrift, home and cooperation.—Christian Science Monitor.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

When Scientists Disagree

The average intelligent reader may be excused if he finds it extremely difficult to come to any definite conclusion about, or even to draw any clear idea from the various statements recently made by eminent scientists concerning this universe of ours. A very brief review of the latest pronouncements of the leading scientists on both sides of the Atlantic will serve to show how profoundly complex the problem of understanding what they mean has become.

Says Sir Sir James Jeans: "The Universe is melting away." Professor Millikan retorts that "creation is always going on in the Universe." Einstein asserts that "nothing I faster than light waves." Bernard Russell thereupon assevcrates that "there are various reasons for doubting whether Einstein's Universe can be quite right" while Professor O. P. Thompson is certain that "the waves that accompany an electron do not travel with the speed of light, but much faster." Dr. Eddington, in an effort to enlighten the benighted seers after truth, informs him that "all space is within a sphere; what is outside is Nowhere," and then he proceeds to mystify him by adding that "space is expanding at the rate of ninety cent in twenty million years."

Is there any wonder that the poor seeker after truth turns away from these apparently contradictory and wholly confusing statements wondering what it is all about? Of course, the plain truth is that the scientific mind thinks in terms and talks in a language the average man does not understand, and that the scientist finds it well-nigh impossible to translate his thoughts into the language of the average man. This has been wittily illustrated recently by a New York journal which quoted a newspaper man as telling Einstein on his arrival what he thought of the American girl, to which query Einstein is reported to have replied:

"You think of a girl as a perpendicular biological phenomenon in short skirts. How do you know that she is not an oval mass of bent space being thrown off like electrons from swiftly rotating nithol-watts, with all the speed of an idmit?" On being asked if he would mind repeating this reply, the Professor is said to have retorted: "I would." The most remarkable phenomenon about the whole business is probably the sterdily increasing public interest in these battles of the scientists, a witness the great sale of the James Jeans' books during the past few months. The public is really anxious to know something, but is not quite sure what it wants to know and is never sure that it does not know what a statement to accept. Meanwhile, the scientists continue to debate and new theories are evolved almost hourly, as fast as new recipes for a kitchen. And the world, goes about its business, blundering along, working during the day and sleeping at night. Just as though there were no scientists at all or that whatever they say does not matter. And perhaps, after all, the average man—non-committal attitude is the safest to adopt.—Montreal Star.

Locking Up Time

Pasadena, Calif.—Time has been reduced, locked in a cell for three years and given the "third degree" here.

Twenty-five years ago Albert Einstein, in Berlin, concluded time was relative, and his general idea of relativity rel forth that time is not changeless, as the world has been led to believe. The German professor said time varies with velocity.

Dr. Einstein now is here, confident time will confess to its inconsistency.

Dr. Roy J. Kennedy and Dr. Edward M. Thorndike, research fellows in physics, are time's jailers in a little laboratory set at the California Institute of Technology. They have checked its behavior three years.

Dr. Kennedy and Dr. Thorndike plan to learn the result of their work, for upon this experiment his space-time theory, the fourth dimension of it, the fundamental of relativity, may stand or fall.

Dr. Kennedy, years ago, assisted Dr. Albert A. Michelson in experiments which proved that objects in space behave as Dr. Einstein calculated. Then Dr. Kennedy and Dr. Thorndike set about to find by actual measurements whether time also behaves as Dr. Einstein predicts. Dr. Kennedy explains it:

"If we are living in an Einstein universe, time would change with increasing velocity, just as the dimensions of matter change, but instead of shortening, time would lengthen.

"If a man were riding in one of the projected rockets to the moon, at a velocity of 161,000 miles a second, his watch would tarry, and, assuming it would still function, would lose 1/2 hours of time daily, which would have intimately associated space and time really are.

"At the velocity of light, 186,300 miles per second, his watch would shrink to nothing and time would stand still.

"Before starting this experiment, I wanted to find the most reliable watch in the world, one that would divide the primary second into a million-billion-billion intervals.

"The clock finally selected consists entirely of mercury. When vaporized the mercury atoms radiate a characteristic light, presumably in the form of waves, and the frequency of waves, or the time interval between the wave-tops, serves as well as the pendulum to measure the flow of time. Instead of ticking off sound waves in air, such a clock likes off ether waves.

The light-wave of the mercury clock is split into two separate rays. One is permitted to shoot straight ahead, and the other is delayed by mirrors over a roundabout path, and both brought together again. The effect of the two rays, the one just arrival at a given point, causes interference with each other, and this is photographed. Physicists of this machine an inch represents a hour.

The earth in its orbit around the sun moves at a speed of 67,000 miles per hour, but it rotates also at the rate of 1000 miles an hour, roughly speaking.

So Pasadena, where the experiment is being made, by the rotation movement of the earth, moves at different speeds through space. When the rotation movement is in the same direction as the orbital movement, that is at midnight, the speed of movement is increased to 68,000 miles an hour. At noon, the peak of rotation movement in reverse direction, the speed in the orbital direction is but 66,000 miles an hour.

Thus there is a difference in the earth's speed of 2000 miles an hour between midnight and noon.

The mercury clock experiment is to determine whether any time change is registered at the different velocities. Dr. Kennedy and Dr. Thorndike indicated they soon will be ready to have time tell its story to Dr. Einstein.

The U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis were founded in 1845 by George Bancroft, secretary of the navy at that time.

Four women are now municipal councillors of Stamboul, as a result of the last municipal elections in which, for the first time, women were permitted to take part.

TOO MANY PAYMENTS

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

Since writing you a day or two ago it has occurred to me that it made the trips to the City Hall last year to pay taxes—one in January to pay a water tax, another in July for the same purpose, another in August to pay the first instalment of taxes, another in November to pay the second instalment, and still another sometime in the Autumn to pay for street oiling. These five times I was worried least I should forget a day too late and pay the penalty. Of course, I might have paid by mail and saved the trips. But bring a bill, I do not like to waste postage and excise stamps.

I should like to ask if all these taxes could not be consolidated and paid in two instalments, just as the taxes on sewers and side-walks are incorporated with other general taxes? It would save ratepayers a lot less some men are walking for the sake of exercise they are being paid for distributing water tax bills, street oil and street-piling bills once a year.

I understand that the committee to deal with the Mayor's suggestion will meet in a short time. Would it be too much to ask that the above committee will consider the same time a suggestion from a humble citizen to combine all the tax bills in one general bill and let it be paid for two or in two instalments, or all at one time, at the option of the tax-payer. Paying taxes while not compulsory is such a pleasant duty at any time, but the pleasure is not enhanced when one is under the necessity of paying them five times a year.

TAX PAYMENT

Jan. 8, 1931.

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

I read with much interest and appreciation that excellent letter on the subject of payment of taxes contributed by "Burdened Tax-payer."

This is a matter in the hands of the Mayor and members of the Council should be I think of great value when the time arrives for them to consider and settle this matter.

Personally, I prefer to have all taxes payable late in the year as this would make less clerical work for the collector and tax-payer and also give the tax-payer time to recover from the extraordinary expenses of living during the long winter season.

That letter of "Burdened Tax-payer" was in my opinion written by one whose motto is concentration and thoroughness.

Yours faithfully,
(Sgd.) Robert Bogle.

WATER RATES

Belleville, Jan. 8, 1931.

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

I noticed a few months ago that you welcomed letters from readers on matters of public importance. I am now asking for sufficient space in which to state my views.

First—Will the manager of the Water Works, or the Chairman assessor, why we are obliged to increase the rate 25 per cent? After making a report out to the effect that there was sufficient surplus to carry the work on the new plant to completion.

Secondly—If this increase was justified, why didn't the increase apply to all users of water; or in other words why wasn't each service raised the 25 per cent?

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) H. Diamond.

AN UNDERLYING BARBARISM

It is a sad commentary on the darkness which reigns over parts of Europe that the awakening whose deed was the cause for launching the world into the horror of the Great War should be murdered among Serbia's illustrious dead. Gavrilo Princip, who never unveiled a plaque on the house in Sarajevo before which he killed the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, died in a Jugoslavia has been famed after him. The earth is still a long way from the millennium when a nation can be found to exalt assassination. Those who honor the violence of a youthful moron are the sons of barbarism and bloodshed. Their spirit of murder is the spirit of the jungle—the underlying barbarism beneath.—Toronto Telegram.

BRITAIN PUTS GIANT PLANES INTO SERVICE

Largest Fleet of Mammoth Air Liners in World Being Tested

LONDON—First flights of the great passenger-carrying land aeroplanes in the world, the Handley Page Type 42, herald incalculable developments in commercial flying. This great British Air Liner, with space in two saloons for 38 passengers, surpasses in size all existing land-operated aircraft. One or two marine air giants are larger, but even in nature the sea-supported creatures grow to greater sizes than the bigger land beasts.

The new British giant is docile and easily controlled. Four engines, each developing 490 h.p. a maximum of some 600 horsepower drive him within a few seconds to a speed at which the immense biplane's wings, the upper pair measuring nearly 140 feet from tip to tip, lift him from the ground. Laden in the fuselage with the comparatively light burden of three tons of scrap from the craft rose in the course of seven seconds and, with the engines running at cruising speed, moved through the air at a velocity of 117 miles per hour. It was flown on various combinations of engines; the pilot throttling down to idling point first one and then another. On the ground skilful control of the engines and the use of wheel brakes enables the pilot to handle the machine as easily as a small light aeroplane. In the air, safety "two-slot" wings ensure a full range of control and assist in making landings in a restricted area.

The estimated weight of the aircraft when it is fully loaded is nearly 19 tons. The maximum speed is expected to be 120.5 miles an hour; easy cruising speed approximately 105 miles an hour. The paying load—passengers, mail and urgent freight — will total in weight 8,400 pounds, an amount far greater than that borne by any other aeroplane yet built.

Comfort is a predominating note in the design. The passenger saloons attain in furnishing a standard of luxury equal to that of a pullman railcar. Two saloons, each about 17 feet long and seven feet high, are placed fore and aft of the plane of reindeer of the airscrews with a capacious luggage hold, lavatories and a refreshment bar between them. In the aft saloon, with accommodation for 20, smoking will be allowed. In flight the wants of the passengers will be served by a steward and a stewardess. The crew handling the ship on commercial flights will consist of two pilots.

Noise reduction previously thought impossible is gained in this big new craft. The saloons are outside the vertical plane of the airscrews and engines, which is the region where the greatest noise is heard. Further, there is no engine in the nose of the fuselage to transmit possible vibration and "drumming" through the cabin structure; the motors are mounted in the front (or leading) edges of the wings well away from the hull. The main portion of the fuselage is constructed of metal, eliminating noise caused by the flapping of the usual fabric cover, with an inner skin of wood. Between the metal and the wood skins is a padding of sound insulating material. The floor is thickly carpeted. At full speed the passengers should experience no more noise than the first class compartments of an express train.

Eight of these huge craft are ordered by Imperial Airways for the operation of their European and Empire services at a total cost of more than $1,000,000. The first of the fleet should be placed in service early next year on the completion of exhaustive trials. Full complement of 42 will be carried by the aircraft operating in the west, but over the long sections of the Empire mail routes towards India and South Africa which lie in semi-tropical regions the "Eastern" type, with reduced passenger space and increased room for mails and freight, will fly.

LOVE'S STRATEGM

by Francis T. McCutchen

The day Billy Graham rushed into the little suburban cottage and banged the swinging door leading to the kitchen, he almost caused Edith to drop the pan of muffins she was taking from the oven. Edith turned with cheeks flaming as he picked her up in his arms and kissed her.

"Just think, dear, I've sold my formula for two thousand dollars."

"Oh, Billy! It must be thrilling to receive your first big check."

"Yes, honey, and now I can build that little workshop on the end of the lot."

Two thousand dollars is a large sum by comparison only, but by that standard it represented a fortune to the young couple. He earned seventy-five dollars a week as a chemist in a large laboratory in the city. Somehow after Lucy paid their preparedness for the month there was little or no surplus.

The two thousand, however, was all surplus—and in the initial flush of delight he planned great and important things for his little building. He had hoped some day that he would have such a workshop where he could work at night in seclusion, testing out difficult formulas to compound. It was realization of a dream and the achievement of an ambition.

Several months passed and the little workshop became a reality. Evenings when her dishes were finished, she would take some fancy work and keep him company.

Finally he told her one evening that he wanted to be alone. He wanted to concentrate on a very difficult formula. She didn't resent this. If his work was bringing pleasure to him she was more than satisfied. Nothing mattered except that they should be happy.

It was only when he started going out alone every night that she felt slighted, and as the months passed she noticed a gradual change in him. He seemed to invent excuses to get away from her, and those evenings were long and bitter lonely ones for her. She would sit and read, waiting tensely for his footsteps, or wondering on such occasions his attitude toward her was too affectionate—as though seeking to atone for his shortcomings.

So it was that the investment came to worry her; it seemed in a fair way to drive from their home that happiness which she had so jealously guarded. She was perplexed and disappointed. At times she felt that the ingredients of their little home was more than her nerves could stand. She was bitterly hurt and humiliated. The sight of her husband spending his evenings alone in preference to her society came as a distressing misfortune, and even yet the young wife could not entirely doubt his love and devotion. She excused him on the plea that he had been swept from his feet by his love for chemistry and research.

When he arrived home as usual that night and in answer to his solicitous queries, she merely pleaded a headache and retired to her room. She told herself that under the circumstances she could not permit herself to be the first. But she was afraid for the future.

For a long time she stood at the window staring at the beam of light that streamed across the lawn from the window of the little building and at the dark outline of trees etched against the moonlit sky. Then she retired, but not to sleep. A chaos of emotions whirling within her mind seemed to sense a nightmare of terror to menace her happiness. Well into the night the young wife worried around the problem, then she relaxed as her decision was reached.

Then the next morning at breakfast she suggested that he leave the key to the building. She waited to sweep and dust. Late that afternoon with a small bundle in her hand she paused at the door of the building. She hesitated a moment, her hand on the door knob. Before moving again, she listened in silence, her ears sharply receptive for any unusual sounds that might be afoot. Apparently satisfied she silently disappeared in the doorway.

Several minutes later she dashed from the room and slammed the door. When a safe distance from the building the paused walking, hands clasped tensely. Suddenly several explosions rent the air as the chemicals took fire and burst into many colors of the rainbow. After the explosions she returned and looked at the smoking wreckage and then walked slowly indoors.

When he returned that evening she met him at the station.

"Billy, something terrible has happened. There was an explosion in the Laboratory."

"Were you hurt, dear?"

She thrilled at his voice. Not a thought for the building.

"I'm all safe, dear. But the building is ruined."

They walked hand in hand to the smoking ruins at the end of the lot.

"Edith, when you left the building, did you pull down the shades?"

"I'm not sure, dear."

"If not," said her husband. "The rays of the sun shining on some of the chemicals could have caused spontaneous combustion. Edith, dear, if anything should have happened to you, I could never forgive myself."

"Do you mean that, Billy?"

"Mean it? Oh, dearest," and his voice trembled with passion. "I'm in a cold perspiration to think of anything happening to you."

"Well, Billy. Everything came out for the best. Let's forget the past and face the future. Nothing counts but our love." and she kissed him shy.

That evening at dinner she told her husband that the insurance agent mailed a notice asking if he wanted his policy on the building renewed.

"It came only a few days ago and I forgot to tell you. "It came a few days ago and I forgot to tell you. You see the policy ran out yesterday at noon. I'm so sorry, dear."

TRINIDAD WANTS SELF-GOVERNMENT

Development May Eventually Spread to Entire British West Indies

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad—Trinidad, the most southerly island of the British West Indies, wants self-government.

A resolution asking for the appointment of a royal commission to enquire into the granting of self-government was moved and adopted in the legislative council adopted by the governor and executive council and passed on to the British secretary for the colonies.

If the British government acts favorably and appoints a commission, it is possible similar resolutions will be moved throughout the West Indies. Eventually, progressive men of the Indies visualize a new commonwealth in the Atlantic.

Trinidad with a population of 400,600, is an important producer of cocoa, sugar, and many other commodities of the Empire. If the West Indies could do their little bit in helping to build this wonderful organization there would be a great deal for them to be proud of.

The Labor Government, in 1923, pledged to give a responsible form of government to certain colonies when they asked for it and it was reiterated that the time and pressure was brought to bear on the matter by Miss Susan Lawrence in her address at the Labor Commonwealth Conference.

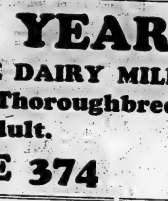
The duty of the people of these Colonies was to demand from the Imperial Government that they live up to the promise given. He quoted from the King's Speech at the opening of the Indian Round Table Conference, also referred to the fact that Mr. Morgan was going to bring the matter up in the House of Commons and assured the government that similar resolutions would be moved throughout the length and breadth of the West Indies.

Eulitones have killed more people in India than in any other country, according to available figures.

RUSSIAN WOMEN IN BAD POSITION

MONTREAL—Stephen Graham, the noted author, speaking in this city said of Soviet Life and Literature:

"With the marriage law smashed, woman in Soviet Russia is in a very bad position. She is free — to starve and to undertake the labour of bringing up a child. She has no security." The picture of Russian life presented by the speaker was to no detail an attractive one. He spoke of the importance of the "youth movement" as a factor in the Communist regime, of politically precocious boys and girls from 9 to 14 years of age terrorizing their elders by scrawling accusations on walls and doors, marching in mobs through the rooms of a house singing exultant choruses.



Even here the orphan children of Russia have been one of the greatest scandals of the Soviet regime, Mr. Graham said. These, deprived of their mothers by death or abandonment, are driven out of towns because of being a nuisance to the authorities by picking pockets or other lawlessness, and into the country to perish.

In Russian fiction, love is regarded as a disease, and promiscuity in the universities is prevalent. To such an extent that a chaste girl is regarded as a tremendous joke. Love being reated purely as the physiological and animal, the young woman is ashamed of romance — a cry sounded in a book of Romanoff short stories. In this brutalized viewpoint, she is degraded and robbed of something emotionally enriching. She becomes one of the vast army of unmarried mothers and leaves the university for the birth of her child which is then put into a crèche. It rather resembles a mother.

It is very much progress to have swarms of unmarried mothers and children who are denied the immense benefit of visible fathers", commented Mr. Graham.

"The system is made so grand and pompous, and for the sake of an idea and a system they will destroy people in thousands and ruin the happiness of the living. One feels here, again, that there is in this apparent freedom and equality of the sexes, yet it is the women who are suffering. I have read this point of view in stories, that woman has her freedom, she is an economic unit without requiring a man to make her so, but there is a breaking feeling that they want homes for the home is woman's institution, although in Russia it is regarded as a terrible survival of a dreary past.

A tremendous change in the personnel of the Russian city is seen in fiction, said the lecturer. The middle class has shrunk to a small and rebellious element, the working class dominates. The educated class which in the old regime try to cling together, but are not allowed to do so by the Soviet Government. They are in hours herded, cated according to the number of persons in a family. A man, and wife and child room in one room, and the bathroom is shared by 20 or 30 people. Working class and educated people have refused to have children but the others have them in swarms. One can speak only of "fairly clean" people in discussing Russia, the lecturer remarked. Stealing himself six years after the revolution wore the same soiled uniform.

DOWNING STREET NOW BECOMING AN ART CENTRE

LONDON — Mrs. Philip Snowden, wife of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, recently held a private exhibition of art at No. 11 Downing street, the official residence of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, next door to the Prime Minister's official residence. No. 10, and thereby inaugurated something new in artistic circles. Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald is interested in paintings and in living artists, and he showed more than passing interest in Mrs. Snowden's innovation.

The artists whose work was on exhibition are Fred Elcraten, well known both for his oil paintings and water colors, and his son, Hilary Bratten Trew. The reception rooms at No. 11 were filled with oil paintings, water colors and sculpture, the work solely of Elcraten Senior and Stratton Junior.

NEED HEALER FOR MENTAL DISEASE

LONDON—The need of mental healers for diseases of the mind was stressed at a recent conference here of the Central Association for Mental Welfare, and the difference between the present-day attitude of the people toward these afflicted with diseased minds and the former idea of disgrace attaching to such was pointed out.

Dr. A. T. W. Forrester, Medical Superintendent at Warwick County Mental Hospital, declared: There is far less disgrace in some mental diseases than in gout. Mental diseases hitherto had been looked upon as a disgrace to be associated with high walls and locked doors and spoken about in a whisper. Dr. Forrester said:

Rt. Hon. Arthur Greenwood, Minister of Health, said: We are at the beginning of a new stage in dealing with this problem. The people are beginning to realize that mental disease is a disease with which the human mind and human care ought to be able to grapple.

Dr. Coulson Williams said a large class of the community was suffering from sick minds for which medicine could do lamentably little. There must be developed in the medical profession people with a knowledge of psychiatry and human nature, and endowed with vigorous and robust personalities, who would have to develop into mind healers, Dr. Williams said.

LORD SANKEY IS HIGH STEWARD

LONDON — Lord Sankey, the Lord Chancellor, has been elected high steward of Oxford University in succession to the late Earl of Birkenhead. The office is reminiscent of the time when the university was governed by a code apart from that of the common law. As officially defined it will be Lord Sankey's duty to hear and determine criminal cases of the gravest kind, such as treason and felony, at the mandate of the chancellor and according to the laws of the land and privileges of the university whenever the accused is a scholar or privileged person resident within the precincts of the university. For his services Lord Sankey will receive the sum of $25 a year.

A Remedy for Earache. — To have the earache is to endure torture. The ear is a delicate organ and few care to deal with it, considering it work for a doctor. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil offers a simple remedy. A few drops upon a piece of lint or medicated cotton and placed in the ear will do much in relieving pain.

FURS A NECESSITY

The success of any business lies in the market demand. It might have been expected that the existing conditions of world-wide financial depression fur warming would suffer heavily. For some reason, however, this has not been the case for good furs, even at the late winter sales, brought fair prices. From this it would appear that furs are more or less a necessity, particularly in the northern countries. —Annual Report, Federal Department of Agriculture.

STIRLING

Stirling, Jan. 8 (By Mail)—Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Reid are spending a month in Toronto.

Mr. George Whitty, a well-known and highly respected citizen of Stirling for many years, passed away very suddenly of heart failure, about 9.30 Sunday morning. Deceased had been in failing health for several years, subject to heart attacks yet the end came very unexpectedly, his only daughter, Mrs. F. Rashotte of Tweed had been visiting her parents for a few days and had only left for home about fifteen minutes before death came. He leaves his sorrowing wife, one son, W. J. Whitty in Stirling and the daughter, Mrs. Rashotte of Tweed and nine Rashotte grandchildren. In religion a Roman Catholic, a Liberal in politics, of a quiet retiring disposition he won many friends who sincerely sympathize with the bereaved family in their deep sorrow. One son Vincent paid the supreme sacrifice in the Great War which left a deep feeling of sorrow yet with a note of gladness in the hearts of the family that he should die for such a glorious cause.

The funeral took place on Wednesday morning, Jan. 7th.

There passed to the Great Beyond the person of the late Mr. James Ralph after a lingering illness for several months duration. In fact, it is over a year since he was able to remain in his shop all day. The deceased had been in the furniture and undertaking business for upwards of forty years, when he accumulated considerable wealth. A man of strict integrity and solid Christian character he was most highly respected by all with whom he came in contact. A Presbyterian in religion and a Conservative in politics he never strove to take a prominent part in public life. The deceased was twice married his first wife being Miss Ashley of West Huntingdon who died many years ago. His second wife who is his sole survivor was Miss Minnie Block of Stirling and she has the sympathy of a host of friends.

THE DAY WAS SAVED

When Helen couldn't find the recipe she was heart-broken. It was Tom's special favorite ever since he was a little boy and nothing else would do for the anniversary dinner she had been planning all week. The whole day seemed spoiled.

Then she thought of the telephone. What a happy inspiration. A few minutes later she was telling her woe to Tom's mother, eighty miles away, and sure enough Tom's mother knew the recipe. She ought to, for she had invented it.

So the day was saved — all for a call that cost less than a movie.

In any emergency — great or small — nothing can equal the telephone. Out-of-town calls are so easy to make and so inexpensive. And they are quicker now than ever before.

Evening rates on "Anyone" (station-to-station) calls now begin at 7 p.m. Night rates begin at 8.30 p.m. Just give "Long "Distance" the number you want — it speeds up the service. If you don't know the distant number, "Information" will look it up for you.

Ten Year Lease is Taken on Property — Quota Regulations on Films

Windsor, Jan. 10—Windsor may win recognition as the Hollywood of Canada through its selection as studio headquarters of an important new producing company which is being incorporated by big motion picture interests in New York to produce British-made films for service in the larger companies in the United States.

Announcement to that affect was made here last night by Fred W. Martin, Canadian promoter of the Detroit-Windsor tunnel, on his return from New York where he has spent the week working on a deal to bring the new film company to Windsor.

While in New York Mr. Martin secured the signatures of men who are to be responsible to the new concern for a 10-year lease on the premises on the east side of Ouellette Avenue near Erie Street, known as the Marlborough building. Work of remodelling the property to meet the conditions of the lease is to start at once, it is announced.

May Employ 500

Occupancy by the Canadian producing company, a name for which has not yet been definitely selected will begin April 1, and soon after that date the company will begin work on the first of 12 films which it already has instructions to produce, it is said.

The belief of the men who sponsor the movement, according to Martin, is that the company will start operations with a staff of at least 500 employees.

The decision of the New York motion picture producers to enter the producing field in Canada, it is explained, is due to a provision of the British tariff which places a quota regulation on American advertising. The United Kingdom, the provision being that for each six films which a company in the United States is allowed to bring into Great Britain, it must bring in one produced on British soil.

The purpose of the new organization is to meet this requirement, for a number of the large firms in the United States, each one of which, according to the plan, will receive its British quota of films from the Windsor concern.

Gassaway Interested

British Gaumont and British Gaumont of Canada, both producing companies with head offices in New York will be largely connected with the new company, in which Arthur Lee of the Gaumont firm is to be a director. According to Martin, there have been reports for the last week that the Gaumont Company plans to invade the Canadian industrial field and has been speaking leases on theatres in several of the larger cities including Windsor.

The promoters of the plan were in Windsor ten days ago as guests of Martin and were unanimous in their choice of the city as a location, their decision being influenced not only by available picture settings and climate, as compared with other parts of Canada, but by the consideration that in Detroit they will be able to secure a very large part of the talent that will be required.

ANCESTOR OF MONTREAL RESIDENT WON GRANTS OF LAND FOR LOYALISTS

Montreal, Jan. 10—Descendants of the man to whom the United Empire Loyalists owed their recognition by the home Government, and of others prominent in the early history of Canada, Mrs. Mount Duckett, who resides on Jeanne Mance street, gave some interesting facts of her own family history in an interview recently.

The first member of the family in Canada is mentioned in a document in the city archives which gives the name of Dr. Philip Mount as a witness in an accident case. Dr. Mount came out from England in a British war sloop in the early 1760's. He replaced a surgeon as surgeon to the Hessian regiment.

Extermination of rats by virus is being used with good effects in England: war against rodents which are estimated to cause $40,000,000 damage every year.

CHANGES IN CABINET?

Hon. R. J. Cooke, Minister in the Ontario cabinet and M.P.P. for North Hastings, is prominently mentioned as a successor to C. A. Magrath, Chairman of the Hydro Board, who is seeking his release. Others whose names have been connected with the post are, the present Attorney General, Hon. W. H. Price and Sir William Hearst, former Prime Minister. It is mooted around Queen's Park that should Mr. Cooke be given the post, W. H. Ireland, M.P.P., for West Hastings and Chief Conservative Whip, will succeed Mr. Cooke as a member of the cabinet. Should Hon. Mr. Cooke be given the Magrath post, a by-election will result in North Hastings Further developments and Premier Henry's answer will be awaited with interest by the general public particularly in this district.

KIWANIS TO ESTABLISH BRANCH SEA CADET CORPS IN THE CITY

Twenty-five Recruits Will be Taken on For Training Purposes

Organization of a sea cadet corps at Belleville under the direction of the Kiwanis Club is proceeding apace. At a meeting of the committee of F. C. McLaurin, C. H. Frederick, John McIntosh, O. H. Griffin and J. E. Bateman last evening, officers were elected Mr. Mclntosh becomes president, Mr. Griffin secretary and Mr. Bateman, treasurer.

The question of appointing an experienced instructor was left in abeyance until after Tuesday. The committee will be in Toronto and will confer with officers of Demeaure corps of that city and receive final instructions regarding the formation of the local corps.

"We shall in the course of time advertise for recruits," said Mr. Griffin to The Ontario Intelligencer today, "and give details of height and build required in applicants." There will re about twenty-five in the - sea cadets corps at first and this number will be increased.

All winter training will be done at Belleville in the armouries and summer training will be on ship.

At an early date uniforms will be procured.

The commanding officer has not yet been appointed.

CHILDREN DEVOURED BOX OF KIDNEY PILLS

Brockville, Ont., Jan. 10 — But for prompt medical attention, Isabel Hess, aged three, and Frederick Strader, aged two, both of Williamsburg, would probably have died as a result of having eaten half a box of kidney pills which they found while at play in the store kept by the father of the latter child. The children were taken seriously ill and early medical attention saved their lives.

The American Chemical Society is trying to find out how much chemistry the house-wife knows, so that it can plan a suitable course of dieting impure foods.

Johannesburg, South Africa, Jan. 10—South Africans for some time have been objecting from the old days of numerous "national" societies in the Union, which strikingly indicated the changing character of the population. The Caledonians, the Cambrian Society, the Cornish Association, the Lancashire and Yorkshire Association, and the Irish Association were once prominent in the social life of Johannesburg. Quite recently the home of the Lancashire and Yorkshire Association was sold and its membership dissolved. Little is heard of the rest.

The explanation lies in the fact that the British immigrants have come to South Africa in recent years, while the South African-born population has been steadily increasing. Persons born in the Union outnumber those born outside by six to one.

The strongest patriotic society in the country is still the Sons of England. In the Transvaal alone it has 34 lodges all active. There is no sign of weakness in its organization, although some explain this on the grounds that this society has, in the past few years, acquired a certain political complexion that has helped to keep it together.

LIBERAL LEADER DEMANDS PROBE OF PROSECUTIONS

M. F. Hepburn Says Attorney General of Ontario Must Explain

MAIDEN SPEECH

Will Institute Investigation Into Northern Ontario Development Finds

Prescott, Jan. 10—Pledging his party to demand the investigation of Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney General and the appointment of a Royal Commission to investigate the prosecutions of stock brokers in Ontario, Mitchell F. Hepburn, recently appointed Ontario Liberal leader, delivered his maiden speech here last night and fired the opening salvos of the Grenville by-election.

Charging that Northern Ontario is "writhing in the throes of a Tammany octopus created by the partisan expenditure of northern development funds" and demanding an audit of all disbursements by the department during the past ten years if the Liberal administration is returned to power, Mr. Hepburn addressed several hundred electors following the unanimous selection of Percy Barnard as Liberal candidate.

Mr. Barnard Speaks

Mr. Barnard, school mate of the Liberal leader and prominent miller of Spencerville, was also unanimously chosen by the crowd which partially filled the Town Hall. S. C. Tweed, M.P.P. of Leeds and Grenville, endorsed the gathering on the recent pronouncement of Hon. E. A. Dunlop, branding it "tyrocracy."

"You know, everybody knows, of the maladministration of the Attorney General's department," stated Mr. Hepburn, "and although the Royal Commission into the recent stock brokerage prosecutions, which in all probability will be instituted, has not instituted had not the attack been led by W. E. N. Sinclair, the Liberal leader.

"The latest thing we have seen has been the fining of stock brokers $10 per order for restitution was made; no attempt to get the fine the amount they had received in brokerage commissions was instituted. They were allowed to take those ill-gotten gains and carry them anywhere, even to another country. Then they were fined.

"So great has been the abuse that public confidence has been shaken, was completely undermined in the department which should be kept above reproach. The resignation of the Attorney General will demand, but the Prime Minister must not escape his just share of the responsibility.

"Mr. Price was a member of those cabinet council meetings at which the procedure of the Attorney General's department was discussed. He was fully cognisant of every step taken. He knew all its actions and decisions.

"Brokerage," he continued, "if not all. Recently we read the probe of the A. R. and the suggestion of the commissioner that prosecutions should follow. It was within the jurisdiction of the Attorney General to prosecute. Let he withdrawn from office and appeal it was left to Ottawa to step in out of its sphere and spend the money to obtain convictions."

PICTON CENTENARIAN MARKS HIS BIRTHDAY

KINGSTON, Jan. 10. — Thomas Weir of Picton today celebrated his one hundredth birthday anniversary.

Mr. Wright is enjoying fair health and is able to walk the quarter of a mile to the post office from his home.

He was born in Scotland and coming to Canada with his parents when two years old. He spent the greater part of his time on his farm at Sophiasburg and recalls the days when Prince Edward county was mostly covered with woods, and wild animals were common.

HEAVY TIMBER CUT

Bancroft, January 10.—It is gratifying to see a nice cut of timber being landed in town. Mr. Ed. Maxwell is buying a quantity of timber products and will set a mill here in the spring. Quite a number of farmers have signified their intentions of bringing in considerable custom sawing. Mr. Herron Welmsetr has a cut of 800 logs ready to land. The setting of a mill here will tend to give labor to several men who would other wise find it slack enough next spring. Mr. Maxwell expects to have a cut of approximately seventy-five thousand feet.

UNKNOWN MAN BEAT SUCCESSFUL RETREAT FROM PROVINCIAL POLICE ACROSS ICE OF THE BAY OF QUINTE

Constable Hammer Injured his Wrist in Chase Into Prince Edward

NO SHOTS FIRED

Abandoned Car at Cemetery and Sprinted Away from Law's Clutches

Gathering gloom and a heavy mist, materially assisted an unidentified man to escape from justice last night as he sped over the ice of the Bay of Quinte to be picked up by a passing motorist and whisked away to an unknown destination. The car which he was driving and which was abandoned on the King's Highway near the Belleville cemetery after the Provincial Police had given chase to it proved to be owned by the police and the disposition of same will be made as soon as the Provincial Police headquarters in Toronto rules.

Provincial Constable Hammer, who pursued Campbell were detailed for the investigation, Constable Hammer sustaining a severely sprained wrist in the chase which took place on the shores of the Bay of Quinte. He continued until it was definitely established that the man had escaped the clutches of the law. No shots were fired during the manhunt.

It is believed this man is wanted and that the car in his possession was a stolen one, although definite information on this point cannot be secured until the authorities in Toronto have made a check on all the stolen cars reported. This man, driving a Studebaker coupe, license number U-4999, stopped at a Brighton gas service station to replenish the gas tank. Two gallons were placed in the tank by the attendant at the station but the man drove westerly without making payment. A number of bystanders and the attendants followed the car west but at short intervals they could see the man reaching in his pockets and apparently trying or leading them to believe he was getting a gun.

Thinking discretion the better part of valor the party returned to Brighton and reported the whole incident to Provincial Constable Mcintyre.

The information was immediately passed on to the Provincial Police headquarters in Belleville and Inspector Lougheed detailed Provincial Constables Hammer and Campbell to make and investigation.

Between Highway

Apparently the man after the chase at Brighton was discontinued, retraced his journey, proceeding easterly, as the two constables driving west passed the car in question. Going a little distance the car in question suddenly turned their car around and followed the chase, catching up and passing it near the Belleville cemetery. In order to stop its progress the police car was placed across the road but the wanted man pulled to the ditch and jumped, leaving the engine running. Provincial Constable Hammer sprained his wrist as he fell when alighting from the car, but Campbell picked up the chase which continued through the cemetery and out on the Bay of Quinte ice. Constable Hammer took the police car and drove around over the Bay ice proceeding westerly along the Prince Edward county shoreline.

The wanted man arrived across the bay first, with Campbell a short distance behind. Night was fast gathering and a heavy mist hung over the Bay of Quinte. The man scrambled up the bank and hailing a passing motorist, got in the car and was whisked away in a westerly direction. Campbell was not close enough to obtain the number of the car or to get a description of the driver of the car. A search of the immediate vicinity failed to disclose his whereabouts and further investigation at Rednersville later in the evening brought no further results. Coming back across the bay the police proceeded to the west end of the city and brought the car into a local garage, where it is now in the custody of the Provincial Police.

HEART WOUND WAS STITCHED UP

Atlanta a., Jan. 10—Jimmy Hammond, negro, was taken to Grady Hospital yesterday with an inch-wide knife wound in his heart. Physicians detected a sign of life. Quickly they dissected two ribs and laid the heart bare.

One surgeon deftly closed the wound with his fingers, synchronizing the pressure with the barely perceptible beating of the heart. Then he took four quick stitches. Today the patient was conscious, critically ill, but given an even chance to recover.

FORMER FOXBORO RESIDENT DIES

Dr. Charles Jose, veterinary surgeon, who for many years followed his profession in Foxboro, and is well known to many of the older residents in that community, passed away at his home in Kirkton, Perth county, yesterday after a lengthy illness. Dr. Jose left Foxboro ten or twelve years ago to take up his residence in Kirkton where he and his son, Gerrance Jose, also a veterinary surgeon carried on the profession. The late Dr. Jose married Ida Gay, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Gay, and there survives besides his widow, two sons, Dr. Gerrance Jose of Kirkton and Dr. Jack Jose, M.D., of St. Mary's. The funeral will be held from his late residence on Monday and interment in St. Mary's. Many old friends and relatives from Foxboro will attend the obsequies.

BADLY INJURED AS HOME BURNS

Husband and Young Wife Fought Blaze Which Destroyed Building

St. Thomas, Jan. 10—Terribly burned while fighting a fire in their home at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, Lloyd Vaughn, aged 25 and his wife, aged 22 are near death in the Memorial Hospital. Physicians stated that their chances for recovery are slight.

Vaughn rose yesterday morning in his night attire and threw some kerosene on the fire. A portion of the fluid fell to the floor and took fire. Vaughn then, especially to check it and his young bride hurried to his side. Together they put out the fire but in doing so had their clothes burned completely off them.

Vaughn ran outside and stood ankle deep in the snow, crying in an agonized voice for assistance. Charles Crane and his wife responded. Mrs. Vaughn was wrapped in a blanket. Practically the whole of her body from her knees up had been burned. Vaughn himself was badly burned across the chest, face and hands. Their injuries have proven far more serious than was at first believed.

HYDRO POST FOR J. ROBERT COOKE THOUGHT LIKELY

To Resign from Legislature Following Session, it is Thought

MAGUIRE AS DEPUTY

West Hastings Member Wm. H. Ireland, Probably Will Enter Cabinet

TORONTO, an. 10.— Hon. John Robert Cooke, Minister without portfolio in the Henry Cabinet, and Vice-Chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, will, it is understood, be elevated to the chairmanship of the Commission when Chairman A. G. Magrath, present head, retires, says the Globe today.

Premier Henry last night confirmed reports that Mr. Magrath had written him expressing a request to be relieved of his duties, but gave no inkling as to when the Government proposed to act in this regard. That move, however, is believed to be only a matter of days.

Maguire as Vice-Chairman

With Mr. Cooke's elevation, C. Alfred Maguire, who is the municipalities' representative on the Hydro, will be promoted to the vice-chairmanship, the vacancy which Mr. Magrath's retirement will create on the board will not likely be filled until after the session, it is understood, when another shuffle of the Queen's Park cabinet will, it is reported, be carried out.

At that time Mr. Cooke will, it is understood, resign from the Government, and give his full time to the Hydro chairmanship. Reported plans then call for the entry into the Ministry of William H. Ireland, M.P.P., West Hastings, and Chief Conservative Whip, and his immediate taking over of the job of representing the Government on the Hydro, which Mr. Cooke has filled for seven years. Such an arrangement would help to restore to Eastern Ontario the loss in Cabinet representation she has suffered with the retirement from politics of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson and Hon. Peter Smith, losing in Mr. Cooke's reported pending withdrawal.

Hastings Member

Hon. John R. Cooke was first elected to the Legislature as member for North Hastings in 1911, and has since been re-elected in 1914, 1919, 1923 and 1929. Three on those re-elections were by acclamation. At the last Provincial election, in 1929, when he ran the riding nominated him, it is understood, before his own Conservative Party did. In two different elections four subdivisions of the same parishes township gave him every vote. He is one of the most popular Ministers in the Provincial cabinet, a forceful champion of the great Hydro undertaking he has for so long served; and a doughty debater who, during the 1929 campaign when Premier Ferguson was confined to his home through illness stepped into the platform breach, took off the Premier's shoulders several very important speaking engagements, and there displayed flights of oratory that since have marked him as one of the most effective speakers in Provincial life today.

The Mail and Empire, states Sir William Hearst's name is also mentioned for the chairmanship and adds:

Several leading men have been suggested as possible successors to Mr. Magrath. It is now stated that there is a wide possibility of the post going to Hon. J. R. Cooke, M.P.P., for North Hastings, Mr. Cooke has been Government representative on the Hydro Commission since 1929 and therefore has had a large experience in the direction of the great public ownership enterprise.

"If he were appointed to the chairmanship, Mr. Cooke of course would have to resign his seat in the Legislature as well as his place in the Cabinet, where he is minister without portfolio. North Hastings,however, is much too safe a Conservative seat to be overturned by the new by - composition about opening it for a by-election."

BUSINESS COLLEGE HEARS J. O. HERITY

On Friday afternoon, Mr. J. O. Herity, Manager of the Chamber of Commerce gave an address to the students and staff of Ontario Business College, which was particularly interesting and of great interest. Beginning with a reference to the numerous attempts to climb Mount Everest, the highest mountain peak in the world, Mr. Herity proceeded to a discussion of humanity's persistent attempts through the centuries to scale the mountain of knowledge. To illustrate his various points, he cited numerous scientific discoveries made by great men of the past, and the present time. The speaker revealed a wide knowledge of his subject and his remarks were an inspiration to those who heard him. The appreciation and thanks of the school were expressed to Mr. Herity by Messrs. Jack Bekell and Victor Wensley.

PRICE OF EGGS SHOWS DECLINE

Wholesalers and Shippers Say Market is Not Encouraging

Eggs were cheaper today and prices ranged from 27 to 32 cents on the local market. Circling of eggs on the market is not very close, the sole effort evidently being to have stricter, where a shortage is reported. Most of the eggs sold at about 27 and 28 cents for finals.

Wholesalers and shippers reported today it definite that the prices were as follows: selects 30c, firsts 25c, seconds 20c. "The egg market is very unsettled," said a dealer today. The outlook for the egg trade does not appear very encouraging.

Butter sold at the rate of two pounds for 65 cents. Chickens brought from one dollar upwards each for fair sized birds. Geese were offered at two dollars each. The quantity of fowl was not large.

Sauerkraut sold at ten cents a quart.

Apples sold as follows McIntosh $4 per bushel; Delicious $2.50 to $3.00 per bushel; Talman Sweets $2.50 to $3..00 per bushel. Boies $3.00 to $2.50 per bushel; russets $1.75 to $2.00 per bushel; cooking apples $1 to $1.25 per bushel.

Vegetables were unchanged in quotations today from the ruling prices of previous Saturdays.

PROSPECT GROWS BRIGHT IN COAL FIELD STRIKES

Believe Miners Will be Back at Posts on Monday Next

London, Jan. 9—Resumption of work in the South Wales coal field on Monday is confidently expected, following a meeting of the miners' leaders, at which the basis for discussion between the owners and the workers was approved.

The new formula, it is understood, provides for reopening the pits on the 7-8 hour day without a reduction in wages, pending a new agreement and the establishment of a Conciliation Board with an independent chairman, to negotiate the terms of the new agreement.

A conference of owners and miners will be held today at Cardiff and the Government is expected to see to it that no further hitch occurs. At a meeting of mine owner and men the operators took occasion to brand Prime Minister MacDonald's speech in which he placed a large part of the blame for the coal dispute on owners' shoulders as "astonishing."

The Textile Trade Federation of the Northern Counties met at Blackburn and decided to support the strikers. This caused fears that the strike might spread throughout the industry. Discussion of the threatened strike is already in swing, are meeting on Saturday and important developments are expected.

A meeting of owners and men in the boot and shoe industry failed to achieve conciliation. Negotiations will be resumed on January 21. The workers want a weekly minimum wage of $15 and the employers insist on the present minimum of $14 to $13. It is generally felt that, eventually, the wage will remain at $14 a week.

Believe Miners Will be Back at Posts on Monday Next

London, Jan. 9—Resumption of work in the South Wales coal field on Monday is confidently expected, following a meeting of the miners' leaders, at which the basis for discussion between the owners and the workers was approved.

The new formula, it is understood, provides for reopening the pits on the 7-8 hour day without a reduction in wages, pending a new agreement and the establishment of a Conciliation Board with an independent chairman, to negotiate the terms of the new agreement.

A conference of owners and miners will be held today at Cardiff and the Government is expected to see to it that no further hitch occurs. At a meeting of mine owner and men the operators took occasion to brand Prime Minister MacDonald's speech in which he placed a large part of the blame for the coal dispute on owners' shoulders as "astonishing."

The Textile Trade Federation of the Northern Counties met at Blackburn and decided to support the strikers. This caused fears that the strike might spread throughout the industry. Discussion of the threatened strike is already in swing, are meeting on Saturday and important developments are expected.

A meeting of owners and men in the boot and shoe industry failed to achieve conciliation. Negotiations will be resumed on January 21. The workers want a weekly minimum wage of $15 and the employers insist on the present minimum of $14 to $13. It is generally felt that, eventually, the wage will remain at $14 a week.

Roslin

Roslin, Jan. 10 (By Mail)—A very pleasant evening was spent in the Orange Hall, 8th Line of Tyendinaga on Monday evening, Jan. 5th, when the members of the L.O.B.A. Eastern Star Lodge No. 94, and their families gathered to honor one of their members who was married on Dec. 25th, Mrs. John Knight (nee Lila Sayers). The evening was spent in cards and dancing, about 10.30 the W.M., Mrs. W. Alford called the company to order and asked the bride and groom to take chairs on the platform, Mrs. Robert Copeland read the following address and Mrs. Alford presented the bride with a dozen community plate tea spoons. Both Mr. and Mrs. Knight replied thanking them for the gift. Mr. Knight in his remarks expressed his opinion very highly of the principles of the Orange Order of which he was proud to say both he and his wife belonged. After which "For they are jolly good fellows," was sung. Lunch was then served, dancing was continued until 12.30 when all departed for their homes wishing the bride and groom a long voyage. The address was as follows:

DEAR LILA:

We have gathered here tonight to spend one more pleasant evening with you and to offer our best wishes for you best future happiness we will not think we are losing you as a member of our Lodge. Although we regret very much owing to the distance to your new home, we cannot expect to have you to our meetings, as often as we should like but we feel you will still have that keen interest in our beloved order to attend when possible.

You have proven yourself to be a willing and earnest worker for our lodge and we would like to express our appreciation of you by asking you to accept these spoons as a little remembrance of the evenings spent together and the members of the L.O.B.A. Eastern Star Lodge No. 94.

Trusting that you and your husband may be long spel to enjoy the comforts of life and hoping to have you with us as often as you can.

Signed on behalf of this lodge, W. M. Sister Annie Alford, R. S., Sister Lena Copeland.

UNADDRESSED PARCEL REACHES DESTINATION

Ottawa, Jan. 10—There have been many instances of mail being properly delivered when improperly addressed; cases where a letter has figured around the world before reaching the consignee; tales of letters reaching a person when the postal officials had but a nickname as a clue to his identity. But during the Christmas rush so recently past the Ottawa Postal workers performed a feat that Sister and others blushingly take a back seat—they safely delivered a parcel that had no address whatever.

By bad remembrance Little Sarah Kelman at the prospect of being able to send her high school teacher a Christmas present. In fact in so encompassed her as she wrapped the gift that she forgot to address the gaily bedecked parcel.

When the undestined package was brought to Assistant Postmaster W. H. Mitt he exercised his perspicacity of opening the bundle and found a greeting card "From Sarah to Miss Fonda." A telephone directory and diligent research did the rest.

The man who always wants something for nothing can always get it in a free fight.

BEGINS TUESDAY

STIRLING AGAIN DEFEATED MADOC BY A 1-0 SCORE

"Ki" Little Blazed Only Shot Past Hulin on Pass from Davis

ARENA PACKED

First Two Periods Were Scoreless With Play Even — Barkey Was Hurt

Stirling continued their winning ways in the Trent Valley Hockey League at the expense of the Madoc team last night. Right in the take miners' metropolis, the Stirling team handed the homesters another trimming by the same identical score which they defeated the same club last Friday night, 1-0. There was little to choose between the two teams last night, the play being even throughout, and for two periods neither team could bulge the twine.

Two minutes after the third period opened, "Ki" Little, flanking "Kenny" Davis, tore in through the Madoc defence, and the latter whipped a smart pass to Little inside no mistake and whistled the gimmie into the opposite corner of the net beyond Hulin's reach.

It was a pretty goal and it appears as though the two Little boys who were imported from Oshawa, are keeping Stirling in the hunt, as it was a brother who scored the winning goal in the first game between the two teams.

Madoc arena was packed for the game and excitement was keen throughout, although the home fans fully expected their goal to come through with a victory last night. The game was studded with good fast hockey, although the checking was remarkably close and each man appeared to be well marked and it was seldom that they managed to get away more than a few feet before someone was tackling them.

For two periods the teams milled about with both goals in constant danger and only stellar work on the part of the two goalies, Hulin of Madoc and Morton of Stirling, prevented a score. Then Little drove the hoot-host into the cage and the Stirling fans went into a frenzy.

Madoc tried hard to even it up but the red and whites managed to stave off the bombardment until the final gun. On one occasion "Norm" Johnston managed to get through the defensive cordon only to have Hughie Morton's arm come out to make one of his spectacular stops.

L'Heureux, the little Frenchman from Port Arthur played a smart game for Madoc and was one of the most aggressive players on the ice. McGuire and Johnston turned in good games with Andrews and Barkey giving Hulin, the half-pint goalie, the best of protection. The latter was in great form.

Davis, Little brothers, Beatty and Ingram were all in the limelight with Davis being especially effective. Davis' poke-check was working to perfection and he was always dangerous and handed the pass which resulted in the winning goal. "Happy" Day of Belleville, was in the Stirling line-up and played splendid hockey while he was on the ice. Bill Whalley, member of the Stirling team handled the squad nicely from the bench while Father Meagher, manager of the Madoc team, kept the boys going at top speed.

The first period was fast with Madoc having a slight edge on the play, Henderson and H. Ingram were given the penalties in this chukker. The second period was marked by an injury to Barkey, Madoc defence man who went out like a light and was carried off. Andrews, the home defence man was sent to the guillotine twice in this period.

Barkey returned at the opening of the final canto and was greeted with prolonged cheering. Then Little got the goal. The remainder of the period saw the teams battle it out hammer and tongs with Ingram and McGuire going to the boose-gow when they decided to settle a little private feud by methods of their own. Courpyre, of Peterboro, referred a good game.

Stirling—Goal, Morton; defence, Ingram and Beatty; centre Ken. Davis; wings, T. Little, C. Little; subs, Day, White, J. Ackers.

Madoc—Goal, Hulin; defence, Andrews and Barkey; centre, L'Heureux; wings, Johnston, McGuire; subs, Moon, Ruper, Henderson.

LOCALS TO PLAY TRENTON SQUAD

Intermediates Will Make Their Bow to the Fans in Belleville Monday

The hockey programme for the coming week is a strenuous one and one local team, the Intermediates, will be either in the running or not by next Saturday. They have two important games to contest, one in Belleville on Monday night with Trenton and the other in Kingston, with the Frontenacs on Wednesday. A strong, well trained team has been collected by the coach to compete in this series, and they should have little difficulty in winning their section. Trenton is not reputed as a strong squad, while Kingston are relying on boys of City League calibre to carry the colors.

Buskard will be between the posts when the teams go into action, with Alex Weir and Murney Green the defense of last year, helping out. Henry Canning will start in centre ice with Baker and Buck as his wing men. The Algonkist line has not been officially chosen but they will be able to help carry the burden and not weaken the team when in action. Trenton team is not unknown to the fans. It will be headed by George Pillon and there is no better prospect for a hockey player this district. Along with him will be "Rube" Schensel, Steenburg, Rosenplaut and others, who have many times performed in this city as juniors and two or three have helped Belleville teams win games. There is intense but friendly rivalry between these two towns and no doubt Trenton will accompany their team with a large contingent. The prices have been set within the reach of all and no doubt a large crowd will watch the boys perform.

ROWDEN STARRED FOR OSHAWA IN GROUP FIXTURE

Oshawa, Jan. 10—Oshawa C. H. A. intermediates won their third straight victory when they easily defeated Bowmanville intermediates here last night by a score of 8 to 3. The victory strengthened their position at the head of the group.

Doc Rowden, star Oshawa right wing player, was easily the most outstanding player on the ice, while Houck and Elliot were also good. Hooper and Jamieson for Bowmanville, were quite effective.

Bowmanville were inclined to rely too much on individual efforts, while the locals combined smartly.

Oshawa scored the first goal after five minutes when Carl Houck, on a lone rush, beat James with a tricky shot. Two minutes later Elliott made the score two for Oshawa. Bowmanville tried hard and play speeded up and a short time before the period ended Jamieson picked up a loose puck making the score 2 to 1.

McDonald opened the scoring in the second period for the locals when he scored on Low's rebound. Four minutes later Piper, for the visitors, netted on a long shot. Then Houck banged home his second goal after taking a pass from Gilfillen. Shortly after Doc Rowden fooled the Bowmanville defence and slipped the disc into the net. On a scramble in front of the Bowmanville net Conlin scored, this period ending Oshawa 4, Bowmanville 2.

The last period was a repetition of the first two, Oshawa having a decided edge over their rivals and the game ended, Oshawa 8, Bowmanville 3.

Bowmanville—Goal, James; defence, Chapman and Hooper; centre, Cundlar; wings, Piper and Jamieson; subs, Jackman, Rundle and Grant.

Oshawa—Goal, Vic Burr; defence, Elliott and Densen; centre, Bill Conlin; wings McDonald and Rowden; subs, Gilfillen and Robinson

Referee—Ernie Parker, Toronto.

WOODSTOCK EASY WINNERS OVER PRESTON SQUAD

Woodstock, Jan. 10—Preston offered little opposition to Woodstock here last night in an O.H.A. intermediate fixture, the Red and Whites winning by 8 to 1. The Mineral Springs aggregation came down minus "Gunner" Elliott and Clark. Just why they did not put in an appearance the management could not explain, but the youngsters in their place, Shanta, Bettie and Ross, as substitutes, put up a stiff opposition to the Red and Whites for the first twenty minutes, but they faded in the second and Woodstock came back strong and before the period ended had the score 4 to 1 in their favor.

Preston—Goal, Turov; defence Schmuck and Morrow, centre, Circuirc; wings, Gilbey and Gabilitas; subs, Shantz, Bettie and Ross.

Woodstock—Goal, Lynch; defence, Lampert and Whalley; centre, Ferris; wings, Marshall and Darragh; subs, Thrower, Bell and Grant.

Referee—Wm. Easson, Stratford.

JUNIOR PETES EASY WINNERS

Peterboro, Jan. 10—Peterboro hockey Club juniors uncorked a surprise at the expense of the St. John's team in last night's clash between the two local junior O.H.A. teams, winning handily by 8 to 0.

The young Petes ran in four goals in the first period, stood off a determined St. John's offensive in the second and in the final 20 minutes added two more to their lead while the Saints could not beat Polly for a single marker.

The Petes' win was earned, although their superiority was not as great as the score would indicate for the Saints made many dangerous moves. Polly's great goaltending keeping them off the score sheet. Meagher and Jones scored two goals each for the winners in the first period while Wood and Tuck registered the counters in the third period.

For the winners, Folly, Wood, Meagher and Jones were the stars while Ellis was the pick of the St. John's team with Cuthberson and Calladine also prominent. Teams:

Peterboro Hockey Club—Goal, Polly; defence, Wood and McCulloch; centre, Epps; wings, Meagher and Joces; subs Scollard Tuck and Thirnbeck.

St. John's—Goal, Wesley; defence, White and Howe; centre, Calladine, wings Gardner and Cuthberts.n; subs, Milliken, Ellis and Merrett.

Referee—Elwood Coombs Lindsay.

LOCAL BOWLERS STAR IN "Y" ALLEYS

In the Ladies' Afternoon League two new teams to this league played and the result was that Ever Readys took four points from the Aviators. Considering the fact that the Aviators are nearly all beginners they made an excellent showing and will improve right along. High bowlers were Mrs. Jordan and Mrs. Cooper (even) for the Ever Readys and Mrs. Turnbull for the Aviators.

In the Teachers' Inter-group game, O.S.D. "A" got revenge on Queen Alexandra's by taking three points to one in a very even game. A glance at the scores will show several nice singles.

Stephens-Adamson and the Mohawks met in the Bush league, result four points for Wildcats. J. Alexander bowled for Wildcats by consent of the Stephens-Adamson team. The Austin's team will be without the services of Mr. Alexander in future games as he will not be allowed another major leaguer besides himself. It is not the intention to let teams use players who upset the even balance of the league. All are happy to abide by this ruling, Mr. Austin being in agreement with it.

In the second bush league game Ciaco and Ontario Intell met, by agreement for the night only four players a side were used, Intell. Ontario Intell, 0 points; Ciaco 4 points. The first two games were close but in the third game Ciaco ran wild.

Tonight is open night so that practice bowlers have their chance.

Opinions of Our Readers

To the Editor, The Ontario Intelligencer:
Sir,—I read with interest the letters on mail and parcel delivery. The letters should not be too lengthy and should be of such a character as to interest the public. There are many things that could be added, which would help the Post Office Department to give a still better service. Let us hope that in the days of good faith, the Ontario Intelligencer reserves the right to refuse publication of letters deemed as not to the public interest or as too personal in character.

—The Editor.

TAX PREPAYMENT PLAN

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer,—
I notice quite a few comments about the MAYOR'S suggestion to pay Taxes four times a year instead of twice as at present. The motive behind this suggestion is, I believe, quite sincere, inasmuch as the Mayor has no doubt in mind the saving of one-third interest at the bank that must accrue before the Taxes come in each year.

Might I suggest that the Tax Dates be left as they are now standard—Aug. 4th and Nov. 4th., but that any taxpayers who wish may take advantage of a prepayment plan, such as is in vogue in Toronto, whereby they may pay their taxes at a discount on Feb. 4th and May 4th. Said discount to almost equal bank interest paid to the banks, with just enough spread to make it worth while to pay the taxes in advance and also make it worth while for the city to make the discount. Hoping the suggestion will find favor with the Mayor and Council I remain,

Yours very truly,
(Signed) Interested Taxpayer.

WATER RATES

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer,
In reference to a letter Signed H. Diamond in regard to a supposed raise in water rates, kindly allow the writer sufficient space to say that there has been no raise in water rate schedules this year. Nor is it the intention of the present council to increase rates this year in spite of a $200,000 filtration plant being added to the present equipment.

True there was a survey made this year of all water users and the January bills were rendered to conform with the report of what was found during the survey and if there were any errors or omissions they will be gladly rectified by Mr. Austin, the water works manager.

To eliminate any argument as to the last rates that should be charged for water services, I attach a copy of schedule "A" having to do with Domestic rates of water, taken from By-law No. 2499 passed May 1st, 1922, regarding same:

SCHEDULE "A"
Annual / Rates for Belleville Water Works Department

The lowest annual rates in any case shall be five dollars.
Private dwellings, not exceeding

Five rooms, one tap	$ 5.00
Over five rooms, one tap.....	6.00
Bath Tub	2.00
Each additional bath tub	2.00
Water closet self-closing tap..	4.00
Each additional water closet self-closing tap	2.00
Stationery laundry tub, two compartments	2.00
Each additional laundry tub or single tub	1.00
Wash basin, hot and cold taps.	2.00
Each additional wash basin ..	1.00
Urinal	2.00
Shower bath	3.00
Each additional tap, not rated in above	1.00
Special house service, including one sink, hot and cold water taps, one bath, one closet, self-closing tap	13.00
Hose sprinkler for street lawn and garden, (3,000 square feet or less	2.00
Hose sprinkler for street lawn and garden (3,000 square feet to 4,000 square feet)	6.00
Each additional 1,000 square feet	.50

Above rates subject to 25 per cent. discount if paid in advance by Jan. 25 and July 25 each year.

If you are in doubt as to how much your bill should be, check it with the above schedule and if your bill is in error then a complaint and adjustment is quite in order.

Thanking you Mr. Editor for your valued space, I am,

Yours very truly,
P. R. WOTTEN,
Chairman Waterworks Corporation
City of Belleville.

READ YOUR CHARACTER IN DR. CHASE'S ALMANAC

Learn the Influence of the Planets and Zodiac Signs on Your Character

AN EVENING'S ENTERTAINMENT

The 1931 edition of Dr. Chase's Almanac contains an outline of astrology which enables you to read the character of persons according to the zodiac signs and planets under which they were born.

With a copy of this Almanac in hand, you can afford a fine evening's entertainment by reading the character of the members of the company. Everybody is interested to learn what is said about them and you will be very popular if you can explain the information.

There is also in Dr. Chase's Almanac a page of checker problems which will be interesting to those who follow this age old but ever young game.

For over a quarter of a century Dr. Chase's Almanac has made its annual visits to about 1,750,000 homes. In most of these homes it remains throughout the year because of the useful information which it contains in reference to the riding and setting of the sun and moon, the moon's changes, forecast of the weather, etc.

Many thousands use the numerous random pages in which to keep a diary of business transactions and social events. Some keep their almanac year after year on account of the valuable records they contain.

Dr. Chase's Almanac for 1931 has been mailed and distributed throughout the length and breadth of this country. If you have not received your copy, it will be sent free if you mention this paper and write to The Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co. Limited, Toronto, Canada.

SHOOS BLUES AWAY IN NEW THRILL FILM

Harold Lloyd Revives His Sky-Scraper Feats in "Feet First"

When better thrills are made Harold Lloyd makes them in "Feet First," his latest talkie, which comes to the Belle Theatre today and Monday matinee daily.

For Lloyd was thinking of "Safety Last" when he made "Feet First." "Safety Last" was the greatest thriller that the spectacled genius of mirth-and-gags ever made. In it he was seen climbing about, falling, and catching himself just in time on the roof-edges and cornices of sky-scrapers.

"Feet First" has thrills in it just like that, only more so.

Harold is seen as an ambitious young apprentice shoe shiner who, in his effort to make good with his employer gets into all kinds of humorous situations—putting gun-boat sized shoes on the feet of his employer's wife; crashing a society ball in order to impress a young lady he fails in love with; finding himself aboard a trans-Pacific steamer without a ticket; hiding in a mail bag only to be picked up and carried with the mail on a ship-to-shore airplane, and finally landing on a painter's scaffold in mid-air, wrapped up in the mail-bag.

Then follow those hair-raising thrills which are so typically Lloyd. He wriggles free from the bag, looks about him, and realizes with horror that a slight jolt will catapult him hundreds of feet to the ground below. He almost loses his grip in one screaming bump after another, but finally makes a safe descent to terra firma.

Needless to say he wins the girl—and he deserves to after such a hazardous experience.

The girl is Barbara Kent, the petite charmer who was Hi-roid's leading lady in "Welcome Danger" his first talkie, which pleased thousands of patrons of this theatre when it ran here about a year ago.

Others in the cast of this super-special are Robert McWade, Alec Francis and Lillianne Leighton.

FAMILY EXPRESSION OF THANKS GIVEN

JUNIOR C.O.C.L. MATCH WON BY KINGSTON CLUB

Belleville Rinks Defeated by Only One Shot, 41-40, on Foreign Ice

GAME HARD FOUGHT

Return Game in Belleville on January 19th, With Points Counting on Round

The Junior C.O.C.L. rinks of the local curling club entended a like number of rinks from Kingston to the limit before they were defeated by one shot, the score being 41 to 40. The return game will be played in Belleville on January 19th, and as points count in the competition, it is expected that Belleville will lift the trophy that has been in the possession of the Limestone City club for some years. Kingston has artificial ice upon which to play and only one member of the Belleville rinks had ever before played this surface so it can be seen that they were not without a chance. The Kingston Club has been in operation since the middle of November, while the local rink was not officially opened until New Year's Day and again the club must be congratulated on their fine showing.

A Real Battle

It was a real battle until the final end. Percy Pitney defeated Mitchell-land 13 to 6, while Harden took A. Simmons into camp by one shot, but "Ted" Orr had hard luck all through his game and was down nine points in the final score being 22 to 13. Orr was the last skip to start his game, the other two rinks finishing before he did. By scoring a two on the 15th end, Belleville was two up going home and looked to have the match cinched, but Charlie Jackson assembled his porteges for the final thrust and was successful in counting a three to put the locals one up on the game. Orr was going along fine and had Jackson down in the early ends but a fiver and a four wiped out the margins and Jackson taking advantage of the failing off of the Belleville rink pulled out with a nice lead. Orr made a fighting finish. Harden and Simmons had a merry set-to with neither rink being more than four up at any time. There were no big ends although both rinks scored a four on one end, the majority of the counts being not more than two per end. Pitney with his well balanced rink easily outplayed McClelland and should have won by a larger score. Thursday's match Pitney missed two chances to score big ends, although a count was made.

Rinks Entertained

After the game which was witnessed by a large gallery, the visitors were entertained in the spacious lounging room with a full course dinner, which was appreciated to say the least after sixteen ends of curling. At the conclusion of the banquet Percy Pitney, vice-president of the Belleville Club, thanked the Kingston Club for their generosity and fine game and also congratulated the club on their fine equipment which he stated no doubt has stimulated interest in this grand game in Kingston. Mr. Pitney explained to the hosts that curling was having a great year in Belleville which announcement received generous applause. The secretary of the Kingston club responded briefly. It was a delightful evening and the return visit of the Kingston curlers is anticipated with interest by the Belleville club. The rinks and scores were:

TRENTON LOST TO BOWMANVILLE

Overtime Game Resulted in a Victory for Lake Shore Boys

Bowmanville Juniors took Trenton in to camp last night by the score of 3-2 in an overtime fixture in the former's home ice. Trenton has won one game and lost one.

In the first period it was all Trenton. The Trentonites scored both their counters in this frame. Bohan, on a nice solo effort, netted the first goal and towards the end of the period, Jordan accepted a pass from Begin to add another to the score.

Morgan scored the first goal for Bowmanville in the second period and Morgan Lunney, the star of the night evened the count up in the final period. Twenty minutes overtime was played, five minutes each way. Jamieson succeeded in scoring for Bowmanville in the final five minutes of play. The line-up included—

Bowmanville—George Piper (c); George Walker, (rw); Morgan Lunney (rw); O. Jamieson, (id); Morley Ole (rd); John Jones, (g); Subs—C. Osborne, R. Brown and W. Bagnell.

Trenton—H. Bohan, (lw); M. Smith, (lw); J. Dolan, (rw); C. Rutton, (id); B. Yorke, (rd); Ken Chambers, (g); Subs—J. Kidd, D. Jordan, K. Begin.

Madoc

Madoc, Jan. 10—On Monday evening at the Madoc skating arena, the Madoc Rising Sun hockey team met a team of ex-students in a fast exhibition game, in which the former hockeyists and champion for the school were down to defeat with a score of 1-0. for the present players. A good game was played by all the boys on both teams and friendly feelings prevailed throughout the game. Mr. Curt Why tock acted as referee.

High school team — goal Clinton Nickle; defence Douglas Ashley and Kenneth West; centre, Alex Rupert; wings, Fred Akey and Robt. Whytock. Subs, H. J. Nickle, Delbert Devo Jr., and Allan Ross.

Ex-Students team—goal, Campbell Walkridge; defence, Archie Ansley and Chas. Phillips; centre, Mel Carlyle; wings, Donald Whytock and Colin Dafoe; sub, Arthur Brady.

A.Y.P.A OF CHRIST CHURCH ENTERTAINS

Christ Church Anglican Young People's Association entertained the association from Stirling and Tweed at the parish house on Friday evening. Mr. Everett Smith occupying the chair. After the singing of a hymn and prayer, Rev. C. E. Clarke gave an address of welcome to the visiting branches and membership and Rev. Mr. Byers and Rev. Mr. Wright as well as Mr. Cleaves president of the Stirling branch gave expression of thanks for the invitation and entertainment.

Miss Ethels of Tweed, executed a sword dance, Messrs. C. Duff and Jerry Craven were heard in a sketch "Mike and Pat", Misses Opsil Wise, Lois Faires, Margaret Bateman and Doris Tanner sang in a quartette. A reading was given by Miss Bertha Cranston. Miss Velma White of Tweed, rendered a song, and Messrs. Harry Morrow and Reginald Coombes of Stirling, sang very fine vocal duets.

Dancing and a buffet lunch wound up the entertainment. There were one hundred and fifty young people present at the functions. Music for dancing was furnished by a radio loaned by the Steward Warner Co. Front street.

RadioFans Corner

Clear sailing last night wasn't there, or at least we won't stop long enough on the subject to pick flaws. We got our stations and the programs and if we can't be satisfied with that somebody in the party must be a chronic grouch.

Remember tonight we'll hear Little Jack Little at 11.45 over station WFAF and tomorrow at 1.45 p.m. It is definitely announced we can tune in on WJZ and hear the dear boy. That's good news for the majority of the fans but somehow the men folk just can't see what the women see in that man, they won't try either.

Tex Timers at 5.30 tonight from WEAF per usual and Uncle Abe and David at 6.45. "Bugs" Baer, master of Stirring, says we'll hear introduces this program to the fans again tonight at 8.15. Welcome Lewis and Gammy Herman and all the favorites will be there.

The program of the "Silver Flute" which we highly recommended by a radio fan not so long ago follows directly after the above program. Walter Damrosch conducts the Symphony orchestra at 9.00 and Floyd Gibbons talks right along at a mile a minute. B. A. Rolfe at ten, Lanny Ross at 11, Horace Heidt at 11.15, Little Jack Little, and last but not least Rudy Valles, thats hould keep you busy for a while.

The Jesters at 7.15 from WJZ tonight and the Dixie Circus at 8.00. An episode of the Campus at 9.00 and the Musical Doctors at 9.30. Then we have a long wait until midnight for Phil Spitalny.

Listen in tomorrow noon at 12.30 to the program of Mesquitoan Days from WEAF, the music is of exceptionally high calibre. Chase and Sanborn program at 8.30 tomorrow night from this same station and at 10.45 Sunday evening at Seth Parker's. Sam Herman at 11.15 and the Russian Cathedral choir at 11.30. The Scotch Seaforth Islanders are scheduled for 9.15 from WJZ.

AIR BAPTISMS

Le Bourget, France, Jan. 10—During the last ten months 5,560 air baptisms have been given in France. In an endeavour to make flying popular, the big scores are invited to send parties of their adherents to Le Bourget.

The students of the University of Paris and the upper grade schools are also invited to go at a time and after a short lecture on the famous airfield and on aviation are taken to Le Bourget in the air around the aerodrome.

Small boats of all steel construction that are unsinkable and fireproof recently have been tested successfully in France.

Tests have shown that heating radiators have greater efficiency when coated with lead paints than when flake metal paints are used.

CANADA IMPORTS NEW QUALITY OF WEST INDIES FRUIT

There is much ado in the gardens and orchards of the British West Indies, where summer is perpetual and the crops are gathered two and three times a year. The news concerns an extensive variety of fruits and vegetables, some of them almost unknown as yet in Canada, others well-known here and still others that are grown in summer months by Canadian farmers.

It seems that the banana, the lime, the tomato, the egg plant, the onion, and the avocado pear are holding the stage although the grapefruit, the orange, the cocoanut and the cabbage have their important parts, along with a dozen other varieties of fruit and vegetables.

J. Pringle, president of the Canada-West Indies Fruit Company, confirms the statement that Canadians in the Maritime Provinces this winter are eating exactly twice as many bananas as they ate last winter. These high-colored bunches of Jamaica's banana product arrive in the holds of the Canadian National liners and are promptly shipped all over Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. Large quantities are also rushed across Canada. An astounding increase in banana consumption in Canada has followed the Canada-West Indies trade agreement of 1925, whereby it was decided that West Indies should pay more attention to the Canadian market with their fruits and vegetables and that Canadians should send more manufactured products to the British West Indies, using the Canadian National fleet which was created under the agreement.

Another bit of agricultural gossip is that the avocado pear, whose name is not too well known in Canada, and the egg plant, are about to forsake their exclusive attitude and become common. The pear in question is native to the West Indies, but has remained aloof. An avocado pear or an alligator pear, as it is sometimes called, may at present sell for as high as seventy-five cents, so exclusive is its status. In California it has been grown with some success, but not enough to make it cheap in the home. Authorities from the West Indies say that the avocado is doomed to vulgarity and that it will soon be shipped to Canada in large quantities at reduced prices, as a part of the new programs by which the British West Indies are determined to demonstrate to Canadians, the superiority of their fruit over those grown in southern countries on the continent. It seems too, that "fried egg plant" and "fried eggs" are usually common orders in Canadian restaurants soon.

Still more news comes in the shape of a statement that the Bahamas are out to make a killing on the Canadian markets with their ripe and rosy winter tomatoes, hitherto grown haphazardly for local consumption only. Dominica and Montserrat swear that they will popularize the lime at any price, claiming that it competes with the lemon, and that their limes are the best in the world. Jamaica stands staunchly by her famous bananas, but has also built a new packing and shipping plant to export, in a new, efficient way, their luscious oranges and grapefruit, which, it is held, cannot be surpassed for juiciness and flavor the world over.

Bermuda continues to work away in winter vegetable gardener to Canada, while remaining one of the loveliest winter pleasure resorts. Winter celery lettuce, cabbage and other greenstuffs continue to flow into Canada from the British West Indies. But, curiously enough, recently the Canadian National liner Lady Hawkins took some onions to Bermuda, which is so famous for its own onions. It happened to be a temporary off-season with Bermuda growers, they had gathered one crop and the other wasn't yet quite ready. So Canada supplied a rush order for the busy Bermuda Hotels.

THE LAST DAY

by N. Florence Leech

Aubrey Ware stook on the bank of Fallen Creek, near a large log cabin. She sniffed the fragrance of pine needles gratefully and her tired eyes brightened as she looked up to the blue sky far above the tree tops.

A week with a crowd of gay young people would make her heart whole once more, she believed. Rose Galax, her hostess, was indoors arranging blankets on the foot of the bunks, and Al Galax was collecting firewood and piling it against the lean-to. They had come on ahead to make things shipshape before dark, and Rose's brother and the remainder of the party were over-due.

A car appeared and a shout of welcome rose as Tony Vance and a tall, blonde girl, followed by an equally tall man, jumped out.

"Thought you weren't coming," cried Al.

"Had a puncture," Tony laughed.

Audrey's heart leaped and all but stopped. How had it happened—why—

"Miss Ware, may I present Miss Myers, and Mr. Garland?"

"How do you do?" she heard her voice saying, flatly.

"I'm delighted to know you, Miss Ware," Gray Garland said, formally, and bowed without shaking hands.

Gray, whom she had come here to forget—Gray, with whom she had laughed and danced and flirted and quarrelled—oh, they had quarrelled—was here, and for a week they would be under the same room. How quickly he had caught her cue! No one suspected that they had ever met before, and no one should find it out!

"Shall we go in?" Rose suggested.

Audrey recalled with a flash of resentment that Rose bore the reputation of being a match maker. She was so happily married that she wanted everybody else to be married too. That was why she had put Tony next to Audrey. He was saying something in a teasing voice and she tried to respond while noting that Gray was drawing a face on a piece of lump sugar for Stella, and Stella's cheek was brushing his shoulder. Gray was always drawing pictures, and Stella—well, Stella was the type that is always collecting men!

But, Audrey assured herself, she wasn't jealous. Gray was mean tempered, and she would have been wretched if she had married him. Besides, her love for him was dead. But after everyone else was asleep she lay wide-eyed in her bunk, listening to the wind in the pines. It sounded like the waves along the shores of Lake Michigan where she and Gray—reluctantly—he turned back on the window and closed her eyes. The past was dead. And, since every woman needs a man—Tony was more than eligible, and Rose would be so pleased if . . .

Next morning as Audrey was mixing batter in a yellow bowl, Gray leaned over her, his lips almost brushing her thick, auburn hair.

"I didn't do it on purpose," he whispered. "If I'd known, I'd never have come!"

"Oh!" Audrey screamed. "A grasshopper hopped into the pancake batter." she explained demurely to the assembled crowd. Gray stalked away, and began splitting kindling.

The days seemed endless. The guests fished and bathed in the swift running creek; they cooked and slept and played games, and washed dishes and did laundry work. Everybody was apparently having a gorgeous time, and Rose's smile was complacent. Tony was awfully with Audrey; and Stella continually with that fascinating Mr. Garland. Tony had so opportunely found to make the sixth in their party.

But Rose knew nothing of the hot words which flamed between Audrey and Gray whenever they were alone together. She had no way of knowing that Audrey watched and hated Stella, and prayed for the nightmare week to end, so she could get beyond the sound of Gray's voice, the flash of his steely blue eyes.

Audrey admitted now that she loved him and wanted him back. Better be miserable with him than miserable without him. But Stella had snared him, and considered him her own. Sometimes, with Stella's hand circling his arm, he would turn and look at Audrey with an odd, speculative glance. Then she would laugh and hold Tony's arm more closely, and Tony would laugh too, and execute a silly dance step. Tony was hers, if she wanted him—but oh, she wanted only Gray.

The last morning at the camp dawned clear and cool. They were going back to the city that evening, and Gray was returning to Chicago in a few days.

"It's too cold to bathe," Audrey declared when Tony urged her to go in.

But Stella ran out of the cabin in her scant yellow swimming suit, and Gray, whose shoulders were still bronzed from the sun on Lake Michigan, hurried to meet her. Stella outdid herself that morning, diving and doing stunts in the water. She would not stay in the comparatively shallow pool, but swam out into mid-stream, where the water was deep and the current swift.

"It's time we were getting dressed if we take a hike before lunch," Rose said, frankly shivering.

"I'll come in a minute," Stella answered, and they left her there, swimming about like a goldfish in a bowl.

Suddenly there came a sharp cry of distress.

"Help!" Stella called, and again, more faintly, "Help!" Everyone rushed toward the creek. Stella was near the opposite bank, and as they watched, her blonde head went under. Gray leaped in, completely dressed, and swam toward her, and Tony followed after snatching off his shoes.

Stella was battling feebly but the current was carrying her rapidly downstream toward the rocky falls. A moment later Gray had her in his arms, a dead weight, and for a terrible instant it looked as though the current had them both. Audrey screamed uncontrollably, "Gray!" Then he struck out strongly and presently staggered on shore.

Stella was unconscious, and they laid her flat on the grass. How beautiful the girl was. Audrey thought fiercely with her petrified tongue, her lovely hair curling wet, yellow hair. She had been pretending at first. Audrey had no doubt but make believe had become real. Oh, Audrey could not endure the sight of Gray bending over her.

"Do no change your clothes," she said, sharply. "All she needs is a brisk rub down."

After Stella was in bed, with a hot water bottle to her feet and smelling salts to her nose, Audrey wandered outdoors again. She dropped down under a tree out of sight of the cabin, and let the tears of sorrow and despair flow unchecked. Someone came up from behind her, sat down beside her.

"Audrey," a voice said softly, "do you still hate me? I've tried to make you jealous to see if you cared—but until you screamed a while ago I couldn't be sure."

"Oh," she cried, "I'm sick of pretending. No, Gray, I don't—hate you."

And I'm through pretending too," he declared. "Come on, I'll tell them the good news."

He helped her to her feet and held her closely for a minute. Then they started toward the cabin.

"Stella," she observed, "will need another hot water bottle when she wakes."

"Stella," she observed, "will need another hot water bottle when she wakes."

ALBERTA FARMER WINS CANADIAN NATIONAL PRIZE

WINNIPEG, Jan. 6.—By virtue of having won the world's championship for 1930 in timothy seed, Robert Cochrane, of Grand Prairie, Alberta, has been awarded the special Canadian National Railways cash prize granted each year at the Chicago International Hay and Grain show to the Canadian taking top place in that class.

Although Cochrane has been winning prizes at Chicago and other exhibitions for many years; this is the first time that he has taken a world championship in Timothy seed.

The Canadian National Special prize for top place at Chicago, in Alfalfa seed goes to Nick Chuelle, of Ranfer Alberta, who has been a consistent winner for years in this field. The special prizes for these crops have been granted for some years at Chicago by the Agricultural Department of the Canadian National Railways as an encouragement in the growing of forage crops as a lead to mixed farming.

Cochrane of Grande Prairie, is said to have a larger area of registered seed grains in cultivation than any other individual or corporation in Canada. He is a close neighbour of Herman Chelle, the world's 1930 wheat champion. A native of Ontario, Cochrane worked his way west from Winnipeg, over 20 years ago, taking three months to make the trip in from Edmonton, and undergoing many hardships. His original homestead has now grown to a farm of 1,500 acres and he had devoted his time and his father freely to the cultivation of high quality oats, barley, timothy, etc.

A Play By Benny Potts

Scene: Boy worrying.

Boy. Gosh shucks it. Darn the luck. Heck, O, whats that—lightning? No, O wizz, its a good fairy appearing.

Good fairy. Whatts you worrying about, boy? Didnt you get what you wanted for Christmas?

Boy. Sure, I had a swell Christmas, I got everything I asked for and lots of things I even forgot to think of and I had the highest Christamas tree on the block and I still got 4 boxes of candy not even opened yet.

Good fairy. Then whats you worrying for?

Boy. Theres other things to worry about, besides last Christmas.

Good fairy. Well tell me what it is Whats to me of being a good fairy if I dont get a chance to help somebody? Whats worrying you?

Boy. Im worrying about next Christmas.

Good fairy. Why? How do you mean Boy.. Well just because I got everything I wanted this Christmas, that dont say it will happen again next Christmas. Maybe I wont get hardly anything. Thats whats worrying me.

Good fairy. Im glad you told me, because I can help you..!

Boy. O, lorray!

Good fairy. You dont need to worry any more about maybe not getting enough next Christmas, because I can tell you rite now that you absolutely wont and no maybies about it, so theres nothing left for you to worry about. Good by.

The End

MONEY IN MILK

There should be special interest for Prairie farmers in the figures with respect to milk production supplied by the annual report of the Dominion Experimental Station, at Lethbridge, Alta. The nine cows in the herd produced an average of 11,641.5 pounds of milk and a butterfat average of 395.76 pounds. With butterfat at 42 cents per pound this represents a value of $164.02. Added to this is the value of skim-milk at 25 cents per cwt., at $27.61 for a total production value per cow of $191.63. The total cost of feeding was $102.52, leaving a profit of $89.11 per head.

NOVELIST AND PHILOSOPHER

Readers of the works of Mrs. L. Adams Beck whose pen name was E. Barrington will regret the passing of this writer who had filled a conspicuous place in contemporary novelistic art. As novelist E. Barrington differed much in her personality from Mrs. Beck for her residence in the Orient had given her that sense of abstraction which made her work in the field of the novel differ from her work in Oriental matters.

One writer says that the two styles differed in character and in values. Her novels, mainly historical, were pleasant reading while her works in Oriental philosophy and thought were written in exquisite language and were highly regarded by oriental scholars. She treated, says the Montreal Star, the occult with great seriousness.

Strange to state, her historical novels were almost an after-thought of her life for it was only in recent years she turned to them and they were for her a fame much wider than that attained by her philosophic works.

Belleville novel readers know her works well and grieve to know that her pen will no more direct the course of the once powerful imagination and delicate fancy, which were hers.

MOTOR FATALITIES DOWN

A pleasing change in the fatality rate in motors is reported, that of Toronto where the 102 fatalities of 1929 were cut to 62 last year. The number of children killed declined from 22 to 13. The Toronto Mail and Empire gives credit for some of this reduction to the warnings broadcast by the newspapers. Governor Smith said recently it would be a wonderful thing if the rate of deaths by cars on the streets could be again cut this year.

Less speed, more brain would be more courtesy and less rush by drivers: observance of traffic signals and co-operation with motorists by pedestrians—these are some of the essentials for reduction of fatal injuries.

Most accidents could be prevented. Fifty per cent, it is estimated, could be laid to both parties to the accident, who might have used a little more common sense. Children present a difficult problem, says the Mail and Empire, and for that reason are entitled to more consideration.

The government is doing its utmost to eliminate causes for accident. Glare of headlights one-eyed cars, are to be taboo.

WHAT TOP SPEED

Does the public as a class wish a higher motor speed than to have a thirty-five mile limit on highways lifted. The Woodstock Sentinel-Review believes there is a feeling that the law is generally broken today and that practically every member of the Legislature which enacts the law drives his at times greater speed than forty miles an hour. The attitude of the Sentinel-Review is expressed as follows:

"There may be exceptions but it is safe to state as a general rule that every driver in the province exceeds the arbitrary limit of thirty-five miles and is therefore a lawbreaker. It has been pointed out over and over again that low speed may be dangerous under certain circumstances just as high speed is dangerous under other certain conditions. The principle was recognized two or three years ago when the limit was raised from fifty to thirty-five in certain areas at times, but the law says it is a proper rate. Special circumstances may justify an accusation of reckless driving at any speed. Forty is also safe on a clear dry pavement, but the law says it is no. a proper speed and police are only doing their duty if they bring such drivers into court.

"Not many drivers are charged nowadays with driving five or ten or fifteen miles an hour over the legal maximum unless under one or other of the conditions which make such speed dangerous to others. In other words the general opinion of the law is ignored at. But if the authorities concerned are now agreed that a thirty-five mile limit cannot and ought not be rigidly enforced in these days of efficient brakes and permanent road surfacing, then it is time to amend that limitation."

The Sentinel-Review's opinion is that Premier Henry will hesitate to take the initiative in raising that limit unless there is a strong popular demand, and says public opinion behind in the procession. If greater speed is not favored then the Sentinel-Review says the present law is not to be rigidly enforced.

In these days before the motoring season resumes, there will doubtless be a great deal of discussion on this issue.

Recent stories of the visits of mining men to Hastings County have brought to memory the names of many mining prospects in the past history of this county. Many believe that with modern means of surveying and drilling new areas may some day be written of the rocks of this district.

Picton electors turned out on Monday and made the vote a seventy-five per cent. vote. Could Belleville do as much at the new election, the total would rise considerably.

Expansion of local industries and acquisition of new plants mean more jobs for Belleville having a growth growing up, and their residence here instead of their removal on attaining adulthood. But there will always be the exodus of the young just as there is a steady inflowing of new residents to the city. There is a constant ebb and flow, always to be expected.

Onions are to have a campaign set apart for them soon. Editors are speaking of the "strength" of the campaign to eat more onions.... How is it that when speaking of onions the first thought is of the smell? Sometime in the past the smell must have been more potent than its other characteristics.

Mayor Reid's efforts to land a new C.N.R. station, for the north of the city will meet with approval for a modern station would be an additional advertisement for Belleville.

SIDELIGHTS

WE FORGET.

We have made ourselves a host
Of so-called necessities,
And it pleases us to boast
Of all these.

We take pride in Dresden trays,
Glow of silks and rubies' fire,
And to elegance of phrase
We aspire.

Irksome bonds of futile things;
In our folly we forget
Every butterfly has wings
Finer yet!

We have fashioned, score on score
Goods so infinitely small,
Never learning love is more
Than them all.

Railway travel at an average speed of 100 miles an hour seems to be forecast by the recent experiments reported from Germany.

Our own regular trains—one locomotive with a train of heavy Pullmans, occasionally approximate that speed for short distances, but to average it for a whole trip is "something yet again."

The new German car appears to be a glorified bus with an airplane motor—certainly of less capacity than a Pullman train. It has not to negotiate curves the reported high speed was made on a straight track.

Even 100 miles an hour will not enable it to compete with air travel, but airplanes do not carry one to a city terminal. One must drive out to a flying field at one end, and in again at the other. The German trials and what they hold out in the way of railroad speeds are described as follows by Kendall Foss, writing from Hanover, Germany, to the New York Times. We read:

"When the early mists lifted on a recent morning to reveal a long cigar-shaped car, looking much like a Zeppelin on steel wheels, zooming across the drab autumn moor like a streak of silver, the huddled group of watchers sensed that a new era in transportation had dawned.

"Dr. Franz Kruckenberg's invention tore down the five-mile straight-away at 100 miles an hour, propelled by a huge airplane propeller projecting from the stern knifed through the rising mists to the roar of a 400 horsepower gasoline motor. The envy of our passengers, who were lucky or daring enough to make the first official test- lolled back comfortably in easy chairs.

"The propeller-driven rail coach, the Zeppelin on wheels, we are told, represents years of work by Dr. Kruckenberg and his associates in the Hanover Traffic Experimental Laboratory. Dr. Kruckenberg's invention appears to open the way for a renewed attack by rail upon roadways; and even upon the airways.

NOT HARD TO ANSWER

The curate was trying to teach the significance of white to a Sunday school class.

"Why," he asked, "does the bride desire to be clothed in white at her marriage?"

When no one answered, he explained:

"White is the color for joy, and the wedding day is the most joyous occasion of women's life."

Then a small boy asked: "Well, why do all the men wear black?"—Ex.

LO, THE FEDERTRIAN!

Chief Justice Greenshields of Montreal has handed down judgment that in a dispute between the pedestrian and the motor-car as to right of way, the use of the word "accident" fits the pedestrian. Which reminds us of an inscription found in an old cemetery: "Here lies the body of Abraham Greene. He died defending his right of way. May his soul have peace as it wafts along."

But he's just as dead as if he'd been wrong." —Manitoba Free Press.

THE JUDGE AND THE PEDESTRIAN

Some years ago a magistrate created quite a furore by stating that the right-of-way in the streets of Montreal was in that order in which the different units which used the streets had made their appearance, namely, men, animals, tramways and motor cars. If the recent judgment of Mr. Justice Greenshields had not come to refresh our memories, we should certainly have believed that this order had been completely inverted, for there is no denying that in everyday practice motors have become the first and pedestrians the last. Constantly in danger the pedestrian has to be always on the alert against an accident. Yet he has not the rights though motor traffic constables believe that their duty has been performed when they have controlled the circulation of the motors.—Le Canada, Montreal.

RICH IN YEARS AND IN HONOR

Today the thoughts of all Canadians who honor a great Churchman and an outstanding citizen are centred in the city of Toronto, where Rev. Dr. W. T. McMullen is celebrating quietly the attainment of a century of years. This fact in itself is so unusual as to attract universal attention, but when the centenarian is a man whose active life has been devoted to the highest interests of his fellow-men—has been familiar to succeeding generations of Canadians, the occasion calls forth reioicing, congratulation, and wonder. Few men have lived to attain this fulness of years, and to reach the threshold of a second century with power undimmed. Here the years of life and a moderate amount of activity still may be enjoyed.—The Globe, Toronto.

IS PERJURY GROWING?

The British public got something of a shock the other day when one of its High Courts was presided over by an opinion that perjury has never been more rife in British courts of law than it is today. The occasion was one dealing the course of a lecture on "Truth" by Mr. Justice McCardie before the Royal Medico-Psychological Association. In that hour, however, he proceeded in conjunction with the explanatory and qualifying statements that accompanied it, apparently to alarm. The judge has raised something of a hornets' nest about his ears by elaborating his opinion that perjury in the Law Courts is "to a degree positively courageous and increased by the low standard of frankness and honesty so widely and unhappily shown in many aspects of our party political system."—Montreal Star.

AN EMPIRE'S SHRINE

Those who journey from the outposts of Empire to the Empire's heart are drawn irresistably to Westminster Abbey. Here, more than in the tombs of the Anglo-Saxon race and within its spacious walls may be sensed the unity of purpose in their day made or altered the course of history. This experience is for the favored few. To hosts of people who have not yet the means for a pilgrimage overseas, it is bringing at least a glimpse of what the Abbey means to the British people. Recently members of the Young Men's Board of Trade of Toronto were privileged to view in this way the tombs and memorials of many of the truly great who rest in this hallowed spot.—The Globe, Toronto.

PASTEURIZATION OF MILK

Pasteurization to-day is a great step forward in hygiene. It has already saved many lives and, since it has been introduced, it has prevented illnesses and the mental suffering which accompanies impaired physical health. It is generally admitted that milk and milk products are the most important articles in the family larder. The importance of pasteurization is proved by children's health organizations. The national council of the milk industry, an organization composed of representatives of all branches of commerce and industry, has adopted a resolution recommending that all milk offered for sale in towns and villages should be pasteurized. — La Presse, Montreal.

During recent voting riots in Poland, police were equipped with metal coats and shields for protection.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Rural-Born and London

Seven out of every ten Londoners are Cockneys—people born within earshot of Bow Bells, Chespside, according to popular tradition—while 35,000 Russians, 31,000 Poles, 14,000 French, 11,000 Italians and 8,000 Americans help to swell the city's population, says a writer in the Christian Science Monitor. These figures have been compiled by Sir Hubert Llewellyn Smith and an army of investigators who are now engaged in making an historic new survey of the life of the capital. But what has happened to small rooms and large rooms, dining rooms and living rooms. Adam rooms and early American rooms—all can be bought this way, complete in one time, or piece by piece.

Once the best that furniture dealers could do along this line was to suggest a three-piece suite, but with these lost favor, the problem of furnishing a room with individual pieces became a difficult one for the person without decorating experience.

Now, all the prospective purchaser need do is to tell the dealer he wants a medium-sized colonial living room, and the dealer with his instructions from the manufacturer will do the rest. Or if he is a progressive dealer and has his own decorator, so much the better.

Manufacturers are coming more and more to realize that they must help the retailer sell his goods, it was pointed out, and this method is but one step toward that end, while the more progressive manufacturers, it was said, are also preparing advertising and other merchandising helps for the stores. The show, which opened Jan. 5, will continue for a fortnight, with prospects of an attendance of 6000 buyers. More than 700 companies have exhibits in the mart.

BRAIN SWITCHBOARD

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.d
(Famous Authority on Health and psychology)

The greatest switchboard in existence in the human brain. No telephone system, no matter how large, can possibly compare with it.

What is more, the brain far excels any and all mechanical contrivances made by man because it works automatically because it possesses a vital and dynamic force within itself—in short, because it is alive.

And the brain actually works like a telephone switchboard, only much more perfectly. It is a sort of controlling sensitizer of the entire body—of all its organs—co-ordinating as well as regulating their various and complicated functions.

The brain proper—the part that we commonly speak of as brain and which lies within the skull—is not, to be sure, do all this work directly. Through the spinal column, the chain of nerves lying directly in front of it and numerous other nerve paths, all is connected.

However, in the last analysis, everything runs somehow to the brain itself. That is why, when the foot is injured, the sensation is felt in the brain. If any organ of the body becomes diseased, pain is likewise noted by the brain and consciousness is soon called to the fact that there is trouble.

Even thoughts—definite brain activities—can produce physical changes elsewhere in the system. Witness how disgust will produce nausea; fear, indigestion and palpitation.

Similarly, disordered thinking is even able to produce such serious disorders as paralysis, blindness, and other organic ailments which, luckily are functional in character, and are therefore more likely to yield to treatment than if they were purely organic with structural changes in the tissue elements.

That is why disease may require mental treatment as well as physical. What is why also the system of diagnosis in order which have no organic basis must be treated mentally.

Yet, although the brain is so tremendously important, few know how it operates and little attention is paid to it by the average person.

Let everybody try to develop a serious nerve trouble requiring mental attention. Everybody, on the other hand, is an emotional and thinking individual and that means brain activity as well.

Let us know how thoughts operate we have the knowledge to understand and adjust our own behavior reactions. By means of his brain every individual can make himself master of his own soul. Study yourself, observe your own thoughts, face the truth, and you at once have the power to put yourself position to guide your own craft safely, happily and efficiently.

But the first step in making wrong thought connections it is up to you to find out what they are and to correct them. Should you be unable to do it all yourself, get the right doctor to help you. But don't believe in a pre-determined fatalism about yourself.

Become acquainted with that wonderful brain of yours so that you may likewise learn how to use it. Find out all you can about it even if you think it is functioning perfectly.

DR. BISCH'S HEALTH HINT

Pains in the region of the heart may not, however, actually come from the heart. They may be due to the nerves between the ribs.

Belief In Witchcraft

John McIlholland, the magician who estimates the toll exacted by fake fortune tellers, crystal gazers, palmists, numerologists, phrenologists and others at $125,000,000 annually, addressed the weekly assembly at Barnard College at New York.

"The belief in the supernatural and in all sorts of witchcraft today is greater than in the days of the Salem witches," he said, "only today we don't kill so many of them."

More misfortune and mental unrest result from the ridiculous statements of fortune tellers than from any other thing," he asserted.

The magician, who is vice president of the Society of American Magicians and of the British Magical Society, solicited books on astrology, which thousands of copies are sold annually. "I wrote one of them myself when I was in prep school," he said. "It took me twenty-four hours to do, which shows how much intensive study such books require. Yet it sold 100,000 copies, and even now I hear people quoting it as proof of the ability to foretell the future."

Numerology, Mulholland continued, "may tell you something of the immediate past, but it certainly does not reveal the future." The fortune teller succeeds, he continues, merely by revealing that questions of love or money are the only ones which bring people to him, and by employing "verbal pats on the back," such as "Yes, I know you were seldom understood—there are difficulties," and the like.

Following his lecture, the wizard demonstrated a few of his tricks.

Professor Wilhelm A. Braun of the Department of Germanic Languages and Literature was chairman of the meeting.

Children in The Future

Now comes Professor William F. Ogburn and lays up for himself much woe, but also much misunderstanding, with "the supposed statement that the future may see the proportion of children under 15 years up to the age of 40. The complete text of Professor Ogburn's remarks at Cleveland apparently has not been printed, although a writer in the New York Times, 16, had been speaking of the growing size and complexity of the environment in which man of the future will live, and he wondered how the problem was to be met. "Perhaps by prolonging infancy, to say, 30 or 40 years, or even longer? More probably in the future there will be seen fewer and fewer to look after fewer children in sensible view o fthe matter. For a few specialists and technicians the advance in knowledge may involve longer periods of training. For the mass of mankind it will simply be taking a bigger and more expensive granite. Children of 5 are now blase about airplanes overhead, and boys of 12 build their own radio sets.

"In the future does hold for mankind in the mass is not a prolongation of infancy, but just the opposite, a reduction in the amount of childlife in the world. A trend which has been occupying the sociologists for some time, and that is the effect of the declining birth-rate on age distribution. As the number of children to the family grows fewer, it is obvious that the percentage of young persons in the community will decline. In the United States in 1850 there were fifty-three persons under 15 years in every 100 of the population. In 1920 there were forty-one such persons, and in 1950 there will be only thirty-three. In England forty years ago the number of persons under the age of 15 was thirty-six out of every 100. In 1911 the number was thirty-two, and in 1921 it was twenty-nine. It may now be very near twenty-five. Forty years ago one English person out of three was a child. Now it is one out of four.

Speculation finds a rich field in this prospect of an aging world Social students, for instance, are particularly concerned with the question of old-age dependency in a world where relatively few people beyond the working age and fewer children to support them. It is a fear which can be countered by the argument that with fewer children to feed and educate people may be able to save up more against their own old age. But more absorbing are questions on the mental and spiritual side. Will a world with fewer young people in it have less adventure, more prayerful, more conservative, more interested in bread and butter and less in fine arts? Largely it is guesswork, but one point of reference may be cited. There is a nation which has been so far ahead of the others in losing its birth rate, so to speak, that it should be a fair indication of what is in store for the rest of us. That nation is France. Twenty-years ago when in England and the United States the persons under 15 years of age were thirty-two in every 100, and in almost many thirty-four, in France they were only twenty-six. France is an "elderly nation"; but affection between parents and children in France stands very high. That is one cheerful prognosis.

Buys Rooms Ready Made

Chicago—For the benefit of Mrs. Moderate Means, who cannot afford to have a decorator "do" her house, furniture dealers are now prepared to sell entire rooms, complete from the paneling on the wall to whatever bric-a-brac a particular room requires.

These "ensembles," assembled at the factory by experienced decorators and having a stamp of authenticity as to period and color harmony, are the latest feature at the midwinter furniture exposition at the American Furniture Mart here.

BLOOMFIELD WON FROM IMPERIALS

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Trenton, Jan. 9—James, young son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Meyker, Glenora, received a serious injury to his foot while cutting wood Thursday. In woods on his father's farm. An axe slipped, severed and the bones badly shattered. The lad may lose the foot.

Mr. Fred Newman, vice-president Ontario Municipal Electric Association, past president of Associated Boards of Trade and Commerce of Ontario, mayor of this town for three years, was stricken with a heart attack yesterday. His condition is not regarded as serious. A collapse is due to his attendance and Mr. Newman has been ordered by his physician to remain in bed for at least a month.

Fred Hubbs, prominent farmer of Bloomfield is the new reeve of Hallowell township, Ont. Christie, the 1800 Reeve going down in defeat in the election this week. Mr. Hubbs formerly held this office and was Warden of the County of Prince Edward in 1922. One other member who will be in the County Council this year has been elected. He is William Monachan, Reeve of Wellington. Speculation is rife as to who may be chosen as Warden this year.

The snow plows have been kept busy night and day keeping the county roads open. For three days two plows always on the go. The row that was not sufficient to stop cars running through. It was the most that we have had this winter.

Two more exciting games in the Prince Edward County Hockey League were played on Friday night. A great crowd of fans were present and each play was loudly cheered.

Bloomfield defeated Imperial Oil 3-1, in a fast, exciting game. There was little passing but the rushes and bullet-like shots kept the fans in a continual roar. This is the third straight loss for Imperial Oil. Reddick was outstanding for Bloomfield while the goalie of the same team, Harry Campney, turned in a fine performance. David Young in the Imperials goal was also seen at his best so much so Campney but was called upon to do some good work.

The Colborne-Milford game was a home real hockey. The Milford team was without its regular goalie, George McCaw, therefore the game was a substitute. It was largely due to the absence of the regular goalie that the final score was 11-2 over the College. Hale. Carl Patterson in the P.C.I. goal was easily the outstanding goalie of the evening and is one of the best in the league. Colborne should be ashamed the attack two-thirds of the time and though they had open shots time after time failed to beat Patterson.

Croft handled the games in a fine, near-satisfactory to all. Penalties were quite numerous and the icing cut to the ice, is being rough.

The directors of the Prince Edward County Poultry Association had a meeting last night and completed plans for the 1931 show to be held this month in the armouries, Kingston, Belleville, Picton, Cobourg, Colborne, Rochester, N.Y., Washington, Port Credit, as well as county poultry breeders have signified their intention of exhibiting at the show which is one of the largest in Eastern Ontario. A. H. Rutter is the secretary. It was arranged that a publication sponsor talks at the theatre on one night, tickets to be sold. A number of other entertainments and attractions are being planned and a door prize is to be a pen of poultry. As usual there will be the sale and exchange of new cars. Everything points to a very successful show.

Prof. and Mrs. Martin have donated .25 to the Children's Shelter. This is very much appreciated by the Board. There are fifteen children at the shelter.

ONE-THIRD UNEMPLOYED

GELSENKIRCHT, Germany, Jan. 9.—The serious aspect of Germany's unemployment was shown here when the Mayor revealed that one out of every two inhabitants of this Prussian town is dependent, either directly or indirectly, upon public funds. One third of the population is listed as unemployed and these idle men and women have created dependents to bring the total number living on dole or other forms of relief to half the population.

ALL TWISTED OUT OF SHAPE WITH RHEUMATISM

T-R-C's cleared Rheumatism poisons from Injector man's system

NO RETURN OF PAIN

Thousands will be glad to learn that just one trip to convince Mr. Geo. H. Lemon of Lisgar, Ont., or any place near, he had a terrible attack of Rheumatism. Despite all kinds of treatment, he suffered excruciating pain and became all twisted out of shape, so badly so that it was decided to send him to Hospital. Before arms and legs by a system of rubs, liniments and lotions.

"They never had to be used," he says, "for one day when a relative in Toronto sent me a box of T-R-C's and the first dose I got relief. After using them for a few weeks I was back at my old job. My arms and legs gradually straightened out, and except for a stiffness now would not believe I had been so terribly laid up with Rheumatism. Deep-rooted, stubborn cases of Rheumatism require patient and persistent use of T-R-C's for a reasonable length of time, but you are sure of relief if you persist with T-R-C's. Regrettably that there are many sufferers from Acute Rheumatism (aching pains in hip and thigh), Neuritis, Sciatica, Lumbago (pains in the Back), No harmful or habit-forming drugs in T-R-C's.

T-R-C's do the trick—Enter the blood stream and help purify it. Throw off the misery-causing poisons which are responsible for the trouble in the blood. When these go, health and happiness return. T-R-C's are 50c and $1 per box at your dealer's.

RETURN SURPLUS RUM

ALDERSHOT, England, Jan. 9.—Under a new army order all surplus rum must be returned to stores after liquor has been issued to troops. "Rum will be issued," the order says, "only by the special authority of the general officer commanding-in-chief when troops have been subjected to exceptionally inclement weather and when in addition they are forced by circumstances to spend the night in adverse conditions."

Army officials say some of the British soldiers are taking a money allowance of about 4 cents a day in place of the government rum.

CHINA PUNISHES PATENT STEALERS

SHANGHAI, Jan. 9.—The old Chinese system of imposing fines upon persons convicted of infringing upon trade marks and patent rights has been returned to the judicial code book of China after half a dozen years of effective use of the penal clause covering this offense as enforced throughout the western world. In favor of the hard fight foreign commercial firms have had in the past combating the Chinese practice of pirating many well known trade marks the latest being one declared by the judicial authorities at Nanking has been rendered by foreigners with considerable approbension.

They maintain that the imposition of a fine does not prevent a repetition of the offense, especially in this country, whereas a term of imprisonment has a salutary effect on the infringements of trade makers were executed by prosecutions in the old Shanghai Provisional Court. At that time heavy fines did not serve to deter the infringers and the offense became common. Then the Chinese agreed to punish the offenders with prison terms and the practice, although not halted completely, was reduced to a minimum.

Under the recent decision of the Chinese judicial officials, Chinese manufacturers will be given an opportunity to remedy their pirating as they did a few years ago. Then the reported foreign goods were duplicated by imitation as fast as the spurious articles could be turned out and disposed of through ramified but secure channels.

Europe's 'Man of Mystery' Ill Seeks Medical Relief in London

LONDON, Jan. 9—Sir Basil Zaharoff, known to Europe as "the man with a thousand secrets", is coming to London for medical treatment. He has been seriously ill for many months. Reputed to be the richest man in Europe, a man who has swayed governments, but who shuns any form of publicity, Sir Basil Zaharoff is the latest of the Chinese criminal code which provides for only a fine is sufficient.

The penal clause in the trade mark laws of China became into existence after an increasing number of infringements of trade makers were executed by prosecutions in the old Shanghai Provisional Court. At that time heavy fines did not serve to deter the infringers and the offense became common. Then the Chinese agreed to punish the offenders with prison terms and the practice, although not halted completely, was reduced to a minimum.

LATEST FORM OF SELLING PENS

LONDON—Fountain pens are being sent to men of high social position by a firm of manufacturers unsolicited, a stamped envelope being enclosed for the remittance of 25 shillings in each case, or the return of the pen. With the sample is included a list of names of certified distinguished purchasers to indicate the appreciation shown by users of the pen in question. If the pen is not paid for or returned a further letter is sent demanding the remittance of 25 shillings. The Stationers' Association of Great Britain and Ireland has taken the matter up, and has announced that not one of the alleged distinguished purchasers has given permission for the use of his name. The association asserts that there is no legal liability or responsibility resting upon the recipient to post the goods back to the sender except through an envelope for this purpose may have been enclosed.

JOHN STREET W.M.S.

The Jan. meeting of the W.M.S. of John St. United Church was held on Wednesday afternoon in the church hall. The president, Mrs. Ross, presided in the chair. The meeting opened with the hymn "At Thy Feet Our God and Father." The devotional service was taken by Rev. Robt. Hall based on the theme "The Harvest of the Spirit" Gal. 5:22. The purpose of Christmas, which is to be the devotional theme this year. Rev. Hall offered prayer and then took the opportunity to express his pleasure at being present, and congratulated the society on having reach the $100 mark. After the hymn "Arm of the Lord" the minutes had been sung, the secretary and treasurers reports were received and adopted. Mrs. Hall was then chosen as delegate to the presbyterial to be held in Picton, Jan. 21st and 22nd. Mrs. Mills sang a beautiful duet "Whither thou Go" which was much enjoyed. The subject for the afternoon being Japan. Mrs. Deline gave an excellent paper on this "What we have done in Japan," which was much appreciated. Miss Helen Denike then sang very pleasingly, "When the World Forgets," accompanied by Miss Helen Cook, after which Mrs. Bowen gave a wonderful talk on "Industrial conditions in Japan" telling some of the trying conditions under which the men and girls work in Factories, and etc. the study continued on, the long hours, also the unsanitary conditions which tend very much to retard the lives in a great many cases. The address was much appreciated. After the hymn, "Lift up your heads ye gates of Brass," and the repeating of the Lord's prayer in unison the members had a hour together.

Ground Plans Completed for Cairo-Cape Air Route

LONDON—The first weeks of 1931 will see the launching of one of the greatest enterprises in the history of commercial aviation — the establishment of the world's longest organized airway over 6,000 miles of route between London and Cape Town. Early in the new year Imperial Airways proposes to open first sections in Africa of this great new trunk route, which will connect at Cairo with the present England-India air mail service. Big land and marine air liners will ply regularly over the deserts, great lakes, rivers and jungles of the vast African continent. For the first few months the aeroplanes are scheduled to fly from Cairo as far as Mwanza, on Lake Victoria, or Kenya Colony and Tanganyika Territory.

The entire Cairo-Cape airway, measuring 5,700 miles and spanning Africa from extreme north to farthest south, will be in operation from midsummer next year. Passengers will then be able to get from London through to Cape Town in 11 days, as compared with 17 days by the swiftest combination of organized land and water transport. In the first phase of the airway is to be operated only by day but by the end of a few months of regular flying the air-liners should travel both ways forth by night and day and the most up-to-date forms of night flying equipment will be installed at the lanting grounds along the route.

Between Cairo and Cape Town 27 main aerial stations are established, linked by about 30 intermediate landing grounds where regular calls will not be made but which will be instantly and always available in case they when needed. At several of the main stations hotels have been erected for aerial travellers, and permanent organizations at each station includes engineering hangars, workshops, wireless and meteorological stations, and quarters for the airway staff. Seventeen main stations have full wireless equipment, and plans that all along the route the air liners will never be out of wireless touch with one of these stations. Long distance short wave communication is to be used and messages between aircraft and ground stations will be sent both by telegraphy and telephony.

The Handley Page Type 42, largest passenger-carrying land plane in the world, has continued successful trial flights at Radlett, Aerodrome Hertfordshire. This machine, specially built to be fitted with luxurious accommodation for 38 passengers in two large saloon cabins, with capacious holds for mails and urgent freight, has risen with ease from the ground carrying its full designed load, the weight of machine and load being nearly 13 tons. Even under this great weight the big plane rose from the ground after an astonishingly short run and handled easily and well in her evolutions over the flying ground. These machines, eight of which are ordered by Imperial Airways for the operation of their European routes, are the largest aeroplanes to India and South Africa, are likely to remain the most economical big aircraft yet constructed. Tentative calculations show cost of operation of a ton per mile for each passenger carried.

The Type 42 (also styled Hannibal) measures 25 feet from the ground to the highest point of the upper rudder. The length from nose to tail is 86 1-2 feet, the 31-inch wide, seen from the front, and five feet high at the centre. The weight of the machine, fully laden, is 28,500 pounds in the Western Type intended for flights on the European routes with space for 38 fare paying passengers and 27,350 pounds in the Eastern Type, which has the passenger accommodation cut down to make room for additional mails and baggage.

With four air cooled radial Jupiter motors of 490 h. p. each the machine attains a 95 miles an hour and attains a top speed of 110 miles an hour. Rate of climb at sea level is 677 feet a minute and the service ceiling, the greatest height which the plane can reach in practical flying is 12,450 feet. The replacement of these engines in any of the planes by four 555 h. p. Jupiter motors, equipped with supercharges, increases the cruising speed by ten miles an hour, raises the maximum speed to 120.5 miles an hour and the rate of climb at sea level to 820 feet a minute.

The Type 42 is designed to fly level at 8,000 feet on the power of any three motors. Risk of forced landing caused by failure of one motor is therefore small and, when flying on established routes, the air liner should never fail to reach an aerodrome or emergency landing ground. The safety factor of the huge machine is further improved by a comparatively low landing speed of 50 m. p. h. while every motor in the machine is fitted with a device to clear an obstacle 65 feet high after a take-off run of 500 yards. These figures mean that the biplane, in spite of its great size, may be flown off and into any ordinary aerodrome without difficulty.

Red was regarded by the ancient Egyptians as symbolic of fidelity.

LEGAL BATTLE OVER WOOD IN NEWFOUNDLAND

Control of 16,000 Square Miles of Timberland in Dispute

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld.—On legal proceedings taken before the Supreme Court of Newfoundland and the Privy Council, depends control of some 16,000 square miles of timberland in the Atlantic Colony and Labrador a collection of tracts which equal two fifths of the total area of the island itself.

From the Supreme Court the government seeks declaration of forfeiture of the leases under which these timberlands are held. Seventy-five writs have been issued, twenty-three of which are against Mines and Forests, Limited, a subsidiary of Reid Newfoundland. Many of the timber leases are held in Canada, the United States and in England, several having been issued as long ago as 1902.

Failure on the part of the lessees to implement conditions of lease calling for the development of certain development operations within a stated period, is the ground on which the government seeks cancellation of the leases. If this contention is held valid, the holdings will revert to the crown. The original terms called for payment of an annual rental of 20 cents per square mile with a stumpage fee when the area was worked. The authorities have refused to accept further rental payments, and the holders are claiming that since the government accepted rentals for some years, they were justified in that respect. It is granted that the provision requiring operations on the lands had been waived.

Pending the final disposition with the matter was that of M. G. Martin, one of the license holders, who asked for an injunction month; ago for a declaration that his title was good. Government was given against him, and he carried the case to the Privy Council, where judgment is now awaited.

The lands include about 5,000 square miles in Newfoundland and 11,000 in Labrador. Individual holdings varying from 10 to 1,000 square miles.

Certain of the lands in Newfoundland are included in the block known as the Gander area, cruised and held under option by the Reid Newfoundland Company, which formed the basis of their negotiations with the Hearst Syndicate through a subsidiary, for the establishment of a newsprint mill of a capacity of 1,000 tons daily, was contemplated provided ample timber. Timber required might be obtained from these lands they hoped to lease from the government on a long term. Any such negotiations will be stayed until a decision is reached on the validity of existing leases.

Meanwhile, Mines and Forests, Limited, have applied for an order that the Gander Lumber Power and Paper Company be added as defendants with them in the action. Early in the year the government had issued writs for the cancellation of leases for failure conditions of which had not been complied with. Rentals were due on November 1st. Cheques for the rents were tendered on the following day but were refused because of the writs then issued. On December 15 the government withdrew these writs and issued new ones, including non-payment of rents on the grounds on which cancellation was asked.

CLEAN-UP THE GARDEN

Even now it is not too late to clean up your garden beds. Among the dangers it harbours are the seeds of such weeds as barnyard grass, purslane, quarter, chickweed and nettles, which may infest the garden next year. It also harbours the eggs of the most troublesome boring caterpillars, caterpillar borers, thrips, the imported cabbage worm, the diamond backed moth, tarnished plant bugs, several species of cutworms and other insects. If it cannot be dug over it should be hauled away to a dump where it will be buried in ashes.

TODAY'S VERSE

HOW NOVEMBER RODE

November rode a gallant steed:
Fleet-footed, dapple gray,
His coat like fallen autumn leaves
To herald winter's day.

November spurred him swiftly on
No time for slackened rein
He rode upon a mission bold
Beyond his own domain.
He rode to reach the spanning bridge
And clasp old winter's hand,
And give to him all speed again
The treasures of the land.

And so he sped his gallant steed,
White coat of dapple gray,
Fleet-footed with the urge of time,
On, on, with no delay.

Correct Manners

Asking Permission for the Dance
By Mrs. Cornelius Beekman

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

Should a young man ask a girl's escort (husband, fiance or friend) whether he may dance with the girl? We have had a discussion in our office, most of us think that as long as it is the girl who is going to dance, it is polite for the young man to ask the girl and the girl ask her escort. Are we wrong?

I am a constant reader of your column and permit me to say I have learned a great deal of pleasing question on etiquette through you. H. U.

What usually happens when a man asks a girl to dance with him—and what should happen. If all three are well-mannered—is that the partner-to-be asks the girl to dance with him, and, when she accepts, he turns to the partner with whom she is, and says, "Do you mind," or "May I?" or something of this kind, casual, to be sure, but indicating that his manners are well-polished. Then the girl rises to go to the dance floor, she says to her former partner, "Will you excuse me, please?"

As I say, all of this is casual and neither makes those polite requests to it he or she could, under any circumstances, be refused, but still it is one of those amenities that are fundamentally indicative of our native manners.

(And thank you, very much, for your kind appreciation in your last sentence—was happy indeed at your words.)

Signing the Hotel Register
By Mrs. Cornelius Beekman

Dear Mrs. Beekman

1 When husband and wife stop at a hotel do they both sign the hotel register? If just the husband signs, how does he sign for his wife?

2 What is the correct way to address an envelope to a married woman?

3 What is the correct way for her to sign her name?

4 If Mary Smith marries Paul Jones would it be correct for her to sign her name Mary Smith Jones?

5 Would it be correct to address a letter to her as Mary Smith Jones?,

H. M.

1—The husband signs the hotel register for himself and his wife. This is the correct signature:

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Allerton.
Portland, Oregon.

Or he should never sign Robert Allerton and wife).

2—With her husband's name prefixed with Mrs.

Mrs. Robert Allerton.

3—If she is writing to very close friends, she would naturally sign her letters "Mary." If she is writing to a friend not so close but friends who would naturally know her formal married name, her husband's name then she would sign:

Cordially yours,
Mary Smith Allerton.

But, if she is writing a business or professional letter or to someone who must be informed of her formal married name, she would sign:

Very truly yours,
Mary Smith Allerton
(Mrs. Robert Allerton)

In other words, she must sign her signature and then indicate her formal name in parentheses, so that the reader of the letter would know how to address an answer to her. Soon, for instance, would be the signature of a married woman reader in a letter to me, that is if she wished to "tell her name".

4—Yes, in the direct signature.

5—No! This is terrible, form—to use the first name of a married woman—or a widow—when we address a letter to either. We use the formal name.

Fashionably Speaking
By Lucille

Dear readers:

A number of useful hints may be found in the experience of one woman who recently decorated most inexpensively the kitchens of two modest but attractive cottages.

Both kitchens had the same plain ivory-colored walls and woodwork. In one, the floor was covered with beautiful linoleum having a good-sized pattern in several bright colors, for which reason the material chosen for window draperies was of a solid color matching the gayest hue in the floor coverings. The ivory-painted kitchen table had a wooden top and the drainboard was wooden, so the latter and the table top were both painted to match the draperies, and over the paint she put four coats of clear, heavy waterproof varnish. This made it possible to set anything on them without injury.

In the second kitchen the floor had been painted, but was worn-looking, so she painted it a medium shade of grey-green and varnished it. To offset the plain-colored walls and the solid color of the floor, she purchased for window draperies the gayest of flowered cretonne, containing much yellow, orange and vermillion, and a great deal of light grey-green, all on an ivory-colored background. As this cretonne was of a very cheap quality, it was made up into draperies, but before hanging at the windows it was laid flat on a table and given one coat of clear ordinary varnish, which improved its appearance, making it look somewhat similar to glazed chintz. The room needed still more color and pattern, so she covered the wooden cretonne and also put it over the few, medium-sized panels of the cupboard, tacking the edges with small brass tacks and varnishing each panel when completed. A painted floral spray of a design somewhat like design showing the cretonne colors, would have been liked, but either would have taken more time than was available, and also would have been more difficult to do. When putting the material on the table, she covered the front of the cloth with glue, then pressed it down even by and smoothly over the wood, after which the turned-under edges were tacked underneath the table edges. The cloth then received four coats of clear, heavy waterproof varnish. The effect of the room now was gay, flowery and charming.

It will be seen that in the case of these kitchens with walls and wood-work alike, it was the floor that demanded the difference in treatment, and this rule holds good not only in kitchen, but in every room in the house. In any room one should look at the floor, its color and pattern, as well as at the walls, before deciding upon even the slightest detail in furnishings or decoration.

Fashionably yours,
Lucille.

The short coat has lengthened its appeal and is being constantly seen. Recently there was worn with a brown woolen frock a short coat of rose-beige lapin, a matching muff and beret. The coat has a scalloped border and the high collar was also scalloped.

Moire is marked for success again this season. It is constantly noted at evening functions velvet smart is an ensemble of petunia-colored moire with an almost tailored evening frock and a sheer sleeved wrap. The wrap has a cape and is trimmed with satin.

Feathers curl themselves over the brim of many a hat, after a very long absence. A lovely trioma of brown soleil has tiny curling orange feather tips posed at each side of the trioma corners.

Green with envy are those who have neglected the importance of green as an evening fabric. Much admired is a lovely evening frock of green chiffon in jade green with dark green and silver bands forming flounces on the skirt and ruffles on the bodice.

Roll the barrel bag into the fashion picture, for this shape is more popular than ever this season for both day and evening use. Much liked with black crepe and evening wraps is the barrel-shaped bag of black velvet with a tassel of pearls at the end of the zipper fastening. These bags are also offered with tassels of onyx and ruby colored stones.

Guard your money with one of the new money clip bags. These clips are of gold or silver and are made in the form of an initial set with fine marcasite.

GRANT FLEMING, M.D. — ASSOCIATE SECRETARY

The Ear

It is commonly said that if our special senses, hearing comes second only to sight. These two senses are so necessary for the full enjoyment of life that it is impossible to say which of them is the more precious. Everyone will agree that to lose one or the other is a calamity and that it is well worth while to take whatever care is necessary to preserve both.

The outer part of the ear which we see acts as a receiver, collecting the sound waves and directing them inward to the hearing apparatus where the sounds are registered.

The canal which leads inward and which ends at the eardrum is lined with a tissue which secretes a substance called wax or cerumen. This secretion keeps the lining of the canal moist and soft. After the ear has given off its moisture it falls off in small flakes which are carried outwards by the hairs which grow from the tissue lining the canal. In some cases and under certain conditions, there is so much wax produced that it is not got rid of quickly and as a result, it accumulates in the canal. Poking at the ears to get rid of some wax or to relieve the itchiness in the canal very often leads to trouble.

Boils in the ear canal practically always follow some injury to the canal due to poking at the ears. Boils in any part of the body are painful, but when located in the ear canal, they are more distressing than usual, which is saying a great deal.

Someone has said that we should never put anything smaller than the elbow into the ear. This is sound advice. It is much better to take the trouble of having any excess wax properly removed than it is to run the risk of the occurrence of boils in the ear.

Not only may the canal be damaged, but an injury may be done to the eardrum by poking the ears. While we urge that it is necessary to avoid unskilful attempts to remove wax, we are not suggesting that it is a difficult matter to do so, if the procedure is properly carried out. In most cases, a gentle stream of water run into the ear will break up and wash out the excess wax.

Our advice is that nothing be put into the ear by unskilled hands. If wax cannot be washed out, then the removal should be undertaken by a skilled physician. The wax requires to be removed, for not only will its collection interfere with hearing, but, if it is left resting against the eardrum for a long period, it may cause damage to that part.

What we have said about wax applies also to the removal of insects or of any foreign body which may become lodged in the ear. Warm water is good as anything to destroy and dislodge an insect, but the removal of beads, beans, and other such objects that children put in their ears should be left to skilful hands.

Eloise And Her Ideas From Paris

CLOTHES FOR SMALL BOYS

By Constance Cameron

It is not only a matter of necessity that the very young boy about to enter kindergarten or nursery school be able to button and undo buttons on his clothing, but even for the child who still stays at home with you there is involved a very deep feeling of pride when he can help himself.

"Let me do it," is a most familiar sentence to a mother. And the sad part is that so many mothers, in the interest of time economy or for perhaps a little lack of patience, brush aside this natural desire for independence and with expert fingers get the buttoning and unbuttoning out of the way.

In some of the clothing which is put on the little boy the desire to be independent and dress and undress himself is almost stifled by the complications of the garment.

This can be easily remedied by making or buying those suits the buttons on which are large and located where small fingers can find and manipulate them.

Pattern designs for suits for the little boy, designs which will show you how to simplify those suits so that they can button them up all by himself.

The dresses for small girls seem somehow to be more simple and easier to manage, but now the small son comes into his own with a whole booklet or self-help clothing, which information is yours for the asking.

The little suits are easy to make, and it is my advice that all of them intended for use in nursery school, kindergarten or the school room be made from washable materials to the interest of sanitarium and freshness.

AUTO FACTORIES REOPENED DOORS WORKERS HAPPY

Thousands Will Now Have Full Dinner Pail and Needed Clothing

OUTSIDERS NOT WANTED.

Ford Plant at River Rouge Commenced with 75,000 Men

DETROIT, Jan. 12.—The full dinner pail became something more than an empty phrase today when thousands of men, many of them out of work for months returned to jobs in the city's big automobile manufacturing plants.

The call for workers went from the Ford plant in particular, while Chevrolet, Hudson and Chrysler plants in Detroit, and Buick at Flint are taking men back in smaller numbers. Other plants have added to their payrolls in the last week or so. Cadillac is operating with a normal personnel. Graham-Paige has increased its workers.

With these plants swinging into an operation schedule approaching closer to normal than anything in months, Kindred industries are preparing for a rush of orders. For a change the hum of industry is drowning out the murmurs of the unemployed and the home less.

For many who are back at their benches and machines today, it is the first opportunity to earn money in months. It will mean a chance to pay off the bills that have accumulated, catch up on the rent, purchase needed clothing and in some cases bring back to the household table staple articles of food, meat, vegetables, butter, milk—things that have been missing for many.

In other cases the lay-offs have not been of such long duration. All plants have operated with restricted personnel throughout the year, but on a short time basis, as a rule.

Occasionally, they have no accurate figures on how long the men have been off. All, however, insist that only former employes will be taken back. Outsiders are warned not to come to Detroit looking for work. Even with the big plants resuming increased operations, there will be thousands of jobless in the city.

At Various Points

The Ford plant at River Rouge will start operations with 75,000 men, whose daily wage will be around $600,000. Normal force there is 85,000 men. In other Ford plants throughout the country 23,000 additional men will be employed.

At the Chevrolet plant more than 30,000 men now are employed and W. S. Knudsen, president, expects the payroll to reach 40,000 by the end of the month.

In Flint, 10,000 men have been put back to work in the Buick plant since Jan. 1, according to E. T. Strong, president. The payroll now numbers 13,000. In the Oxdillac-La Salle plant 6,000 men are working on a five-day basis, with present business demands indicating longer hours soon. The 6,000 is the normal force. Hudson is working 10,000 men in advance of 6,000 in the last two months.

One of the first to benefit through the motor industry upturn is the municipal bus lines here. Additional trolleys, held in the barns during the slack season, will be put on the lines leading to the plants to-morrow. This means employment for many car men who have been off.

SAND AND SNOW STORM WROUGHT HAVOC IN CHINA

Thousands Die as Sub-Zero Weather Strikes Country

NO ESTIMATE DEAD

Navigation on River at Standstill — Scattered Reports

SHANGHAI, Jan. 12.— Subzero weather, spreading death and destruction, gripped virtually all China north of the Yangtze River today.

A vast blanket of snow and ice reached from the sea westward as far as Kansu Province, and from the Yangtze northward into the barren wastes of Mongolia, whence the blizzard came.

Fragmentary reports of the storm, which raged fiercely for three days, trickled in over crippled communications. No estimate of the dead was available, but it was feared the toll would run into the thousands. The local weather office described the storm as the most severe in many years.

Scores of frozen bodies were picked up on the streets of Pelpin and Tientsin, Chihli Province. Hundreds perished in surrounding areas, their wretched, fireless hovels providing scant protection from the biting blasts. Even in the vicinity of Pelpin and Tientsin, large cities, the menace of exhilerating the dead existed. Hence it was considered unlikely an estimate of the toll throughout North China would ever be forthcoming.

Sand-and-Snow Storm

Even the wealthier classes felt the bitterness of the wind. They occupy dense dwelling, although built of stone, has paper windows, affording but partial protection against storms, which often carry with them from the north a mixture of snow and swirling Mongolian sand.

Despatches from the North said the blizzard had ceased, but freezing temperatures persisted, despite a cloudless sunny sky.

Nankin despatches, however, said the lower Yangtze Valley was still in the grip of the storm, Zero weather claimed scores of lives, interrupted telegraphic and railway communications and caused heavy property damage.

Scattered reports indicated that the entire area between the Yangtze and Yellow Rivers as far west as Kansu was hard hit. The snow blankets was in some places a foot in depth.

Nankin Snow Covered

Nankin was buried beneath a heavy white coat and the temperature last night sank below zero. Scores were dead. Despatches said rickaha pullers were frozen virtually in their tracks. Relief organizations were unable to cope to supply the poor with clothing, fuel and shelter.

Navigation on the Yangtze was practically at a standstill. Several hundred miles of track of railways was halted or delayed. Many cities were isolated, and the situation in Northwestern China was not known.

Despatches from Harbin, Manchuria, said thermometers stood at 37 degrees centigrade (below). All rivers in Northern Manchuria were frozen to a depth of many feet. Many deaths were reported in Manchuria.

Hankow, although buried under snow escaped the brunt of the blizzard. Much suffering existed there, however, as cold, and high winds swept it. A fire which destroyed stores in the business district resulted.

Shanghai experienced freezing weather and 25 sharp north wind.

BELLIGERENT UNEMPLOYED OF CITY THREATENED PUBLIC WORKS SUPT.

Sixty Men are Put to Work on Cleaning the Streets

Although the fall of snow has not been heavy in the city this winter, the Public Works department of the City Council has decided to remove that snow on Front, Street today and tomorrow to give needed employment to many out of work. Some 60 men were taken on the payroll today by Superintendent John Henderson and this will be augmented by teams and men to the number of 100 by tomorrow. The scrapers were out early shoving the snow to the side of the street in order that the work of removing it would be facilitated.

The unemployed have been visiting the city yards since the snowfall of Saturday, intimating that they be put to work to shovel the snow off Front Street, while the council and superintendent have contended the fall was not heavy enough to demand attention. The men have not used force with the superintendent, but have been troublesome and in order to avoid a fracas Mr. Henderson requested police protection when he went to the city yard early today.

This was accorded. Constable Evans going with the superintendent. The matter was amicably settled by putting fifteen men on the sewers now under construction and the remaining 45 men on the snow. It is expected that Front Street will be cleared of snow by tomorrow night and in a small measure the unemployment situation will be relieved.

It is understood that last week several men who were dissatisfied with the division of the work, banded themselves together to make trouble for the city's superintendent. They threatened to "beat up" Mr. Henderson, but the ring leaders showed no signs of action when the policeman appeared this morning.

COUNTY ALFALFA SEED IS SHIPPED TO COPENHAGEN

Splendid Tribute to Agricultural Fame of This Area

A great tribute to the agricultural fame of Canada in general and Hastings County in particular was paid by the Government of Denmark in a recent communication to Chas. E. Bishop & Son, wholesale seed dealers of Belleville, requesting samples of alfalfa seed grown in this county to be used at the Danish Government Experimental Farm at Copenhagen.

According to the request of the Danish Government, Bishop & Son shipped samples of alfalfa seed grown in Hastings County as follows: "Grimm Variety," and "Hastings Grown Cossack Variegated." These varieties of alfalfa seed will without doubt give a good account of themselves at the Government Experimental Farm in Denmark and still further add to the fame of Ontario and Hastings County as rich in agricultural wealth.

DISTRIBUTION OF POWER BY STATE UTILITIES URGED

New York, Jan. 12— The distribution of power from the St. Lawrence River project through existing state utilities was advocated by the St. Lawrence Commission today. In making public, the reports of its marketing board and its engineering board, the Commission stated they were in agreement that the best method of utilization lies in contracts providing for an interconnected transmission system.

HIT BY SKIDDING CAR

Oshawa, Jan. 13—While attempting to cross King Street east yesterday Edward Sleeman of Whitby, was knocked down by a car driven by A. J. Adams of Athol Street. Adams, in an attempt to avoid hitting him, applied his brakes, but the car skidded into Sleeman, throwing him to the pavement. Sleeman was not seriously injured.

TOSS OF COIN DECIDED CRIME

Smith and Dundas Plead Guilty to Armed Robbery at Peterboro

Peterboro, Jan. 13—Gordon Dundas and Carl Smith in Police Court Saturday pleaded guilty to having robbed with violence C. W. Johnston, aged Smith township farmer, at his home on the Chemong Road. Both were remanded until Friday next for sentence. Dundas was brought back from Cobourg where he was serving 15 days in jail for drunkenness. Fred Todd, 20 year old Omemee farmer, also is implicated in the hold-up, police say and he faced the charge of robbery with violence. He pleaded not guilty and was remanded until Friday.

Police say that Smith and Dundas have given a detailed account of the crime. Smith said that Dundas gave her and Dundas had planned the Johnston hold-up. They would have done it then, only Dundas backed down, he said. On that occasion the two had planned to strike the old man on the head with a hammer and take his money, according to Smith. They walked out as far as Johnston's gate, where they halted, they declared, to decide who was to strike the blow.

"We flipped a coin to see who would hit him," Smith told the police. "I lost, but I couldn't do it. I told Dundas I wasn't going to kill any old man. Dundas said he would do it himself, he did not, and we walked back again."

FAMILIES DRIVEN OUT BY FLAMES

WINDSOR, Jan. 13.—Seven families were driven from the Nelvis Apartments, Ellis Avenue and Chatelle Avenue, Windsor, at 2.50 p.m. by a fire which started from defective wiring between the second and third stories. The occupants, after a struggle with a passer-by, left the building scantily clad.

Flames were shooting from one of the side windows when the firemen arrived. There was no need to use ladders, because the occupants had been assisted from the apartments down the fire-escapes by neighbors.

Smoke and water did considerable damage to the store of the Atlantic & Pacific Company on the first floor. Officials of the Cadillac Investment Company, owners of the building, estimate the damage at $5,000.

ITALIAN FLIERS HONORED GUESTS

Conquerors of Atlantic Will Continue Flight to the Brazilian Capital

Bahia, Brazil, Jan. 12—Forty-four Italian airmen, le dby General Balbo, air minister and Col. Umberto Maddalena, one of the Nobile rescuers were the honored guests of the Government of the Italian colony here today as their eleven seaplanes, victors over the Atlantic, swung at anchor in the harbor. Tomorrow or the next day they will continue their flight to Rio de Janeiro, which will probably be the end of their 7,000 mile trans-Atlantic flight from Orbetello, Italy.

ATTORNEY GENERAL HAS SHARP RETORT FOR LIBERAL CHIEFTAIN

Price Back from South Feels off His Coat for Action

IS FEELING FIT

Says he Has No Intention of Resigning His Post — To Answer Hepburn

Toronto, Jan. 13 (CP)—Returning to his office today after three weeks' holiday in Carolina, Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney General, literally removed his coat and gloves ready to answer the critics of his administration. Col. Price looked the picture of health, and declared himself as feeling fit and prepared to wage warfare on his Liberal critics.

Col. Price declared he has no intention of resigning or moving from the Attorney General's department into another Government position. On the contrary, he is wheeling his guns into action and shortly he will speak in the two by-elections in Grenville and West Hamilton to answer Mitchell F. Hepburn, Liberal leader, and other critics.

"There never was a time in the history of the Province," declared Mr. Price in defending administration, "when the Attorney General's department was working on as high a point of efficiency as it is today. This includes the judges, magistrates and police who are all on their toes and I am very proud of our four years as Attorney General of this province.

"My administration will stand scrutiny and praise that any one wants to give it," he continued.

SIMPLE RITES FOR GREAT NEW YORK MERCHANT

Nathan Straus Who Gave Away Millions is Dead at 82

New York, Jan. 12—Nathan Straus, international known philanthropist, died of heart failure at his home yesterday, leaving instructions for a funeral to be held Tuesday at Temple Emmanuel, which will be conducted with the same simplicity and dignity that characterized the career of one of New York's most famous "merchant princes."

No formal eulogy will mark his passing for that would be contrary to his wishes. There will be no pallbearers. There will be no flowers. His body will rest in a simple pine casket. But William Lyons Phelps of Yale Yale is to be permitted to read a brief outline of his life—with no undue stress upon his many benefactions—and words.

Straus was 82 years old, and had been in ill-health since last May, when the death of his wife deeply affected him.

"I dislike to see these great funerals," he used to tell his friends. "Money large sums should be spent for the betterment of mankind."

Incidentally, it was revealed by his family, Straus leaves $1 to Blue wealth. He had spent millions of dollars.

It was Nathan Straus who in the autumn of 1892-91, opened what is believed to have been the first emergency unemployment relief station. "Give a man a job," of his own fortune, he distributed cards calling for coal, bread and other necessities, to the poor at 5 cents apiece. He did not believe in "pauperizing" the people. "They must earn that five cents first," he said.

PROBE FATAL BLAZE IN NORTHERN ONTARIO

COCHRANE, Ont., Jan. 12.—CP)—Investigation into the deaths of the victims of the Queen's Hotel fire last December, opened here today before Coroner E. R. Tucker. Only routine evidence was offered this morning. Inspector Ritchie of the Provincial Fire Marshal's Department, was present at the request of the coroner.

CENTENARIAN LIKES LATEST JAZZ MUSIC

PLANO, Ill., Jan. 12 —Celebrating her 101st birthday today, Mrs. Charlotte Rayburn, knew up and down the Fox River valley as "Grandma," will bake her own memorial birthday cake, light the 101 candles and help friends and relatives to eat it.

Grandma" Rayburn said that her greatest enjoyment now is jazz music served over the radio.

"I often sing my quilt after midnight," she said, "listening to those Chicago orchestras playing what the young folks say is jazz. It's great. It pops me up."

CLOSER ECONOMIC UNITY PREDICTED

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 13 (Canadian Press Cable)—The importance of the Imperial Conference as a factor in consolidating the Empire was stressed by Prime Minister Scullin, when speaking at a great civic reception tendered by the Lord Mayor of Melbourne today, on his return from the Conference.

"The spirit of unity there displayed left nothing to be desired and closer economic unity of the Empire is coming," said the Prime Minister.

ARGYLL LEADER GETS NEW POST

Prof. Zealley Becomes Advertising Manager for Toronto Journal

Prof. Zealley who has held the appointment of bandmaster with the Argyll Light Infantry Band for the past 18 years, has been appointed to fill the post of advertising manager for the Maclean-Hunter Publishing Company, Toronto.

He has also been placed on the staff of the Canadian Bureau of Music as an instructor for juvenile bands and orchestras.

Some of the band concerts given by the A.L.I. band have reached a high standard under the direction of Prof. Zealley, and one that will perhaps linger long in the memories of the citizens of Belleville was the Sunday evening concert given by the band on the Armouries lawn during the Old Home Week celebration last August. He always made a feature of the band concerts in connection with the annual Belleville Fair by securing the Directors of the Fair bestowed upon him the highest praise.

During his regime the following new members have been added to the strength of the band, Harry Greenleaf, flute, Reg. Wardle, Trombone. Mr. Lofgren, trombone, Mr. Hawthorn, Reo Hunter, clarinet, Vic Wardle, saxophone, Leo Bellinger, cornet. Belleville loses a first class band master, and it is to be hoped the band will be fortunate in obtaining another leader just as capable.

SCHOLARSHIP AWARDED

Colonel W. N. Ponton, K.C., attended a meeting of the Senate of the University of Toronto on Friday evening, when much progressive legislation for the great Provincial University was enacted. The under-graduates, we learned, and many scholarships were awarded. Grateful acknowledgements were made to Mrs. Dunlop for her perpetual magnificent gift of the great new telescope (the second largest in the world) and appreciation was also expressed of the many benefactions to education of the late Colonel R. W. Leonard of St. Catharines.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S., was held on Friday afternoon in the Assembly Hall of the Church, with thirty-five in attendance. Mrs. (Dr.) Seymour presided, occupied the chair and opened the programme with a reading, after which Mrs. J. Parger read the Scripture lesson. The singing of appropriate hymns was followed by Mrs. Reid, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Perry and Mrs. Fleming leading in prayer. Mrs. Reid gave a very interesting address on service.

Circles were formed for the purpose of carrying out the monthly programs. Plans were made for entertaining the delegates to the meeting of the Kingston Presbyterial to be held here in February. Arrangements were also made for a tea, in aid of the expense fund to be held at an early date. Repeats for the year were received, and all were very gratifying.

COUNCIL SWORN IN

With due solemn pomp and ceremony, Trenton's new chief magistrate and town council were sworn into office for 1931 in the town hall this morning by Town Clerk O'Rourke. The ceremony was brief and was well attended by citizens. Rev. Mr. Haywood the Anglican minister of Trenton, opened the proceedings with prayer. Mayor Chester W. GIANT MACHINES STARTING GREAT AFRICAN TOUR

Cairo, Egypt.—In the sixth Royal Air Force transition cruise from Cairo to Cape Town and back —on item in regular service routine —I, the squadron commander, left Cairo—begin on Jan. 12. Three large twin engined Vickers "Victoria" heavy transport biplanes accompanied by eight aeroplanes with instructions to arrive at Cape Town at the end of the first week in February and to complete the return journey during the second week in March.

Earlier service flights over 11,000 miles of the route have served to pave the way for the mail and passenger service which will begin operations very soon. With seven stages behind me, departing from pre-arranged time-table the annual cruise of Royal Air Force bombers has gone by year demonstrated how aircraft might ply regularly from one end of the African continent to the other. Now the civil organization, manifest in a chain of aerodromes emergency landing grounds, assists the way of the service flyers and at the same time pays tribute to their predecessors.

Every earlier cruise has engaged single-engined bombing aeroplanes of the Wapiti type, but the greater size of the aeroplanes implying possible difficulty in getting them and their spare parts over mountains. Each "Victoria," when fully laden, weighs nearly eight tons, and six Rolls-Royce and Abrecrom, Napier-Rhodes, the aeroplanes are more than 6,000 feet above sea level; this means that the ascent in the thin air for the first few miles is slow, particularly if the sun is hot, will need every ounce of power which can be got out of the engines.

The flight, which will be supervised by Group Captain R. M. Murray, will spend periods of one or two days in various centres, whilst small numbers of native soldiers will be borne aloft to give them experience of aeroplane travel. Among the party Captain Murray will be Squadron Leader H. W. G. J. Pendred, a test air pilots, Among them is Flight Lieutenant Wann, a well known pilot of high-speed seaplanes, who was third in the last race for the Schneider International Trophy and held the former British speed record of 319 1-2 miles an hour. He is now engaged in piloting huge and comparatively slow transport machines.

The "Victoria" is powered with two 550 h.p. motors. Among outstanding exploits accomplished by these machines is the evacuation of Kabul, Afghanistan, in 1929, when more than 600 dwellers, the beleaguered garrison were rescued and carried by air over the formidable mountain ranges to safety in India. In other service with the Royal Air Force the "Victoria" daily transport aircraft has demonstrated the immense value of this type of machine and how much of the framework of modern air strategy in the British Empire depends directly on them.

WILL DISCUSS WAR MEMORIAL

Meeting to be Held in Office of Mr. R. J. Graham on January 13th.

Tomorrow, Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock a meeting is to be held in the office of Ex-Mayor R. J. Graham, Front Street, to discuss the question of a war memorial. Mr. Graham has a photograph of a war memorial which might be suitable and has also prices for the erection of a memorial of this character.

It is hoped this afternoon that he would welcome the attendance of any citizen at this meeting who is at all interested in a memorial to the Great War. It is added that the three adjacent townships of Ameliasburgh, Sidney and Thurlow ought to be interested in a memorial of this kind as they had sent a proportionately large number of men to the front who had not returned.

Tomorrow's meeting will in all probability be largely attended by individuals and by those acting in a representative capacity.

FOR GREENS AND FAIRWAYS

One of the world's finest turf grasses has been developed on the dyke lands of New Brunswick during past three years. It is known as Creeping Red Fescue. It is ideal for use on putting greens and fairways where reasonably moist soils exist. It is now being produced commercially and is in big demand with golf clubs that want the best in playing turf. It is put up under inspection by the Dominion Seed Branch and finds a ready market. One pound of this seed contains several times as many vital seeds to the pound as Kentucky blue grass and similar coarser seeds and the turf it produces is superior to that produced by any other kind suitable for the purpose.

OPERA BY WIRELESS FOR GREAT BRITAIN

British Broadcasting Corporation's Scheme Receives General Praise

MANCHESTER—The British Broadcasting Corporation's scheme to establish opera on a new and permanent basis in Great Britain with the guarantee of $150,000 a year, has the hearty approval of The Manchester Guardian. The undertaking is to be administered by the Covent Garden Opera Syndicate, Limited, under the chairmanship of F. A. Szarvasy, the originator of the proposal, and the directors are not to receive any remuneration, but are to be allowed "reasonable" travelling and other expenses in connection with the performances of their duties.

The Manchester Guardian says editorially:

It was inevitable that sooner or later the British Broadcasting Corporation would extend their influence over music to the most popular of all the forms of music, which, of course, is opera. The corporation, has entered into a scheme whereby some 220 performances of opera will be given in various parts of the country every year, the bulk of them at prices of admission convenient to slender purses. In brief, the B. B. C. will in its own way help opera as on the Continent the State helps opera, while at the same time they will attend to their main job of entertaining the radio public. The scheme is likely to be applauded by the majority, for it has

SUNDAY CEASES TO BE REST DAY

London, Jan. 10—A manifesto on Sunday Observance, declaring that Sunday has ceased to be a day of rest for large numbers, and urging the dangers of this new tradition, has been issued by the Council of Christian Ministers on Social Questions, consisting of Church of England Bishops and leading members of the Free Churches. The signatories state that, while we abandon the traditional ground of the claim for Sunday observance based on the Fourth Commandment, we feel that there still lies upon us an obligation in the letter, we nevertheless press upon us christian conscience the legitimate claim for its observance.

In an appeal to "the christian conscience," the signatories urge that a weekly day of real labor must always be secured for all. Any overt movement to abolish the observance of Sunday such as was attempted in France at the revolution and was now again attempted in Russia, would be profoundly unpopular in our country and there was no need to contemplate it. "It will be observed that no objection is taken to recreation in the proper use of the Sunday," adds the manifesto, "if this fourfold obligation is first observed. Granted this we are content to leave the whole question of Sunday observance to the decision of the people themselves as to the Sunday recreations which are suitable or unsuitable."

Slithery Sea Monsters No Novelty According to First Engineer T. S. Tutin

SAINT JOHN, N. B.—Plenty of seafaring men are willing to vouch for more or less distant personal experience with the sea serpent, but First Engineer T. S. Tutin of the Dunaff Head is one up. He has seen two, and on opposite sides of the world. Settled back in a chair aboard his ship, with steam up on a single, the Dunaff's engineer recently unburdened himself to several frequenters of this port's waterfront.

A monstrous head like that of a horse, great black eyes, and finny spikes sticking out all down its back, slithering like a big eel in the sunshine. That was his description of the first reptile he encountered, years ago on the Ramore Head. The ship sailed out of Swansea, Wales, and was off the coast of Ireland. A faint blue outline of land could be seen on the horizon. Three miles from the ship an awkward head suddenly swirled out of the choppy sea and reared itself many feet above the surface. Someone shouted, and the officers trained their glasses on the slithery form which remained in view for a full five minutes. He was able to describe the monster, Tutin said, because the long range glasses he used made a distance of three miles merely a stone's throw. The crew of the ship were quite convinced, he declared, notwithstanding the dictionary's definition of a sea serpent as either fictitious or probably based on incomplete or deceptive views of schools of porpoises, large sturgeons or other large marine animals.

By a coincidence, the engineer remarked, two sea captains who could verify the story were dining at Saint John this winter. One was Captain Mathers of the San Oil, then first mate of the Ramore Head, and the other, Captain Finlay, of the Panad Head, who had been master of the Ramore.

The engineer's second experience was off Capt Sap Roque, South America, before that war, when by and the current he was passing apparently a gigantic eel a half mile away. The head and neck of this creature rose slowly out of the water, went through various contortions and slowly sank back. It appeared to be about 60 feet in diameter, he said. Not long afterwards, Tutin saw in an English magazine a photograph reproduced of the log of a whaler describing an alleged sea serpent viewed approximately in the same location. The incident tended to disprove the contention that sea serpents are out of the water just before they die, he thought, for the same one had apparently put on an exhibition for both ships. Or perhaps the sea serpent death rate was running high just then.

Members of the little audience peered anxiously out over the harbor waters as they stepped down the gangplank to the dock.

MARLBOROS WIN FROM NATIONALS

Fastest Senior Game in Toronto This Season — Always in Front

Toronto, Jan. 12—Swinging into action with a fast-hitting game and continuing it through for the full 60 minutes, Marlboro "took" Nationals 3-2 in the O.H.A. senior test at the Arena Saturday night and went ahead of their city rivals in the championship race.

It was a heavy body-checking affair, jammed with thrills from the first face off as players on goal-scoring flights took incentives, tailspins and rolls when they endeavored to crash their way through the defensive zone.

There was action and plenty of it. There wasn't a dull minute in the 60 and it's a toss-up whether the athletes or the 4,500 spectators were in the more exhausted condition at the final bell.

Certainly the fans left the rink talking to themselves. They were right. It was one of the best O.H.A. senior games played in these parts in many moons. It brought back memories of that thrilling struggle between the famous Crescents and Hamilton Tigers in the 1922 finals.

Red Foster's Dukes were always in front, leading 1 to 0 at the first recess and 2 to 1 at the second. Nationals netted their goal 14 seconds from the end of the middle period and their second, and last, two seconds before the close of the game. And on the night's play the Dukes clearly earned the victory. Harry Watson, Sea Plane coach, said so himself.

The Right Tactics

Marlboros surely adopted the right tactics to stop the shifty Italians. They pair particular attention to Bruce Paul, Marty Hogenet, Weiner Lough and Rob Paul, but did not neglect the others. Marlboro gave the Sea Plane a hard shaking up.

But do not get the idea that the Nats took it lying down. Their rushes were anything but timid, and Bill Thoms, Bob Gracies and Fred Robertson made them once ran into some terrific jolts.

On the first National rush the Dukes showed their mettle. Bruce Paul glided in on the defence in one of his dazzling charges, only to be turned on his ear by Fred Robertson. Weiner Lough was handed the same reception by "Mine Alex" Levinsky a few seconds later and the gang war was on in earnest.

From there to the finish it was one slam after another, with the Dukes pulling over the most slams and the most effective ones, too. Early in the third period Bruce Paul was out cold at his own defence line, and Marty Hogenet was in the same state at the Marlboro end. Two Nats. out at the same time.

A few suit in Runnals that has been dreaded since the year 1571 over 2,500 acres of land was recently ended.

CANADIENS ARE EASY WINNERS

Gagnon Ran Wild in Game at Montreal Forum Before Hoosiers Watched Closely.

MONTREAL, Jan. 12.—Sheer speed and a dazzling display of stick-handling earned the colorful Canadiens a 6-1 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs Saturday night in one of most exciting encounters the National Hockey League has offered its patrons in the city this season. The score does not convey the impression that it was a one-sided affair, but it was a hard fought struggle almost all the way.

The home team were there with the scoring punch and their dazzling speed was too much for Toronto, but the rapier thrusts of Conacher, Primeau, Stanley Day and Hooper were always dangerous. The Leafs wavered in the last period, and the Flying Frenchmen rattled three goals into the cage. The crowd was remarkably free from rough work for all its speed. Only five penalties were handed out in the three periods.

The Leafs watched Howie Morenz right from the start, and though he got away from his warders through his speed now and then, they succeeded in keeping him out of the scoring. If Morenz had his hands tied, Johnny Gagnon and George Mantha did not and both blazed through the game at blinding speed with a startling exhibition of skating and sharpshooting that excited the crowd to a high pitch. Johnny also got an assist to sweeten his batting average.

OSHAWA CAPTURE THIRD STRAIGHT

OSHAWA, Jan. 12.—The third place tie in the Ontario Hockey League was decisively broken when Oshawa Patricias took a 5 to 2 win from the Stratford Nationals. It was the third such victory for the Pats. About 1,500 people attended the game.

Six goals, including Oshawa's five, were scored in the hectic second period all of the locals' tallies coming in nine minutes. The fierce Oshawa attacks seemed to demoralize the Stratford team for about that length of time, and the locals took full advantage of this to pile in their winning goals. Paught's splendid playing in the Oshawa net prevented the Stratford forward line from scoring many almost sure goals, and he added to his with the standing of the score Rice, Lott, Joyce and Davey also acquitted themselves well for Oshawa. Quenby, Walker, Moore and Hamel proved to be the most dangerous men on the Stratford team.

QUAKERS SURPRISE MONTREAL MAROONS

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan 13—After 15 straight defeats the Philadelphia Quakers defeated the Montreal Maroons, 4 to 3, in a 10-minute overtime National Hockey League game here Saturday night. The victory was the second scored by the Quakers this season, and the defeat of the Maroons was a surprise, as experts expected that the lowly Quakers would be easy for the big and fast Canadian outfit.

The winning goal was tallied by Peaches Lyons on passes from Lowery and Hoekstra after more than half the extra period had been played. Score by art and Phillips scored for the Maroons while Milks, Hutton and Lowery also counted for the Quakers.

Cude, Quaker goaler, was badly hurt in the third period and Miller finished the game. Cude was taken to a hospital.

CHICAGO BLACK HAWKS WINNERS

New York, Jan. 12—The Chicago Black Hawks took undisputed possession of second place in the American division of the National Hockey league Saturday night, defeating the New York Rangers 2 to 0 in a speedy exhibition of hockey before a crowd of 15,000.

A real early in the first period by Mush March and another late in the closing session by Victor Desjardins gave the Hawks their second victory of the year over the Rangers. March scored unaided while Desjardins was given the help of Ingram in a flashy bit of play that caught the four of the Rangers napping at the other end of the rink.

With the Rangers striving desperately to score after the Hawks had counted twice, Butch Keeling and Frank Ingram threw away their sticks and went to fighting with fists. The pair were separated by the other players, however, and play resumed after Keeling had been given a major penalty and Ingram a two-minute trip to the penalty box.

BRUINS DEFEAT DETROIT FALCONS

Detroit, Jan. 12—The Boston Bruins took the measure of the Detroit Falcons 4 to 1 in a National League Hockey match here last night before the season's largest crowd, a reli-ant attendance of 14,500.

The Bruins were away to a two-goal start before five minutes of the first period had passed, Gainor and Oliver scoring on lone rushes. Then the Falcons got going with an attack on the Boston net, but Goalie Tiny Thompson of the Bruins turned back every shot, aided by Tommy Gorman and Faloon wingman, midway in the second period.

The remaining two Bruins' goals came late in the final period, when the Falcons were caught short-handed during a five-man assault, Beatty and Shorn each breaking away to beat Goaly Dolson, the Falcon goalie. Only four penalties were called during the game.

LONDON DEFEAT PITTSBURG TEAM

Pittsburg, Jan. 12—Pittsburg went down to defeat before London, 6 to 3 in an overtime International League hockey game here Saturday night. The game went into the extra stanzas with the score deadlocked at 3 to 3 and the visitors took advantage of a shortage of Yellow-Jacket man power to boost up their total and win the contest.

Pittsburg—Goal, Fisher; defence, Fraser and Berlett; centre, Oulette; wings, Proudlock and Gregg; subs, McGuire, Gilmour, Halliday, White, Reise, Smith and McIntyre.

London—Goal, Stuart; defence, Connor and Holway; centre, Loughin; wings, Quenneville and Orch; subs, Goldsworthy, Renikka, Yankowski, Vokes, Rommes and Pettinger.

Referee—Mike Rodden, Toronto.

TACKLE TRENTON SQUAD TONIGHT

Stan Burgoyne Will Present a Strong Intermediate Team to the Fans

The intermediate hockey team of this city has a chance to get away in their group race on the right foot tonight, when they take on the fast Trenton intermediate squad at the Belleville Arena. This should be one of the best tussles of the year as Trenton and Belleville always provide plenty of excitement when they oppose each other other. Never has there been any rough-house methods used but the checking has always been close and more attention paid to the player than the little black disc. The Trenton team is an unknown quantity but they have in George Filion an outstanding player and one that would grace any hockey team. Rube Schensel, Ben Powell, "Buddy" Rosenplast, "Charlie" Steenburg and others are familiar names to Belleville hockey fans and all these boys will be in action.

Stan Burgoyne has a smart team lined up which may go somewhere in the intermediate race. Bushard will tend the twine and the sharpshooters from Trenton will have to pick the centers to make their shot count. Ingram and Alex Weir or Murney Green will form the defense and either combination will be hard to beat. Henry Gannon will kick after the pivot position with Buck and Hull as his wing partners. Pointer, Bailey and Carroll will probably be the other three boys and this team should make it interesting for the position. The fans will be introduced to a new referee tonight in the person of Herman Jacobi from Toronto. The prices for the game have been put at the usual figure and a big crowd should turn out to give the intermediates the once over and see the improvement that Burgoyne has made in their play.

INDIANS WIN ANOTHER

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 12— The Springfield Indians won their fifth in six starts, a 6 to 1 victory over the New Haven Eagles in a Canadian-American Hockey League game. The Indians went on a spree in the third period, scoring four goals after what was otherwise an evenly contested match. Gabaur, Springfield's center, was an outstanding player, while Callaghan and Seibert shared honors in the Indians' defence. Pringle starred for the Eagles. Seibert, Gabaur and Pringle each scored two goals for Springfield. Boucher accounted for New Haven's lone tally.

VISITING CAGERS DEFEAT Y'S MEN

Had teh Y's Mens' Basketball team been a little faster and played the aggressive type of play that featured the opening during the closing moments of the game Saturday night, the score board would have been a much different appearance then it disclosed at the termination of the affair. Although Kingston was represented by only five players the visitors were forced to the task of turning back the Club Men. The latter allowed Bob Elliott and Thompson to run up the winning points before they registered a counter. The final score was 46-37.

The second half saw the "All Star" quint doubling their score although it was a large part of the period but in the closing minutes Captain Weir and his gang started to hit the hoop. It was in this stanza that Elliott and Thompson went on a scoring rampage, the former sinking four baskets and the latter five baskets. As a result a lineup counted before the home team were able to get going effectively, they were made to look rather bad. Also too frequent fouling cost the locals dearly, their opponents being awarded twelve fouls which netted six points for them. The Club Men on the other hand were able to realise only one point from the three fouls charged to Kingston-ians. Combined the Y's Men ran up on a good percentage of their free throws but they were off in this department on Saturday night.

The visiting line-up consisted of Elliott, Thompson, McMahon, Bews and Smith worked together nicely displaying some finished passing and dribbling.

The Teams

Kingston All Stars (46)—Forwards: Elliott and Thompson; centre Mcmahon; guards Bews and Smith.

Y's Men (37)—Forwards McPee, Ever, Allen, Davison; Centre, Fankinner; guards, White, Writers, Buck and Weir.

Referee—Reeks of Albert College.

Y Juvenile Free Too Shifty For Girls' Quintette

The Y girls' team found the youngsters they were pitted against, in the preliminary game, somewhat too strong to be taken into camp. In fact the latter rather dominated the play as the score of 27-9 would indicate. However, the game should have a beneficial effect on the play of the girls' team, forcing them as it did, to speed up both their passing and shooting. In both these departments the young ladies have made remarkable improvement under the capable tutorship of Coach Buck, and if they can become more adept in making their shots count when they get their own attack a little speedier, they will undoubtedly show still further improvement in their game.

The Teams

Y Midgets—O. Ostrom, G. Stanfield, A. Cole, R. Harris, F. Henry.

Y Girls—A. Ross, M. Meiklor, S. Melchior, E. Sager, P. Redfern, J. Crull, L. Ridley, V. Hobson,.. H. Darley.

TANGIBLE RESULTS OF MISSION SEEN

MONTREAL—Canada can very conspicuously extend her export frontiers in Japan and China, said W. Mc. Clarke, secretary of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, who returned recently to the Dominion metropolis after a two months visit to the Orient as a member of the trade mission of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

Canadian producers and exporters have not only the potential markets of these countries at their doors, but also actual openings which can be advantageously apprehended by Canadian business, continued Mr. Clarke. As a result of observations on the personnel of the delegation and of conferences held with a large number of Japanese and Chinese merchants in the various cities visited in Japan and China, it is clear that Canada can increase her trade in not only raw materials semi-manufactured goods and foodstuffs, but also in manufactured products, added Mr. Clarke. The Japanese market, in the face of the country's amazing industrial development, her objectives in this connection and her accomplishment low prices, does not represent at present a large market for the general run of our finished products, but on the other hand there is almost an unlimited expanding market for the three main groups of our primary products, viz, wheat and foodstuffs lumber and minerals.

If Japan, said Mr. Clarke, has in China the finest potential market and third largest foreign buyer, it is only natural to predict that this increasing trade will be intensified, provided our exporters will seriously and persistently cultivate the fields of opportunities.

China, he added, has pegged up to eighth place among the world consumers of Canadian goods, and is destined to become a much larger greater range and volume of Canadian products, both manufactured and primary. Japan has heretofore been experienced. Once conditions, from a political, monetary and economic are stabilized — and there are at least several hopeful signs which indicate this betterment — and with increasing communications to the interior and with the potential desires of the Chinese people themselves being made productive, the doors of opportunity for our commercial expansion will naturally be thrown open the wider.

Mr. Clarke was emphatic in his opinion that Canadian exporters and especially the principals themselves should insofar as is practical study the potential markets at first hand, should follow a persistent and concerted rather than a haphazard or indirect export policy, and, when unable to visit separately the Far East, might very well consider the practicability of participating in various groups along co-operative lines by sending out a competent representative or representatives to canvass the Oriental markets and eventually to carry on business therein on behalf of their trade sponsors. Foreign markets to be successful, he added, must be just as ably catered to as the domestic field.

Mr. Clarke concluded by stating that the trade mission of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce had undoubtedly performed very fine work in the national service and that the entire delegation had received every courtesy and welcome from the governments, the Chambers of Commerce, the municipalities and the Canadian officials themselves in the Far East, and that the delegation was looking forward with confidence to the tangible results of the mission in the way of increased trade as well as to the many intangible developments of promoting good will and friendship between the trans-Pacific peoples and Canada.

KINGSTON SPORT WRITERS ATTACK ATTITUDE OF HOCKEY OFFICIALS

More and more, as the O.H.A. season gets well under way, it looks as though the O.H.A. is determined to entirely ignore Kingston referees and the appointments made for games tonight and tomorrow bear out the contention that the august governing body is making sure that the Toronto boys are kept busy, with long jumps so that the regular fee and the expense will make a good night's pay. There was a Belleville-Queen's in Belleville last night and a Toronto official got the job; another Toronto man is given a trip for the Queen's-R.M.C. game here tomorrow (a strictly local affair), and a Queen's man is billed for Trenton tomorrow. And the referees we've seen around here in the past couple of years, certainly haven't impressed the game any.

If these Toronto officials must be given games, all well and good, they're yet, plenty of seven right here in town but when they are sent down into the Kingston district, and officials right in Kingston who have proven themselves to be an improvement over most of the Toronto referees sent here are ignored, it looks like discrimination against officials from the Limestone City, let alone the added expense to the clubs. Take the game tomorrow for instance, Queen's and R.M.C. play in the junior O.H.A. and a referee is sent from Toronto. That same official takes an Ms fee and expenses a total of $27.50, when any Kingston hockey fan could name one or more of the Kingston officials who would be willing to give greater satisfaction and the fee would be only $10.

The same thing applies to such places as Belleville and Trenton who are saddled with needless expense, and generally have been guilty of kicking after the Toronto officials have looked after games there. It's about time that the Toronto officials, especially those who have given their winters for years towards the upbuilding of O.H.A. hockey at least get a fair deal. These conditions, it might be said, are being felt more and more by the fans of Kingston.— Kingston Whig-Standard.

PLANE FABRIC TELLS SAD TALE

Mystery of Disappearance of Pilots is Believed to be Solved

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Jan. 12.—Of—A bit of wood to which is attached a remnant of blue-painted fabric, brought here late yesterday was believed definitely to have solved the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Pilot Robin Renahan, and two companions on October 26. Pilot Anderson reported sighting the bit, Frank Wadman, identified the find as part of the Renahan plane and said it indicated conclusively the machine crashed within a few minutes flight of this place.

MAN'S CONQUEST OF ENVIRONMENT

Rev. C. E. Clarke, a Christ Church, Defines How Struggle Develops

Where God placed man in the world, man knows not when it was. He placed him in the midst of tremendous difficulties. To him it was "overcome or die". Man with a weak body was set against huge beasts of prey, tigers, lions, who could kill around him in his primitive home. He had nothing but his weak body to fight back, he had no armour and no covering to protect him against beasts and cold. He was launched into the world and he had to guard himself. Many a time he went into the cave, placed a stone against the entrance against the intrusions of animals seeking him as prey. Finally fire necessity forced him to protect himself with stones, with clubs or cudgels, then later bow and arrows.

So said the Reverend C. E. Clarke preaching at Christ Church on Sunday evening on the text: "To him that overcometh will I give". (Rev. 2:7). It seems quite it is made man what he is today. It made him develop his mind in order to exist. So man observed, he watched the movement of self, for behind it might lurk danger, he studied the path along which he went, till finally he, better physically and with more alert mentality, became superior of living things. That is the history of man's rise.

"Look at him today. He is the heir of all the struggles. He has comforts and possessions. But he grew also spiritually." With the formation of larger groups he found that sympathy and ugliness of disposition and unsociability did not fit in with the social scheme and man found he had to struggle to overcome unfavorable elements in his nature.

God did not make any paradise for man to live in. He made a world of hardness to sting him into activity until he grew from a much lower type of man to be in a very real sense a son of God.

The radio does not represent only this time but it represents the activity of man in response to the world's challenge. All around man are the complicated evidences of man's conquests.

But man is not only the heir of the benevolent hands. Man is yet forced to struggle for where there is no struggle there is no development. What a world it would be if everything came without effort! Nothing would come of it. It is out of past struggles that the poetry of the world, the iliad of Homer, the plays of Shakespeare were written, and the outstanding characters in the face of surging opposition were developed.

"We are in the world God made with this challenge to us. So often we are disappointed with the world, with difficulties, worries and care, and we are facing continually things difficult and disagreeable, but I believe God does send these things to us not because He does not care for us but because that is the only way we can grow," said Mr. Clarke. Some of these loads are almost more than man can bear.

"You and I can never know tenderness and sympathy until in a sense God's harrow passes over us".

The minister urged then the people to take up their burdens without bitterness and cheerfully and to accept them quietly knowing that God will lead them to something bigger and better, that they may grow more like the Saviour Christ. It is sound philosophy and religion though it may seem hard in life, yet man can face it whether it be that of health, wealth or anything else.

"The challenge of life is Don't drift, or lie down, or say I can't but face the difficulty,"

INTERCESSORY PRAYERS NEEDED

Rev. Dr. Bell Urges Value of Intercession in Life

"Anyone who will sit down and think of the conditions in the industrial world today must feel the need of prayer. It is enough to drive any man to his knees in intercession to God," declared the Rev. R. H. Bell, preaching in Bridge Street United Church on Sunday morning on the importance of intercessory prayers.

"Pray to God not only for the king but also for all rulers and for those in authority," Dr. Bell prayed "O Lord, open the King of England's heart" and King Henry the Eighth gave permission for the issue of the Bible in English," the preacher said.

Rev. Dr. Bell referred to the prayers of Christ. "I cannot think of Christ as stating a prayer, it was the historic Christ was using. He said to Peter "I have prayed for you." Stephen prayed and Saul who held the garments stoned to be one of the greatest of the apostles.

Intercessory prayer must be unselfish. It reaches to the last and the least. Jesus would make man include all men in prayer.

Paul was conscious of his call but he needed the prayer of the people. Every minister needs the prayers of those in the pews. The minister must be delivered from mere formality and carelessness, and from unworthy things. The people should pray that ministers should be true shepherds of the flock. If the minister feels that every member of the congregation is thinking of him in his prayers, there is a power behind them. Children should be taught to pray for their minister.

Prayer should be constant for ministers and those in places of responsibility. "Give God a chance through you," said Dr. Bell. He urged prayer for absentees who have five days a week and five or six hours a day teach the children, moulding their characters and conduct. Life is more than mere storing up of facts.

Prayer for employer and employes is needed today.

In the United States millionaires are increasing rapidly and so is the extreme of poverty and want. Something said Dr. Bell, is wrong.

"The whole world today is filled with those who do not understand one another even in Christian lands. This misunderstanding creates bitterness and strife. It might possibly bring murder, war.

"God made us Christians that the world might become Christian," reiterated the minister. "Our prayers are a part of God's plan and method."

USING TOMTOMS IN NATIVE BAND

Ensign H. Wood Tells S. A. Corps of South African Missions

Home from South Africa on furlough after seven years Ensign St. Wood of the Salvation Army of Toronto, visited the Belleville corps on Sunday and delivered addresses, large crowds attending the services. In the afternoon the band played usual programme and the ensign spoke on South African music in its different aspects, including native music. Asked if the music of a trumpet or tree with a stretched skin, takes the place of a drum. The tom-tom is still also used to beat the news of a call to war. Other instruments of the natives are so primitive that they would be of no value for modern music. One for instance is a native-made violin, of a tine can and wood.

Natives respond to different music, the Ensign said. He also added that tribal clashes were not altogether wiped out, there was recently one near Durban in which the football team acted.

The natives are very musical and obtain cheap concertinas, jew's harps and guitars." Many of them learn but one chord of music and go along the streets playing this one strain.

Among the finest types of men in the south are the Zulus, Msabonas and the Basutos. They possess excellent physique. Most of them still live in reed huts. They are healthy except some who live in cities. They are very interested in Christian missions, one compound having, it is said, sixty different denominations at work. The natives have also the white man and do much of the heavy work. They are taught carpentry and the useful arts.

Ensign Howlett was in charge of the Sunday services.

Rev. Father Baker Speaks of World Peace Favorable Comment

In the course of last evening's sermon at St. Michael's Church, a continuation of the Sunday evening series on Roman Catholic Doctrine, reference was made to the widespread attention given to the Pope's encyclical by the world press. Rev. Father Baker, the preacher of the evening, spoke of the columns devoted to its publication by metropolitan newspapers and of the favorable comment made on it in editorial pages.

OBITUARY

ROYAL SCHOLARS PERFORM PLAY

London, Jan. 10—Close on four centuries have passed since Queen Elizabeth endowed the old Westminster School on condition that its 40 scholars should perform a Latin play each year, and a Latin play has been acted annually ever since by the Royal Scholars. The origin of the school, however, is obscure.

"Some of the performances at the Westminster School have been remarkable for nothing but the tradition that made them possible," says the drama critic of the News-Chronicle, who admits that the latest one, in December was far otherwise. This was 'Rudens,' one of the plays of Titus Maccius Plautus, the great comic dramatist of ancient Rome, whose death occurred in 184 B.C.

"The 'Rudens' of Plautus was remarkable not only for individual acting," the News-Chronicle critic says, "but also for the vigor, freedom and spontaneity of the whole company. The new master of the King's Scholars Rev. A. G. G. C. Pentreath, or something like that, has quite revolutionized the performance. Perhaps the fact that the Captain of the King's Scholars, P. J. Engleheart, is a comedian of singular talent has had something to do with the revolution. He was quite the success of the play, and, as Captain of the School, spoke the prologue with simplicity, dignity, and expression.

"The 'Rudens' had only been played once at Westminster since 1788. Its action is lively and amusing, but its dramatic value is flat and uninteresting. The epilogue is by far the best of any I have seen at Westminster."

DOG SAVED A LIFE WITH FRANTIC YELPS

James Elbury of Lindsay, Escaped When His Home Took Fire

Lindsay, Jan. 12—The frantic pummelling of little paws on his chest and a chorus of agitated yelps awoke James Elbury at an early hour of the morning to the realization that the building was on fire, and that he owed his life to a neighbor's dog.

"Jigg," a thoroughbred Boston bull, owned by Harry Stubbings of 94 Regent Street, turned up apparently from nowhere while the street in front of the threatened house was deserted by humans, saw the flames glaring in the downstairs of the dwelling and pelted up the steps and into Elbury's bedroom, which already was forgy with smoke.

Elbury was sound asleep. Jigg must have tried barking at first and found it insufficient to rouse the slumbering man. The first thing Elbury knew was that something small and very animated was bobbing up and down along the length of his body and poking excitedly at him with nose and paws.

Then the smoke assailed the man's nostrils. He leaped out of bed and went downstairs, Jigg scampering at his bare heels, and found the wall near the foot of the staircase in flames. A few moments later and he would have been cut off in his bedroom.

From a hastily opened window Elbury shouted for help and was heard by a bakery driver named Wall, who was nearby with his horse and van. Wall rang an alarm in the fire department and after a brief battle the firemen conquered the flames. The cause of the outbreak is not known.

TO STABILIZE THE APRICOT INDUSTRY

Paarl, South Africa, Jan. 10—A movement is on foot here to stabilize the dried apricot industry, and it is proposed to form a co-operative Apricot Drying Society in the Paarl District. Cape of Good Hope. The project was advanced considerably at a recent meeting here of the Paarl Farmers' Association, at which John Marais, Chairman of the South African Dried Fruit Company, Limited, advocated the necessity for the formation of such a body. He recalled how the company of which he is chairman had progressed from small beginnings until it had become an important organization.

Apricot growers were urged by Mr. Marais to co-operate in the establishment of an apricot drying concern because of the unlimited prospects in store for the dried fruit manufacturers. He said he regarded the position of the apricot growers as the most favorable of all fruit growers in South Africa, and he urged them to persevere even if they experienced unfavorable returns as a result of the first year's working.

At this meeting of the Paarl Farmers' Association a letter from a large manufacturing firm in Rhodesia was read, making a very attractive offer for the purchase of fresh apricots from members of the Association.

JEANS' BOOK PROVES YEAR'S BEST SELLER

London, Jan. 10—Book sellers report that perhaps the "best seller" of the present Christmas season has been Sir James Jeans' "The Mysterious Universe," for people seem to be at present rather in the mood for serious literature. Winston Churchill's account of his early life is also very popular. Siegfried Sassoon's "Memoirs of an Infantry Officer," and Professor G. M. Trevelyan's "England Under Queen Anne Vol. I", and J. B. Priestley's "Good Companions," and "Angel Pavement" appear to hold first place in more serious work of this kind.

FEW CRIMES ARE DUE TO DRUNKENNESS

Dunkinfield, Eng., Jan. 10—Justice Sir Alexander Roche, in opening the Dunham Assizes recently, said that fewer crimes were due to drunkenness these days than formerly, but it might still be said that crimes of today were crimes of idleness. "One cannot help hoping," said the Judge, "that the youth of this country, when regular employment is less, might be imbued with something of the spirit of adventure that will take them elsewhere. The youth of this country should remember that perhaps never before has the army afforded such a kind of education and training for subsequent life as it does today."

MANY FIRE ALARMS

Kingston, Jan. 12—The Kingston fire department is being kept busy on account of the cold weather. Two and three false alarms a day have been received during the past week and on an alarm turned in down the gulley the city council has offered a reward of $100 for information that will lead to his conviction.

THE FIRST LESSON

by Charles Sloan Reid

"Uncle Jim" in his smoking jacket sat back in a big easy chair, with his pipe in his mouth, making smoke rings for the amusement of little Phil who, dressed in a regular western cowboy suit, was toying with the coils of a long lariat which Uncle Jim had bought for him some weeks before? Jim was a writer.

He produced some of those wild western thrillers which little Phil liked to see on the screen. Jim had taught Phil the use of the lariat so that the boy could rope a fence post or a playful dog with a good deal of skill.

Little Phil had come down to Jim as a legacy from a dying sister, and he had crawled right into Jim's heart with a snugness of situation which would permit of no dislodgement. As he watched the boy with his lariat Jim often recalled pleasantly the days of his own cowboy prowess in the West.

"Come here, Phil!" Jim motioned the boy towards himself by a crook of the finger. "Here is a word I want you to get well acquainted with, young fellow."

Phil ran forward, Jim used his pencil as a pointer; and Phil called the letters of the word, as his uncle traced them out for him, EFFICIENCY.

"That means," declared Jim, in a fatherly tone, "that you must do what you start and do it well. When you throw your lasso at a dog's head, be sure you don't miss him. See?"

Phil laughed. "All right, Uncle Jimmie!" he declared. "You just watch—I'm sure goin' to be this EFFICIENCY."

Jim seized the boy in his arms and hugged him tightly for a moment. "Now run along to bed; I've got something to do."

"Bout cowboys an' outlaws?"

"Yes; about cowboys and outlaws, and maybe some Indians."

"Whoopee! I'll bet it will be a scream!"

Phil ran across the floor to a door opening into the room adjoining the library. From the room above his head he had discovered beyond the doorway A few moments later he reappeared clothed in a suit of white pajamas.

"Jumped any outlaws yet, Uncle Jim?" he asked.

"Not yet, Phil; but I think there is a bunch of them just beyond the little ridge out there."

"Wait 'er up when the fight begins, Uncle Jim. Good-night!"

Jim laughed heartily. A few minutes later he was holding his pipe at arm's length away from his face, and staring hard into a far corner of the room. He called that corner his centre of hypnosis. When he held his gaze to that point usually he gathered inspiration. Now he came out c. L. shadowed and began to act little Phil to before his mind's eye. These plays did not always register with Jim. Many of them were rejected outright.

Occasionally one would interest him so much, he immediately would fall to work with his pencil, making a rough draft which later would be worked out in detail on the typewriter. Sometimes Jim passed a review of those figures of his imagination into undisturbed dreamland and would sit there for hours sleeping as comfortably as he might have done among the pillows of his bed.

Tonight the imaginary trail of Galveston Pete had brought him, not the latter's rendezvous, but to real dreamland. His pipe fell from his hand, and his head dropped to one side. Galveston Pete faded from view, and in his place appeared "Snakey Louie," a bold bad burglar of New York City.

The centre of hypnosis seemed to have resolved itself into the muzzle of a revolver. The fascinating little circle came nearer and nearer, until something cold was pressed against Jim's nose. His eyelids flew open and the steel circlet immediately retreated about three feet through the air.

Jim sat up straight; for there was something behind the steel circlet—a man with a mask on. Jim blinked. It was hard to convince himself sometimes that the figures of his stories were not real. The hand that held the revolver seemed to take form in his work; and the eyes from behind the mask shot forth a kind of metallic gleam.

"Quick," said a voice from behind the mask, "the keys to that little safe over there!"

Jim glanced toward the small safe. The outer door stood open—he had failed to set the combination, but the inner compartment remained in his pocket. It was the first time Jim ever had been placed in one of those positions which he liked so well to describe in his stories. He had always had a hero in a tying situation, but never without having completed arrangements for his release at the proper time, and with full credit for the actor's efforts.

Jim always had taken the position that criminals never altogether were efficient, and that some weakness in their campaigns, or impromptu conduct, would be the undoing of the hero placed in the hands of the dastardly outfit, and those of the western story magazine pages conformed to every rule without the least resistance.

Here was a real Raffles. Jim surveyed the man's clothing in one sweeping glance. It was a pretty genteel outfit—evidently burglary was a paying business in his quarter. A man with such a finger gleamed in accompaniment with the radiation from the bright parts of the pistol which he held. The burglar had been waiting, but he had not been waiting so long as it takes to tell about these thoughts of Jim's.

The truth of the matter was, the man was getting impatient, even before the end of the few seconds during which Jim's thoughts had been flying about to their observations and conclusions.

"The keys or I'll bore you!"

Jim realized a little more like business, and Jim's hand started toward his trousers' pocket. Better to give up the cash and what trinkets he had than to be bored, especially since he now had little Phil to take care of. Jim was all that little Phil had in the world. What would become of the boy if Jim got bored? A clammy sweat broke out about Jim's brow, and his hand crept slowly toward his hip pocket.

"Careful what yuh bring out of that pocket," warned the man behind the mask, pistol. "It would be yuh' keys, an' nothin' else, unless yuh want to be gittin' a harp in yuh' hands."

Jim's hand went to the depths of his pocket, encountered a small bunch of keys, closed upon them, and slowly came outward. His hand came forth, and the bunch of keys hung suspended from his fore finger. The burglar reached out his pistol hand, and extended the other to take the keys.

But Jim's gaze was not now set upon the gun or the extended hand of the visitor. In the doorway of Phil's room, just behind the burglar, was framed a little figure, clad in white. Suddenly there was a whir in the air, and the coils of a lariat settled about the neck of the masked man. The next instant he lay sprawled upon the floor, his gun some distance away, Jim had leaped astride of him, and little Phil's lariat was confiscated to the service of handcuffs and anklets for the prisoner.

"Would you call that efficiency, Uncle Jim?" Phil sat cross-legged on the floor beside the captive.

"I'll say I would, old scout!" declared Jim with warmth.

Compels Tribute.

Mr. Victor Hillis, of Thornton, Heath, writes:—"For over 7 years I have suffered with that distressing complaint—constipation, and its attendant effects of sick-headaches and indigestion. It was a red-letter day for me when a friend recommended me a treatment of Carter's Little Liver Pills, and I can honestly say that results have been truly marvelous. I now enjoy good health and feel that life is worth living. The relief I have experienced compels me to add my sincere tribute." Take Carter's Little Liver Pills... WEDDINGS

KNIGHT—SAYERS

On Wednesday, December 24th, 1930 at the hour of three o'clock, a quiet, but pretty wedding took place at the United Parsonage, Clarnifton, by the Rev. W. R. Merrick, when Ella Myrtle Sayers, Youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sayers, Rednin, became the bride of Mr. Jack Knight of Napanee, youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Knight, London, England.

The bride was dressed in sand georgette trimmed with lace with shoes and hose to match. She was assisted by her cousin, Miss Reta Bellyou of Amelia burg, who wore green silk georgette. Mr. Oscar Hamilton of Selby, acted as best man. Only the immediate friends of the couple were present. After congratulations the bride and groom danced to the bride's cousin's, Mrs. E. Bellyou of Amelia burg, where a very dainty tea awaited them. They will reside in Napanee.

HENDERSON—KENNEDY

A pretty wedding took place on New Year's Day at St. Richard's Church when Miss Veronica Kennedy, became the bride of Mr. Russell John Henderson, both of Bellville. The ceremony was performed at seven o'clock by the pastor, Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G.

The bride made a charming picture in her gown of palest blue flat crepe, fashioned on long Princess lines. She wore a lace veiner beret and carried a bridal bouquet of tea roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith, Belleville, attended the young couple. After the ceremony, the wedding party, was met at the door of the church by members of the staff of the Queen's Hotel, where the bride had been employed, and were showered with confetti.

Breakfast was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Alnion St., the guests including an aunt and sister of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Henderson will reside in Belleville.

A REAL STAGE CHILD, STAR AT FIVE WAS MARILYN MILLER, THE LEAD PERFORMER IN "SUNNY"

Sang, Danced As Tot With "Five Colleagues," Her Family's Act on Stage

Marilyn Miller who dances her way into the Belle Theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday, matinee daily, in "Sunny" the Jerome H. Remick musical phone version of her famous stage success is no mere accidental claimant to fame.

Miss Miller has literrlly lived a life of dancing. She was born to the stage Her mother and father were in vaudeville, and Marilyn was born "on the road".

Finding it difficult to take care of her after she began to grow up, at the age of four they placed her with her grandmother's home in Tennessee. There, little Marilyn Miller was taught to dance by the colored children.

At the age of five she knew the dancing, much to her mother's amazement, for she had picked it up by herself. Her mother saw an opportunity to use the child in their vaudeville troupe. Some dancing lessons followed, and then the family opened in vaudeville at Columbus, Ohio, in an act known as "The Five Columbians".

The course of the tot did not run smooth. Reformers invoked theatre laws to protect her tiny ankles from appearing on the stage. Child labor laws caused so much trouble that they decided to get siblings abroad. Marilyn was easily the hit of the act. The result was that "The Five Columbians" travelled aboard for seven years. Marilyn was featured in private ballets.

The family returned to America in 1914, but Marilyn was still under age and more trouble came up, so another European tour followed. During the war Marilyn was the rage at the Embassy Club in London and was praised by the Prince of Wales. Later Gilbert saw her and engaged her for the Winter Garden ,the beginning of her dancing success.

Since then she has been one of the most brilliant figures on the American musical comedy and revue stage. She has literally danced her way to her way to the heights of stage and screen fame. "Sally" was a tremendous hit, and "Sunny" was just as sensational a success. "Sally" was one of the most popular and biggest money making pictures of the year, and "Sunny" is being hailed by critics as an even greater hit.

Miss Miller is supported by Lawrence Tibbett, Joe Donahue, Judith Vosselli, O. P. Heggie, Clyde Cook and Barbara Bedford.

FRY—Born to Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Fry 22 Eldwin Street, Jan. 11th, a daughter, (Amy Margaret).

IMPERIAL AIRWAYS OPEN NEW SERVICE

London Jan. 10— Notable figures about the performance of his 40-passenger engined air liners of the Middle East route operated by Imperial Airways between Cairo and Karachi, India, are now made public. Three of 175 feet have flown back and forth over the route continually since the opening of the Cairo-Karachi service early in 1927. One of them carried Sir Samuel Hoare, then Air Minister, Lady Maud Hoare, and his suite over the greater part of the successful journey which inaugurated the service.

SECOND VICTIM DIES

North Bay, Jan. 12—Making the second fatality from an automobile accident two days later.

IN MEMORIAM

GRANT—In loving memory of Mrs. W. Grant, who passed away, Jan. 12, 1927, at the Belleville General Hospital.

THOMAS WRIGHT HAS CELEBRATED 100TH BIRTHDAY

Eight Hundred Fans Attended Hockey Games in Zero Weather

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Picton, Jan. 12—On Friday, Mr. Thomas Wright celebrated his 100th anniversary and was very pleased to hear his name announced over the radio and congratulations extended to him. The broadcast was over the National Broadcasting Chain, and was heard from several stations by Picton people. There was also a special message from CKGW, Toronto, which congratulated Mr. Wright and then The Picton Gazette, which was 100 years old on Dec. 22.

In spite of his advanced years, Mr. Wright is enjoying good health. He made trips to the post office until the cold weather set in walking nearly half a mile. He is interested in all current events, but failing eyesight makes reading difficult.

He spent his early days on a farm at Christian Street and recalls the days when deer and wild animals were plentiful in Prince Edward County. He also remembers the days when schooners were built here and great quantities of grain, mostly barley, shipped to the United States.

The occasion was celebrated quietly but messages of congratulation were received from far and near.

The children of His Majesty's Savoy Chapel, London, England, gave a concert in the Picton United Church, Friday evening and also gave a program after the evening service on Sunday.

The Rivards Club officers for 1931 were installed by Notarian Charles Dotan of Belleville, they being as follows:

President—Dr. D. W. Gullett.

Vice-Pres.—Bert Tully.

Secretary—Stan Hamly.

Treasurer—W. A. Wright.

Directors—Carter, Dr. D. S. Lighthall, Dr. C. A. Puhlow, Dr. Morley Currie, Dr. C. S. Slack, Chas. North and C. A. Wright.

Mr. Dolan was a very capable installing officer. He was accompanied from Belleville by Kiwanian Joe Hannah. Dr. Puhlow moved and Dr. Currie seconded a vote of thanks to Mr. Dolan. Mr. James MacDonald is the past president.

A memento from the St. Thomas Club, in the form of a small plaque, with appropriate motto inscribed was received and presented by Dr. Currie. It will be hung on the wall of the hotel dining room along with the flags.

Prince Edward County Council for 1931 will be composed of the following:

Ameliasburg—E. E. Bonter and J. A. Walker.

Athol—Thos. Bowerman.

Bloomfield—Ira Brown.

Hallowell—Fred Hobbs and Harry V. Clark.

Hillier—Hugh Weir.

North Marysburg—A. E. Bowerman.

South Marysburg—Alva Collier.

Sophiasburg—Harold Croat.

Picton—Harold Vincent, W. S. Blakely.

Wellington—William Monaghan.

Two more games in the Prince Edward County Hockey League were played on Thursday evening and drew over eight hundred fans in spite of zero weather. Both games were exciting and more combination than usual was displayed.

The Picton Collegiate Institute team defeated Demorestville, 3-1, the Collegiate goalie, Carl Patterson, being almost impossible to beat.

The Imperial Oil-Wellington affair was a fitting climax for the evening's entertainment. Until nine minutes before the final gong, Wellington had two goals and the Imperials none. Those nine minutes were hectic ones and they succeeded in tying the score. Had they lost then they would have been out of the running as far as the League is concerned. They lost their first three games. As it is they have only a small chance to win the trophy but if they play a brand of hockey like that of Thursday night they may go far.

Collegiate looks to have the strongest team. They have yet to be beaten this season. Bloomfield is putting up a strong fight while Milford may upset all dope and win the cup again. This League is usually won in the last few games. In none of the twelve games so far has more than three goals been scored by any team.

Its Quality Sells It—The fact that so many thousands of healthy people continue to use Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil speaks volumes for its healing efficiency. Ever since it was first introduced it has grown steadily in public favor, owing entirely to its manifold usefulness in relieving and healing sickness. As a specific for cuts, burns, scalds, and various inflammatory pains its record is beyond reproach.

RadioFans Corner

Reception last night wasn't everything good reception should be but it was good enough for us because at least we could bring in the stations. Plenty volume last night but it was the hard job to weed the stations out, so many of them were bound they were coming in on the same wave.

The ever popular oratorio of Gaul's "The Holy City" will be sung by the Cathedral choir and orchestra tonight when they broadcast from WOY at ten o'clock. The oratorio will be sung in the Memorial Chapel of Union College.

Not much to hold us to WEAF tonight after we hear the Tea Timers at 5.30 and the Rex Cole Mountaineers at 5.45 because from then until 9.30 we can hop to WJZ. At 9.30 from WEAF the program will be the Pansy party and at 10.30 same station we can tune in on the Symphonic Rhythm Makers.

Three smart orchestras follow in quick succession here and we will easily recognize the first as we hear the opening song of "Sweet Lady", right you are, Florence Richardson and her orchestra. That happy band of collegians, Horace Heidt and his men are scheduled for 11.30 and Phil Spitalny at midnight.

WJZ makes a bid early in the evening for our favour at 6.15 to be exact with the Mormon Tabernacle Choir and at 7.15 the Jesters with their merry jokes and songs. Pep, Vim and Vigor are sure energetic boys and promise us all a good time if we listen in.

Roxy and his Gang at 7.45 from this station and the Shavers at 8.30. No moss growing on this program, too fast moving for that, try it and be sceptic. The Maytag orchestra at 9 and Real Folks at 9.30. Duke Ellington at midnight.

WABC offers at ten the full known orchestra of Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians and Ozzie Columbians at 10.30. Gene and Glen are on the air from WTAM Cleveland tonight, at 7.00 Odell and Gale's Gale's fun. Should be able to get some fun out of this line-up.

Persian Balm—the perfect aid to beauty. Essentizt to real feminine distinction. Results always in the highest expression of beauty. Its use keeps the hands always soft and flawlessly white. Indispensable to the whose toilet. Persian Balm added charm to the mother. Serves the father as a hair fixative and cooling shaving lotion, and protects the tender skin of the child. Persian Balm is the true toilet requisite.

CANNIFTON W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of the W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. C. Callery. The meeting was opened with Hymn 217. Scripture reading by Mrs. C. Benedict. Prayer by Rev. Mr. Merrick. Duet by Mrs. R. Twiddy and Mrs. C. Wessels. Reading by Mrs. A. McGuire, "Beginning the New Year with God."

Mrs. R. Twiddy gave a talk on Problem in India on Temperance.

They decided to try the group system. Next meeting to meet their allocation. Hymn "Take my Life and let it be consecrated Lord to Thee" was sung. Rev. Mr. Merrick closed with prayer. A very dainty lunch was served by the President Mrs. C. Callery.

Weekly terrapin races are held in Searry county, Texas.

WOMEN'S ASSOCIATION OF TABERNACLE MET

The Women's Association of the Tabernacle United Church held the first meeting of the New Year in the Church parlors; Thursday afternoon with a good attendance.

Mrs. Shorey, president, occupied the chair and opened the meeting with hymn 285 "You may have the Joy Bells." Mrs. Lent read the Scripture lesson from the 14th chapter of St. John and Mrs. E. B. Bell led in prayer.

The Treasurer, Mrs. Gaunden, gave a fine report of the past year's work, showing that it had been the most successful in the history of the Association, as under the group system, over fourteen hundred dollars had been raised, and a balance on hand on Dec. 31st of over three hundred dollars. It was noted that, we give $25.00 of this amount to the M. and M. Fund of the Church.

Mrs. Paul gave a laughter provoking reading entitled, "The minutes of the Ladies Aid Meeting."

It was decided to continue the group system for another year.

A congregational supper was planned for to be held on Jan. 21st.

Standing committees for the year were appointed as follows:

Devotional—Mrs. Sanford, Mrs. McCutcheon, Mrs. Grose, Mrs. Palmer.

Parsonage—Mrs. Ashley, Mrs. F. Lent.

Flowers—Mrs. O. Barlow (Convener.)

Visiting—Mrs. Cherrie, Mrs. A. Cole, Mrs. C. Miller, Mrs. Laughlin Sr., Mrs. O. Hotton, Mrs. O. S. Sharpe, Mrs. N. Laughlin.

Kitchen—Mrs. Kelly, Mrs. Sprackett.

Auditors—Mrs. Paul, Mrs. Wardell.

After singing hymn 85 "A Better Day is Coming," Mrs., Sprackett closed the meeting with prayer.

POLICE ROUNDED UP BANDIT PAIR

Signed Confession by Drunk in Cobourg Jail Implicates Others

Peterboro Jan. 10.—With the arrest of Carl Smith, 22, who is alleged by the police to have aided Gordon Dundas in the hold-up early Monday evening of O. W. Johnston, and the capture of Gordon Smith, 19, his brother, the police claim they have in custody all those connected with the crime.

Carl Smith was arrested yesterday afternoon on his return to the city from Port Hope. His brother, Gordon who is charged with having assisted the hold-up men's escape, was apprehended last night at his taxi stand. Charged with robbery with violence in police court this morning, Carl Smith pleaded not guilty and was remanded for a week. His brother also pleaded not guilty to being an accessory after the crime and was remanded to the same date.

The police state that Gordon Dundas, who is serving a sentence of 15 days in Cobourg jail for drunkenness, has made a signed confession in which he admits fully his part in the hold-up.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND ACTIVELY BUILDING

LONDON—In a recent cable The Canadian Press furnished some gratifying disquieting figures concerning the Anglican Church. These showed a considerable decrease from the year previous in the number of Easter Communicants, infant baptisms and confirmations. Such statistics, however, are but a very indefinite guide to the real strength of Anglicanism in this country. The Church of England is the official religious institution of the country at large, and her services are accepted by many who fail to qualify to be classed as recognized churchpeople.

There are evidences, at any rate, that the Church of England is anxious to maintain a pioneer spirit even within the borders of this old country. A number of new schemes are now in hand for providing additional church buildings. This year the Bishop of London, Rt. Rev. Arthur Winnington Ingram, has launched an appeal for at least $1,250,000 to provide churches in the rapidly growing suburban districts. On the other side of the Thames the Bishop of Southwark launched a scheme five years ago for building twenty-five new places of worship on London's new southern residential areas. This scheme asked for a central fund of $500,000 and this was raised within three years. Ten churches and seven halls have already been built. The Diocese of Chelmsford, another of the mighty limbs of London, has a fund for church building which brings in nearly $100,000 annually, and a new appeal is about to be issued for $875,000. In the North of England the Bishop of Sheffield is appealing for $500,000.

Some kindly critics are rather doubtful where the man-power for existing churches, let alone new ones, is to come from. Last year 503 men were ordained to Deacon's Orders. Since 1921, when only 350 were admitted, there has been a gradual improvement in the number of candidates, but it is doubtful whether the ordinations cover even the wastage by death and by men becoming too old for active work.

There are almost 500 persons in the United States whose incomes surpass the million-dollar mark.

Praises This Asthma Remedy. A grateful user of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy finds it the only remedy that will give relief, though for thirteen years he had sought other help. Years of needless suffering may be prevented by using this wonderful remedy at the first warning of trouble. Its use is simple its cost is slight, and it can be purchased almost anywhere.

Priceless Tome 250 Years Old is Found

MONTREAL — Locked in a strong box inside the strongest and safest of all archives vaults in the Court House is a quaint-size volume bound in faded brown. Rose with remnants of deep-hide thongs that kept it tightly closed. It is the first register of the parish of Lachine a veritable newspaper that tells the story of the fort and settlement between 1678 and 1707, written, in its own main, by a priest whose flair for detail almost journalistic has made his record unique, rare and priceless for historians.

M. Z. Montette, Court House archivist, opened the register and from its egg-paper pages, browned only at the edges, took out line after line of ink script, almost as fresh as on the days it was written around 250 years ago. By far the greatest number of entries is terminated with the signature "Remy" written in bold hand with a quill pen.

"Father Pierre Remy,' said Mr. Montette, 'the first parish priest of Lachine, a Sulpician whose name was given to Fort Remy, in my opinion, is an exceptional figure among our priests. Never did he forget to give every detail, never did he overlook points of historical value in registering acts of civil status — births, marriages and deaths. His register is unique.

"If a person was assassinated, Father Remy, in the act of burial described the murder, the scene, all the details just as would any newspaper today. If a person died of sickness — and one feature of the register is that dangers from Indians and violent death were such that this priest always noted where a person died of illness — the cause of death was stated, or in some cases the symptoms preceding death were described. So faithfully did the parish priest make his descriptions that some of them have been transcribed from the register and handed to physicians in Montreal who today are able to diagnose the fatal disease and state the cause of death. Father Remy overlooked nothing. He was meticulous to the last degree; one proof is that I have been able to trace fifteen illegitimate births and bequests which he made at various times during his life. Changes in circumstances, changes in his family, led him not to codicils, but to a complete new testament or bequest.

The ancient tome fairly breathes the atmosphere of the island of the 17th century. Covering the years 1678-1707 it deals with the passage of four spiritual heads of the Lachine and Fort Remy community. The first entries are signed either by Father Etienne Dupuich or Father Jean Fremont, both clergy were missionaries. In 1680, Father Remy went to the parish, as its first actual parish priest, and there remained until 1706, when he was succeeded by Father Michel de Villeroi, who served the parish for eleven years.

The register ranks as Number Three among parish registers of the Island of Montreal. First comes that kept by the Jesuits in Ville Marie mission between 1642 and 1657, carried on by the Sulpicians who erected the parish of Ville Marie. Second is the register of the parish of Pointe aux Trembles, 1674. After that the Lachine register.

Each page of the Remy register holds its intrigues for the lover of old things, and each page is a revelation of the daily life of the community of Fort Remy and surrounding lands. The Lachine of those days clustered about the old mill still standing in the shadow of Highlands bridge and was in the Ville LaSalle of today.

Outstanding among the interesting entries are those linked with the massacre of Lachine, when, under cover of a storm during the night of August 4-5, 1,200 Iroquois crossed the water, pickeied the homes of settlers outside Fort Remy, slaughtered many of the community, tortured them at the stake, burned their houses, and carried off others for distribution among the various Indian nations also to be tortured.

On October 26 and 28, 1694, just over two years later, Father Remy devoted two whole pages of his register to acts he had performed in connection with the reburial of remains of massacred settlers, who had been hastily buried almost where they lay after the Indian onslaught. "In accordance with the order issued by His Lordship the Bishop of Quebec,' commences his narrative, he had publish'ed from pulpit and church door for three Sundays, the command that the bones should be reinterred in the parish cemetery, and he had called upon his parishioners to aid in the location of the temporary graves. He refers to the massacre by the Iroquois, whom he invariably terms "our enemies,' and notes that reburial had been impossible before because of the frequency of Indian raids and because the flesh had not been entirely consumed. On the 28th, he described his personal visit to each of the temporary graves, gives their location and details the reburial in the parish cemetery with all the ritual of the Church.

One little entry will give an excellent idea of the manner in which Father Remy introduced practical narrative into his acts of civil status:

This day, the first of May, 1689, were buried in the cemetery of this church the body of the deceased Jean Barbary, aged two years and seven months, son of Anne Barbary aged five years, who were found half burned on the twenty-eighth of April last beside the summer kitchen attached to the house of their father, Pierre Barbary, which fire caught by accident.

But the register is not merely the repository of signatures of Father Remy and of other priests. Marriage ceremonies reveal the writing of the humblest and the highest serving as principals or witnesses. There is the signature of a bride and bridegroom painfully traced with the quill, and beside the flourish and elegance of some higher placed friend of good education. Thus, in 1692, one Charles Belonde, son of a Norman merchant, and Petronille Andrea, daughter of a sergeant in the army of New France, were wedded. Among the witnesses who signed the register in fine flowing hand was le Chevalier de Beauregros, a lieutenant at either Fort Remy or Fort Rolland.

The marriage entries testify to the fact that fine ceremonies of that nature, and presumably the festivities which followed were without a good delegation from the garrison. Father Remy knew them all and entered their names, their titles and their ranks. In tribute to the most modest of settlers never did he forget to note when a marriage or funeral was attended by a large representation of the population.

ATTEMPT MADE TO SOLVE NOISE PROBLEM

McGill University Professor Works on Plans for a Greater but Quieter Montreal

Montreal, Jan. 10—Visions of a perfect night's sleep undisturbed by auto honks and milk bottle clanks for city dwellers are being raised at McGill University by Pro. H. Reilley.

His plans call for a survey during the summer months of Greater Montreal, observations to be made at important intersections of city streets and at other designated places in order to accurately measure the amount of noise and to see what proportion of it is unnecessary.

Citizens, under the plath drawn up, would be canvassed by form letters in which a series of questions would enable harassed house-holders to indicate what things rob them of their peace of rest. The observations made through reliable test apparatus, designed within the past two years, and the answers to queries to citizens would be incorporated in a report to the public who would then be asked to co-operate in a drive to reduce noise.

The racket in big large cities is literally driving people "crazy," according to Proft Reilley, who states that noise is a much underestimated factor in causing nervous breakdowns and a host of other nervous troubles.

ONTARIO PIPE SMOKERS!

Your Opinions are worth $250.00 to us!

Our sales department felt that there was a demand for a superior grade pipe tobacco in what might be termed the popular price class. They said pipe smokers wanted a tobacco with more flavour, which would smoke sweet and cool, and last.

Our blenders prepared this special Turret pipe tobacco, which they claim meets these requirements exactly.

For the convenience of the light, medium and heavy smokers, Turret pipe tobacco is packed in 15c. packages with 2 poker hands; 20c. packages with 3 poker hands and ½ pound screw-top humidor tins with 12 poker hands.

WE* have done all we can do to make Turret a good pipe tobacco—will you please tell us if it suits your taste?

No red tape—no difficult conditions to fulfil—no high-priced article to buy—you simply smoke a package or, perhaps, a few pipefuls of cool, long smoking Turret pipe tobacco and then write a letter telling us how you like it and what you think of it. For this simple, easy act we offer $250.00 in prizes to the pipe smokers of this Province.

Try it out—buy a package—smoke it.

Then give us your frank opinion of Turret pipe tobacco—write us a letter as to its coolness, its long burning qualities, its flavour and aroma.

For the letters, which are judged best, the following prizes will be awarded.

1st PRIZE . . . $50.00
2nd PRIZE . . . $25.00
20 PRIZES OF $5.00 EACH
75 PRIZES OF $1.00 EACH
and* 100 half-pound tins of Turret pipe tobacco

CHILDREN'S BRAVERY IN PIONEER DAYS

Col. Wilfred Bovey Reviews Dangers of Early Settlers

Montreal, Jan. 10—Heroic days of old, when Canadian boys and girls worked and fought as men and women, were described by Col. Wilfred Bovey, director of the extra-mural department of McGill University, in an address on the topic "The Story of Canadian Children."

In those days there were always Indians. He told the story of Madeleine de Vercheres who, at the age of 14, defended her house against Indians for a week, while two soldiers hid in the cellar, afraid for their lives. Two years later Indians attacked an attractive young man beside a river, and she drove off the Indians and afterwards married the young man, to become Mde. de Lanaudiere. Nor were her troubles over then. One day two braves and four squaws attacked her and her husband. They were driven off, however, when their 12-year-old son came on the scene and, having driven off the squaws who were attacking his mother, helped Mde. de Lanaudiere to drive off the two braves who were man-handling her husband.

Col Bovey went on to talk about Mary Cadillac, a girl in the Eastern Townships, who, when she let the fire go out one afternoon, clambered over one or two single remaining rooms of a broken bridge, carrying the baby and a bucket, to fetch live coals from her grandfather's house.

Then there were Charlotte and Cornelia de Grace, who lived near Toronto, and went out with their father, mounted on their ponies, while he rode his horse, to take their part in the Liberal and Tory fashions. They saved their father's life when he was ambushed, and later served as very effective spies.

If Your Ears Ring With Head Noises? Try This

If you have catarrhal deafness or head noises go to your druggist and get 1 oz. of Parmint (double strength) and add to it 1-4 oz. of pure Glycerine and a little sugar. Take a Cable spoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has catarrhal deafness or has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

PRINCE IS LINGUIST; SPEAKS IN SPANISH

Tells Argentine Club Visit to Buenos Ayres is to Open British Exhibition

LONDON—The Prince of Wales displayed part of his linguistic accomplishments at a dinner of the Argentine Club at the Savoy Hotel recently when he delivered a large portion of his speech in Spanish. He mentioned that by a coincidence it was exactly five years since he was a guest of the club upon his return from his first visit to the South American Continent. This time, he said, my visit to your club is of special significance to me because in a few weeks I am about to set forth on my second journey to South America.

The Prince said he had recently been reading some of the popular poems of the Argentine and there remained in his memory a couple of verses by Santos Vega which he quoted. In conclusion he expressed a sincere wish of prosperity to the Argentine. The main object of his visit, his Royal Highness explained, was to open the British Trade Exhibition in Buenos Ayres, the first entirely British exhibition ever staged in a foreign country.

SHOOTING A CONVICT NOT WARDEN'S RIGHT

Durban, South Africa, Jan. 10—A warder—is a prison has no right to shoot a native convict, so a jury found in the case of a warder named Pretorius who was tried here on a charge of culpable homicide in connection with the shooting of a native convict named Goke. The jury returned a unanimous verdict of guilty, with a strong recommendation to mercy, and added that in their opinion men of the mentality of the accused warder should not be placed in the position of guards in prisons.

Pretorius received a sentence of six months' imprisonment at hard labor, suspended for 12 months subject to good behavior.

The judge said he entirely agreed with the jury's rider, and added: "Before persons are appointed to act as warders over prisoners care should be taken to see that they are thoroughly competent to do the work of supervising convicts." His lordship commented upon a statement made by the prosecuting counsel to the effect that the accused warder had lost control of himself and did not know what he was doing when he shot Goke. The Judge referred to a statement made at the trial that Pretorius was a person of infantile mentality, and the way in which he had given his evidence in his own behalf showed that this statement was not far, wrong.

Excusing the light sentence meted out to the accused the Judge said: "Were it not for the fact that you are temperamentally unfit ever to have been a warder I would have passed a severe sentence."

RESIGNATION OF TRUSTEE IS FELT

LONDON—The retirement of Sir Robert Witt as a Trustee of the National Gallery is a loss to the cause of art in this country. He was the founder of the National Art Collections Fund, which in 27 years has spent over $1,500,000 in acquiring the works that would almost certainly have been lost to England but for his steady and persistent pricking of the public conscience. Sir Robert will remain chairman of this fund. He is something of a collector himself, and has assembled at his own house the finest collection of photographs and reproductions of famous pictures in existence.

WALTZ COMING BACK

Jazz does not appeal to His Royal Highness, Prince of Wales, who has declared the waltz his favorite. Jazz has held the throne for a long time but a return to the waltz may herald a steadying down of the people socially—as well as emotionally. Perhaps there will be a movement even back to the dances which preceded the reign of the waltz. Yet some people thought jazz would never yield its popularity.

A SAD STORY

Everybody knows the sad story of the life of Heinrich Heine, the German Jew who became one of the greatest of German lyric poets, and even the first of them according to some critics, who place him above Goethe for lyric power. Heine was a man who suffered on his mattress death bed for years but his cynical spirit defied the twinges of pain and anguish as he mocked and laughed. He lived an exile in Paris for the greater part of his life by choice and married a woman much beneath him in gifts though she was devoted to him.

The other day there was found frozen to death in a roadside ditch in South Bohemia, a vagrant identified as Karl Hans Heine, who had lived for many years as beggar and tramp. He was nephew of the great Heinrich Heine.

Exile, poverty, beggary and tramping—and yet Heinrich's uncle was a very wealthy banker in Hamburg, Salomon Heine. Why should the soul of mortal be proud when wealth and fame may lead only to a ditch and beggary!

GROWTH OF CITIES

What is before this country with the next general expansion, which means first and foremost, unless all guesses fail, the expansion of cities? It is predicted that in a quarter of a century two thirds of the people of the United States will reside in cities and with a like trend here somewhat similar results may be looked for in Canada.

It means congestion as well as many other problems crying for solution.

To warn young Quebeckers of the danger the members of Charlevoix recently told a gathering of farmers that they should make every effort to have the boys and girls remain on the farms with their parents in Quebec, and to counteract the steady appeal of the city and rural dweller. Agitation is making its way in Quebec to have the legislature set aside special funds so that travelling moving picture shows may frequently visit small places and country clubs might be organized to create enjoyment for the young people.

A NEW WORLD CALENDAR

There is a possibility, it is thought the moderate calendar may this year be decided as cut-of date. Reform is favored by a good many countries.

The present calendar has its drawbacks in the unequal length of months, lack of uniformity of days, the changing date for periodic celebrations, festivals and holidays. The Orient with many system of chronology has many more and also the project of a new calendar brings hope of uniformity throughout most of the world. One of the most popular of the projected reformed calendars has the thirteen months calendar. Next month is a sample of the perfect month under this reform, Sunday starting the month, with four weeks only in the month. The thirteenth month is supposed to be an extra month between June and July and may be called Sol for the sun. Leap year of once in four years would be at the end of June and may be an international holiday with the world at report with the day of being caught up. At the end of every year there would be an extra day.

The League of Nations is taking up the question and will hear reports from different countries.

IN 58 TONGUES

Winnipeg Free Press said "Happy New Year" in fifty-eight languages at the turn of the year. People of these tongues addressed are all readers of the paper and are able to read the greeting in their mother tongues. The Montreal Gazette says: "Doubtless each of these has something of its own to offer of native qualities to add to the Canadian fund of talents. If so Canada should be the gainer by their residence here."

One of the first signs of revival is expected to be increase in output of motor products. Since the first of the year reports have shown many hundreds of men taken on to work in the industrial centres by motor manufacturing concerns.

Oshawa city treasurer has a problem on his hands, arrears of taxes, $270,000 of the 1930 taxes are still owing and over $100,000 from previous years are still unpaid. Borrowing money points out the Daily Times, is expensive even if these arrears all do come in. The Times calls on every citizen to express his loyalty by making a real effort to pay up, though it is admitted there are many who cannot do this at present and many who can pay only by increasing the number of instalments and reducing the amount of the payments.

MY NEED

When I am tired of all gay things,
Of laughter like the lift of wings,
Of carefree throngs,
Any joyous songs,
I want the peace the ocean brings.

When I am worn with fret and care,
When folly greets me everywhere,
I need but this
The white spray's kiss,
The soft caress of salt-week air.

When I am vexed with little tasks,
And weary of life's futile masks,
I must be free
To seek the sea,
To find there all my spirit asks.

By mountains tall, by meadows wide,
I wander still unsatisfied,
Till, far away,
I catch some day,
The rhythmic whisper of the tide!

Will Rogers says from his Beverley Hills home in California: "The Senate passed a bill appropriating 16 million for food but the House of Representatives (up to today) has not approved it." They said no.

"They seem to think that's a bad precedent to appropriate money for food—it's too much like the 'dole.' They think it would encourage hunger."

"The way things look, hunger doesn't need much encouragement. It's just coming around naturally."

A young man who was considered especially stupid managed to pass an examination, much to the astonishment of his associates. One of the examiners was asked how it came about. "Why, Bill" he said, "it was quite simple. When the young fellow came up we asked him two questions and we require a percentage of 50 per cent to pass the examination. The question we asked was, 'What is the color of blue litmus paper?' The candidate replied 'Red.' That was wrong. The second question was 'What is electricity?' He replied 'I don't know,' and that was correct. So he passed."

AMERICA: CLEAN BUT NOT CLEANEST

Comparison of the relative cleanliness of American and European cities is the theme of an article in Hygeia (Chicago).

The author, Ines Stearns Macaulay, based her comments on a recent tour of European cities by Dr. George Soper to observe street and outdoor cleanliness. We read:

"Although American cities are far ahead of some European ones, they are far behind the cleanest European cities. In a two-hour ride about Lucknow, the cleanest city of all—the amount of litter seen was not more than could have been carried in a man's hand, Dr. Soper reported.

"Litter baskets, attractively designed, securely placed, and emptied frequently, as provided in the cleanest European cities. In Paris, gutters and streets are flushed with an abundance of water.

"Automobiles send a great deal of dust to the gutters as the wind scatters it. A slight breeze in New York, causes the air to be filled with dust and scraps of paper. The automobiles bring dust, germs, and settles on their clothes and in their lungs.

"In Germany, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, and England, Dr. Soper found that a new system of collection of refuse was being used, which absolutely eliminated dust. The cities own special house cans which they lease to householders. The can is emptied into a closed collecting vehicle by means of a shutter, which automatically opens when the can is pressed against it and closes when it is withdrawn, so that it is impossible for dust to escape."

SUNDAY SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

"There are ten Sunday schools in Stratford, or as understood it was to be called henceforth, What is more, the attendance at these schools is increasing. They have been showing an increase for many months. The St. Catharines Standard having cruelly remarked that these increases would likely continue until Christmas 1931 and fall off afterwards. The Stratford Beacon-Herald triumphantly 'retorts: 'The inference was that the little folk of Stratford were magnetized by the idea of participating in Christmas festivities, and that after Christmas the interest would wane. Well, Christmas has come and gone, and the figures for last Sunday showed that there were 150 more children at Sunday School than on the same day last year and what is of more importance, there were 135 more in attendance the Sunday after Christmas than on the Sunday preceding it."—Mail and Empire.

THE OUTSPOKEN ENCYCLICAL

Whatever religious tenets they may hold, right-thinking people cannot fail to admire the courageous and outspoken with which Pope Pius XI. attacks social evils in his encyclical. Leaders of other faiths are hailing this encyclical as one of much tenderness and gentleness as permitted to interfere with whole-hearted warfare on iniquity. Well, Christianity is essentially the moral welfare of the world. His Holiness has set an example, which we should not hesitate to emulate, which now should be gratefully accepted, to all those who deplore the trend of events, to have the courage heretofore to speak up with a militancy worthy of the cause of righteousness. The Pope has not hesitated to call a spade with that! Or are Protestant clergymen and authorities willing to take up the battle and declare that they are not too timid to wrestle with problems the seriousness of which is evident to every one?—The Globe, Toronto.

SPEAKING HIS WILL

An elderly Englishman, however, is planning to speak out after his funeral to his friends and relatives. The table has already been made, a handsome oak affair. He planned the seating of his auditorium, so that as he speaks he may address each listener to his best advantage, but only will he make bequests, but he will quite frankly point out the faults and virtues of each individual, setting down a sort of mortem compliments and condemnation; which file, perhaps, never gave utterance to the half of the reproaches to deliver. And there will be no talking back. This movie-suit is bound to present a far different scene from the ordinary funeral reading by the old family solicitor to a nervously expectant group in a respectably somber back parlor. Perhaps the most interesting part of is his own voice; it should carry unusual authority and discourage litigation.—New York Times.

MADOC ELECTRIC LIGHT

By the large vote polled on Monday the citizens of Madoc showed that they were very much interested in the electric light question and the adoption of the by-law submission will be watched with the keenest interest. No doubt the commission will see their way clear to have the work needed done on the lines this coming summer and it is quite possible that there may be an appreciable reduction of the rates.—North Hastings Review.

A LOST OPPORTUNITY

Morning papers of the province, which through the industry of their correspondents and telegraph services furnish abundant current reports of municipal results through the province on the first Monday of January are yesterday were confronted with the objective of quantity to pay much attention to individual features. At this rate, there is not limited to utter of descriptive power when it comes to writing headings. The repertoire for many years has been limited to three general heads: "HEAVY VOTE POLLED," "LIGHT VOTE CAST" and "MANY NEW FACES." Slight variations of these. They are not very newsy. Yet each election summary is the outcome of a contest, sometimes in a municipality, in which victory means a lot too somebody. If a man can't get elected even, he may so well give his thoughts out to the Legislature, or even the wardenship. The figures may reflect a sensational "comeback" or a record in the same service. But after all, probably it is up, to the evening papers to play up all these local battles.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Ballyhooing on Radio

A vigorous warning against what is called "insistent ballyhoo of sales talk on the radio," which is consuming the vitals of the organism" was sounded at New York City in a first-well message to the Institute of Radio Engineers by Dr. Lee DeForest, the institute president. The organization includes hundreds of inventors, designers and radio manufacturers.

Dr. DeForest, who now lives in Hollywood, Cal., where he is carrying on a series of experiments in talking motion pictures, television, &c., was not present. His message was read by the institute chairman. The meeting was held in the Engineering Auditorium, 33 West Thirty-ninth Street.

Dr. DeForest holds that sales talk now "viciously interrupts 70 per cent of entertainment programs" and that this overdose" of advertising on the air is largely responsible for the general falling off in radio sales this year.

"Always a fervent optimist the role of pessimist or gloom is not at all to my liking," says Dr. DeForest's message, "yet I have conscientiously felt impelled as president of the Institute to sound a serious note of warning against a real and genuine evil; a cancerous growth which is spreading like wildfire in the vitals of radio's usefulness and prosperity.

"In and contrast to the situation of radio manufacturers and dealers, the year has admittedly been unusually prosperous for broadcasting stations and their owners. I am convinced that broadcasting affairs is an unhealthy one; an alarming symptom for the future. The listening public is becoming more critical of program quality and more like worn to what is being offered them. On the costly chain networks this has already materially reduced the revenue of listening hours.

"Meanwhile radio advertising from the local stations has become so unendurable that one must wonder at the patience of the suffering public. Yet the broadcasters are greedily selling more and more time for impatient and undisguised sales talk. The situation can go on, becoming worse and worse, until so few listeners remain that advertising find their money unprofitably spent.

"But before that state of dissolution is reached, the usefulness of radio to the public will have practically terminated. As an economic proposition, those who depend upon the manufacture and sale of radio equipment (and this includes most of our members) must regard the present situation as seriously menacing. Unless these broadcasting conditions are very soon drastically improved; unless there be given the opportunity to listen to four or five hours each day of fine entertainment free from sales talk, I cannot see any way of restoring its former prosperity to the radio industry."

"As long as it seems hopeless to expect Congress to authorize any censorship of radio programs or to levy a tax on receiving instruments for the support of fine programs, even if such measures were wise, I am forced to regard the plan of associated manufacturers collectively sponsoring high class programs freed of all advertising as the surest and most practical means for remedying a situation which will unless cured, certainly spell disaster for the radio industry."

God of Wine Honored

New York, Jan. 10—Several protests and one resignation received recently by the Society of Medalists from members caused it to abandon its plan to issue a medal honoring Dionysus, Greek god of wine, an officer of the society said yesterday.

According to an article published in The Art Digest, the medal, bearing the inscription, "Hail to Dionysus, who first discovered the magic of grape" commended the ire of some of the 1,500 members of the organization. This was denied yesterday by a representative of the society, who said that the protests which had been received did not cite advocacy of prohibition as the reason for disapproving the medal. The writers of the letters merely said that they did not "like" the design or gave some other equally indefinite criticism, it was declared.

In justice to Paul Manship, noted American sculptor, who designed the medal, it was pointed out by the society spokesman that more letters of praise than censure had been received and that among such letter of praise had been provoked by another medal which the society issued and which did not deal with a controversial subject.

The society was formed more than a year ago for the promotion of art by distributing small bronze or bas-relief sculpture, to make it possible for the man of small means to have works of art in his home. Members of the society receive two bronze medals annually. The design of each medal rests entirely with the sculptor selected by the society's advisory board. On the advisory board are Herbert Adams and James Earle Fraser. On the organization committee are George D. Pratt, Robert W. de Forest and Alexander B. Trowbridge.

Distributed to members with the medal were copies of a message by Mr. Manship, who said in part: "Inspired by recent echoes of public sentiment, the new medal departs from the traditional serious expressions of medallic art, giving a lighter and perhaps truer touch to the commemorative idea. The medal is not conventional. It is subtly humorous, and is symbolic of a present-day attitude toward certain aspects of the times. Thus it is commemorative of an era."

The face of the medal bears the classic head of Dionysus, the divinity of Greek mythology whose counterpart was Bacchus of the Romans. On the reverse of the medal are two satyrs treading the winepress. At Mr. Manship's home yesterday it was revealed that he had heard of no protest regarding the medal's design.

WHISKERS AND KISSING

A recent book, "Concerning Beards," by Edward Valentine Mitchell, predicts the return of the hairy face. One reason given is that two of the safety razor companies have consolidated their interests, but a more plausible reason is his appeal to history. Fashions change and beards, which are an object of ridicule in one century, may be endorsed by physicians in the next as insulation against cold. Coming to the concrete, he refers, for example, to Chief Justice Hughes of the United States, who boasts of the "nearest thing we have to a Hohenzollern beard in this country," meaning that the whiskers are parted with a swipe to port and starboard.—Mail and Empire, Toronto.

GRADES ON RHUBARB

The Dominion Food Branch have introduced three recommended grades for "forced" or hothouse rhubarb these are: "Canada Choice," not less than three inches in circumference; "Canada No. 1", not less than two inches; and "Canada No. 2."

The Branch has also suggested three types of container as standard for the marketing of rhubarb; (a) a standard box or basket containing 25 pounds net; (b) a box containing ten pounds net; and (c) a wax or cellophane paper-lined (c) a veneer box holding twelve pounds net.

Opinions of Our Readers

To the columns the Ontario Intelligencer invites letters on all matters of public interest. The letters should not be too lengthy and should be of such a character as to interest a large number. Those on many problems on which the individual voice should be heard. Letters should be signed the name of the writer, not necessarily for publication but as a guide and good faith. The Ontario Intelligencer reserves the right to refuse publication of letters deemed not suitable for public interest or as too personal in character.

BEAUTIFUL CITY

Belleville, January, 1931.

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:—

Someone told me the other day that we are living in the Prosaic Years. In English Beautiful City. That's a read these words:

We are all blind until we see
That in the human plan
Nothing is worth the making, if
It does not make the man.

Why build these cities glorious,
If man unbuilded goes?

In vain we build the world above
Unless above he grows.

The splendid improvements in our city are really very wonderful and most creditable to Mayor and Councillors. Would it not be even more wonderful and creditable to the one and only interest manifested for the moral welfare of our citizens?

School children need to be addressed frequently on the "Proper Use of Language." Boys who have too much time on their hands, require some kindly interests and manly guidance. Teen age girls should not go astray in this Beautiful City—our girls are too good for that heart-breaking experience. Indecent literature and pictures should be prohibited, whether exhibited by cinema or private individuals. Immoral literature can never be proved an asset in the building of citizens. Are there any Drug Addicts in this Beautiful City? If so, what steps are being be done to help them? All big talk of law violation should be discouraged immediately and not lodged at all through the press, something clever. Impure literature should be banned.

Some may say—Well, this is what the Church stands for. Yes, but the Church cannot do all the good that should be done in Belleville. Safe is everybody's business, irrespective of creed, color or tongue. We are all responsible for the welfare of our fellow citizens. Are there any Drug Addicts in this Beautiful City? If so, what steps are being be done to help them? All big talk of law violation should be discouraged immediately and not lodged at all through the press, something clever. There must be a vast number of people in this Beautiful City who have leisure time and I suggest that it be used to absolutely free to moral improvements. These people emphatically refusing to accept public office, civility, pay or presents of any kind whatsoever. Such consideration for the other fellow elaborates the brother hood of man and acknowledges the fatherhood of God. Using the leisure hours in this way constitutes a timely investment which will yield eternal dividends and make Belleville the most Beautiful City in Canada.

Yours sincerely,

FOOD CORPORATION ANNOUNCES EXPANSION

Mr. R. K. McIntosh, Managing Director of General Foods, Limited, in an interview today, announced that the corporation had increased business in Canada in 1931 on their long list of packaged food products.

The following products are manufactured in plants at Windsor, Montreal, Toronto and Cobourg. Business for 1930 was satisfactory, and 1931 was remarkably good conditions considered. Sales volume was greater than in 1929, and Company was able to keep their plants operating at normal capacity and without reducing either employment or wages. The Company gives preference to more Canadians than any other packaged food products company, and their successful operations in 1930 were a considerable factor in maintaining employment levels in the food industry.

Mr. McIntosh in part, "We have the utmost confidence in the future of our country, and as evidence of it, we are planning to spend more money in advertising and sales work in 1931 than ever before in the history of the company. We feel that when this country," meaning that the workers are parted with a swipe to port and starboard.—Mail and Empire, Toronto.

GOLDEN DAWN

by PETER B. KYNE

INSTALMENT I

Mr. Theodore Gatlin's married life had demonstrated to him the absolute folly of the exists-ete coming recurring of job and working at it. So when a physician informed him that his hopes of fatherhood were not apt to be realized he had a brilliant idea and broached it to Mrs. Gatlin.

"Dear," he said, "if he urged, I've been married. She had her doubts as to the advisability of taking over Providence's cast-off children, but she never knew how an adopted baby was going to turn out—there was no hurry any love—she must have time to consider this idea—her health."

"To hell with your health!" Mr. Gatlin roared, for the first time in his married life becoming vulgar. "Every doctor you've had tells me you're organically sound. You only think you're sick."

"My nerves," she protested but he silenced her.

"You think too much about yourself and not at all about anybody else, particularly me. What you need is a baby to fuss with. You'll learn to love it in a month as much as if it was your own flesh and blood."

"I'm afraid you'll not love it, Theodore. You're so cranky and irritable," she defended.

"Listen!" Mr. Gatlin commanded. "I'm at the point where I'm seriously considering suing you for divorce on the grounds that you're a barren woman. In other ways you don't measure up to my idea of a wife and companion. It's no fun for me to come home night after night and have to listen to your tales of woe——"

"You are devoid of sympathy," his wife charged. "You neglect me."

"Maybe I've failed, and Mr. Gatlin, but, by Jiminy, I've tried, and I'm willing to keep on trying a little longer. Only, from now on, we're going to try my methods, and adopting a baby is one of them. If that fails I'll take it like a man, sweet and we'll call in the lawyers."

She knew she had gone as far as she dared. Even the dullest of married women knows when that point is reached; that is, they know when it has been reached for that day.

"Well, if we can find a baby of good, sound, intelligent, healthy parentage," she agented grudgingly.

"I've got one staked out," Mr. Gatlin cried jovially, "and I know its parents. They're sound as grindstones. I know the grandparents of the child on both sides.

"I don't know them personally," he went on, "but I've had a doctor look up their records. High class people. No insanity and no crookedness in them."

"I'll have to meet these grandparents and parents, Theodore."

"Unfortunately," he replied, they are all dead."

"What did they die of?"

"The grandparents on both sides of old age; the father of the baby was an Army captain and he got killed in a fight in the Sulu Islands. The mother died in childbirth and the baby is in the Infants Shelter in San Francisco."

"Boy or girl Theodore?"

"Boy."

"I could never stand a boy, Theodore. I must have a girl."

Mr. Gatlin grinned coyly. "I figured you'd try to edge out of it that way. It isn't a boy. It's a girl."

Louise Gatlin was not very intelligent but she was sufficiently so to realize that for once in his life Mr. Gatlin was due to have his own way.

That night as he lay abed, Mr. Gatlin suddenly gave himself to prodigious poke in the ribs. "What a jackass I was not to consult that doctor before I married Louise," he groaned. "When I thought I could father a child of my own I didn't pay any more attention to its ancestry than I would to selecting a neck-tie. Anything that looked well would fill the bill. But when it came to selecting some other man's baby, I gave the job all the attention I would give to purchase of a piece of property. I wouldn't think of buying a lot until I had run down the record of the title and satisfied myself there were no flaws in it.

If men would only employ that much common sense in selecting their wives—or wives, in selecting their husbands—I knew what a nervous, complaining, selfish old shrew her mother was—what's that low the doctor spoke of? Ah, yes. Mendel's law. The law that like shall produce like. Simple! Why in hell any should have thought of that—and yet it took a old monk—to enunciate to promulgate the law. Whew—w-w-w!"

"Theodore," said his wife, from the other twin bed, "I should think you might be more considerate of me than to whistle like that and wake me up."

"I'm so happy, darling. I couldn't help it. Forgive me."

"Have you thought of a name for the baby?"

"I have. Penelope."

"A horrid name. Where under heaven did you get that name?"

To her unspeakable amazement he quoted a verse from Henry Herbert Knibbs' poem, "Out There Somewhere":

"We'll dance a merry saraband from here to drowsy Samarkand;
Along the sea, across the land, the birds are flying south,
And you, my sweet Penelope, out there somewhere you wait for me,
With bude of roses in your hair and kisses on your mouth."

They went by train to San Francisco next day. With the child in his arms and accompanied by his wife and the duty manager of the Infants' Shelter, Mr. Gatlin repaired to the Superior Court and legally adopted the daughter of Captain Ronald Elliot and Jane Elliot, both deceased.

From the court-room they went to Grace Cathedral and had the baptized in the Episcopalian faith—out of courtesy to Mrs. Gatlin's latest religious proclivities, Mr. Gatlin having no religious affiliations whatsoever. There was a slight hiatus here. The pastor had just sprinkled water on the little dark head and said: "I baptize thee in name of the Father and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, and give thee the name of ——" when Mrs. Gatlin interposed softly ——"Lucretia's."

"Nothing doing," Mr. Gatlin declared. "Lucretia! Wasn't that the woman that poisoned people—or was it somebody? Her name shall be Penelope. I like that name."

The pastor smiled faintly. Having already learned that all of the enthusiasm for the child was Mr. Gatlin's he was seized with a perverse desire to please the sentimental fellow, so he said quickly: "——and give thee the name of Penelope."

Mr. Gatlin hugged Penelope to him and kissed her back of the left ear.

"You mustn't kiss her, Theodore," his wife protested, rising in unsanitary. You might give her some sort of disease."

"Oh, lord," Mr. Gatlin murmured, "will I ever cease making hideous mistakes?"

For in that illuminating instant he realized that in adopting Penelope he had made a terrible mistake. His wife didn't want her! At the very moment of the commencement of his experiment he knew it was a failure. However, it was no part of his wife's intention—at least for the ——— that he should realize this, so she took the baby from him.

Within the week, Theodore Gatlin, having communicated with the Adjutant General of the Army at Washington, ascertained that Captain Ronald Elliot's body had been brought home from the Island of Sulu and interred in the National Cemetery of the Presidio of San Francisco. So he had Penelope's mother disinterred from the Potter's field and entombed beside the soldier, after which he gave orders for the erection of a suitable monument over them.

Viewing him from every angle, he was a most peculiar retail shoe dealer.

For a month all went well with the Gatlins, and then Mrs. Gatlin issued her first edict.

"Theodore," she said, "I must insist on one thing. Penelope must never know that you and I are not her natural parents. I feel that such knowledge might direct from her love for us.

"That won't work any hardship on me, my dear," he replied. "I feel just as enthusiastic about her as if I were her real father."

"Another thing, Theodore. I love Penelope dearly, as you know, but I can't be made a slave to her. Do you realize, dear, how she keeps me tied down?"

He gritted his teeth, and his wife went on: 'We simply must have a nurse for her."

"Have two of 'em," he growled. "Whatever she needs she shall have."

"That's right. Start spoiling her immediately."

It was always like that. However, as the child developed, she brought Mr. Gatlin each day closer to happiness than he had ever been before. She was his refuge. She was a healing balm and hence a happy baby, and there was not the slightest chance that she would ever be spoiled by having her own wishes perennially referred to if Louise Gatlin accomplished nothing else worth while (and this she accomplished unconsciously) she did nothing to inflate Penelope's ego, which, as everybody knows, is the breeding ground of human selfishness, which in turn recounts for the unhappiness of most of humanity. Mr. Gatlin, of course, would have undone, in secret, much of this good work, had not the realization come to him quite early in Penelope's little girlhood that any demonstration of excessive affection on his part was inevitably counteracted by an excessive severity on the part of his wife toward the child.

She was a pretty child of olive complexion, with very dark blue eyes and rich, shiny, yet black hair. She was unusually intelligent and affectionate, of quick sympathy and winning, grave ways. She was the apple of Mr. Gatlin's eye, and by the time she was ten years old he no longer cared a snap of his finger for his wife.

If Penelope was Mr. Gatlin's refuge, he also was hers. She never complained to him—doubtless because she fear ed her foster-mother who had succeeded in inculcating in the child the duty complex quite out of proportion to the lady's deserts. Nevertheless it was understood between them that they were a pair of outlaws; mutual sympathy drew them closer together each day; their mutual love was a sweet and holy sentiment.

Mrs. Gatlin's nerves did not improve through the years, although when Penelope was ten years old, a wandering evangelist came to town and commenced a furious campaign of conversion and curing by prayer every disease that flesh is heir to; and Mrs. Gatlin became "converted"—prayed loudly, was prayed for loudly, and finally mounted the platform and shrieked: "Hallelujah, praise the lord! I'm cured."

And she was—until the local glamour of the miracle were off and the evangelist moved on to other fields. Thereafter, life for Mr. Gatlin and Penelope became almost unbearable. She exhorted them to sorrow for their sins, and when Mr. Gatlin declared they hadn't any worth bothering about (which was quite true) she prayed for them. They had grace before and after meals, with family prayers and the Way of Salvation. She went wrong readings from the Bible. Sunday was turned.

In a moment of insane fury Mr. Gatlin performed what he considered a long neglected duty. He took Mrs. Gatlin's classical countenance in both hands (Mrs. Gatlin had been respected against the wall and told her that if she ever opened her mouth again in his presence without his permission, he'd just about kill her. She didn't. She sued him for divorce and had Penelope on the witness stand to prove that Mr. Gatlin had beaten her; that he had remained away from home until late at night and refused to reveal his whereabouts. Mr. Gatlin entered a cross-complaint and petitioned to have Penelope allocated to him.

Unfortunately the judge was a pudding-head. He refused to accept Mr. Gatlin's explanation that he had laid hands on Mrs. Gatlin but once, and that only in a moment of frenzy. But he did not state where he had been in the habit of spending his evenings so suspiciously. He couldn't afford to. He was a prominent business man. However, the judge should have known. Probably he did, but even so was unsympathetic. He granted Mrs. Gatlin the divorce, decreed alimony and the custody of Penelope; whereupon the honorable court was forced to the spectacle of Mr. Gatlin and Penelope weeping in each other's arms. However, Mr. Gatlin was permitted to have Penelope to himself Sunday afternoons in each month and one-half of each school vacation.

The first Sunday afternoon Mr. Gatlin availed himself of this privilege his quondam spouse had hysterics, for with the malevolence of a devil Mr. Gatlin announced he was taking Penelope to a ball game. He took her too, and they had a gorgeous time together until a home run sailed into the bleachers and struck Penelope, violently on her pretty little nose. Mr. Gatlin, with the unconscious form in his arms, fled to a hospital, where he was foolish enough to telephone Mrs. Gatlin what had occurred. She appeared on the scene and carried her home at once.

Mr. Gatlin knew what she was up to. She was going to cure Penelope's fractured nose by faith—and he had no faith in such therapy. He followed with a doctor, demanding at the front door to see Penelope—a request which was ignored. So he kicked in the panels of the front door, which he held to business to do because it was no longer of his. Mrs. Gatlin, having acquired in the property settlement, screamed upon she summoned the police by telephone and had him arrested and the next morning he was fined, found guilty and placed under bond of a thousand dollars to remain away from the place for one year.

He didn't do it, because he knew what would happen to Penelope if he did and he could afford a thousand dollars—fifty thousand dollars, if need be—to prevent that! He attacked within twenty-four hours—at night, when he was sure about it. He remembered he had never surrendered his latch-key, so he entered quietly and unstopped Penelope.

Within two hours he was arrested en route to a San Francisco hospital in a motor car with Penelope. For disobeying the magistrate, he was adjudged guilty of contempt of court, his bond of ten thousand dollars forfeited —and he was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail. Mrs. Gatlin preferred a charge of kidnapping against him, which is a felony, and since Mr. Gatlin knew he would be tried on that charge when he emerged from jail he improved the shining hours by swearing to a warrant charging Mrs. Gatlin with insanity. Promptly she was brought before a board of alienists who declared her sane, and in order to avoid investigation into Mr. Gatlin's charge that she was denying Penelope medical attention, she turned her house over to an agent and disappeared with Penelope.

From his cell in the county jail, Mr. Gatlin issued orders to his attorneys to find Penelope and take legal steps to prevent his ex-wife from removing her again beyond the jurisdiction of the court that had granted their divorce. A diligent search of three months failed of its object, so Mr. Gatlin neglected to deposit any alimony to his ex-wife's credit. He knew she could manage very well without the alimony, but he also knew Louise. She would have what was coming to her, or know the reason why.

When six months had passed, Mr. Gatlin decided he had never been so quixotic with her. She also failed to make any demand upon him for her alimony; hence he realized she preferred, by keeping Penelope from him to cause him the maximum of suffering rather than reveal her whereabouts by making a claim for the alimony due her. On a day in May from the date of the granting of her interlocutory decree, her attorneys petitioned for the final decree, which was granted. Mr. Gatlin thereupon discovered she was living in Paris.

Advice to Lovelorn

She Is Thirty Months Older!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going with a boy for three months and I've never told him my age. But I happen to be three months older than he is and, before telling him about it, I would like to know whether you think it would change his opinion of me?

Dilly Reader.

If you were ten years older, there might be some ground for anxiety over your difference in ages. But three months is nothing at all and, if he did change his opinion of you, really, he wouldn't be worth considering.

He Lost His Way!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am sixteen, and in love with a boy of eighteen. We used to be together a good deal, and he would phone me nearly every day. I live in the city with my aunt as my mother is dead. I was obliged to go to the country and my friend came to see me the night before I left and promised to come the following Sunday, but he didn't come. I wrote to him but never received an answer to my letter. When I returned to the city, I got a letter from him saying he'd started to the country to see me but lost his way. Although he had been out there once before. It was six o'clock. Should I phone him and let him know I am back in the city now?

Lonesome.

It would be all right to phone him, but it looks to me as if this young man might have been a little more attentive to you than he has been, and I shouldn't follow up the phone call if he doesn't respond.

Didn't Use His Dazzler

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going with a young man since last January, and in the beginning of our friendship he would see me two evenings a week. We went to dances and "0 always give him the first and last dance, and sometimes dance in between. But he doesn't go to the same dances I do any more because I told him I didn't care for the way he jumped around at them. Then he stopped calling me to dances and to shows. He is very easily offended. Toward the end of our acquaintance he often told me he loved me but I think if he does he'd come to see me. I am sure he doesn't go around with other girls. My friends tell me I am too soft.

Blue Eyes.

I don't blame the young man for becoming offended when you told him you didn't care for the way he jumped about in dancing. Men are peculiarly sensitive at being considered awkward. Write him a note and say you've missed him and when he comes, tell him you're sorry for criticizing his dancing.

The Hostess Suggests

Eggs, New York Style

Boil six eggs one hour, drop into cold water, shell and quarter. Place in buttered baking dish, holding about three pints. Prepare a white sauce as follows: Heat one pint of milk, melt in saucepan one tablespoonful of butter, stir into the butter two rounded tablespoonfuls of flour, and one-quarter of the hot milk and stir vigorously until the mixture is a smooth paste. The remainder of the milk may be added three separate times, stirring in each addition until it is smoothly blended. Season with one half teaspoonful of salt and dash of white pepper. Chop two large cold boiled, seasoned onions, stir onions into the sauce and pour over the eggs. Sprinkle over the top one-half cupful of cracker crumbs moistened with one tablespoon of melted butter, add two tablespoons of grated cheese for a top layer and bake in a hot oven about fifteen or twenty minutes until crumbs and cheese are slightly brown.

TUG CLEARS 1ST KINGSTON

Kingston, Jan. 9—Kingston perhaps holds the honor of being the only harbor on the lower lakes in which navigation is still open. Yesterday the tug Salvage Prince of the Pyke Wrecking and Salvaging Company of Kingston cleared from this port for a 70-mile trip to Ogdensburg, N.Y.

Fashionably Speaking By Lucille

Dear Reader:

Closets are no longer dark holes in the wall. They're all dressed up in gay colors, a part of the general decorative scheme of the room.

Shelf edgings of flowery glazed chintz may be used effectively in the closet of a colonial bedroom. These should be bound with a contrasting color.

One of the most attractive closets we've seen recently was in a room papered in apple green. The owner had painted the walls of her closet with a matching green, then made the doors peach color for contrast. The glazed chintz shelving carried out the note of peach and was piped in two shades of green. Bands to hold the dinerie together were made from wide elastic covered with chintz and finished with rosettes of peach with green leaves.

For the bedroom with rose and cream draperies the closet shelving may be carried out in tones of cream cambric with accents of bright scarlet piping.

If you are handy at making chintz you can have shoe bags in the same colors of fabric as the shelving. Some people like the bags with several compartments, but these do not keep the shoes in shape properly as the individual bags do. An ingenious way of making a place for shoes is to keep the shoe boxes and place over them cretonne or other material harmonizing with the furnishings.

You'll want a more practical oilcloth shelving for the kitchen. In a sunny kitchen done in creams and yellows with accents of cobalt blue, yellow oilcloth may be used. It is most effective when cut with an edge of scallops which are painted with an outline of blue.

Another kitchen could have oilcloth shelving with bright figures of red, blue and green, piped with red flannelette tape. Similar valance and tie-backs may be made for the curtain. The walls and furniture in such a room would be cream.

Lucille.

TO-DAY'S VERSE

HOW DOTH THE LITTLE CROCODILE

(From "Alice in Wonderland")

How doth the little crocodile
Improve his shining tail,
And pour the waters of the Nile
On every golden scale.

How cheerfully he seems to grin,
How neatly spreads his claws,
And welcomes little fishes in
With gently smiling jaws!

BEAUTY BOX

Overhead on shampoos and finger waves being what it is, the cash customers of the beauty shop makes one demand upon the hairdresser: the coiffure must not only be chic, it must be practicable. A few ringlets that can be pledtanted around the left ear, bear-catchers scampering around the forehead are all right. Any arrangement that requires much time is taboo. There is no time any more. For the average active woman time must be stolen for beautifying treatments; the hair must take what it gets and be satisfied. There are other beauty claimants, fingernails, complexion, eyebrows, hands and the svelte silhouette.

Skin is constantly undergoing a system of renewal and decay. Old scales are flutting off, new ones appearing. When the surface is chapped from the effects of dermatitis which must be remedied by, frequent applications of oils or soothing lotions. If the complexion rebels against soap for the time being, use oatmeal or almond meal, and dry with gentle pats. Chapped skin also need harsh treatment. It gets sore and mad.

Five minutes of brisk exercise every morning will bring gold and rubies. They create a sense of well-being, puts a gal on her toes. One movement is enough. Try this: take the soldier's position, chest high, hips back, ankles five inches apart. Bring hands above the head, palms to the front and touch fingers on the toes. Touch the floor without bending the knees, exhaling as the hands go down.

Ears are having an outing. Showing the ears gives a girl a nice sleek, well-brushed look. The lobes should be powdered carefully, back as well as front, too there should be a rosy rosy, rippled, just enough to tell the world that those ears belong to those cheeks that there is a cosmetic bond between them.

Vanishing creams were designed for the purpose of making powder stick to the face a friend and foe. Powder must be thickened over the skin until they do the disappearing act.

Ontario Lady Tells of Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mrs. M. Rowley Suffered With Kidney Trouble and Severe Backaches

New Liskeard, Ont., Jan. 13 (Special)—"I have used Dodd's Kidney Pills for Kidney trouble and severe Backaches and find them very good," writes Mrs. M. Bouicy, a well known resident of this place. "I would not be without them. We always keep a good supply in the house, so that if any one of us get sick we know what to take. It's the Dodd's Kidney Pills everytime."

Dodd's Kidney Pills have become popular all over the country because people have found them good and found them good. They are purely and plainly a Kidney remedy for Kidney Inflammation, Backache, Urinary troubles and all diseases arising out of faulty Kidneys.

Dodd's Kidney Pills have restored sound health to thousands of troubled women and men. They can be obtained from all druggists.

WHAT HAPPENED

"What happened to poultry?" is a big question in dealers and others in terms of the holiday market. The explanation offered by the Market Intelligence Service of the Federal Department of Agriculture is: The logical explanation seems to be that farmers, discouraged by the low prices offered, decided to cull many of the birds at home. This is a condition which was reported from the West some weeks ago, and it is a condition which in more than a few instances has been found to be true in Ontario."

"MEDICAL" ADVICE EVIL

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Every person has well-meaning friends and acquaintances—scores of them—who are always ready to give free advice on almost any ailment that may befall one.

Children, especially infants, are constantly being treated by a well-meaning and motherly neighbor whose only claim to medical knowledge is the fact that she has had one or more children herself.

Often indeed, a man or woman will spend money for a doctor's examination—perhaps even go as far as to have a prescription filled—and, after going home and talking somebody else about it, will deliberately substitute the remedy suggested by a neighbor for that given, by the man of scientific training.

Pharmacists everywhere are likewise most accommodating to their customers in answering questions, a practice which they do not relish, but which they feel called upon to do for reasons of business and of courtesy.

And of course the amount of self-treatment which is carried on in all countries—especially in America—in open countries than in America—is simply enormous.

The plea I make for the necessity of expert, medical diagnosis before health treatment of any kind is begun is not to boost the revenue of the medical profession. For it is not obligatory to consult a doctor private ly and pay him a fee in order that one may accurately find out what is ailing him.

There are free clinics in almost every community. Even in the country districts it is easy enough to journey to the nearest town that has a public hospital. The most scientific diagnosis and advice can be got in such places, and from the very best of physicians, for absolutely nothing.

The points I wish to emphasize are that a scientific diagnosis should be obtained always so that guesswork should never be subscribed to and that, lastly, one should realize, no matter how friendly your friends may be, they are most unreliable advisers when it comes to a question of your health.

For an ordinary cold one need not of course, immediately run to get a doctor. An occasional pain, a headache or other indisposition does not necessarily call for medical aid.

But people often get colds and headaches again and again and generally speaking never feel quite well, yet fail to realize that what they need is a thorough medical examination to find out what is wrong.

When we are acutely sick and confined to bed, then we are willing to have a doctor. We fail to remember however, that the diseases which shorten our life span are not usually such acute afflictions, but rather the slowly-progressive ones which often do not produce symptoms for years.

When you are ill, no matter how mildly, it is a diagnosis which you need first of all. After that you require proper treatment and nursing this cannot be furnished by persons manifestly unqualified to give such advice.

DR. BISCH'S HEALTH HINT

The fear that some people have of surgeons is as foolish as it is unfounded. Surgeons do not cut simply for the fun or fee in it. They operate only when it is absolutely necessary to do so.

"St. Pats" Boasts Proud Record of Pupils Now Famous

MONTREAL—St. Patrick Boys' Academy building went out of business recently after having served the education of Montreal for 25 years. The school is being pulled down in connection with the new terminal of the Canadian National Railways.

The history of the education of the Irish-Canadians at Montreal dates from 1843, when two classes were opened for them in the convent of the Recollets, but the continuous history of St. Patrick's School may really be said to have begun some years later when the Christian Brothers devoted part of the buildings of St. Laurent College in Cote street to English speaking boys. St. Laurent College itself is about to fall under the hammer of the wrecker, and thus the two schools will be joined in some measure of misfortune just as for many years they enjoyed a common success.

By the year 1904, St. Patrick's Academy had grown too big to be accommodated alongside of St. Laurent School. A special building had been erected to house it, and five hundred pupils were in attendance.

This famous old school can boast of ten classes for secondary education and eight devoted to elementary. Numbered among its pupils have been many who have made their mark in the life of the city and of the Dominion. St. Pat's, as it is affectionately called, has always been a feeder of the professions. The following priests have received their early education: Rev. Fathers Cooney, Thomas Bracken, Gerald Berry, William Ryan, Melville Lawson, Donald Feron, and Edmund Jones, and Rev. J. Jenfold, S.S. The educational life of the country, St. Patrick's has contributed five Christian Brothers: Rev. Brothers Raymond, Hubert, Leo, Paul and Barnabas.

Distinguished teachers have been connected with the school. Its first principal, Brother Patrick Murphy, eventually became the first assistant-general of the order and established many schools in England and Ireland. Brother Pacile, and early principal, became assistant-general of the order in the United States. Brother Anthony established Manhattan College, New York, in 1865. Brother Arnold founded De La Salle College, Toronto, in 1869.

That the principals and other brothers on the staff have been men of vision is to be seen in many ways. The school was the first in Montreal to institute the teaching of shorthand and typewriting. The record in preparing pupils for matriculation bears comparison with any in the province, and many students who went from St. Patrick's to McGill University have distinguished themselves.

PISTOL BATTLE WAS STAGED ON VILLAGE STREET

Kept up Running Fire as Big Cars Raced Through Colborne

WEIRD TALES

Posse of Farmers and Police Comb Countryside for Law-Breakers

Two big black automobiles, streaking through the dark along the provincial highway near Colborne, spitting bullets in a fierce gun fight between their unknown occupants, vanished in to the night near that village early this morning and left the countryside in an uproar.

Called from their beds by excited farmers who had been aroused by the fusillade of shots, and the roar of the speeding motors, Provincial Constables Carey and Kidd set out in pursuit from Colborne, and aided by a posse of other police and citizens scoured the entire district patrolled sideroads and stopped all vehicles on the roads in an endeavour to capture the armed parties.

Reported Westbound

Who the men were and what was at stake in the desperate running gunfight, the police cannot guess. Inspector Lougheed, Belleville, knew nothing, except that all his men were out in the hunt. The suggestion that bootleggers were involved was advanced, but it was only a theory. No previous similar case of open warfare in the usually peaceful countryside hereabouts is on record.

The two autos were westbound, farmers asserted, and flashed by at such a rate that only vague description of the vehicles could be obtained.

Provincial Constable Ivan Spencer came within an ace of catching the cars shortly after the first report of the shooting. In a car commandeered from Gerald Fox, of Colborne, he took up the chase and actually sighted the tail-lamps of the speeding machines ahead. Before he could narrow down the distance, however, the cars rounded a curve, and when Constable Spencer reached the curve they had disappeared—apparently up a side-road or farmer's lane.

Escape Both Parties

Had the fleeing cars not cut off the highway at this point they would almost certainly have come to grips with the police. Constables Kidd and Carey were at that instant speeding toward them from the west, while Constable Spencer was a few cars behind them. When the two parties of police met, their quarry had escaped from the net.

Reports of the shooting reached all points in the district and as far west as Toronto, where the city headquarters was notified to be on the watch.

The possibility that backfires from two automobiles might have been mistaken for shots was pointed out, by Chief Constable Purnell, of Colborne, who said that a number of the farmers and motorists who had heard the detonations had noted their resemblance to discharges from the exhaust of a motor. It was added, however that motorists would hardly maintain a high rate of speed and engage in a highway chase with back-firing engines.

BLIND JOURNALIST SAVED WIFE'S LIFE

New Britain, Conn., Jan. 13—Arthur J. Sullivan, blind newspaper correspondent yesterday probably saved the life of his wife, Agnes, also blind, when her dress caught fire from the gas range while preparing tea at her home.

When Mrs. Sullivan cried out "Fire" her husband pushed her into a bedroom and wrapped a blanket around her, extinguishing the flames. Her condition was not considered serious at hospital.

FAULTY CARTRIDGE SAVED LIFE; OF YOUNG MONTREAL POLICEMAN

Series of Auto Thefts Was Climaxed by a Shooting

Montreal, Jan. 13.—A faulty cartridge in the chamber of a gunman's revolver saved the life of Constable Lacombe of the Montreal police force today and enabled him to overcome two armed men both of whom were in a cetched condition. Lorenzo Arellette, 25, received a bullet through the stomach and another in his leg while his companion, Paul Tremblays also 25 was suffering from blows about the head from the constable's clubbed revolver. During the scuffle Tremblay placed his gun against Lacombe's breast and snapped the hammer. The shell was examined afterward and found to be dented but it failed to explode.

The affray followed a series of auto thefts and a chase through the city streets, ending at the corner of Ontario Boulevard and Berri street, where Constable Lacombe was doing traffic duty. Alexandre Doucet, a taxicab driver, was called to an east end address. When he left his car two men jumped into the taxi and drove away before the taxi man could interfere. Doucet followed on foot.

J. A. Theoret, manager of the taxi company employing Doucet, saw and recognized the car and missed Doucet from the wheel. He was driving in his own car and gav chase The two in the taxi jumped out while it was still moving and it crashed into a building Louis Bayer had just parked his car in front of a grocery store and the two brandishing revolvers, ordered him to stand aside while they took his car Bayer had the ignition keys and dodged into the store. The two tried in vain to start the motor then dashed off again on foot with Theoret still in pursuit but held back by their guns. Their next choice was a parked truck. They got this started.

In their efforts to outdistance Theoret they ran the truck into a snowdrift. As they jumped to the street Theoret shouted to Constable Lacombe

TEXTILE WORKERS OUT ON STRIKE

Compromise is Looked for Between Owners and the Weavers

Manchester, England, Jan. 13—Government intervention in the textile industry in which 25,000 men have been locked out by the mill owners began today with the arrival of F. W. Leggett, assistant secretary to the Minister of Labor, who called a conference of the Weavers' Union immediately. Meantime the executives representing the mill owners were meeting in another part of the town. Some sort of compromise was being hoped for.

The dispute is over the so-called eight loom system.

GREAT IMPERIAL COMPANY WOULD MERGE WIRELESS

Formal Proposal is Presented to Cabinet by Sir Basil Blackett

FORM NEW COMPANY

Negotiations Will be Resumed With C. N. R. and C. P. R Officials

OTTAWA, Jan. 13:—Merging of Canadian wireless and cable systems into a single company to work in association with Imperial and International Communications, Limited, of Great Britain, was the subject of discussion here today between Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister, and members of the Cabinet and Sir Basil Blackett, chairman of the great British group.

The proposal made by Sir Basil is that the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National become partners with the Imperial and International Communications, Ltd, in forming a Canadian overseas communication company which will include the Canadian Marconi system.

Conferences have already taken place between Sir Basil and E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific, and Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National.

Following his discussions with the Prime Minister, Sir Basil left for the Government yesterday. Sir Basil said: "I have no reason to be dissatisfied with the result of my meeting." He leaves for New York tomorrow, and from there will go to Bermuda. From Bermuda he will return to Montreal. Presumably negotiations for the proposed merger will be continued then.

Sir Basil explained that Imperial and International Communications, Limited, was formed following the Imperial conference of 1928 for the purpose of bringing together under one control the cable and wireless systems of the empire.

Safeguards Provided.

Certain safeguards were provided in connection with the formation of Imperial and International Communications, Limited. For instance, government control was exercised by the appointment of an advisory committee on which Canada is represented by Sir Campbell Stuart, and the activities of the company were subject to the review of this committee.

One of Three Women Sentenced to Die, Paid Penalty Today

Szolnok, Hungary, Jan. 13—Crying "God help me," Frau Marie Kardos was hanged today in the prison courtyard here in atonement to the state for the murder of her husband and 72 year old son last year. She was the first woman to be hanged by court sentence in Hungary for many generations. Frau Kardos, who was one of forty women who appeared in group poisoning trials of last spring and summer and one of three to receive the death sentence, was strikingly calm with terror at the prospect of the gallows and prayed incessantly.

SMALL HOPE FOR MISSING FLIERS

Possibility That Plane May Have Landed on Small Isles

Horta, Island of Fayal, Azores, Jan. 13—Azores officials had one small hope today for Mrs. Beryl Hart, pretty redhaired widow of 27, and Lieut. W. S. McLaren, who are missing after taking off from Bermuda Saturday for Horta, in their monoplane, the Trade Wind.

This was that the plane, hampered in keeping its course by bad visibility, and buffeted by the northeast gales had come down at one of the other nine isolated islands which form the Azores archipelago. There is no wireless on these islands and they will be heard from only in a month's time when the mail boat pays a visit.

HEAVY SENTENCE IN PENITENTIARY

Ernest Snell, Convicted Bandit Goes to Prison for Eight Years

Owen Sound, Jan. 13—Eight years in Kingston Penitentiary and 12 strokes, 10 of which are to be given one month after he enters the penitentiary, and the other 10 a year hence was the sentence meted out to Ernest Snell by Judge Sutherland at the opening court yesterday afternoon.

Snell pleaded guilty to robbery while armed on the night of Saturday, December 20 last, when he and a lad 15 years old held up L. Edwin Elliott, a grocer of 1059 Third Avenue East, in his shop as he was about to close, and while Snell held Elliott against the wall with a loaded revolver pointed at his head, the lad robbed the till of $100 in cash. The boy will be sentenced later.

Crown Attorney C. S. Cameron presented a certificate of previous convictions, including burglary, theft and shooting with intent to kill, all crimes being committed in Grey County, Snell was once also sentenced to the penitentiary for escaping from the Guelph Reformatory.

Counsel for the accused stated that Snell was the victim of epileptic fits, and in trying to cure these fits he had become a drug addict.

17TH ANNUAL POULTRY SHOW IS OPENED WITH MANY EXHIBITING

Herbert Warrington of Toronto Will Judge Choice Fowl

W. MOORE MANAGER

Walter Turner's Display of Birds from Sidney Sanctuary Attracting Interest

Far bigger and better in every way the 17th annual poultry show of the Belleville Poultry Association opened its doors today for a three-day exhibition and judging of poultry. The finest fowl that can be found within a radius of over one hundred miles, is entered in the exhibition this year, which is being held in the Drill Hall, and the judges will have difficulty selecting the best in the various breeds

It was estimated by officials this morning that about eight hundred fowl are being shown this winter. Of every possible breed, including a large assortment of game fowl, the birds never looked in finer shape.

As usual, Walter Turner's display of wild fowl will prove to be one of the greatest drawing attractions at the show. This year he is showing thirteen wild geese and eleven wild ducks, all from his own sanctuary. These beautiful wild birds attracted great interest last year.

Again this year some fine rabbits are on display. Flemish Giants, Chin Chillas, and other breeds may be seen. Of particular interest to the children are some wee baby rabbits that are shown.

Warrington Judge

Herbert Warrington, of Toronto, is the judge this year. Mr. Warrington arrived in the city this evening and will start his duties immediately.

The exhibition is under the capable direction of Walter P. Moore, superintendent, one of the most enthusiastic fanciers of fowl in the district.

Tomorrow a special treat is promised for the school children, who will be admitted to the show for five cents.

BIGGEST PRICE OF NEW YEAR IS PAID

New Orleans, Jan. 13—Bahroma a five year old by Ballot and Elf'dreama, racing in the silks of J. D. Grant, won the sixth race at the Fair Grounds yesterday afternoon and paid $125.50 for a two-dollar straight mutuel ticket.

The price is the highest paid on the American continent this year, and represents odds of $117.10 to $1 00. In scoring his victory, Balrema defeated a field of nine over a distance of a mile and an eighth in exactly two minutes. The little known apprentice, Reeves, had the mount, which fact contributed notably to the lack of support accorded the owner.

BANCROFT WILL CELEBRATE POWER

Turning on of Electric Energy Event in Northern Metropolis

Bancroft village is en fete for the turning on of electric power this week. A special celebration has been arranged to mark the event in the history of Hasting's County northern capital.

On Wednesday evening a special program will mark the turning on of the new power. Mr. Paul Hibbard of Hibbard Bros. of this city who had the contract for the electrical equipment of the new plant will attend the function.

Bancroft formerly had a small plant for the supply of a minor amount of electricity but recently it was decided to proceed with the erection of a modern plant up to modern spectications. A turbine has been put in and an up-to-date plant has been installed by Bancroft Power and Light.

Messrs Hibbard Bros have had six electricians at work for the past seven months on the installation. They put in the electrical equipment and also the installations about the village, including the street lighting which is given by fifty-one lamps and the lighting of homes and shops. There will be approximately one hundred and fifty consumers of electric energy at Bancroft.

OWEN SOUND MAN IS STRANGLED BY COLLAR

Owen Sound, Ont., Jan. 13—Thomas Long, 47, died yesterday from strangulation caused by a tight collar. He had been brought home in a semi-conscious condition by two companions who thought he would soon recover. He is survived by his widow and one daughter. There will be no inquest.

NEGRO PERISHED AMID FLAMES OF BURNING SCHOOL

Was Confessed Assailant of Young Missouri School Mistress

CHAINED TO PYRE

Was Forcibly Taken From Sheriff by the Angry Mob

Maryville, Mo., Jan. 13.—A mob of 2000 men, women and children burned a negro to death yesterday on the roof of a school house where he murdered a young school teacher

The lynchers formed a parade with the women and children trailing in its wake, to march from the county court house to the little rural school building which soon was turned into a blazing funeral pyre.

Raymond Gunn, the negro who murdered Velma Collier, 13-year-old white school teacher, was chained to the roof of the frame school house while a group of men lighted its oil-soaked timbers. He shrieked once as the flames ate their way to the roof and surrounded him. The mob looked on in silence.

Gunn was taken from custody of Sheriff Harve England when the officer and three deputies attempted to transfer the prisoner from the county jail to the courthouse for arraignment on the assault charge. The officers were overpowered and their prisoner was seized.

A detachment of 50 national guards men, dispatched to Maryville by Governor Henry S. Caulfield to prevent just such a mob violence, remained in the armory while the mob captured Gunn and burned him. Adjt. Gen. A. A. Adams, in command, said he would not interfere with the troops because county authorities had not requested aid.

The mob worked with pre-arranged precision. No shots were fired. Men with muscles like blacksmiths wrenched Gunn from the hands which held him at the point of revolvers.

Paraded to School House

A 10-foot chain was placed around Gunn's neck. He was stripped to the waist. Then the parade to the school house where Velma Collier had taught five students began.

From every store and farm house, persons joined the procession. Merchants closed their stores. Farmers left their work.

Reports that Gunn was tortured en route to his death were denied today by Sheriff England, which fact continued to his bed with shock, also suffered with a badly wrenched arm, in jured when the handcuffs were knocked on.

As the procession approached the school house everything was in readiness. A group of men were crowded in automobiles. The walls and roof were soaked with kerosene and oil. A ladder led to the roof.

Gunn was given an opportunity to confess. He named another negro "Shiks" Smith as the prime actor attacker and slayer. He admitted however he was present in her school room when she was slain.

Gunn was dragged to the roof. Ends of a long chain were looped about his neck and fastened to strong rafters underneath the shingles.

The fire was lighted; as flames ate their way up the four walls and to the roof, the negro was silent.

When the fire enveloped him the negro cried aloud once. Smoke closed around and he was silent. A moment later the roof collapsed catapulting the body to the blazing interior.

The mob dispersed slowly.

Nearly 200 divorce suits have been entered for the term of London courts.

MAY BE A CONVENT

The property on Church Street formerly known as the Claremont Hospital which has recently been acquired by St. Michael's Church may be used as a convent, Rt. Rev. J. P. Nicholson, V.G., pastor of the church told the Ontario Intelligencer yesterday.

"We require that property for expansion purposes," he said. "The children of the primary department are using the grounds for a playground The house itself, may be used for a convent until we need it for building purposes."

LIVES IN THE BALANCE

Two collie dogs are at present reporting in the Belleville dog-pound, according to Dr. Thomas Thorne today. If the owners have not claimed them by Thursday evening, they will be destroyed. It was found necessary last night to destroy two dogs that had outlived their lease of life in confinement. Both collies are males and would make good pets for some child. One was found on Pine street and the other in the northern section of the city.

CATHOLIC WOMEN MET.

The regular meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held last evening in St. Michael's Academy with the president, Mrs. J. M. Trudach in the chair. Reports of the past month showed that this had been a very busy period. The members were thanked by Mrs Anderson, president of the Ladies' Benevolent Society of the church, for the very generous way in which they had contributed to the Christmas baskets. A reading was given by Mrs Anna Lafferty.

JUNIOR MOOSE MET

A large crowd attended the regular meeting of the Junior Orange Moose last night, three candidates being initiated while sixteen took the second degree which was conferred by A. Dutton, Governor of the Junior Order of Moose. He was assisted by F. Keeler, Gordon Delaney, Elmer Scott and Arthur Means. Gordon Delaney was originally honored last night when he was given the James J. Davis degree for having rendered special services to the order. Arrangements were made for a dance and euchre sleigh ride party under the auspices of the Junior Moose.

SPOKE ON NAPOLEON

Mr. George Pauley, past president, was the speaker at the weekly meeting of the Y's Men's Club in the Y.M.C.A. last night. Mr. Pauley took as his subject "Napoleon" and he gave an illuminating talk on the great French General and leader. He traced his career from the time he came to Paris until he was banished to the lonely isle of St. Helena. The speaker took his listeners through the campaigns conducted by Napoleon. The talk had a great appeal for the members and Mr. Pauley was congratulated on his review of the life of one of the world's greatest characters. Miss Leona Riggs rendered two solos last night. President "Al" Walters was in the chair. Mr. E. W. Digby, local manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce will speak next week.

CAMPUS COMEDY — FOX SOUND NEWS—VAUDEFILM

BEGINS THURSDAY JOHN BARRYMORE in "MOBY DICK" with Joan Bennett

BLOOMFIELD WOMEN HONOR MRS. CORHAM

The regular monthly meeting was held in the town hall with a large attendance. The meeting opened with the President, Mrs. Barker, presiding. The Institute Ode was sung and roll call followed which was answered with a pet proverb. Correspondence was read and dealt with. It was left in the hands of the Christmas Cheer committee to use what money they needed.

The afternoon was in charge of Mrs. Warren Cox, convener for the day. She opened the programme with a very interesting talk describing the city of Nazareth. She very ably described her trip through this city and spoke of the Church of the Ascension being built on the place where Mary's home (Jesus' mother) stood. We enjoyed this very interesting talk, and it was so suitable for the Xmas meeting.

This was followed by a quartette of ladies, Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Cluff, Mrs. Burr and Ida Bowerman, who were heard in singing of Xmas carols. Miss Jackson then read "Old Peaks at Home," one of Mrs. Cox's writings, followed by a solo, "Night of Nights." Vmas song by Mae Jackson, Mrs. Ed Bull then gave a splendid report of the Area Convention held in Belleville. Thanks were expressed to Mrs. Bull for her splendid report.

A very pleasant feature of the afternoon was the presentation to Mrs. Corham (formerly Mrs. Izard) of a silver tea service, satin bed spread and purse of money. Mrs. Ed Baxter, president of the Ladies Aid, made the presentation and spoke of the splendid help Mrs. Izard had been in the community. She will be very much missed.

The meeting closed and refreshments were served.

PENNY BANKING SYSTEM TEACHES CHILDREN THRIFT

$8,000 on Deposit in Belleville Branch — 1,800 Accounts Here

A brief, but interesting address on the school penny bank, was given the members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon at the Quinte Hotel today, by J. R. Littleproud, inspector of the Ontario Penny Bank. A. B. Collins, vice-president of the club, presided in the absence of George Colbeck while "Art" MacConnell collected the several fines and Ross Hunter led in the community singing. Leo D. Riggs presided at the piano and a trio composed of Ross Hunter, violin, "Al" Wounsbach, cornet and Harry Greenleaf, flute, gave two numbers which were much appreciated by the members. Four new members, Harold Spencer, Howard "Hap" Hanna, Austin Whitten and "Eddie" Logan were initiated into the club by P. C. MacLaurin, chairman of Education, and were instructed in the duties they owe to the club in general. The speaker of the day was introduced by Edgar Bateman and Kiwanian appreciation was expressed by J. O. Herity.

Mr. MacLaurin in initiating the new members, asked them to be wide awake to all the various activities of the club, to be present on every occasion and to work on the committees to which they were assigned. In boosting the Kiwanis Club, the members were reminded they belonged to the district of Kingston and Kiwanis International. He advised them to read the magazines and literature sent out by Kiwanis International and to be ready at all times to promote any worthy cause in their community.

The speaker, Mr. Littleproud, in opening his address stated, that schools in the early years was entirely academic but today through the school saving system, those in charge were trying to instil citizenship in the minds of the children and no better way could be thought of, than by thrift. The teachers at the present time, were somewhat different, than those teaching in former years, the speaker explained, there was an altogether different curriculum and all tended to develop the child in good citizenship. "Thrift", said the speaker, is the good management of the whole business of living and is to be commended to every child. During the period of depression now with us, by the teaching of thrift to the children, the families themselves were able to tide themselves over until more favorable times approach. The speaker showed that 94 per cent at 45 years of age are dependent, and 34 per cent, at the same age are self-supporting. He also explained, that thrift appealed to a boy when but two cents was plastic. "At the present time there is 15 percent. less in money in the Penny bank, than a year ago but there are more open accounts." Mr. Littleproud explained the working of the bank system stating, that no one director or official received any fee or dividend. The bank is not allowed to make investments in commercial industry but can purchase municipal and government bonds at a small margin of interest earning.

The Penny bank was opened in 1905 and referring to the part Belleville has taken in its development, he showed the banking system was started in the city in 1912 and there was 1800 open accounts at the present time with a little more than $8,000.00 on deposit.

LETTERS to the Editor

Belleville, Jan. 12, 1930

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:
Dear Sir:—

As a constant reader of your paper, I would like to express my views as to the unemployed who seek work on the city list.

If people know where they get their supposed "threat" which was supposed to be leveled against the Supt. Mr. Henderson. I do not see the use in trying to make the taxpayers of the city think that the unemployed in the city are a pack of "savage wolves." I sincerely believe that ninety-five percent of the unemployed in this city are grateful for what they have had but we must admit that there are a lot of agitators who must find fault with everything that is brought about.

May I say that there is one thing that we all have faith with and that is there is no system of dividing the work which accounts for one man getting on three times, and another once, in course of a few weeks.

I must say that there was no need of police protection against the unemployed of this city.

Thanking You.
One of the Unemployed.

TUNNEL TO CONNECT RESIDENCE OF POPE WITH SUMMER VILLA

Castel Gandolfo, Italy, Jan. 10—Construction will start soon on a tunnel suitable for automobiles to connect the old papal villa, Castel Gandolfo with the Villa Barberini recently acquired by the Holy See through the Lateran Treaty of 1929. Pope Pius XI will use this tunnel when he makes his expected visits to Castel Gandolfo next summer to spend the hot months there.

The be\ will be 18 to 22 feet wide, and about half a mile long. It will be wide enough for two automobiles to pass and still leave room for pedestrians. It will eliminate the necessity of the Pontiff's driving through the centre of the congested little town with its crooked narrow streets An underground passageway connecting the two villas now exists, but it is big enough only for pedestrians, and has long since fallen into disuse. Some parts of it have crumpled in. This smaller bore will be utilized in drilling the larger hole.

Construction of the tunnel will be only one, although the largest, of hundreds of items of repair and reconstruction before the pontifical villa will be habitable. Castel Gandolfo, texture of its long lack of occupation—the Popes ceased to be summer residents there in summer following the fateful year of 1870, and the late Cardinal Merry del Val was the only ecclesiastic to live there, and he only briefly—is in great need of rebuilding.

At present it is little more than a cold and evil museum, modernized by Pope Pius IX, the last pontiff to visit it. The visitor sees his writing desk, his throne, his dining and sleeping rooms, and even the bed in which he died, it having been carried back from the Vatican. But the paper is falling off the walls; there are no sanitary conveniences, no bathrooms; and only the few rooms occupied by Cardinal Merry del Val are fitted with electricity.

Work has not yet been begun to modernize the place. Architects are here now drawing their plans and submitting them to Commendatore Serafini, Governor of Vatican City, and to the Pope himself. Many months will elapse before Castel Gandolfo is fit for residence. Work has already been begun at the Villa Barberini, Workmen are busy engaged in reordering the arrangement of rooms, and in installing a little greatly needed plumbing. The Villa Barberini is not in the same state as the Villa Castel Gandolfo, since the princely Barberini family lived in it off and on during the passing summers. But it too requires considerable rebuilding before it is suited for use by the Pope or his court. Work at the villa will not be finished until the autumn.

Five papal pendaimes are on duty at the Villa Barberini. At the Villa Castel Gandolfo a caretakr is the only one in charge.

PETES DEFEATED BY BOWMANVILLE

Utroski Was One of the Stars For the Northern Team

Peterboro, Jan. 13—Bowmanville Olympics won handily from Peterboro by an O.H.A. intermediate game here last night, defeating the homesters 6 to 1 on soft sticky ice. Both teams were under a handicap. Bowmanville being shy a couple of regulars owing to bereavements, while the Petes lost the services of Lackey soon after the teams started when the defence man had his eye injured. The Peterboro team had a shade the better of the play in the first period, getting the only goal 13 minutes after the start when Maudsley went down the side and slid a pass to Creighton who scored at close range. Bowmanville, however, had the edge in the second period when they scored two goals, Candler getting the first on a rebound off J. Piper's shot and the latter scoring on a drive that rebounded off the end of the rink and ricochet in off Gillespie.

The Petes threw defence to the wind in the last period and, with the whole team up the ice, the visitors broke away three times for goals, while the Peterboro attackers failed to beat James. The Bowmanville scorers were J. Piper, Chalmers and Hooper, James played a great game in the nets for Bowmanville and the defence pair were effective while Candler and J. Piper were the best of the forwards. Creighton, Utroski and Maudsley were the best for Petes.

Bowmanville—Goal James; defence, Cameron and Hooper; centre, Candler; wings, J. Piper and Jamieson; subs, O. Piper, Grant and Rundle.

Peterboro—Goal, Gillespie; defence Lecaire and Lackey; centre Maudsley; wings Hatton and Creighton; subs, Jarvis, Utroski and Caladine.

Referee—E. Combs, Lindsay.

TERRIERS REMAIN ON THE TOP RUNG

Galt, Jan. 13—The Terriers kept their place in the lead of the top of the Ontario Hockey League as a result of their 5 to 2 defeat of the Stratford Indians here last night. It was an interesting an exhibition as has been seen here in a long time of the wide-open style and fast. The Terriers on their margin of play, outshooting the visitors two to one throughout the game, scoring more goals, but Bud Norfolk in the Stratford twine gave a great exhibition.

The local Saint addition, Gene Pucci scoured from the Montreal Canadiens, went over with a bang, and every time he sailed down the ice was applauded by the rafters of the spectators. He is the speed merchant of the league and to him went the honor of scoring the winning goal. Polly Sellers as usual was a star, stifling the other two counters.

INTERMEDIATES DROPPED TRENTON BY 3-0 COUNT IN OPENING TILT

"Benny" Bowen Gave Finished Display in Visitor's Net, With George Filion Best on Line—Local System Disorganized by Offensive Put on by Losers — Whole Team Played Well with Defence a Pair Green and Ingram, the Greatest Strength.

By C.D.T.

In the opening tilt of the intermediate series between Trenton and Belleville, a listless first period was witnessed, a second frame that was spasmodic and a third canto which had all the cash customers on their toes, the homsters defeated their western rivals by a 3-0 count and now lead in the league on the night's play. There were two features of the pastime and both could be claimed by the visitors. They showed more aggressiveness in their play and Bowen, in goal, gave the finished performance of any of goalie to show his wares in this city this season. He was beaten by three shots but he stopped the puppies many million from every conceivable angle and the home rooters on many occasions had to give him a hand for his brilliant exhibition.

Listless Till

There was a fairly large crowd on hand when the hostilities began and many were wondering just what kind of a game it would be. The first period was a tame and drab affair, neither team being able to show much in the way of organized attack. They warmed up to their work in the second and some close checking and fine rushes were witnessed. In the third canto, Trenton shoved their forward line down in the defensive zone of Belleville and by this means kept the homsters bottled up. Belleville's system was completely disorganized but they gave a fine display of defensive hockey and finally broke out of the jungle to nail two counters in the Trenton twine and put the game in the bag. It was not a good exhibition of the winter pastime but the proximity of the towns, that were battling with each other, created a certain amount of interest and the locals were tickled pink in defeating their long standing but friendly rivals in hockey and other sports.

Trenton Goals Standout

Benny Bowen easily proved that he is the best goalie around these parts last night. That boy did everything but fan the little black disc in his antics to avert scores. The Belleville front line repeatedly broke through the defence only to have Bowen make a remarkable save. He kicked, batted them out and when in great difficulty threw the rubber aside stopped the play. He still found time to direct his team in front and with George Filion the spearhead of the attack the Trenton team was defeated but not disgraced by any stretch of imagination. In the two Filion brothers, George and Frank, Trenton presented a strong, fast skating defence, that were a threat every time they went past centre. Neither one scored but this in part was due to the fine net minding of Bukard. Starting with Blakely in centre, Gerald Bowen and Wells on the line then switching to Anderson, Rosenplant and Parnell, a strong offensive line was in action and caused plenty of trouble. John Anderson, who has been playing hockey in these parts a long time, was not the worst hockey player that was out there. Bowen switched to centre soon after the start of the game and worried the puck carrier ith his awkward but effective style of play.

Filson Starred

George Filion was easily the standout of his team and with Bowen in goal shared all the honors. He skated himself into exhaustion and even at the end was carrying the play when he could hardly stand. His brother Frank received a crack on the nose that did not do him any good but he was the same fighting Frank that the fans knew when he was playing junior. The team as a whole had speed but they apparently could not bore in far enough to get the counters. The system that they employed had the locals all at sea for some time but it was soon fathomed and they were always on top although the score was close. Bukard, for the Belleville net, gave a nice exhibition and had a nearly perfect defence in Murney Green and Harry Ingram. These boys stepped into the puck carrier and had them slowed down to a walk before the game was completed.

System Disorganized

Stan Burgoyne shoved out the Canning twins with Harold Buck for the first line with the second line of the Senior "B" team forming the reserve corps. This was done to give them the needed work together and their play improved considerably over the game they played with Kingston. The system of the team was not good when Trenton pressed in the third frame but they managed to keep their goal intact. Belleville had more speed generally than did Trenton but their combination was affected by the close checking of the visitors. The first front line was inclined to bunch with Buck the chief offender, many times he was caught off his wing, which made his work all the harder. Benny Canning played a nice game in centre while Jack Canning turned in the best performance he has shown in two years. Davis played his opponents in centre all night and his good work was rewarded with a goal and the one that practically beat the visitors.

The Play

On a three man combination in the first frame, Belleville opened the scoring. Buck and the Canning twins figured in the play with Buck banging the rubber to Jack Canning, who easily beat Bowen from close in. From then on it was a hard task to beat the six guardians but both teams missed many chances to put the game. Two puck on many occasions laid right on the goal line with no one to bat it in and no Trenton player to shove it away.

The second period roughened considerably and Jarold ruled with an iron hand and nipped the disturbances in the bud with the result the boys contented themselves to playing hockey.

There was no score although both goals were in danger many times. Sixteen minutes of the third period had flitted away before Belleville practically sailed the game away. The Trenton team had five men on the attack when Alex. Weir came out of the pack and set sail for the Trenton citadel. He stepped around George Filion and beat Bowen with a wicked drive into the far corner of the net. Davis and Ingram came right back with a nice combination play with Davis on the scoring end and the game was all over. The Belleville team goes to Kingston on Wednesday night for another fixture in the group and if they can win in the Limestone City they will have a stranglehold on the group championship. The line-ups and summary are as follows:

Belleville—Goal, Bukard; defence, M. Green and Ingram; centre, H. Canning; wings, J. Canning and Buck; alternates, A. Weir, Davis and Hull.

Trenton—Goal, Bowen; defence, Geo. Filion and Frank Filion; centre, Blakely; wings, Parnell and Anderson; alternates, Bowen, Wells and Rosenplant.

Referee—H. Jacobi, Toronto.

WHITBY NO MATCH FOR OSHAWA KIDS

Oshawa, Jan. 13—Showing much more effectiveness around the nets and combining better than their opponents Oshawa juniors succeeded in defeating Whitby 6 to 1 in an interesting .OHA. game played here last night.

Until the last period the locals were leading by only two goals, but in the final 15 minutes they scored a quartet of counters. Whitby fought back gamely, and their only goal came in the closing minutes of play when Mayne grabbed off a loose puck in scramble and scooped it into the net.

Both teams were inclined to rough up the play, and Referee Ernie Parkes handed out 18 penalties, evenly divided. Orsboxni, subbing for the locals, turned in a good game and counted the first two goals. Drinkle, Smith and Lottie also figured in the scoring, while Bateson at left wing worked hard and assisted with several nice passes.

This is the first year in junior hockey for the majority of the Whitby players, and although they showed plenty of speed and checked hard they lacked combination. They were too much inclined to rely on individual efforts.

Howden at left wing for the visitors is a likely looking junior prospect.

Bye gave a good account of themselves on defence. The teams:

Whitby—Goal, Donnelly; defence, Thompson and Bye; centre, Hodge; wings, Brown and Rowden; subs, Howden and Hall.

Oshawa—Goal, Hunt; defence, Maundrell and Lortie; centre, Drinkle; wings, Brado and Peterson; subs, Austin, Smith, Orsboxni and Peterson.

Referee—Ernie Parkes Toronto.

LONDON BLANKS BUFFALO BISONS

LONDON, Ont., Jan 13—In the most thrilling hockey game of the year Lmdon Tecumsehs blanked the league-leading Buffalo Bisons by the score of 2, to 0 before 2,500 spectators at the London Arena last night. Leo Quenneville, star left-winger of the Tecumsehs, gave his team a sensational victory by scoring two goals. The first came after five minutes of play on a lone effort, while his second counter was registered after 16 minutes of play.in the final session an a pass from Harold Hicks.

In the dying minutes of the game Carl Voss of Buffalo, and Oliver Reinikka, of London, drew major penalties for staging a fist fight which threatened to break into a free-for-all, but the two players were parted by Quenneville and Referee Laflamme.

It was London's first victory over the leagueleaders in four starts, and it was not until the final bell rang that the game was won, as Mickey Roach's thundering herd battled every minute and did their utmost to offset defeat.

Harold Hicks, newly-acquired defence man, played an outstanding game. He bodied the Bisons freely, and in addition to his stellar defensive tactics also added additional punch offensively and engineered the play which resulted in London's second goal.

"Y" Alleys

In the Teacher's League game (Inter groups) Queen Alexandra ran wild and the summary is 4 points to the Ann Street team. Trundlers. Miss Potter was the exceptional standout bowler in this game, she rolled 288 for the high single, a league record for the ladies and 648 for the three string. Queen Alexandra incidentally broke two league records when they crashed them for 980 in the 1st game and a total of 2539 for the three.

Queen Mary usually a strong team were simply outclassed for this one match.

All the leagues are now in action for the winter season and the "Y" Alleys should be a hive of trundlers from now on with many interesting games. The bowlers appear to be getting back into shape after the holiday season.

PETERBORO BEAT LAKEFIELD TEAM

PETERBORO, Jan. 13.—Peterboro St. John's won a hard fought O.H.A. junior game from Lakefield in the Lake field rink last night by 2 to 1. Caladine getting the winning counter in the third period. The first session was goalless and the second period was nearly over when Caladine slapped in a rebound to score the first goal of the game. Hinsle, Lakefield's diminutive sub centre, came right back to tie the score just before the session ended. Caladine got the only marker of the game twenty minutes to win the game for the visitors.

Stewart, the Lakefield goaler, played a star game, beating the St. John's attackers time after time while Wiggett and Elmslie were outstanding. Gardner, Caladine and Milliken were the best for St. John's.

Lakefield—Goal, Stewart; defence, Wingett, Stenner, centre, White; wings Jewell, Norbery; subs, Winnamaker, Elmslie and Kerr.

St. John's—Goal, Miller; defence, Ellis and Howe; centre, Caladine; wings, Gardner, Milshaw; subs, Merrett, Milliken, Burke.

Referee—O. Kennedy, Peterboro.

DETROIT MURDER CLUE UNCOVERED

Lee Mitchell Under Sentence in Prison May be Implicated in Crime.

WILKESON, Jan. 13.—What is believed to be new and important evidence in connection with the murder of Jerry Buckley, Detroit radio announcer, and the attempt on the life of Inspector Henry J. Garvin of the Detroit police, has been uncovered at Amherstburg, Ont.

Guns which are in the possession of County Constable S. H. Kelly, might have been used in both cases, it is believed, and ballistic experts are now making tests to decide definitely on this point. Peculiarity contracted shot-gun slugs found at Amherstburg are similar to those which wounded Inspector Garvin.

Identification of Leo Mitchell, now under sentence to Portsmouth, as a member of the famous Gerald Chapman-Dutch Anderson gang and a man with a lengthy and notorious record opened up the new phase of the Detroit cases. The identification was made by James R. Wilkinson, superintendent of identification for the Windsor police. The significance of the guns in his possession then appeared to Constable Kelly, who had arrested Mitchell in Amherstburg. He called on Superintendent Wilkinson to get some additional information and then divulged the information he had but—which till that time was thought to be of no particular importance.

Detroit homicide squad officers who were called in to-day secured bullets fired from the guns in possession of Constable Kelly, and in a couple of days a report will be ready. . . .

At the time of Mitchell's arrest on P. C. Kelly another man who went under the name of Fred Becker, but who was known to the liquor running fraternity as Fred Pizzino, escaped. The police now have information in their possession to the effect that during the course of a drinking party Fred Pizzino allegedly confessed to his companions that he was wanted for murder in Michigan.

Detective Lieut. Earl Stephens of Detroit police said today that the Detroit police had been unable to find any trace of Fred Pizzino since he entered the United States after the Amherstburg episode.

DEPRESSION

"I'm a different woman"

"Two years ago I began to get depressed, and everything was the most trouble for me. I was a misery to myself and everyone around me. I was advised to take Chamber Iron, by my friends who said it was the best on the market but it did me no good, so at last my husband got me a bottle of Frunerva and he said would realize the different woman I am. I am now taking Frunerva and feel constantly for two years. My daughter also would not be without it. I have got my neighbour to take Frunerva as well, and she too found the words as she feels a different woman."

(Mrs. G. J. K.)

The commonest cause of depression is partial constipation—an insidious complaint because the sufferer is seldom aware of it. It means the gradual accumulation of body poisons which dull the mind, damp the spirits, sap the nervous strength and lower the whole vitality.

Nowhere take make constipation impossible. Therefore, if you keep to Frunerva you need never know the meaning of melancholy; never feel "nervy" or depressed.

RadioFans Corner

Well, well the reception last night was certainly a surprise to the fans couldn't get anything through with any degree of clearness although Real Folks came through with flying colours. Outside of that and a lot of noise the reception was all right but we're not aching to hear more of the same thing.

Without a doubt the program of the Mormon Tabernacle Choir is something every person should listen to, because the organ alone would be worth while but when all those beautifully blended voices are heard well then it becomes a special treat.

Looks like a big night for WEAF and on second thought WJZ isn't going to do so badly either. To start off with WEAF's has we find the Rex Cole Mountaineers at 5.45, sort of get 'Ic liking the hill billy songs when you hear these boys.

At 8 Frank Crumit and Julia Sanderson, soloists, take part, in a new program, that was on the air for the first time last week, the Blackstone Plantation. Immediately after this, that is at 8.30, the "Fyrol" with Coon-Sanders orchestra of world wide fame taking the leading role.

The Bakers at 9.30 and at 10 we're going to hear some of the smart things the boys of B. A. Rolfe's orchestra can do with musical instruments. Duke Ellington at 11 and Vincent Lopez at 11.30

Wayne King and his orchestra at 8 draws our attention to WJZ to-night and at 9 we note that Percy Grainger is once more the guest artist on the program at this time. Percy is quite a boy. At 10.30 the Cuckoos are on the air starring Frank Knight and a flock of little cuckoos.

Paramount Public program from WJZ at 10.30 to—night that should be good for one movie star or two, at least, try it and see. Guy Lombardo at 11 and his band of Canadians, the boys that know all there is to know about the playing of popular music and then some. I'll be seem you.

What To Do For That

LAME BACK

Get your lame, aching back a good rubbing with JOHN'S-LESS to-night and in the morning go to work thankful and happy— works like magic. Always have John's-Less handy—rub it in for aches and pains —for rheumatic agony and painful joints.

Keep in mind also that there is nothing better for sciatica, neuritis, lumbago, stiff neck, swollen knuckles and sore, aching muscles.

It's a speedy wonder worker is John's-Less and only 60 cent tube will prove it—but it is good—it gets right down to where the trouble starts and ends pain and distress—made in Canada—4 ounces—60 cents of generous tube.

FEED SOULS OF THE UNEMPLOYED

Flensburg, Germany, Jan. 12— In this town they feed not only the stomach, but the soul of the unemployed. To cheer up the jobless the Labor Bureau is providing free tickets to vaudeville shows and concerts for families of men out of work. An article de performance sits well with a victim of economic depression fresh from supper at a soup kitchen.

FORM MEN'S CLUB AT ST. ANDREW'S

Male Members of Congregation are Keen for the Idea

At a delightful banquet prepared by the Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church for the male members of the congregation last night, in the new auditorium of the church, plans were made for the formation of a men's club in the church and a strong slate of officers was elected to carry on the work. The club will adopt the constitution of the several service clubs in the city, will meet at stated intervals but will be primarily established to carry on the work within the church.

It is hoped that the formation of this club will bring the members of the congregation into closer contact one with another, new members will be welcomed into the church and the club will carry out prospective aid given by the different governing bodies of St. Andrew's Church. The supper was well attended there being 153 present who represented all walks of life in the city. Charles A. Cameron presided as chairman.

The lading prepared a sumptuous repast, which was delightfully served by a large corps of workers. Professor Whiteley presided at the piano and with W. A. Parker, Lee Ketchem, and E. V. Illsey as song leaders, the company lustily sang many community songs. Mr. Illsey and Mr. Rochelle rendered solos, after which the plans for the formation of the club were laid before the meeting by the chairman of the evening. Mr. Cameron said it was proposed to form this club to meet possibly ten times a year to help other organizations in the church with their work. The club would be more of a social affair providing a place for all members of the congregation to meet and get better acquainted. Dr. Seymour explained that the formation of the club would be a potential service to the church and much good could come from the meetings.

R. D. Ponton moved the vote of thanks to the ladies for their wonderful repast of the evening, while his father, Col. W. N. Ponton, one of the oldest yet youngest members of the congregation, expressed himself in favor of the organization of the club.

Mayor George Reid thought the club when formed, could help in civic affairs more than St. Andrew has done in the past. "The church should take an active part in municipal and educational affairs and what better way could be found than through a man's club in the church. There are many newcomers in the church and they should be welcomed here."

In passing His Worship dropped a tip that probably the club, when formed, would have to welcome many new families to the city. "Within the past forty-eight hours," said Mayor Reid, "something has been done that will bring many new families to the city and these people should be welcomed.

W. J. Campbell thought a club such as had been proposed, would maintain a standard of loyalty and fraternity inside and outside the Church and would all keep up the enthusiasm of the congregation. Arthur McGie, chairman of the Board of Session, stated no mistake had been made by the committee in charge, judging the response that had been shown at the banquet and he was hopeful that the club would be formed.

I. L. Moore looked upon the proposition with favor, and said that with the splendid arrangements with the new auditorium, the club should grow and prosper. A. E. Gillen, E. V. Illsey, W. R. McCreary and others spoke on the subject and a vote being taken that a club be formed, it was carried unanimously. The committee in charge of the banquet then retired and later brought in a slate of officers, which was adopted and are as follows:—Patrons, W. J. Campbell, A. E. Gillen, Col. W. N. Ponton, James Roy and Robert Tannahill; President, Charles A. Cameron; 1st Vice President, Dr. R. S. Gibson, 2nd Vice President, W. H. McCreary, Secretary, Jack Shurie; Treasurer, W. A. Parker; Executive, Vernon Weir, George Walbridge, Edgar Sutherford, W. J. Feeney, Mills and Percy Hanson.

CONFERENCE OPENS

The tenth annual Bay of Quinte Conference Winter School for the training of young men and young women for Christian leadership opened Monday at Trinity Hall at Cobourg. Rev. P. T. Richards, Port Perry is President, Rev. C. W. Gardner of Eagleton is Secretary, and Rev. H. B. Neal, of Belleville is Business Manager. An evening prayer service was conducted by Rev. W. J. H. Smyth, Wellington. Rev. George A. Little of Trenton gave the opening address.

The BEST Gray Hair Remedy is Home Made

Try half pint of water and one ounce bay rum, small box of Orlex Compound and one fourth ounce of Glycerine. Any druggist can get this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It will gradually, darken streaked, faded or gray hair and—don't wash and glisten. Orlex will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

Shannonville

Shannonville, Jan. 12—The annual Christmas tree of the Shannonville United Church Sunday School was held in Shannonville Orange Hall.

A fine program consisting of several musical numbers, dialogues, recitations and a drill was enjoyed by all.

After which a 2 act play entitled "Christmas at the Stebbiners" was put on by the young people.

After the program of which the Rev. W. H. Clarke was chairman, Santa Claus visited the hall and distributed presents and candies to all. The proceeds amounted to forty dollars.

TAXIMEN NOW DEMAND IDENTIFICATION CARDS

Paris, Jan. 12—They do things differently in Paris. Tourists, accustomed to look upon cab drivers with sometimes justifiable suspicion may be surprised when a Paris driver demands their passports before he'll drive them outside the city limits. It all happened because cab driver who ventured out of town with unknown fares were subjected to rough handling and robbery until the thing became commonplace. Now the police have authorized them to demand identification from passengers going on long rides.

AVERAGE AGE 36

Berlin, Jan. 13—Germany's new parliament is a legislature of youth, the Reichstag's baldheads remain. Whereas the average age of members formerly exceeded 50, the present age is 36. The "baby" of the new House is Arfang Heise, communist member for a Breslau district, who is just a couple of months over the minimum legal age for a man, 25 years. He placed on record that he "went into politics" at 14. He is secretary of the Young Communist Movement.

Rudolph Schmeer, a nationalist, is not yet 26. There are others, both communist and fascist, who are between 26 and 30, at which latter age there are several members.

Moffats

THE QUICKEST

Cook-Quik

DURABLE ELEMENT

Element

The "A.B.C." of the Cook-Quik Element

A. The new element* will boil water faster than any element previously made by Moffats, and compares with any other on the market for speed.

B. Speed is the result of light weight, therefore requiring fewer heat units for initial heating. New top plate and patented beads also facilitate speedy cooking.

C. Long life is ensured by use of patented alloy for top plate, which will not corrode or disintegrate with constant use. The high grade 1700-watt coils also operate efficiently at very low temperatures.

D. Service will rarely be needed on the new Cook-Quik Element, but if a necessity does arise, the element may be serviced without destroying any parts of the element. Cleanliness is also a big factor with the new element.

E. Safe operation at the lowest possible cost is further guaranteed by the air and porcelain insulation features of the new element which prevent leakage of power whether the element is red hot or cold. This is a vast improvement over the cement or powder insulated element.

LEADERSHIP is only maintained by great achievements in industry. Moffats secured leadership in the electric range world by pioneering the way, and have maintained that leadership by the many great and far-reaching accomplishments that have brought the pleasures of electric cooking and baking into homes in all parts of the world.

Moffats Ranges are the most sincerely imitated ranges in the world today, but their quality has never been equalled. Others in the industry know that Moffats will not introduce a new feature until it has been thoroughly tested in their laboratory and then has borne the brunt of very severe testing under ordinary domestic conditions. This assures absolute satisfaction on the part of a vast army of Moffat users and maintains the enviable prestige and leadership enjoyed by Moffats.

Thus you can rest assured that this new element—Moffats Cook-Quik Element—is in reality the quickest durable element on the market today.

One of these new elements is being installed on each range now leaving the factory at Weston. This is yet another reason why you should make yours a Moffat Gold Medal Electric Range.

LITTLE BENNY'S NOTE BOOK

Pop was trying to make his cigar lighter work, and ma said, Can't you suggest something for Willies birthday, Willyum, you know he'll be 10 months old tomorrow.

Give him 10 kines, you say he's such an effectionate baby, pop sed.

Ill give him those anyway, dont worry, ma sed. But we cant let such an important birthday go by without giving him something definite. Especially now that he's crawling and no long er a mere stationary baby with no special.

Thats so, he's crawling now, pop sed. Do you want to give him something useful? he sed.

Why yes, if possible, ma sed, and pop sed, Well then how about a map of the house he can get lost in? Its quite even develop his taist for jography and travel, he sed.

Dont be absurd, it sounds rediculus, ma sed. But I wish you could think of something useful, she sed.

How about a silver compass on a little gold chain, to hang around his little ivory neck? pop sed. That would have his hands free for crawling and he could still get his bearings, he sed.

A compass mite amuse him, come to think of it, thats not such a bag ideg ma sed. At least its something that wiggles all the time, and if he doesnt brake it by the time he's old enough to distinguish north from south, so much the better, she sed, said pop sed.

See by golliee, I've got it. Just the thing, a little fancy box of moth balls.

Now what are you tawking about? ma sed and pop sed, Dont you see the point. It would be the most useful present of all, it would be useful to the whole family. Every time he sees a moth in the carpet while he's crawling around, he can hit it with a moth ball and that way add years to the life of the carpets and rugs, not to spek of improving his aim and prehaps learning a few verses that will come in handy in baseball later on, he sed.

Im going to get him a little compass me sed.

With she proberly will.

OUR ALPHABET

When we were taught our a, b, c's we were told that they came from the Phoenicians, and later, perhaps, we learned that the earliest alphabetic document was the Moabite stone, belonging to the ninth century B.C. But excavations at the mound of Ras Shamra, near Latakia, on the Mediterranean coast, south of Antioch, show the use of the alphabet at least four centuries earlier, and it may be that western letters of today have a direct connection with the stylized wedge letters of 3,000 years ago. Excavations there last spring brought to light a number of tablets bearing alphabetic inscriptions, but scholars were unable to make a continuous reading of them, and it was clear that the number of these tablets was not necessary before the attempts to decipher could make progress. Fortunately, not only have new tablets been found, the largest bearing three to four columns of clear text, but also a lexicon, comparable to the French work of Larousse, and a bilingual dictionary of the utmost rarity, revealing a new language.—Mail and Empire.

OBITUARY

G. B. DICKERSON

Another link in the chain of old time railway men has been severed in the death of George Benjamin Dickerson which took place at his home in Brockville Monday afternoon aged 89 years.

O. B. Dickerson was among first of Grand Trunk engineers, coming to Canada many years ago from England where he began railroading, running between Norwich and London. He had many friends in Belleville and indeed all over the railway system and ran the early type of locomotive between Brockville and Montreal in the wood burning days, also when an experiment was made in the burning of peat to make steam in the locomotives of the period, an experiment not looked upon with favor by the engineers of that day who were kept busy enough with the problem of keeping enough steam up with wood. He was a member of Sussex Lodge, A.F. and A.M. Brockville and always took a keen interest in all Masonic activities.

Mr. Dickerson was born and raised in Norwich, England, and came to this country with his wife, locating in Brockville. He is survived by three daughters and one son, Miss Charlotte Dickerson, Brockville; Mrs. A. O. Wright, Belleville; Mrs. N. Miller, Minneapolis; Charles B. Dickerson, Los Angeles, California.

MONTHLY MEETING BRIDGE STREET W.M.S.

On Friday, Jan. 9th, the monthly meeting of Bridge Street W.M.S. was held in the church parlors. Mrs. Bishop presided and after the opening exercises proceeded to the annual reports of the recording and corresponding secretaries, the treasurer and the secretaries of departments. All these reports were interesting and the treasurer announced that not only had the allocation of $1700 been raised but with the sales of the box sent to the Presbyterial Supply Secretary and the one sent to the west $1909.23 had been realized, which was received by the audience found expression in the Doxology.

Gentlemen Bishop, Deroche and Ackerman will represent the auxiliary at the Presbyterial which will be held in Picton on the 21st and 22nd of the month.

Mrs. Parnsworth the secretary of Temperance introduced Mrs. Ferguson of John St. who read a splendid and fine paper entitled "Temperance and Education." Mrs. Ferguson prepared this paper for the convention recently held in the Tabernacle Church for October. But so important is the subject and so comprehensive the paper that Mrs. Ferguson decided to repeat it at the meeting on Friday.

As the major parts of this paper have already appeared in the columns of are city daily paper, only brief notes of its contents will be given in this report. The special interest shown in education today, especially as it relates to the youth of the nation. The all important factor in the education of children but in many cases teh home is falling in is obligation, hence the Church, the Sunday School, the Day School must try to supply the lack of home teaching and influence. One of the most important things for the child to learn is the nature and effect of alcohol in the light of modern scientific research.

Many good things were was given. Mrs. Ferguson for her splendid work.

Lord and Lady Willingdon Show Interest in the V.O.N. Work

Ottawa, Jan. 13.—"I have always maintained that distance makes no difference to true friendship," said in his excellency, Viscount Willingdon, patron of the Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada, at a meeting of the executive council of that organization here yesterday. "We shall take the memory of these good attendants, trained in Canada with us to India, and we shall continue to be interested in the well-being of the Victorian Order."

The president of the order, senator George P. Graham, spoke of the deep interest Lady Willingdon, as honorary president, had always taken in the affairs of the order. A resolution, moved by Mrs. R. W. Reford, Montreal, expressed the thanks of the board of governors to her excellency for continued support of the work during her stay in Canada. In her reply, Lady Willingdon spoke of the great joy it had been to be associated with the order as its honorary president.

Preparations are that this year Canada will advance into second place among the gold producing countries of the world.

Picton

(Special to Ontario Intelligencer)

Picton, Jan. 13—The Misses' Allowance Board has re-organized for 1931 with the following officers: Chairman, Dr. Whiteman; vice-chairman, Mrs. E. A. Morden; secretary, Miss B. J. Collier; Committee, Mrs. Frank Meriden, Mr. William Monaghan and Mr. Herbert Gerrow. Miss Cecelia Folkard is the Investigator.

The Prince Edward County Poultry Association is planning a series of meetings the local theatre on the 19th, the night before the opening of the poultry show. Attendance at the show is not great enough to ensure its success financially so that this method is being resorted to. Already entries are being received, secretary C. O. Nutter announces.

The funeral took place from the residence of Dr. Ray Clapp on Saturday to Glenwood Chapel of Walter Joseph Carman, who died very suddenly while visiting his son in Toronto. Rev. F. M. Woolton conducted the service at the chapel and interment was made in the family plot in Glenwood cemetery. Mr. Carman was born near Warkworth seventy years ago but resided in this county most of his life. He resided at Bath for a time on a farm for many years and was widely known and highly respected. He leaves a son, Ray, in Toronto, also a daughter, Mrs. Elwood Kelly, in the same city.

The local Orange Lodge has donated twelve pairs of overalls to the Children's Shelter there being that number of boys in the institution. The public has been very generous with donations to this worthy cause.

No change is reported in the condition of Mr. Fred Newman who suffered a heart attack. He is confined to his bed and will remain there for several weeks.

FIRE MARSHAL CRITICISED FOR COCHRANE BLAZE

Municipal Authorities Negligent in Issuing Permit for Building

COCHRANE, Jan. 12.—Responsibility for the Queen's Hotel disaster was placed, to a large extent, on lax enforcement of municipal building regulations by the coroner's jury empanelled yesterday to consider the evidence at the inquest on Baptiste Zardo, one of the victims of the fire which razed the hotel here on Dec. 30. The inquest was held on the body of Zardo as representative of all persons —numbering at least 10—who lost their lives in the fire.

The inquest opened early yesterday and with the exception of an hour and a half for lunch, the hearing of evidence was not completed until last evening. The jury deliberated for an hour and a half before arriving at a verdict. The verdict, as submitted to Coroner, E. R. Tucker, last evening, is as follows:

The Verdict

"We, the jury, find that Baptiste Zardo came to his death by burning on the 30th of December, 1930, when the Queen's Hotel, Cochrane, was totally destroyed by fire from unknown causes.

"From the evidence adduced we find that the Ontario fire marshal issued an order to have certain requirements completed by Nov. 2, 1930, which order was not carried out.

"On 26th of November, 1930, the Ontario fire marshal granted an extension of time until 15th of January, 1931, which, under the circumstances we consider should not have been granted.

"We also find that the municipal authorities appear to have been negligent in their methods of issuing building permits to the Queen's Hotel, the plan of which was not suitable for a building of such dimensions for hotel purposes.

"We strongly recommend that the municipal authorities pay stricter attention to the enforcement of building by-laws, especially where there is danger to life."

Only Four Streams

Only four streams of water can be put on any fire in Cochrane. Fire Chief and Building Inspector E. Caswell told the jury. The pumps at the town power house will provide pressure sufficient for four lines of hose only, and the local fire-fighting equipment does not include a portable pump, he said. This admission was made when Crown-Attorney Sam Cold brick questioned him as to his reason for attaching hose to only one of the four hydrants in the neighborhood of the hotel.

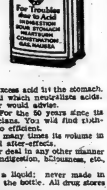
SOVIET RAIL LINE AT A STANDSTILL

Moscow, Jan. 13—General traffic over the new 1,700-mile Turkestan-Siberian Railway, which was officially opened several months ago with much ceremony, has been delayed by lack of labor with which to complete sidings, switch yards and other attributes of a regular line.

Officials of this road, which was cited as one of the big achievements of the Soviet government, recently asked for 4,000 workmen to aid in completion of the line. It runs from the rich grazing and forests of Siberia through undeveloped areas of Turkestan to the ancient cities of Samarkand and Bokhara. It was hoped to have the line in general use by January 1, 1931, but if the labor shortage continues there is considerable doubt as to just when this happy ending will be brought about.

The main line was built entirely by native labor and without foreign technical or financial assistance. It cost more than $100,000,000 and required four years of unremitting work.

The railway situation in Russia apparently is not improving very rapidly. Although new rolling stock is being constructed at last as possible the number of cars is still insufficient to take care of the country's grain and other commodities.



Railway Commissar Buhmindovstch told The Associated Press that the Russian lines have been experiencing heavier traffic per mile than the roads of any other country in the world. Traffic figures for instance, show that United States has 4.5 passengers per mile of railways, Canada 2.7 and the Soviet Union 12.97.

While the passenger traffic is unwieldly, the matter of moving freight is more serious. Huge stocks of vegetables are shipped to the cities daily to open freight cars, unrated and unrefrigerated.

The result is that for every carload of these perishable products, only one-fourth is fit for consumption when it arrives at destination. Consequently there is a shortage always in vegetables whereas, under Canadian conditions, there would be more than plenty.

Keep your stock free from blemish with Doupiex' Egyptian Liniment. Removes inflammation, quickly relieves bruises, sprains, strains, swellings, contraction of cords, stiffness of joints, and sore muscles.

Over 1,300 people in Britain including many women, hold the class "A" pilot's certificate, which covers private flying only.

GAS relieved

WHAT most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. Food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use whatever doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention, it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One teaspoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate with no "period after-effects."

Check your tests this perfect way—you'll never deal in any other manner with headaches, gas, blouting, nausea, sick nese, indigestion, biliousness, etc., due to sour acid stomach and heartburn.

Be sure to get genuine Phillips'. It is always a liquid: never made in tablet form. Look for the name Phillips on the bottle. All drug stores sell it—30c.

ROTARIANS WILL INVADE VIENNA FOR CONVENTION

Six Steamers are Chartered to Transport Members to England

"On To Vienna," was the theme song at the regular weekly gathering of Rotarians held in the Hotel Quinte grill room Monday with Mackenzie Robertson taking the solo part. Vienna will be the Mecca of thousands of Rotarians from all over the world in June when the Rotary International convention will be held there. Six steamships have been chartered to take Rotarians from Canada and the U.S.A. including the C.P.R. steamship Duchess of York which will sail from Montreal June 10 with the delegates from the 27th and 28th Rotary Districts which include Eastern Canada.

Past President Mackenzie Robertson, who has attended several Rotary International conventions, gave Belleville Rotarians an outline of the pleasure and profit possible by attending the convention in Vienna, that historic city which has given to the world so many great masters of music and so much good music. Side trips have been arranged for the 27th and 28th Rotary district delegates which will take in all the high spots of Europe and England.

Past President Al Sullivan reported on the plan for raising money for the Crippled Children's Fund through the collection of lead and tin foil, contributions of which are already coming in. Plans have been prepared which will be placed in various stores where the tin foil from tobacco packages and chocolate bars can be dropped, to be picked up later and turned into money for the care and cure of crippled children of Belleville and vicinity.

SCOTCH NIGHT AT QUINTE CHAPTER

Delightful Evening Spent in Masonic Circles With Scottish Lads

Hoot Mon! What a nicht!

It sure was a "brew britch moonlicht nicht" for the companions who took in the meeting of Quinte Friendship Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, at the Masonic Temple, Front Street, last night, for it was Scotchmen's night, and the crowd that attended augurs well for capitular Masonry in this city.

After the work of the lodge room had been exemplified by Ex. Comp. Jack McIntosh and his new officers, the Companions repaired to the banquet hall where they were greeted by the skirl of the bagpipes and other Scottish things tho' an ordinary Canadian couldn't even pronounce let alone write down.

The banquet hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion and as Ex. Comp. McIntosh took his place at toastmaster, surrounded by other members of the Craft not so much Scotch, he claimed they were, perhaps just for the night. Comp. Jimmy Bankier led the singing of such o'd favorites as "Loch Lomond," "Annie Laurie" and o'ners that tickled the hearts of the lads from the land of the heather.

A toast list consisting of "The King," "The Craft" "Grand Lodge and Grand Lodge Officers," were drunk. The toast to "The Visitors" proposed by Comp. Chem Frederick brought responses from Ex. Comp. William McIntosh, of Moira Chapter; H. B. Fetherjy, Cornwall Chapter, and now a resident of this city; Ex. Comp. Don Gullett, Picton Chapter, and the toast to the "Newly Initiated" proposed by Rt. Ex. Comp. H. J. Clarke was responded to by the new member.

As in all other Scotch nights at this Chapter, a speaker suitable for the occasion was procured and last night it is believed that Friendship Chapter exceeded itself when they welcomed to the banquet hall, such a gifted speaker as Wor. Bro. James McDonald, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia at Picton. He spoke at some length on the life and works of Robbie Burns. Mr. McDonald was we'l acquainted with his theme and the brethren enjoyed his scholarly talk.

Ex. Comp. J. O. Herity presented the speaker in a very witty introduction.

During the evening Comp. James Bankier gave several vocal selections accompanied by Pro. Wheatley and Miss Browning gave two very delightful Scotch dances, accompanied by Pipe Major Albert Johnstone, which were greatly enjoyed.

Scotch night has passed in Quinte Friendship Chapter, but it will linger long in the memory of those who were privileged to attend this function, so if ye can say "it's a braw bricht moonlicht nicht, ye're a' recht ye ken.

Its Quality Sells It.—The fact that so many thousands of intelligent people continue to use Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil speaks volumes for its healing efficiency. Ever since it was first introduced it has grown steadily in public favor, owing entirely to its beneficial usefulness in relieving and healing sickness. As a specific for cuts, burns, scalds, and various inflammatory pains it record is beyond reproach.

Mail Produce Quickly and Control Volume

In a message to Eastern farmers recently issued the Hon. R. Weir, Federal Minister, points out that to compete in world markets the farmers of Canada must (1) continue to make progress along the lines of even more scientific farming; (2) reduce the cost of producing farm products; and (3) having a definite purpose in marketing, (a) see that no product is offered in inferior quality to the foreign market, (b) produce in sufficient volume to hold a market once obtained, and (c) regulate supply to each market so as to prevent flooding.

ESCAPED DEATH WHILE SKATING

Young Sault Lad Showed Pluck in Near Tragedy on St. Mary's River

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Jan. 12 —Chilled to the point of exhaustion, Wilfrid Sanderson of Jiggings Avenue and Gladys Bonfils, of 10 Second street, had a narrow escape from death when they broke through the ice on the St. Mary's River near the pavilion and quite a distance out from shore in deep water.

After several other skaters had decided it was almost impossible to reach the unfortunate pair, who were clinging to the ice and unable to get closer to shore, Gordon McDonald and George Draper came to their rescue.

McDonald pushed a plank toward the exhausted pair and went out on it. He first pulled the girl to safety and helped her back, and then he rescued Sanderson just when the chilly waters were about to claim him.

Spectators state that Sanderson showed the greatest heroism. He broke through the ice first and then warned his companion to circle back to safety as soon as possible. She was apparently unnerved by the accident, and fell and broke through in another place. He took his way to where she was and for ten minutes he held her up until the rescue party arrived. When people began to gather nearby he pleaded with them to make an effort to save the girl and let him perish.

MIDDLE AGED MAN PROVIDES SUBJECT FOR ARDENT DISCUSSION

LONDON—Two eminent ecclesiastics — the Bishop of Ripon, Rt. Rev. Keppel Harrounghs and Dean Inge — have been voicing their apprehensions concerning the middle-aged man. Dr. Inge speaks of the "contented compromise with life which threatens most of us in middle age." The Bishop of Ripon says the case of middle age is betrayed by a growing tendency to follow the line of least resistance.

The successful man is sometimes a pitiable object," adds Dean Inge, "God has given him his desires. Very often he is a man who has lost the habit of attending to anything except the things that help him on but which really hold him back — the man for whom the finer things of life do not exist. Sometimes he becomes mean and cant, and thus he may allow himself to lose much as well as financial. Brood now and then we hear of some humiliating exposure. Few things are more tragic than the deterioration of character which often sets in at about fifty. As time goes on he is more and more inclined to save himself trouble."

OFFERS HALL FOR COUNTY COUNCIL

London, Jan. 10—The Marquis of Crewe has offered to give Crewe Hall for the use of the Cheshire County Council as central offices. The value of the gift is estimated at about $1,250,000. The original Crewe Hall was one of the finest specimens of Elizabethan architecture in Cheshire. It was destroyed by fire in 1866, but the reconstruction, the plans of the original building was adhered to. Most of the rooms are wainscoted in oak. Lord and Lady Crewe have not resided at Crewe Hall for many years. They entertained the King and Queen there in 1913.

Suffered for Two Years

"After the birth of my second child, I was always feeling tired, nervous and weak and had headaches, backaches and terrible pains every month. I suffered two years before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Four bottles set me right and it did me a world of good. I would not be without it in the house now, and have another six bottles in. I recommend it to every woman I know."—Mrs. T. Bavis, Box 116, Asbestos Mines, Quebec.

LILACS LURE

by Katherine H. Hopson

Howard Dexter knew that any other man of his acquaintance would jump at the chance for an invitation from Ida Dorsett to attend their week-end house party, as they were a delightful host and hostess and their invitations were much sought after. It was the postscript to the note which brought a frown to Howard's usually pleasant face.

"By the way, Louise Ferguson will be there, and I'm depending on you to help make things pleasant for her," Mrs. Dorset had added.

"Confound it," growled Lucas, "I don't see why the Dorsets are always maneuvering to throw us together! Miss Ferguson's an attractive girl, but I'm not interested in her, and I don't believe she cares a pickayune for me."

As he thrust the letter into his coat pocket, his fingers touched another letter where which he never out and reread. It was from his sister Ada back in Ellistown, full of the sayings and doings of the latter's family. It was the sentence near the close that absorbed Lucas' attention.

"Your old sweetheart, Mabel Elsmere—or rather Mabel Fickering, came to church yesterday in a new creation of lace and lavender, so it's safe to assume her mourning is over. Poor girl—I guess she had a life of it with that Pickering fellow! The only decent thing he ever did was to die and leave her. I don't blame Mabel for doffing her widow's weeds at an early date." The letter closed with Ada's usual cordial expression: "We're still waiting for that visit you promised to make us."

"I believe I'll go," Lucas declared, a wave of homesickness sweeping over him. "I can get my vacation most any time I want it." He wouldn't admit even to himself that it was Mabel Elsmere, free once more, who was the impelling force that drew him back.

To think was to act with Lucas, and he hastily dispatched a note containing regrets to the Dorsets for not being able to attend their houseparty next week, and the following afternoon found him settled in the train bearing him back to Ellistown. As the city with its smoke and noises was left behind, he drew a sigh of relief.

"When a fellow's country-bred, it's hard to get used to a city," he told himself.

Cities and hills gave place to rolling prairies, and he reached Ellistown next day. As his sister's family were not expecting him of course there was no one to meet him. Lucas wondered if the little old station had always looked so shabby. The way to his sister's home led through the main street of the village. How squatty the houses looked, and how small the stores. Even the Ellistown band building which he used to think very imposing, seemed to have shrunk.

But a warm welcome from his sister and her family, and some of the former's famous hot biscuits and strawberry jam for supper brought back the joy of homecoming, and the evening's full moon rose over the pine old trees and shed a luster of romance over commonplace things while the soft spring breeze brought the fragrance of many wild blossoms.

As soon as he decently could, Lucas withdrew from the family group on the front porch and made his way to the village street. He chose a circuitous route for he well remembered the avid interest taken in other people's affairs by the villagers, and he didn't want it noised about on the first evening of his arrival that he was paying attention to his former sweetheart who had thrown him over.

"She was so young—and Pickering was a taking fellow; it's no wonder he won her over from a bashful chap as I used to be," he reflected with the mellow tolerance time brings.

In the shadow of the Elsmere house he paused a moment. Yes, there was the same old bench under the drooping maples where they had sat so often, with its shelter-ing background of tall lilac bushes. Just as of old, he vaulted over the fence and buried his face in fragrant lilac blossoms, reliving the romance he had cherished in his heart throughout the years. He chuckled—he could see Mabel's slender figure tripping across the lawn to meet him as she used to do, her blue eyes shining and her fair hair making an aureole about her face. How different she was with her childlike naïveté from the city girls he had met with their cosmopolitan poise.

"She's a child of nature—a dryad," he declared as he went up the steps and rang the bell.

Mrs. Elsmere came to the door. She was a woman of billowy proportions, hearty of voice and appetite.

Just for a moment she didn't recognize him as he stood in the semi-darkness. Then she gripped his hand in cordial welcome.

"Well—for the land sakes! If it isn't Howard Lucas! I thought you were still in New York. I says to Mabel this morning, I wonder if Howard isn't ever coming back to see the home folks again!"

It seemed natural to find himself once more sitting in the old-fashioned parlor with enlarged portraits of the Elsmere family looking down from the walls, and stuffed birds which Mr. Elsmere had shot occupying the place of honor on the mantel-shelf.

Mrs. Elsmere talked volubly for a little while, then she rose saying: "I'll call Mabel, I reckon you want to see her."

In a few moments someone entered the room. Lucas looked—then looked again, blank amazement giving place to recognition.

"Don't you know me, Howard?" Mabel laughed as she shook hands.

He rallied himself and made cordial response, all the while hardly believing his senses that the woman before him was indeed the younger counterpart of her mother. It was the Mabel Elsmere he had known.

"I guess I have fleshed up some since you saw me last time," she giggled with elephantine archness.

While she was speaking her mother re-entered the room. "We think it's real becoming to Mabel to put on flesh," she remarked complacently. "She used to be so thin and peaked."

"Yes—yes indeed! She certainly looks—well," he declared with forced enthusiasm.

For an hour they talked together, then Mrs. Elsmere ostensibly withdrew and invited him to come for dinner the following Sunday. "Just like you used to do," she ended coyly.

Left alone, they tried to make conversation, all the while, with covert glances, he was trying to find some traces of the girl he had known. It seemed to him the whole personality of the woman had changed. Even her expression which he used to think so soulful had become the vapid prettiness of a china doll.

Finally, in desperation, he suggested going out to their favorite bench by the lilac bush. Even the flowers' dewey fragrance failed to recreate the old romance. He tried to draw her out on various topics, but even his keenest comments brought forth blank response. He concluded that Mabel's replies to the clever repartee of the girls he had met at the Dorsett's houseparties.

At an early hour he made excuse to go. When she asked him how long his vacation would be, he found himself replying vaguely: "Oh—just a few days. I have business which is likely to call me back at any time."

"I think I'll make it Sunday," he told himself as he strode down the walk. As he reached the street, Mabel's clear carrying voice floated out on the summer night:

"He's changed a lot, hasn't he? He used to be real jolly and sociable—now he's so solemn and stiff!"

"Yes," her mother answered, "a regular old bachelor!"

"To think I used to call her a dryad," Howard snorted, "baby elephant is more like it now!" Then he stopped short, struck by a sudden thought. "If I do go back tomorrow, I'll be in time for the Dorset's houseparty. Maybe, if I telegraph tonight, they'll get it before they have time to find somebody else for Louise Ferguson!"

Italian Yards Busy With Navies of Other Nations

2ND LINE THURLOW

Leghorn, Italy, Jan. 10— Italy is measuring places with England and Germany as a constructor of warships for other countries. Eleven nations including four Latin countries, have a total of 44 ships of war under construction or just completed in ten Italian shipyards. These range from cruisers to submarine chasers.

When Fortebu Minister Grandi, in a recent speech to the Senate said that shipyards of this kingdom had received so high a point of efficiency that many foreign states were giving them important orders, he was summarizing what was only gradually becoming known.

In the last several weeks two light cruisers built for Argentina—the "Almirante Brown" and the "25 de Mayo"—have been teasing up and down the coast undergoing speed and firing tests. Each of 6,000 tons each, they make 33 knots easily. They carry three turrets for twin 190 millimeter guns, six turrets for twin 102 millimeter cannons, six anti-aircraft machine guns, six torpedo tubes and a catapult for a seaplane. One was built here and the other at Sestri Ponente.

Other Latin American orders include a Brazilian submarine built at Spezze and already consigned, it has 1,396 tons surface displacement, 1,854 tons submerged. Paraguay has two gunboats, each of 845 tons, under construction at Sestri Ponente. Uruguay is having built a Monitor-type floating dock. Turkey is a consistent customer. She has nine warcraft on the ways in Italy, two submarines, four torpedo boat destroyers and three gunboats.

Rumania is paying for two torpedo boat destroyers of 1,800 tons each, one submarine of 600 tons, and a mother-ship for submarines of 2,200 tons. Greece has ordered four torpedo boat destroyers in pairs of 1,220 and 1,450 tons each; Persia four gunwall craft and two gunboats; Albania five submarine chasers; Egypt, a government yacht; Russia three ships of 600 tons each.

The total contract price of this small navy runs to many tens of millions of dollars. Thus Italy's trade balance is bettered considerably, for her battleships are as much articles of export as her olives or tomatoes.

SYDNEY CLERGYMEN TAKE UP BOXING

SYDNEY, Australia — Sydney clergymen have taken to boxing as a form of exercise calculated to keep the balance even between the use of the brain and the body, and one day recently eleven parsons on the roof of the Bjelke-Petersen Physical School demonstrated that they knew something of the manly art and were rather proud of it.

Stiff collars were taken off, black shirt-fronts removed, and in their place appeared white shorts and singlets, bare arms, and — boxing gloves. Medicine balls, propelled by muscular middle-aged arms, flew about the room; Indian clubs twirled, and inside a small room a clergyman, still wearing his glasses, loosened his muscles with spring levers. Then — Biff! Bang. Biff! The thud of leather on body sounded as the Rev. O. C. Granville hit the Rev. F. R. Swynny, Mr. Swynny hit back. Paces grew red, breath came in short gasps, and high up in a big store shop girls applauded audibly. But the parsons did not care. They revelled in it.

MAN'S GREATEST FOES

Indolence and Deference are man's greatest foes.

By Indolence is meant man's disposition to let some one else do for him what he should do for himself.

This inaction is more pronounced when men are called upon to think.

Nothing is more troublesome to the average man. He is pleased to be saved this effort. He accepts second-hand opinions because this is easier than to form independent judgments.

The Indolent man is mentally lazy. He yields to a strong-willed man.

By Deference is meant man's willingness to accept the views of those whom he secretly considers his "superiors."

Men may be educated, but if they lack will power they are found in the ranks of Indolence and Deference. As a social force they are powerful and are only noticed by vote hunters and census taker.

CHALLENGE EFFICACY OF B.C.G.

The efficacy of B.C.G. prophylactic vaccination against bovine tuberculosis is seriously challenged by the Pathological Division of the Animal Diseases Research Institute in a statement appearing in the annual report of the Federal Department of Agriculture for the fiscal year 1929-30. In the investigation have shown evidence of international significance attaches to the statement owing to the fact that the system of B.C.G. vaccination was introduced by the Pasteur Institute of France. Experimental work in Canada has been carried on as a major study since 1924 and while it is not possible as yet to make a final report the statement adds, "the experimental evidence so far obtained is distinctly unfavourable. The majority of the animals killed at different stages of the experiment are proving to be carriers and spreaders of virulent infection. With the knowledge at present available B.C.G. vaccination of cattle could not be justified in Canada and, in fact, is distinctly contra-indicated."

Asthma may be caused by molds found in the soil and plant parasites may be responsible for ringworm.

CANADA WINTER PLAYGROUND

Canada as a playground the equal or superior of Switzerland in the wintertime may be glimpsed from the Natural Resources Canada for January. Sports are becoming increasingly popular in the parks of British Columbia and Alberta.

At Banff, in Banff National Park, the winter carnival is an event of outstanding interest and annually attracts hundreds of visitors. Elaborate opening ceremonies are followed by a full week of sporting events of all kinds, including tobogganing, ski-ng, snowshoeing, ski-joring, sleighing, hockey, swimming, curling, trap-shooting and dancing. Although Banff in its beautiful alpine setting in the Bow valley lends itself naturally to the exhilarating pastimes of winter there are places such as Jasper in Jasper National Park, Mount Revelstoke and the mountains of the Pacific coast in British Columbia which offer the scenes of many thrilling forms of out-of-door winter sport.

At Jasper curling finds favour with both men and women and throughout the winter matches are arranged between rinks from Jasper and outside points. Snowshoeing and ski-ing are also popular. Last winter a party from Jasper made the first ski trip on record from that town to Banff. The accomplishment was especially remarkable as the three hikers must obtain passes had to be crossed and 160 miles of unbroken trail covered. Several nights were spent in the mountains, food was cached in advance at locations which would be accessible under ski-ing conditions and safe from the elements and the depredations of animals. Ski-ing parties also visited the Columbia ice-field and were highly impressed with their vegtare. The ski run in the Maligne Lake district is declared to be one of the finest in America. The ski-ing parties made the Maligne Lake chalet their headquarters. The party reached the ice-fields by way of Camp Parker. Returning to the chalet the party proceeded via Waterfalls canon through Maligne pass. A trip was also made to the Tonquin valley which is admirably suited to ski-ing.

Although Banff and Jasper National Park offer opportunities for the enjoyment of a wide range of sports, Mount Revelstoke Park in British Columbia has its attractions for expert ski jumpers. Every winter athletes compete for championship honors on the slopes of the mount, which possesses one of the finest ski jumps on the continent.

LOOK FOR BIG YEAR

It is expected that motor production in the year 1931 will reach from 3,750,000 to 4,000,000 motorcars. The high watermark of production was in 1929, with 5,500,000, but last year the production dropped to 2,000,000 approximately.

Motor manufacturers while hesitant to tell definitely what the output will be are generally optimistic for the creation of a new record of production in cars. Recent years have found the motor industry one of the best indices of prosperity and that it will show prosperity in the near future is confidently anticipated.

All sorts of winters rolled into one is the general view of the present season with its almost one weather change a day rain and soft weather. Wet weather may win out yet and the farmers be satisfied with water to fill the creeks, cisterns and watering places.

Belleville fax collections come in well, though some people have difficulty in meeting payments. It used to be that men of money were among the tardy payers but today they are generally up-to-the-minute in payment of the annual levy.

Clearing of the street of snow took up the attention of sixty idle men yesterday, who made quick work of the recent snowstorm's banks. This was the first work of the kind done this year and as far as the city's dwelling snow is concerned the city is ahead of last year for by this time in 1930 there had been heavy falls of snow.

Many nice things have been said with regard to the Hon. Robert Cooke, M.P.P., minister of Hydro, who is considered as one of the men likely to be chosen to take the post of chairman of the Commission on the retirement of Mr Magrath. It is good to know that all the nice things said of Mr. Cooke are true. Hastings will be pleased to see Mr Cooke honored though it would mean the vacating of his place in the legislature where he has faithfully served North Hastings and the rest of Ontario for many years.

Talk is rife of the appointment of Mr. W. H. Ireland, M.P.P., to the cabinet in the event of the appointment of Mr. Cooke to the Hydro chairmanship, Mr. Ireland, according to report is to represent the Government on the Hydro. It would be a great honor for Hastings to have two members on the Commission.

The world contains some mean men, or ignorant men anyway. One or other class must have contained the man who broke into Prof. Einstein's home at Kaputh, Germany. What could they hope to get in a scientist's house except knowledge, which has to be carried in the brains, not in pockets, baskets or bags. All the thieves in the world could not steal the secret of relativity for that is the property of everyone who understands it and hence it is as universal as truth.

THE GREAT VOICE

Through wind, through sea
A great Voice sings,
Its melody
Unceasing rings.

Through night, through noon
Its measures fall;
By sun, by moon
Its echoes call.

A great Voice sings;
To all who hear
Its music brings
Assurance clear.

Of rest, of peace,
Of joy and toil,
Of sure release
From long turmoil.

The message rings:
Through noon, through night
"All's well, all's right."
The great Voice sings.

THE CATS OF TRAJAN'S FORUM

The Roman Emperor whose column rises from the sunken Forum of Trajan, hard by the Pantheon in the Imperial city, could hardly have imagined that his fame would be less enduringly commemorated by that stately shaft than by the scores of otherwise homeless cats that lived around it. But so it has been for a century and a half at least. Tourists in Rome, after duly dropping coins of infinitesimal value into the rushing waters of the Trevi fountain, to ensure their return some day, are apt to stroll across the city to where the Pantheon lifts its stately dome and there contemplate the cats of Julius's Forum.

Just when the Romans took up the practice of depositing their homeless felines in this classic shrine does not record, says the Christian Science Monitor. But there they are—or were—sleek, seemingly well fed by the complaisant tourists, unable to escape the fifteen-foot walls of their prison place which has been left far below the level of the surrounding streets by a century after century accretion of rubbish and débris.

Rome has slowly lifted itself above its earlier forums and piazzas.

Now comes Mussolini, exponent at once of progress and classicism, and declares the cats must go. The Forum of Trajan, once the home of classic oratory, shall no longer resound to mere caterwauling. A cat may look at a king, but that is no reason why a column reared in memory of one of Rome's greatest emperors should rise from the detense of vagrant felines. Il Duce has spoken, the power which is laying bare, at great expense of archaeological knowledge and effort, the most dignified relics of ancient Rome rejects the tabbies as modern squatters on an ancient monument and has ordained their removal.

A brave man, this Roman Dictator. Cats have ever been endowed, in the minds of their superstitious, with singular capacity for occult vengeance. There were black cats in the Forum of Trajan—blacker than the shirts of the Fascisti—to skulk unmolested in the exile, ever as the foes of Fascism meekly depart for the Aegean isles? Time alone will tell.

An immortal couplet has it:

While stands the Coliseum, Rome shall stand;
When falls the Coliseum, Rome shall fall.

The cats of Trajan's Forum are, at least to modern visitors, as characteristic of Rome as any ancient monument. Are they to be lightly sacrificed to the passion for new ideas of a mere modern reformer like Fascismo's Duce?

PAYING HOMAGE

Every now and again, somebody takes it into his head to organize a public celebration of the achievements of Thomas Alva Edison. There has just concluded such a feast in Florida, where the great inventor was again lauded as mankind's greatest benefactor, and hailed as the supreme genius of the age. We are second to none in this business of paying homage to the great American. He has brought boons to the world for which the world will ever be in his debt. The fact that some of them are also the darndest nuisances does not detract from their intrinsic value nor the merits of their originator as an inventor.—Ottawa Citizen.

BRITAIN'S PART

Of course, it is true that Britain began to play a dominant role before the Dawes plan began to operate in her favour, and as a result she has paid, during the past five years, $600,000,000 more than she has received through instalments on the Allied debts and German reparations combined. This amount, however, is not entirely written off and does not appear in the Budget or constitute a continuing charge against the British taxpayer. It is this ability to stand up under a terrific burden of debt, to maintain her credit and to enable her to go to reach out for new markets for her trade, that stamps Britain as far from moribund, despite all the croakers.—Montreal Star.

A LITERARY DOCK

Owned by Professor William Lyon Phelps, formerly professor of English, Rufus has been elected to the Yale Pundits, a literary society, and boasts a membership number in the Anglican country clubs. This interesting dog, according to his master, "has been stroked by Joseph Conrad, petted by Hugh Walpole, savored by G. K. Chesterton, endorsed by George W. Russell (A.E.), patted by Sir John Erskine—and kissed by Irvin S. Cobb-worthy. Even George Bernard Shaw has honored him." In lighter mood, Professor Phelps says of Rufus: "All his books are dog-eared and he himself composes a great deal of doggerel. He is certainly a literary character of note, especially liking the book 'Literature and Dogma,' and he himself is a dogmatic philosopher of sorts. He has a complete set of Shakespeare which he bought dog-cheap. His favorite character is Hamlet, because, as he says, Hamlet was a Great Dane."—"Our Dumb Animals."

THE SPELL OF THE VICTORIANS

In an engagingly candid confession, Dr. R. W. Inge, the Dean of St. Paul's, declares that he is completely under an unrepentant Victorian. To him, it appears, Victorian girls were prettier and better mannered than the modern daughters of today; to him Victorian poets were more adept at scanning than modern poets; to him Victorian painters were more artistic than modern painters; to him Victorian novelists were giants among their kind; to him, in short, Victorian standards were real statesmen and not party leaders, as he rather disparagingly refers to the statesmen of our present time. The dean's challenge to the moderns to produce as impressive a list of great ones as the Victorians is one feared, remain unaccepted, because the moderns are likely to decline to be impressed by his list. Most of the men whom Dean Inge apparently reverences so much, it must be admitted, have already been forgotten, others are remembered only by their names, and only a very few still enjoy an ever-dwindling popularity.—Christian Science Monitor.

FOUNDATION STOCK

The Scots-Canadians of this province were laid by settlers direct from the Old Land, and by the United Empire Loyalists who gave up the refinements of civilization in the revolting American colonies to hew out homes for themselves in the Canadian forest in order that they might remain under the aegis of the British Crown and loyal to the Union Jack. These Loyalists were recruited in some parts of the country by disbanded British troops. In subsequent years there was a steady influx of Scots, Welsh and Irish settlers. From all these ultimately British sources the great community which we know today drew its best traditions and ideals. British brawn, British blood and British hearts went to the making of this province, and it is from it that we, a stream of settlers to the western provinces, which has been the dominant factor in the development of thought and the establishment of democratic institutions in that part of the Dominion. As Mr. Ferguson has well said, Ontario and Canada must continue to draw afresh upon the stalwart original British stock, which has led the world in the establishment of civil and religious liberty and decent government in all parts of the globe. —Mail and Empire.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Return of Family Doctor

Dr. John A. Hutchison, president of the New York Academy of Medicine, urged the return of the family physician as a figure of importance in the practice of medicine, and also the classification and certification of specialists, in his presidential address at the annual meeting of the organization in the academy building.

He revealed plans for a $2,00,000 post-graduate medical educational program and expressed opposition to state medicine. He also announced a $50,000 gift to the academy from Edward S. Harkness and plans for a new four-story addition to the present quarters.

Declaring that one solution of the difficulties encountered by the public is the selection of competent doctors and the overemphasis on specialization in medicine was in the return of the family physician, Dr. Hartwell in his speech said:

"These conditions would be benefited if every family had a definite medical adviser who was trained in the field of general medicine, with a sufficient knowledge of special fields to know when the conditions would best be treated under the care of a specialist. Unfortunately this man, the family doctor, has gradually been crowded by the will by the rapid modern development of specialism. Careful observers, happily, I believe, are swinging of the pendulum and expressing the opinion that the man of general sound information, engaged in the care of entire families, is beginning to play a more important part in the scheme of things than has been the case in recent years."

Dr. Hartwell pointed out that specialism had been forced on the medical profession by to great an advance in the knowledge of contagious diseases that the tactual material could not be assimilated and applied by any one man to the complex matter of maintaining good health and remedying poor health.

"Once created, the growth of specialism has been rapid and overwhelmed," he continued. "It is now necessary to place the practice of the various specialties into the hands of men who are competent and completely trained.

"It is pointed out also that there was no regular method by which the patient might be guided in the selection of a physician, because after the State licensed a doctor it exerted no control over him unless he was guilty of a crime.

"The physician is at complete liberty to undertake the care of any type of patient and to institute any therapeutic measure that he deems advisable," he said. "If the public is to be served in the best way it is necessary that it should have information that will permit the selection of a physician who is fully fitted to his requirements. The furnishing of this information, it would seem is a function of the profession itself. A special committee studying the problem reported that one method of meeting it was by classification and certification of those medical men capable of working as specialists, it was pointed out. In a previous report, members of the academy expressed that special licenses be granted to specialists upon the basis of special training and examination. These professors, it was said, would eliminate the unfit and the incompetent.

Referring to a recent stand taken by members of the medical profession and laymen advocating State and Federal control of medicine, Dr. Hartwell said State control would tend to place medicine in politics and do away with the personal relationship between doctor and patient. He did, however, advocate a close relationship between the organized medical profession and the various governmental agencies in attempts to work out public health measures.

"It is my belief that there are forces in the New York Academy of Medicine that can very materially help in the advance of further wise control of the practice of medicine by the State," he said. "But I also believe that the academy will stand firmly against being stampeded into senseless action. It does not give complete promise of success and that will make the practice of medicine a politically-controlled profession.

Turning in the necessity for post-graduate education in medicine, Dr. Hartwell pointed out that more than $103,000,000 was invested in this city in the conduct of undergraduate medical education and associated research. Although this money was expended to carry the physician into practice, he declared, scarcely any such similar effort was made to help the practitioner to keep abreast of medical knowledge.

ROMA DIXIT

(New York Times)

Justification for the great amount of space given by the pronouncing papers to publication of the entire text of the encyclical of Pius XI is to be found in the exalted position of the Pope, who is the head of the Catholic Church, whom it regards as the infallible teacher in matters of faith and morals, and who speaks to millions of Catholics in all parts of the world. What he has to say about the hysteric doctrine of his Church on the subject of marriage, with special reference to proposed modifications of it under modern conditions, will be read with the keenest interest by the clergy of other churches, and must be considered of great importance by the many millions who do not belong to his faith and order, who are whole-heartedly devoted to the betterment of family life and especially to the welfare of its well-born children with the best aids possible, but who will be eager to know the judgment of his Holiness.

They will find that, as was to be expected, he states and reaffirms the Catholic doctrine of the sacrament of marriage. A good part of the encyclical is taken up with citation of authorities, going to show that the declarations now announced by the Pope conform to the test of things believed, "semper, ubique et ab omnibus." Contraceptive methods, for the encyclical to fail to take notice of certain deviations in these later years, even on the part of "the faithful," are condemned. Companionate marriage is not permitted by the Church in any form, even after the other, with marked severity of condemnation. The plea for the care of needy children, made in the name of modern eugenics, he dismisses. Stress is laid upon the duty of meeting the needs of overburdened mothers through neighborly kindness, public assistance and Christian charity. To some social reformers the encyclical may seem overly depressing in denial that their efforts are rightly directed. But the Catholic Church has always found itself to be out of one century. It endeavors to look at the world and the unfolding of civilization "sub specie aeternitatis." And even outstanding Protestants must admit the possibility that in a hundred years or more their theories will have been proved inadequate, in that their more plausibility and force may be seen in the views expressed today by the Holy See of Rome."

TAXPAYER'S REPLY

Belleville, Jan. 9, 1931.

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

I read the "Burdened Taxpayer's" letter in last night's issue on valued paper tonight, and will agree their idea is certainly all right for the moment man or big wage earner. But what of us on small salaries. Why are we laid off some of the time, trying perhaps to make payments on a home and then have to pay past up taxes, insurance and other rates as they fall due. A quarterly payment plan on taxes would be a great help.

As for the walk to the City Hall four or five times a year that doesn't seem very many and means nothing to us every Saturday, to try and save a little towards taxes, water, electric and gas bills.

Hoping my letter gives the feeling of us small paid laborers. I am one who believes in "live and let live."

'MURDER PARTY'

Washington, Jan. 10—A "murder party" to which guests came armed occurred to represent famous murders of the ancient and modern times was given by Wilmott Lewis, recently knighted Washington correspondent of The London Times, and Lady Lewis. Mildred Hart of New York and his wife, Frances Noyes Hart, sister of Lady Hart, were co-hosts.

With the expert assistance of Mrs. Hart, author of "The Bellamy Trial," "Hide in the Dark," and other mystery tales, "murder" became a refined played as an after dinner diversion by guests who illustrated the "murders" they chose to represent with everything from poisoned rings and cups suggestive of the Borgias to presently-day black-jacks and sawed-off shotguns.

In the drawing room after dinner two guests were chosen to act as "detectives" and passed out of the room during the drawing of lots by the others to determine which should be the "murderer" and the victim.

The lights were then turned out, and in the midst of the ensuing confusion a scream was heard and the "victim" rushed into find a "victim" on the floor, marks of fingers on his throat, and the hunt for the "murderer" was on.

In the unravelling of the mystery, according to the rules of the game, each guest pointed out the person the "murder," who is permitted to lie as frequently and as efficiently as possible in the effort to escape detection.

The victim, on the theory that "dead men tell no tales," is required to rise and join in the fun, but not to talk about the murder. As a result, the guilty party rarely is uncovered by the "detectives" and tonight as usual the "murderer" escaped.

AUTOMOTIVE TREND

Whether due to hard times or attainment of the long-talked-of goal of one car per family, automotive trade production figures show a distinct check in 1930, as compared with the previous year. According to statistics issued by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, New York, the number of cars produced in Canada during the United States was 3,943,290, compared with 4,946,000 in 1929. Trucks numbered 761,800, as against 900,000. Canada's share of the passenger cars were cleared modestly within the highest proportion attained since the touring market began to take second place. Wholesale value of all cars and trucks was $2,156,800, a decrease of $1,000,000. Average price of passenger cars was slightly lower at $800 but the average value of trucks was up from $877 to $922. Total registration of motor vehicles in the United States shows comparatively slight increase at 26,718,000. The figure is 300,000 fewer cars in the hands of Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

GOLDEN DAWN

by PETER B. KYNE

This news brought him no comfort. She was beyond reach of United States law. However, he had detectives place her under surveillance. They reported her as living alone, so Mr. Catlin concluded she had placed Penelope with a school.

One day the detective agency sent him a very good snapshot of a little girl and asked him if this was the child he was seeking. The agency was unable to recognize in her the original of the photographs he had sent them. When Mr. Catlin peered upon this photograph, he wept. Mrs. Catlin's faith-cure, as he suspected it would, had proved wholly ineffective. In his agony, the words of the poem came to him:

And you, my sweet Penelope, out there somewhere you wait for me. With bowls of roses in your hair and kisses on your mouth.

He sold his retail shoe business and placed all of his assets in a trust fund, the income to be paid to him during his lifetime and to Penelope after his death. He saved out of this trust fund, however, five thousand dollars, with which he purchased a letter of credit and a ticket to Eberbourg.

In the interim Mr. Catlin's detectives had ascertained that Penelope was in a school in Switzerland; he planned to go to the school, abduct Penelope and—his plans were a trifle hazy, but he intended to mature them as he crossed the Atlantic. Once in possession of Penelope, he would see to it that she should never know unhappiness again, if any effort of his could prevent it. He was worth half a million dollars—half in cash and the remainder in real estate that was rapidly appreciating in value. He could afford to retire. They would go somewhere and lose themselves.

En route to the station—the first leg of his journey—the automobile in which he was riding was struck by another car and turned over. Mr. Catlin was thrown out and suffered a basal fracture of the skull, from which he died six hours later.

Stephen Burt, M.D., was the sort of man whose waiting-room always had been crowded, even if he had not been one quarter as capable as his colleagues knew him to be. He was a man of sweet simplicity, absolute honesty and overwhelming sympathy; and in short he was possessed of ideal personality for a successful physician.

Miss Lanning was his office nurse. In training schools for nurses—at least it was so on the hospital where Miss Lanning was trained—nurses and interns develop the spirit of democracy and comradeship which delights in nicknames—and in dispensing with formality. Quite early in her professional career, therefore, Miss Lanning became known as Lanny. She was not a very good-looking, capable, tremendously intelligent, forceful, driving person; exactly the type that would inevitably become an old maid.

When Lanny was thirty years old and Stephen Burt was thirty-five she bid him for a patient. He had measles. "What a nice, well-mannered boy!" she thought, the first day she had him. "What a dear lad!" she reflected the second day. "What a good, kind, considerate patient!" she exclaimed to the doctor on the third day. "He must have had a sweet, sensible mother."

"Perhaps," the doctor had replied. "I never knew her; and neither did the boy. She died at his birth. He's manraised. His father is an old friend and patient of mine."

"Has he a stepmother?" Even then Lanny reclined she would be a victim of a pang of jealousy if the doctor answered in the affirmative, for already the boy had aroused her maternal instinct. She was relieved to learn that his father had foisted no such trial upon the boy.

On the fourth day of his illness she called him "dearie". On the fifth day, when she proffered him castor oil, he rebelled; but when Lanny said: "Now, darling, I'll feel badly if you refuse to obey me," the boy had been instantly contrite.

"I'm sorry, Lanny," he apologized. "I'm a pig to oppose you." And then he frowned and took it—and Lanny kissed him and wanted to weep over him because he was such a dear and hadn't any mother—not even a stepmother!

"Lenny," he said to her on the seventh day, "do you know I love you a lot? I wish dad would marry you, so you could be with me all the time."

Lanny's heart swelled with the poignant grief of her battled maternity at that honest boyish avowal.

On the eighth day he developed double pneumonia, as a sequel to the measles. He almost died—and so did Lanny. The doctor swore—and so did Stephen's father—that nothing but Lanny's devoted nursing brought him through. She wept the day she realized if she drew another day's salary as his nurse, she would be accepting money under false pretenses; and she wept on two counts. First, because she was leaving Stephen, and second, because Stephen's father insisted on being too grateful for her services.

"There is a reward due you, Miss Lanning," he told her, "over and beyond the trifling remuneration given you in exchange for your devoted services. That's to do Steve and I can never repay, but the boy thinks we ought to make a pretense at payment, and so do I." And he opened her hand-bag and slipped an envelope in it.

When she got back to the Nurses' Home, where she lived between cases, she discovered he had given her five thousand dollars! Young Stephen had already given her his photograph, endorsed: "To my dear Lanny, with love from Steve."

Nursing is the most personal and impersonal profession in the world. Lanny never expected to see Stephen Burt again, but she sent him at Christmas a four-ounce Fairy fishing rod from Hardy's in London. It cost her a month's wages. She knew his father was a fishing enthusiast and would probably appreciate the same enthusiasm in his son. Steve had sent her roses on her birthday; and his love, by telegraph, Christmas eve, together with the ineffable White wish to replace the dollar time-piece she used to count pulse-beats. On New Year's Day, a year later, he made a formal call and she was out on a case so the day she was relieved she called upon him.

"Hello, Lanny," he said—and kissed her. "I wanted to see you to get some advice. Do you think, Lanny, that I'd make a half decent doctor?"

"God made you for a doctor," Lanny assured him. "You'll not have to be more than a mediocre doctor to be fin ancially successful. You were born with the ideal personality."

"Thanks, Lenny. I want to be a doctor, but I want to be a good one, too, so you tell me what I am to do about it. I've just graduated from high school. Made the honor roll," he confided shyly.

"How far up the honor roll?" Lanny's query had almost a fierce quality in it.

"Number one."

"And you were out of school two months of your last term. I'm proud of you, Stevie."

"Where shall I go to college, Lanny?"

"Where do you intend to practice when you're a doctor, Stevie?"

"Right here, in San Francisco.'

"In that event you should attend a local university. You'd go to Stanford University," Lanny decided. "If you graduate with honor there you're sure to get an internship in Stanford University Hospital. About two years of that and you'll know what you want to specialize in, so off you go for a post-graduate course in Berlin, Vienna and London for four years. Then you'll return and I'll be your office nurse and manager. How's that for a program?"

"Just dandy, Lanny.'

"It means ten years of grind, Steve but don't let the frights you," she warned anxiously. "Once you know what you know and know it, others will not be long discovering it also, and you'll be years ahead of the half-baked medical dunces this medical world is cursed with."

He flattered her immensely by taking her to luncheon and the matinee.

For the next four years Lanny did not see her boy, but he wrote her and remembered her at Christmas and on her birthdays. He was an honor graduate from the Leland Stanford Junior Medical School and was immediately given an internship at the University Hospital in San Francisco Inasmuch as Lanny frequently had patients at the hospital, they met several times a year. Lanny kept her ear to the ground, harkening to reports of his progress from worth while sources, and learned that he was regarded as a young doctor of distinct promise.

One day, after he had been two years in practice, they met in the corridor. "I've been wanting to see you, Stevie," Lanny began without any preliminaries. "Exciting. It's time for your postgraduate course in Europe."

"Impossible, Lanny. My father has has a frightful reversal of fortune. He's done a father's full duty by me and I'm not going to graft off him and perhaps sacrifice him in his old age. I'm self-supporting now and I'm going to pay back my salary in a few years I shall be able to afford a modest office and go in for general practice."

"You've followed my program thus far" and you'll continue until it is finished, Lanny announced. "I'll loan you the money. The five thousand dollars your father gave me has grown to seventy-five hundred dollars and I've saved two thousand more, so I'm going to bank you, and you shall pay me six per cent on the money you borrow, and secure me by life insurance." She was thoughtful for a few moments. "Well, perhaps three years abroad will benefit you more than four years would an ordinary man. So we'll cut the program to three years. After all, you must have some comforts; you've got to live like a gentleman. You will resign here today and I'll have the money for you tomorrow."

"But, Lanny, you dear old sport, I can't do that!"

Thereupon Lanny struck him in a vital spot. Her stern and lonely soul was touched. Not often did she indulge herself in the weakness of tears, but they flooded her eyes now and her throat heaved.

He was always touched at the sight of suffering; the vast underlying sympathy in his nature would never have it otherwise. Abruptly she left him! She knew he would seek her out later, to protest, at greater length, to know himself by eternal debtor for the offer and again decline it.

He called upon her at her lodgings that night—and Lanny won. It was a hard battle, but when Lanny did speak, lowered her head and went its to win, usually she succeeded.

Well, she had her way, and when he returned from Europe she had an office ready for him. She took forty years old on her next birthday, and after eighteen years of the dreary of private nursing she looked forward to her position in Stephen Burts office with pleasurable anticipation.

She met him at the ferry depot, and she took her to his heart and kissed her five times—twice on each cheek and once on the lips. "Well, old dear," he said almost immediately, "I'm a specialist, Neurologist and psychiatrist, and you're to be my first patient. I must go over you thoroughly and see what makes you act the way you do."

INSTALMENT II

Success was Stephen's. Modest at first, of course, but of rapid growth, and Lanny knew why. His patients fell in love with him and advertised him to their friends.

In two years Stephen Burt had repaid Lanny with interest; the third year he moved into new, sunny, roomy and beautifully furnished offices, with a waiting-room as large as all of his previous offices had been. He joined the best club in town; he joined a country club, and resolutely Lanny drove him out of the office on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons to play golf. She denied him the privilege of turning his own fees because she knew they would be too modest; she kept his free list to a minimum; knowing all his friends, she supervised his social duties; she kept his books and was a very devil of a collector; she wrote all his business letters and signed them for him; she invested his money for him, and since she was no mean psychologist, she could read a woman patient as she would a book (she was his Admirable Crichton, and he rewarded her with the confidence his affectionate friendship and pretty dazzling salary raise each Christmas.

He always kissed her at six o'clock on the twenty-fourth day of December in each year for the five years preceding the last one, and afternoon when Mr. Daniel McNamara called in behalf of the strangest patient Lanny's boss had ever been asked to accept.

It had been a long, hard day. Dr. Burt was tired, and a Mrs. Reginald Merton, who was rich and idle, not fragrant and generally unsympathetic, had been fatiguing him with a recital of her imaginery aches, pains and angrims.

He pressed a button under the desk tapping out a code message to Lanny and waited patiently.

He knew she would appear momentarily and say: "I'm sorry, Doctor Burt, but Professor Finnegan has just telephoned that you have fifteen minutes late to your engagement to meet the great German savant, Herr Doktor Uffis."

He waited three minutes and sent another code message to Lanny, asking the world "Help"! Still Lanny did not appear, so he said with his disarming smile: "Mrs. Merton, the five o'clock whistle has blown, and I can't listen to another word. I've just remembered a most pressing engagement, so now if you do not go at once I shall have to throw you out."

He had her by the arm and out of the door before she could think of another symptom. Then he locked the door, put both legs up on the desk and loaned and lighted his pipe, just as the door to his nurse's office opened and Lanny said:

"I'm so sorry, but Professor Finnegan—"

"She's gone. Where did you go, leaving me here to suffer?"

"I was in the washroom, placating an insistent visitor. I told him you had for the day, but he flashed some sort of police badge at me, said he wasn't nutty and that his business was private."

"Whenever you admit a person whose business is private and personal I am called upon for mental and physical effort, sans a fee, Lanny. I'm tired."

"What you need, dearie," said Lanny, "is a nice, long, cool, Bourbon and highball."

"And while you're on the job, get me one too," a deep voice spoke from the door behind her.

"It's that police person," Lanny cried.

"It is," the police person agreed with mellow, "and even if I am a cop I'm too smart to be fooled by the ribs of any woman. How are you, Doc?"

"Tired," he murmured. "Worn to a heavy-footed cop! How dare he force his way in—like big bum! And getting a drink for his dirty work!

She sniffed and served the highballs.

"You're mighty sweet, Lanny," Dr. Burt told her. "Now, run along home."

Lanny did not go. She knew that big hoocher of a chief of police would praise such old liquor and his host would offer him a second helping.

Ive got a girl down at Central Station," Dan McNamara was saying. "Shop-lifting detail picked her up in a department store where she'd pinched a dozen rnd a half silk stockings. Petit larceny and caught with the goods. I sent a good man around to try to square the case with the department store people, but they insist on pressing charge, and the's too bad because she's got a couple of priors against her. Out on probation—suspended sentence, you understand, Doc. And now she'll do two years in the Big House. 'S tough on the girl."

"What's your interest in her, if she's not confirmed thief?

"Well, maybe she wouldn't be a thief if she'd had the breaks," he declared. "Somebody must have given her a sweet bust on the nose, because her beaks been broke and nothing's left of it but a saddle."

Slump With Marriages Women in Bear Market Urged to Look Lovely

New York, Jan. 13—The marriage crop for 1930, like many another crop, was smaller than in former years.

With a dozen of the larger cities of the country, and numerous smaller ones reporting, that fewer marriage licenses were issued last year than in 1929, and with officials almost unanimous in blaming the economic depression for the slump, a prominent beauty scient added a further word of charm by telling women they must make themselves extraordinarily lovely to increase their chances of getting a husband.

"These figures are really astounding," said Mme. Helena Rubinstein, when shown the results of a nationwide poll of city clerks. "They remind me that the goal of all sensible young women, marriage, immediately becomes much harder of attainment as soon as there is a depression.

"And since we cannot predict when the present slump will end, it is obvious that thousands of women are faced with passing in spinsterhood a year or two, at least, of the best period of their lives."

But Mme. Rubinstein continued, "the fact that so many young people still are getting married gives a suggestion. Certainly the smartest women are not wanting in attention and preparation from men. And who are smarter women? Surely always those who look their best, especially in trying times. Let me urge women to make themselves extraordinarily lovely at this time, therefore, to overcome the resistance of what we may term the 'marginal' man."

What the depression has done to marriage is illustrated by the figures in New York. In 1929 there were 32,945 licenses issued to couples, but in 1930 only 31,724 applied.

In Boston, where 8251 licenses were taken out in 1925, only 7,494 permits were issued in 1930, and the official in charge of insurance said, "Business depression, economic conditions and postponement of intentions are prominent factors in the loss."

In Columbus, Ohio, fewer licenses were issued during 1930 than in any of the three years before that. The official in charge said, "the general depression prevailing through the country has had some effect in dissuading young folk from entering the marriage relation during 1930." In 1927, 3,785 licenses were granted; in 1928, 3,647; in 1929, 3,691; but only 3,403 in 1930.

Atlanta, Ga., showed a decrease of 360 licenses during 1930. In 1929, 3,730 were issued, and in 1930 only 3,371.

In Cincinnati, Ohio, 3,095 licenses were issued during 1930, as against 3,230 in 1929.

In Baltimore, Md., the number for 1930 was 6,396, a drop from 6,778 in 1929. Detroit showed a decrease of 4,818. The 1930 figure was 13,127, and that for 1929, 17,945.

Pittsburgh showed a similar decline. Only 8,170 licenses were issued in 1930 as against 10,294 in 1929. St. Louis showed a drop of more than a thousand. Kansas City, eight hundred, and Chicago nearly six thousand.

Fashionably Speaking By Lucille

DEAR READERS:

Corners come into their own in the new home schemes of decoration, says an interior decoration.

"There is a charm in a corner that no open space can possibly possess. It is surprising how timid home-makers seem to have been about utilizing these intriguing spots of a room to make them yield individuality and hospitality.

"Instead of sticking something catty-corner in a room, as if there were some bogey man likely to dodge up and protect the actual corner from being uncut, some rooms can be arranged to play up the last small inch of a corner's right-angledness to advantage.

"Corner cupboards are the most obvious and one of the most successful ways to utilize this space. These may be old-fashioned three-cornered "whatnots," enclosed china cabinets, or a combination of both.

"A new way to use the corner cupboard idea it to build bookcases along both sides of the room, having them meet in friendly manner at the corner. Against this enticing background build up a reading nook with easy chair, lamp, foot-stool and low arm chair table.

"Quite a daring idea for utilizing meek furniture is to have a love seat against one wall of a corner, pushed against the other wall, with appropriate picture or book rack above, a lamp on the outer side of the love seat and a hooked rug or some other rug compatible with the furniture right in front of it to draw the eye to this inviting spot.

"Corners and desks would seem to go together naturally, don't they, but seldom do so. Both have a sense or privacy about them. Both seem a bit withdrawn from the busy life of the room about them. An admirable desk arrangement in a warm living room with tan walls, a rich Persian rug with predominating rose tones and furniture upholstery that plays up to the rose, is to place a flat desk of rich warm woods in gold and reddish tones flanking the side-wall, against the end wall and back it with a screen that is painted in yellow, rich red, blue and gold.

"Put a mirror on the wall abreast of the desks end which will reflect the mellow light of the lamp's golden yellow shade. Slightly in front of the opposite end of the desk place one of the room's wide, greatful arm chairs and stool to match. This gives the desk a slightly withdrawn aspect, yet makes it an integral part of the room

"Very unusual and quite worth trying is the arrangement that puts the head of a daybed straight into the corner allowing the daybed to jut out into the room, taking a regular grouping of furniture to complete its unit of decoration."

Fashionably yours,

LUCILLE.

Correct Manners

Lettuce As Served at a Banquet

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly tell me how to proceed at a banquet held in a hotel? Are the courses eaten as they are served to you? Will say, first, a fruit cocktail followed by soup, then a half a head of lettuce and so forth? Eating the lettuce this way is so dry and seems kind of out of place.

L.T.

Often, to make the serving at a banquet easier, the lettuce is put on the table all the salad ready for consumption that we wait to eat it when the main course is served. It isn't the ideal service, by any means, but from the hotel's convenience to the waitress' and I agree with you that eating lettuce alone, after the soup, isn't very appetizing.

In the usual and best service the lettuce is served after the main course, and before the dessert, as it is by itself, and accompanied with some interesting kind of biscuit or cracker, and with cheese or a choice of cheese.

When it is served as you say, in hotel-banquet form or service, it is best to wait for the roast course.

The Correct Address Essential

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to know the proper time to send a gift to a bride and groom who sent me an announcement which was received after the marriage? At present they are away on their honeymoon and I am not familiar with either of their former addresses, nor do I know where they will be after their return. I presume they will send "At Home" cards later, but was just a bit dubious as to the time I should send the gift.

MRS. H.

Under this kind of circumstances, we must wait until we have an adequate address to which to send the gift. You will no doubt learn some word soon of a definite address, and then send your gift.

TODAY'S VERSE

SEA FEVER

I must go down to the sea again, to the lonely sea and the sky,
And all I ask is a tall ship and a star to steer her by,
And the wheel's kick and the wind's song and the white sail's shaking,
And a grey mist on the sea's face and a grey dawn breaking.

I must go down to the sea again, for the call of the running tide
Is a wild call and a clear call that may not be denied;
And all I ask is a windy day with the white clouds flying,
And the flung spray and the blown Spume, and the sea-gulls crying.

I must go down to the sea again to the vagrant gypsy life,
To the gull's way and the whale's way where the wind's like a whetted knife;
And all I ask is a merry yarn from a laughing fellow-rover,
And a quiet sleep and a sweet dream when the long trick's over.

CHANGING THE MENU TO SUIT WEATHER

By Hannah Wing

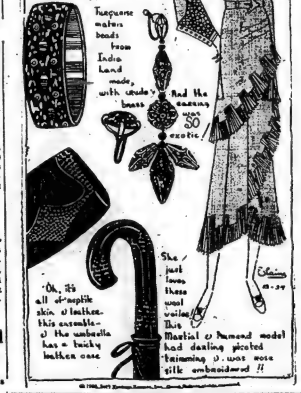
Now that it really has come, this predesigned Winter of ours. The appetite grows correspondingly busy and our thoughts turn to hearty, warming, satisfying meals. For these meals we build the menus around meat. And we plan these hot, savory meats to include the things that go with meat and bring out its best points. At the same time getting a balance that includes the right vegetables, the appetizing salads and the old favorite desserts.

Once now are the days when a cup of jellied soup and a lettuce salad were all we could bear to contemplate. This meal was all right when the sun rode high in the heavens and breezes blew hotter and hotter. Now we must fortify and be fortified against the icy blast, and there's something about snow and frost that sharpens the appetite as nothing else in the world can sharpen it. So hot our thoughts turn to hearty, warming, satisfying meals. For these meals we build the menus around meat. And we plan these hot, savory meats to include the things that go with meat and bring out its best points. At the same time getting a balance that includes the right vegetables, the appetizing salads and the old favorite desserts.

Once now are the days when a cup of jellied soup and a lettuce salad were all we could bear to contemplate. This meal was all right when the sun rode high in the heavens and breezes blew hotter and hotter. Now we must fortify and be fortified against the icy blast, and there's something about snow and frost that sharpens the appetite as nothing else in the world can sharpen it. So hot our thoughts turn to hearty, warming, satisfying meals.

When we think of meat for dinner, it doesn't always have to be steak or roast beef or even a leg of lamb. But we do want to have good hearty, appetizing meals, and to get them at a reasonable cost is our little problem.

The richer soups are one of the answers to the question. There is such a variety of soups to choose from, all perfectly prepared and convenient by put up in cans, that we can serve a different one at any time and devise some new thing to go with them, and a constant surprise is in store for the family. The cream soups are delicious—perhaps cream of tomato is one of the prime favorites. Cream of celery asparagus, pea and bean soups are excellent openers for a Winter meal. And oxtail puree, gateawny and clam chowder not only add much to the heartiness of the meal but, incidentally, with a salad and dessert, are a mighty good luncheon in themselves.



When meat is served, the greatest attention should be paid to flavor, garnishes and savory appeal, as well as to the ways of cooking to bring out the most appetizing qualities in the meat itself. Good sauces and good condiments help a lot; and vegetables cooked with and for the meats are the main items towards making what might easily be very ordinary dishes into really distinguished food. This holds for all left-over cooking, too.

RADIO BROADCAST RESULTED IN RETURN OF BOY TO TORONTO HOME

Harold Holliday Refused to go to School and Promptly Headed Eastward

On Monday evening Harold Holliday appeared at the police station here and asked for a night's lodging. Sergt. Booth was on duty at the desk and questioning the lad, the latter gave his age as 17 and his home, Toronto. Although the officer was somewhat suspicious, he assigned the young transient to his berth, after outfitting him with an overcoat from the pile of clothing which has been donated by city residents. The young-ster was dressed in an ordinary green sweater and this mode of attire is not at all popular in withstanding January blasts. He informed Officer Booth that his parents were too poor to keep him and he was looking for work. A local radio enthusiast listening to a news broadcast, learned that Harold Holiday had disappeared from his Toronto home, and was sought, as his mother was seriously ill.

The announcer stated that he was last seen boarding east. Officer Booth was in conversation with the radio man who happened to mention the incident and the former remembered that Holliday had been a guest at the market street hostel the night previous. Last night Holliday appeared again and he was held until the arrival of relatives today. He is fourteen years of age.

Later he admitted to the police that he rebelled against attending school and when his parents insisted on his going, he promptly left home, not taking as much as a tooth brush with him. He returned home and is not likely to make a hasty departure again.

START JUDGING AT 17TH ANNUAL POULTRY SHOW

Judge Herbert Warrington Congratulates Breeders on Displays

KIDDIES OUT TODAY

C. S. Webber Gave Demonstration of Picking and Plucking Fowl

Judging at the 17th annual Belleville Poultry Association exhibition was well under way today, under the capable directorship of Judge Herbert Warrington, of Cornwall, Ontario. The Bantam class was still unjudged this morning, but the greater part of the other varieties were completed.

Two or three exhibitors have circled off a great percentage of the prizes in several classes. W. J. Gay has been extremely successful in every class he entered, H. Urch cleaned up the S. C. Rhode Island class, while S. Stillman took every prize in the Blue Andalusian and Silver Grey Dorking entries. Donald Cook, just a youngster, has taken all first honours in the White Rocks class.

This afternoon and this evening an interesting display will be seen when C. S. Webber, of Toronto, will demonstrate just how rapidly a hen can be killed and plucked. Mr. Webber is one of the fastest in the Dominion at this art.

Today was "School Children's Day" and all school kiddies were admitted for the price of one large nickle. They flocked to the show in great droves, displaying special interest in the bantams and in the pigeons and rabbits.

Following is the prize list, as so far completed by Judge Warrington:

Taking his stance on the water's edge, Underwood hooked 16 fish out of the channel, one after the other, with undercuts.

GOLF INSTRUCTOR FOR QUINTE CLUB

William Little Succeeds Sam French as Pro at Country Club

William Little, crack professional of Drummondville, Quebec, will be the new golfing instructor at the Bay of Quinte Country Club next season. This was decided at a regular monthly meeting of the Bay of Quinte Country Club directors last night. A contract has already been signed by Mr. Little.

Little has been "pro" at the Drummondville club for some seasons and has gained considerable reputation in golfing circles. Sam French, last year's "pro" has already left the city, his contract expiring at the end of the past season.

Outside of some regular business, nothing else of importance came up at the directors gathering last night.

DAME FASHION DECREES RETURN OF HOOP SKIRTS

Victorian Era Will be Noted in the New 1931 Styles it is Said

New York, Jan. 14—The hoop skirt —with modifications—is due for a comeback.

This was disclosed last night by Amos Parrish, fashion expert, in discussing Spring styles at his semi-annual fashion "clinic."

And not only the hoop-skirt idea, originated and worn by the Empress Eugenie, but several fashions ideas inspired by Queen Victoria, are due to grace the 1931 mias. Among these will be modern versions of the Victorian fitted jacket to be worn as evening jackets with evening costumes.

Other inspirations for Spring have been derived from the ancient Greek goddesses, whose costumes, Mr. Parrish explained, consisted of a piece of cloth draped around them in a very artistic, yet very simple way.

"Long, straight flowing lines," he said, "peplums or short tunics on skirts, draped necklines, cowls and scarfs, draped girdles and sash ties are some of the important fashion details that are Greek in their inspiration."

The question of dress length, he said, is no longer a question.

"For general street and daytime wear," he said, "skirts worn by a majority of women this Spring will be middle-calf length; for the more formal afternoon wear the lower calf length will be most popular and for evening wear, ankle length."

Mr. R. J. Graham Puts Definite Proposition Before Meeting of Citizens for Placing of Granite Monument with Bronze Figure of Warrior at Memorial Park—Public Participation in Monument Fund Sought—Question of Memorial Hall's Future Occupies Attention—Unanimous Vote on War Memorial and on Location.

That there should be a war memorial in the form of a monument erected in Belleville and that the site should be Memorial Park was the decision of the meeting of citizens in the office of Mr. R. J. Graham on Tuesday afternoon, when he laid before the meeting, which was composed of representatives of various societies or organizations, including the citizens' committee, a definite proposition, a design of a monument thirty feet four inches high at a proposed cost of $11,350 without lettering of names of soldiers or the cost of the base. The memorial will weigh thirty tons.

Mr. Graham's Proposition

In view of the fact that the corporation of the city through the city council years ago accepted from the late Mrs. R. J. Graham and Mr. H. W. Ackerman, Memorial Park for memorial purposes, Mr Graham told the meeting that the plan suggested was carrying out the plans when the park was presented to the city. He said that he was accordingly not interested in any other site, and that this year was the occasion for the erection of a monument, all previous attempts to reach a decision as to the type and to site having ended in inaction.

He would like the co-operation of the city, individual citizens, societies, adjacent townships or the county as well as of organizations, but if the proposition he proposed fell through, as far as agreement on site and memorial and contribution was concerned he would go ahead and erect the monument himself if the Parks Commission would grant him permission. In the event of public participation, he would willingly make a contribution to the cost. He favored general participation and he had no desire to have his name connected with the monument.

Legion Hall Future

The question of the immediate future of the Legion Memorial Hall loomed large at the meeting. Will the veterans be able to carry on? was one of the important factors in the unreached decision yesterday. There is a general feeling that the memorial hall is not serving its purpose as well as it might and that it is too great a load for the Legion members to carry. In the event of the trustees taking it back and returning it to the city, the money, realized from its disposal or an equivalent sum in the form of the city using the building for city offices would practically erect the monument. Legion members and all other veterans are to be consulted as to their wishes.

Hall a Burden

Mr. Jeffs, former secretary of the legion, told that the hall placed a very heavy financial burden on the legion.

The result of the meeting is that the citizens' committee appointed last year and the organizations interested will be called to meet and have the latest proposition placed before them.

The proposition would appear to be the first real step towards the realization of a monument in Belleville, owing to the attitude of citizens and Mr. Graham himself. Mr. Graham made clear that if public participation was not forthcoming, and if he undertook the task of erecting the memorial monument himself alone, it would not be as large and elaborate as that which he had submitted to the meeting.

Concrete Proposal
